BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

"Do you own this swamp?" he asked Politely

Why The Folks Objected

Remember that what'ever you do
Affects some other people, too.
—Old Mother Nature.

I suspect that Paddy the Beaver didn't give this so much as a single thought when he planned that new dam and the big pond it would make. He had no thought for any save himself and family. And if any one had told him that the building of that dam and the making of that pond concerned others he would most indignantly have denied it. He would have said that it was wholly his business, and that was all there was to it.

But this wasn't true. Peter Rabbit realized this as he saw that pond growing, saw the water spreading farther and farther through the swamp. It came over Peter that he had run through a large part of that swamp for the very last time. There would be no more running through it, because it would always be under water unless the dam was destroyed some time. He knew that after a while all those trees and bushes would die, would be drowned. He had seen it happen before in the place where Paddy's old pond now was. It meant that Long-bill the Woodcock and Mrs. Longbill would have to look for a new nesting place next spring. So it was with something of a feeling of sadness that Peter watched that pond grow.

But Peter was not the only one concerned. His cousin, Jumper the Hare, had used that swamp a great deal. It always had been a very fine place in which to fool enemies on his trail. Now it would not be so easy to get rid of enemies.

Lightfoot the Deer always had liked that swamp. It seemed to him a pity that it was to be destroyed. But he didn't feel as badly about it as Jumper did. He knew that in time there might be water lilies there and this would mean many a feast. So he might have felt a lot worse than he did.

Yowler the Bob Cat objected because he objects to anything new. Then, too, this particular swamp had long been a favorite hunting ground of his and he didn't like the idea of losing it. No, sir, he didn't like that idea a bit. He didn't hesitate to say so. He snarled at Paddy as the latter worked just beyond his reach, and told him that he had no right to build that dam.

Paddy grinned at him. "Do you own this swamp?" he asked politely.

"No, I don't own this swamp, but neither do you," snarled Yowler.

"No one has said I own it," retorted Paddy. "I don't claim to own it. All I claim is the right to live, and to live I must have plenty of water for safety, as you know very well. So I am building a dam to give me that water. If the water makes a pond in place of this swamp, so much the better for me. If you don't like it it is for you to stop it. Sitting around snarling at me so unpleasantly isn't going to stop it."

Yowler had such a fit of bad temper then that he nearly choked. He dug his claws, his sharp cruel claws, into a log and fairly screeched at Paddy. "You'll never finish this dam!" he screamed. "You'll never finish this dam!"

But Paddy only grinned, and finally Yowler went away spitting and snarling and making all sorts of dreadful threats of what he would do to Paddy and Mrs. Paddy and the young Beavers.

"Yowler seems a little put out, my dear," said Paddy to Mrs. Paddy. "We will have to watch for him more sharply than ever. It will be best for the children to never go more than a jump or two from the water. He will try to get them first, for he knows they are not as wise in their ways as we are. I think this dam needs to be strengthened right over here. Have the children bring me a few sticks. I will put them in place. I am not at all sure that Yowler has gone far and we don't want them to run any risk whatever."

So the young Beavers brought sticks which they cut from the alders on the very edge of the water, and Paddy placed them carefully in the dam, all the time keeping eyes and ears and nose at work to give him warning should Yowler try to creep back and surprise him.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

HUE

"Hue, capital of Annam, where an emperor recently died and another was crowned, may be considered the heart, though not the metropolis, of French Indo-China," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Annam is less completely under French control, officially, than any of the other states with which it is associated in the territorial group known as French Indo-China," continues the bulletin, "but Annam and the twelve million people of Annamese blood really constitute the chief factor in this region of French influence. In few places are the old forms of oriental magnificence maintained as completely as in the imperial establishment at Hue. Until recently the palace was forbidden ground, and it is still far from easy to obtain access.

"Inside the palace walls is a richness and an elaborateness seldom encountered outside fairy tales and the settings of extravagant stage presentations. There are picturesque gardens; paved courts, where on occasions the ten thousand mandarins of Annam strike their foreheads in unison on the ground before the emperor; dim corridors of countless columns with their huge perfume burners sending up continual clouds of incense; and exquisite rooms of intricately wrought ceramics and gold and silver. Opening into the emperor's state rooms is the great Golden Door, through which, in addition to the sovereign, only the extraordinary Ambassadors may pass.

"Lavish festivals and displays take place within this fairy land of luxury. The most charming and characteristic, perhaps, are the children's ballets, in which scores of dainty, costumed youngsters go through elaborate steps and postures with bright fans in their hands and a lighted, colored lantern attached to each youthful shoulder.

"Outside the palace enclosure Hue is less appealing. The 'metropolitan area' of the city is in large part a collection of native villages clustered in the shadow of the great palace-citadel walls. Across the river is the French Residency with its Gallic western atmosphere. For a long time Hue was little known, and as a result of an important country, its size was exaggerated. Its population is only about 60,000.

"The town is in a tropical region in the latitude corresponding to the southern extremity of Mexico. It lies near the mid-point of the long double-curving coast of French Indo-China, a few miles from the sea on the Hue river. Built on a flat, the city itself has little beauty of form or setting; but it would be difficult to find in the Tropics more beautiful environs than it possesses. Only a few miles away rise the mountains from which the Hue river flows, and even closer are lower wooded hills and valleys. Numerous villages are all but hidden in a mantle of green; palms, bamboos, and scores of tropical vines and shrubs. Carefully kept paddy fields alternate with wild regions of underbrush, and scattered about the countryside are innumerable graceful pagodas.

"The most remarkable feature of Hue are the famous tombs of the kings, which lie in the charming pine and banyan-covered valleys and hills a few miles from the city—true cities of the dead, far more attractive in setting than that of the living. For each departed ruler of the past several centuries a large area has been developed as a resting place and memorial for himself, his wives, children and servants. These developed areas are in two parts. One is a beautiful group of gardens, lakes, summer-houses and a memorial hall. The latter is fitted with the furniture from the departed emperor's apartments. The second part of a vast enclosure nearby, usually a series of terraces above the gardens, in some unmarked spot of which the body of the emperor lies. The reigning emperor visits each of these garden-tombs of his ancestors annually and makes obeisance to their spirits.

"The notable structures and gardens extend from end of the 18th century to the present. The earlier of these are exceedingly elaborate and have much in them to remind one of Fontainebleau and Versailles. It is likely that their builders were influenced by French officers then in the employ of the Annamese. The later tombs are of native architecture. Both types are striking and artistic, and make up one of the most beautiful groups of royal tombs in the world."

The truth of the saying that "It's not the heat but the humidity" has been demonstrated by recent experiments which show that when the air contains all the moisture it can hold, the human body can not endure a temperature higher than 90 degrees Fahrenheit for more than a short time.

GIVING MORAL LEADERSHIP IN LATIN-AMERICAN COUNTRIES

Charles J. Ewald, commercial secretary of the Y. M. C. A., in South America, who spoke Sunday morning at the Greeneville Congregational church and in the afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. building, was the speaker at the Sunday evening service at the Central Baptist church where he gave a brief but intensely interesting talk upon the Latin-American countries among which he has lived for 23 years and has the greatest respect and esteem for the people of these 20 republics with a population of eighty million.

The basic problems of Latin-American countries, he said, are religious problems and their need is for character building agencies. There is the dawn of a better day in these countries in a new awakening in religion and they are open to the ministry of the Y. M. C. A. in its moral leadership. As an instance, Mr. Ewald spoke of a brilliant resident of Buenos Aires, an intellectual leader, who has become affiliated with the Y. M. C. A. to spread the Christian message in the Latin-American countries.

President J. C. Macpherson of the Norwich association read the scripture at the opening of the service, prayer was offered by General Secretary Edwin Hill and the speaker was introduced by James L. Case, a former president of the Association.

HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE AT MONTVILLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 6—A small wooden structure, owned by the Robert Gair company, Montville, and occupied by a Polish employe of the mill and his family was practically destroyed by fire early Saturday evening together with the furnishings of the place. So serious did the flames become and because of the belief that other buildings would be destroyed, that a call was sent to fire headquarters here for assistance. Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman and the Niagara Engine company pumper responded, but by the time the New London firemen reached the blaze the fire had been practically extinguished by mill hands although the building was as good as destroyed.

OBITUARY.

Miss Hannah McCarthy

Miss Hannah McCarthy, 25, died Friday night at her home, No. 34 Roath street following an illness of several weeks. She was born in Norwich and was the only child of Dennis and Annie Dennis McCarthy. Miss McCarthy was a graduate of St. Mary's parochial school, a member of St. Mary's church and a member of the Young Ladies' sodality. She is survived by her parents. Miss McCarthy was an affectionate daughter, a true friend and a faithful employe.

Mrs. Arthur Rousee

Following an illness of some duration the death of Mrs. Helen McCarthy Rousee, daughter of the late James and Nellie Connor McCarthy, of Norwich, occurred Thursday December 3rd, at Hartford, Mrs. Rousee was born in this city 24 years ago and had spent practically her entire life in this city, having lived in Hartford only a few years.

She is survived by her husband, Arthus Rousee, a four year old son and a sister, Mary McCarthy, a nurse at St. Francis hospital and an aunt, Mrs. Michael Brennan, of Norwich.

John Hildebrand

Following an illness of about a month the death of John Hildebrand, occurred at 6.40 o'clock Sunday morning, at his home at No. 44 West Thames street.

He was born in Norwich, January 8, 1904, the son of August and Augusta Hildebrand, and had spent all of his life in this city. After graduating from West Chelsea school, Mr. Hildebrand took up the trade of carpenter and recently became affiliated with the Norwich Carpenters' union. He was a member of the United Congregational church.

Of quiet disposition the young man readily made friends and the news of his death will be received with profound sorrow.

Surviving besides his parents are five brothers, Charles, of Harrison, Ind., Harry of Norwich, Henry, of New York city, Edward, of Hartford and Albert of Norwich, also three sisters, Mrs. Marie McDonald, of Howard, R. I., and Augusta and Matilda, who lived at home.

Ruth Graham

Much sympathy was expressed Sunday for Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, this city and Mrs. Graham, when it became known that their infant daughter Ruth had died at Hartford hospital Saturday evening. The baby was 18 months old and while ailing somewhat during the fall, was not taken seriously ill until Friday, when she was taken from their home on Williams street to the Hartford hospital. She was born June 3rd, 1924.

The parents have three other children, James, Robert and Mary Louise.

Miss Anna La Roche

The news of the death of Miss Anna LaRoche, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville LaRoche, of Occum, which occurred in Norwich at an early hour Friday morning, came as a shock to her many friends. Miss LaRoche entered the hospital a little over a week ago for an operation for appendicitis. Complications which developed caused her death.

She was born in Occum August 11, 1903. Her life was spent in the village of Occum and her education was received in the schools of the town. A faithful attendant at Saint Joseph's church and a member of the Children of Mary, hers was a valued and useful life. For several years she had been an employe of the Totokett Manufacturing Company in its weaving department. Miss LaRoche is survived by her father and mother, three sisters, Mrs. Thomas Bruno, Mrs. Ira Leonard and Miss Eva LaRoche, of Occum and by two brothers, Joseph LaRoche of Occum and Irlene LaRoche of Taftville.

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott spoke before the men's club of Trinity Methodist church at noon Sunday on 'Some Things I See in Jesus." In the evening, Rev. Mr. Abbott addressed the Home Time gathering at the Community House.

ACADEMY PRIZE ESSAYS ON THE ATTRACTIONS OF NORWICH

The six best essays from the Norwich Free academy students in the contest held by the Chamber of Commerce on the subject: "Reasons why Norwich is an attractive city in which to live," were recently judged by a committee appointed by the chamber. Each essay was given a number and all marks of identification of the essay writer were eliminated from the papers.

The judges individually examined all the essays prior to their meeting. Their judgment of the best essays was as follows:

Number 8, George Hodges, first prize, $5.

Number 2, S. Zimmerman, second prize, $3.

Number 4, Louise Case, third prize, $2.

Honorable mention is given to Katheryn Zumbro, M. M. Cotton, and ——— Fellows.

The judges were: Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, James E. Murphy, principal of the Greeneville school, and Judge Arthur L. Libby.

The prizes will be distributed to the winners by President James L. Case of the chamber during this week. Blue ribbons, properly lettered in gold, will also be given to the winners and to those who received honorable mention.

The three prize essays were the following:

First Prize, George Hodges

V.—Youth's standpoint.
  a. Advantages afforded by surroundings.
  b. Advantages offered by organizations, etc., within the city.
VI.—Conclusion.

The eastern part of Connecticut abounds in hills, forests, and small rivers. In the very midst of these, in a valley at the junction of the Yantic and Shetucket rivers, a large, beautiful rose has flourished since about 1656. This rose, Norwich, has about thirty thousand happy and contented petals, its population. Why they are happy and why it is called the Rose of New England I will endeavor to explain in the following paragraphs.

First I will explain the viewpoint of those petals which represent the manufacturers in Norwich. Why did they pick Norwich as the site of their factories? They selected Norwich because it has those facilities which a manufacturer needs, namely, horsepower, a near market, a convenient means of transportation, and men and women who are willing to work. The horsepower is abundantly supplied by the three rivers, the Shetucket, the Yantic and the Thames. As for the second and third facilities Norwich is situated near both New York and Boston, one the greatest and the other a great trading center, with which Norwich has easy and short intercourse, either by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad or by boat down the Thames into the Sound. The labor situation in Norwich being in an excellent condition, the fourth problem is easily solved.

Turning now to those petals which represent the people residing in the city, I will explain why they have settled here. There are hundreds of splendid sites for homes, which can all be filled and with the modern conveniences, the telephone, electric lights, water, and gas. A fine police department and a large fire department insure safe protection, the one from crime, the other from fire. The sewage being ably cared for by the typographical situation of the town, sanitary conditions are kept above the normal at a minimum of expenditure. Large well ventilated public schools with a competent corps of instructors, and exceptionally well conducted free academy, a municipally owned gas and electric plant which enables the residents to purchase these commodities at less then their usual rates, its trolley and bus lines connecting it with outlying communities, its well-constructed highways, and lastly its government at all times, by men who are sane and careful and who place the interests of their city above all things, believing that this city of diversified industries by its exceptional qualifications cannot help but appeal to the manufacturer looking for a location and the workman for a home.

In his recreation periods the workman may either go hunting and fishing or he may visit Gardner's Lake, Lantern Hill, the Devil's Hop Yard, or the ocean resorts, any of which may be reached at a low cost because of their close proximity to the city.

And last but not least let us turn to those petals which represent the youth of the city. The boys may enjoy the numerous ball games, the park, hunting, fishing, hiking, the annual circus, the Y. M. C. A. swimming, the playgrounds, under supervision, and lastly skating, sliding, and skiing in winter. The girls, beside some of the above have the benefit of a Campfire Girls and a Girl Scouts organization.

All of which, in my mind, tends to prove that Norwich is an attractive place to live in.

Second Prize, S. Zimmerman
Why Norwich is a Good Place to Live In Norwich, the city of diversified industries. Could anything describe the industrial conditions of Norwich in a more fitting manner? 'Tis indeed the ideal city for every man, woman, and child. For a newcomer it is comparatively easy to settle down and become accustomed to the living conditions here. No matter what his or her particular vocation, it is an easy matter to find work to satisfy.

But not only work, but also places of amusement for one to pass the spare time, are well distributed around Norwich. Libraries, an excellent museum, theatres, a first-rate country club, and such social organizations as the Y. M. C. A. afford diversions for every class of people.

For the children the public schools of Norwich can not be excelled. Recently several of the older schools have been replaced by large, sanitary buildings, containing not only recitation rooms, but also large auditoriums, gymnasiums, etc. Special attention can be attracted to Elizabeth Street school and the new Bishop school. Another notable achievement is the beautiful St. Joseph's school now being erected by the Polish people of Norwich, with the help of the contributions given by our public spirited citizens. The Norwich Free Academy is a public high school unsurpassed in efficiency and spirit.

Norwich is also the proud possessor of several civic organizations, whose suggestions and continual coaching has made possible a great many of the up-excellent sewerage and lighting systems, the wide smooth roads, an efficient-to-date improvements in their city. Our cient police department, a large hospital, and public parks, are only a few of the long list of improvements that make Norwich such a successful and thriving city.

The methods of transportation are of the best. Two prominent railroads pass through Norwich. Our bus line, running in all directions, with Norwich as its terminal, is the cause of so much so-called "neighborly" envy. The trolley cars and taxis furnish all the local transportation. The waterways leading to and from Norwich are continually kept in fine condition, the channels being dredged whenever it is deemed necessary.

The homes of Norwich, aided by the excellent lighting and sewerage systems, make ideal homes. The many stores of Norwich, all well stocked, keep the cost of living on a low, fairly level basis.

But Sunday comes, and all work stops; for Sunday is a day respected by all. For church goers there is a church for every individual form of worship. For car owners the wide smooth roads are invitations to go where everything is restful. The pure, healthy air inspires one to live a successful and long life. The residents of Norwich are proud of, and all visitors are astounded and marvel at the beautiful scenery that surrounds them on all sides. All this leads up to that glorious appellation, "Norwich, the Rose of New England." Is it not something to be proud of?

Third Prize, Louise Case

Outline of Why Norwich is an Attractive City. A resident of Norwich and a man who intends to come here are conversing. They discuss:

1. Schools.
2. Amusements.
3. Telephone and telegraph service.
4. Trade.
5. Transportation.
6. Miscellaneous.

"I'm very glad to know you, Mr. Gardner. I'm pleased to know that you are a resident of Norwich, Connecticut. I intend moving my family there soon, and I wish to know more about the place. I have two daughters, one in high school, the other in grammar. Is there a good educational system in Norwich?

"I assure you I know of no better secondary school in New England than Norwich Free Academy. I am positive that your daughter could not receive a better high school education elsewhere. We have also good grammar schools. My own children attend Broadway. We are in every way satisfied with their education."

"And how about amusements?"

"We have three excellent theatres the Broadway, Breed and the Palace. Then there are the musical entertainments at Slater hall under the management of the Norwich Musical association. Some of the best musicians in the country have played there. Once in a while there are amateur, local talent performances given. The Academy Boys and Girls Reading contests are worth attending also as are the concerts given by their glee clubs."

"How about telegraph and telephone communications?"

"We have two efficient telegraph offices, the Western Union and Postal. The telephone service is as good as elsewhere. Our banks are worthy of mention also. About thirty million dollars are deposited in the banks of Norwich. This is most remarkable for a city of its size and population."

"And the trade?"

"Oh, we have stores and shops of all kinds. We have numerous specialty shops and a few department stores. There is really no need of going out of Norwich for anything, it can be procured right in the city."

"Tell me about the transportation."

"We have two railroad stations. The Central Vermont line and the New York, New Haven and Hartford line run through. A freight boat leaves Norwich directly for New York. Busses leave daily for Hartford, Worcester, Middletown, Providence and New London. Trolleys leave Franklin Square every hour for Willimantic, every half hour for New London and every two hours for Jewett City. Then of course, there are the local trolleys running frequently to, practically all parts of the city. We also have the Luxor taxi service."

"Besides all this I suppose there are the usual clubs, dances, public libraries, hotels and so forth?"

"Certainly. There are the Elks, Lions, etc., and of course there are dances. We have two libraries, the Otis and the Peck. The latter is really a part of the Academy, and it is used mainly by the pupils, who find it very helpful."

"Well, Mr. Gardner, you seem to enjoy life in Norwich. If all the inhabitants feel as you do it must be some city."

"There is something about Norwich, Mr. Russell, that makes one who leaves it homesick and eager to get back. Norwich is truly named the 'Rose of New England.'"

Honorable Mention.

The following are the essays that were given honorable mention:

Norwich.

Norwich fair is an ancient town,
Full far afield her fame has flown;
As Rose of New England she is known
To more than those who call her home.
She sits on seven hills like Rome,
The blue sky canopies her throne,
The earth her footstool, at her feet
The sparkling rivers widely sweep.
The fertile fields spread far and wide
And many farms upon them bide.
Does nature in her sternest mood
Seem lovelier to those who brood
Upon the landscape? Many a scar
Of granite rocks the smoothness mar,
While trees in great abundance trace
Across the scene their lines of grace.
Or should you long for Ocean's roar
You have not far to find the shore.
New London is not hard to seek
And Hartford's not a distant treat.
Her history brings a blush of pride
To all who in this town reside.
Her Uncas and his redskins trod
Upon the soft and verdant sod.
Now, Slater Hall has many stones
Found buried with the warriors' bones.
Miantonomoh met his fate
Thank Heaven! it was not too late.
To save the valiant souls who here
Were struggling for their near and dear.
They cleared the fields, they ploughed, they sowed.
They toiled with more than modern load
For well they knew the forest's shade
Concealed all warning of a raid.
At last their task on earth was won,
And we praise God for what they've done.
Now we live in this busy place,
We all rejoice in a free race.
Today we have upon those hills
Our factories and cotton mills.
Our schools are of the very best,
Academy, it beats the rest.
When prizes come to college days
It's N. F. A. that leads always.
Once La'roop's early cotton mill
Made every passer-by stand still Amazed such wonder here to see
But now just count them for me.
The industries that here abide
Are many. Surely well supplied
Our townsmen are with all the things
That go to make us proud as kings.
Her streets are wide, with shady trees
Upon each side. A pleasant breeze
Blows through them in the summer time.
Her sidewalks are so clear they shine,
The shopping district is compact.
Look where you please, it is a fact
Her merchants have the very best
That you desire in any quest.
The trolley service too is fine,
But if you cannot find a line
To take you to a chosen place
Just take a bus, with cheerful face.
They're large and comfortable and go
On frequent schedule, not too slow.
Whate'er your creed, you're sure to find
A church that's suited to your mind.
On weekdays to the movies go
You're sure to see a ripping show.
But should you fall on evil days
And be quite ill, you'd find it pays
To go out to the Hospital
Where care is given one and all.
And now before I close this ditty
For writing this I ask your pity.
I've never lived in Norwich City.

Why Norwich is An Attractive City In Which To Live.

Norwich is familiarly known as the "Rose of New England." I think no one who has visited or loved here can fail to see the connection. Its fine, costly residences, spacious lawns, and magnificent elms cause no little admiration from visitors. Situated in a hilly section of the country, it presents some of the most picturesque scenery in New England. Densely wooded hills and rocky slopes stand out in marked contrast with the green meadows and country lanes. For the automobilist riding through this section of the country there will be unending surprises; always a charming view from the top of the hill; always a fresh and varied scene around the corner. For those who do not wish to go far to breathe air and enjoy the wonders of nature, Mohegan Park will furnish everything in the way of beauty for which one could wish. Not only does this park help to keep the population happy and contented by serving as a healthy picnic ground, but also the fact that Norwich is conveniently situated near any number of beaches makes it a very agreeable summer resort. Being near the seacoast also helps to temper the climate in summer and winter.

Not only for pleasure but also for business purposes has Norwich an ideal location. Its proximity to New London, Hartford, Providence, New Haven, Boston and New York makes it easy to find markets for the goods which it manufactures, such as cotton and woolen cloth, thread, paper, Thermos bottles, etc. The Thames river helps greatly to foster this trade and commerce.

As the attitude of the majority of people in Norwich toward a new comer is one of friendliness, he may count on a hearty welcome whenever he chooses to mingle with society. It is not such a large place that one feels lost, nor yet such a small place that its citizens cannot enjoy the advantages existing in larger cities.

Backus hospital, which fulfills the medical need, has recently put up a fine new nurses' quarters. This surely ought to be an incentive to girls thinking of a nurse's career, to study in this pleasing environment. A city is very often judged by the character of its schools. If Norwich were so judged, the verdict would be excellent, for its institutions of learning are noted for the high standards which they maintain. Connected with Norwich Free Academy are the finest library and museum for a secondary school in the country, a handsome building known as Slater Hall, where all manner of public performance, including concerts given by noted artists of the musical world, take place, an Art School, where fine exhibitions are often held. The fire department, which can also be recommended for a city of this size, makes it possible for the citizens of Norwich to live without much fear of fire. The good local banks, post office, stores of all kinds, theatres, newspapers, prosperous churches, and active Y. M. C. A., are other advantages which this city enjoys.

Finally, all these interests are well looked after by an unusually alert and wide awake Chamber of Commerce. This organization is doing its best to promote peace, prosperity, and safety, so that we may all be proud of and loyal to Norwich, the city of culture and historical interest.

Why Nesrwich is An Attractive Place In Which To Live.

Guarded by circling streams and wooded mountains,
Like sentinels round a queen;
Dotted with groves, and musical with fountains,
The city lies serene.

So wrote Edmund Clarence Stedman, more than fifty years ago, and the same beauties of nature may be seen today by one who climbs the hills, and wanders through the woods, or travels the winding streets of Norwich, the Rose of New England.

The waterpower furnished by the swiftly flowing rivers was utilized, even in the earliest times, by the inhabitants for grinding grain, and as manufacturing was introduced into New England after the Revolution, the people of Norwich seized their opportunity, and the Shetucket mill, the first large mill in eastern Connecticut engaged in the manufacture of cotton cloth, was built. Following that, the Falls mill, the Paper mill, the Yantic mill, the Taftville mill, silk mills, velvet mills, shops for the manufacture of files, firearms, Thermos bottles, and numerous other articles have been erected, whose goods are sent to all parts of the world, and whose busy machines furnish work for thousands of people. As a direct result of this, wholesale, department, and innumerable smaller stores have sprung up, where a great variety of goods can be purchased at reasonable prices. Norwich also is thoroughly equipped as regards to transportation, for it not only has two railroad lines passing through the city, but also very efficient trolley and bus systems. There are both national and savings banks in the city, in which is deposited more than $30,000,000. This gives some idea of the prosperity and the thriftiness of the people of Norwich.

Our opportunities for educational advantages are unexcelled. There are numerous public and private schools which give the children a very satisfactory education. But if higher learning is desired, there is no better high school in which to receive it than the Norwich Free Academy. There pupils are not only prepared for higher courses of education, but also are taught useful vocations such as printing, carpentry, bookkeeping, jewelry and other worth-while subjects.

Norwich has many helpful organizations attempting to make our city a better place to live in, and to aid its citizens. Groups such as the United Workers, the Y. M. C. A., the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary club and the different churches of the city, are all doing their part in the betterment of Norwich.

Not only are there parks and playgrounds spread throughout the city, for recreation, but also theatres and public events. The nearness of beaches is also a great advantage to Norwich for many pleasures are derived from the ocean.

We are very fortunate in having one of the best equipped fire departments in the state, also a competent police force to look after the welfare of the people. There are hospitals in which the sick receive the best medical and surgical attention.

Considering the advantages that Norwich offers in the way of healthful surroundings, good education and business opportunities, it seems as though it would make a very desirable place in which to live.

FUNERALS.

John Dunn

Private funeral services for John Dunn, five year old son of Mr. and David and Margaret Heibel Dunn, of Fifth street, were held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, from the home of his parents. Burial was in the family plot in St. Joseph's cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. William A. Keefe. Cummings & Ring were in charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Charles Muench

Funeral services for Mrs. Charles Muench were held at 2.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon from her late home off West Thames street, many relatives and friends attending. The many floral pieces were most beautiful. The service was conducted by Rev. Herman Hunzinger, pastor of the German Lutheran church, who also conducted the committal service at the grave in Maplewood cemetery. The bearers were Frank Lathrop, Fred Loeffler, Martin Wenzel, Albert T. Gilman, William Ryan and Valentine Reich. Arrangements were by Church and Allen.

Rev. William T. C. Hanna, D. D.

Prayer for Rev. William Tongh Carson Hanna, D. D., were held Sunday evening at 6 o'clock from the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Rev. and Mrs. David A. Pitt, of 156 Broadway.

Final tribute by relatives and many friends in this city as well as a large number of the members of the Central Baptist church, to the life of one who had endeared himself to a host of friends, was paid at 6:45 o'clock, when funeral services were held at the Central Baptist church.

The service opened with a Scripture reading by Rev. Albert E. Gates, secretary of the Connecticut Baptist state convention, following which prayer was offered by Rev. Samuel H. Howe, pastor of Park Congregational church. A beautiful tribute to the life of Rev. Dr. Hanna was paid by Rev. T. Carson Hanna, of Sunbury, Pa., a nephew, who spoke of the fine Christian life of Rev. Dr. Hanna, who had been a worker in the Kingdom since his boyhood days.

The music during the service was by the choir of the church, the hymn, Abide With Me being followed by a solo, The Everlasting Arms, a composition of Rev. Dr. Hanna, which was sung by Mrs. William Crowe. The closing hymn was Pilgrims of the Night, sung by the choir. The closing prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Gates.

Deacons of the church acted as bearers, the active bearers being Judge Allyn L. Brown, Fred W. Vergason, Arthur F. Wyman and C. Edward Smith. The honorary bearers were Charles D. Gallup, James M. Young, Joseph Holloway, and Charles S. Storms.

The body, accompanied by relatives, left this city on the 8:50 o'clock train, Sunday evening, for Philadelphia, where funeral services are to take place today (Monday) from the Frankford Baptist church, with which Rev Dr. Hanna had been connected for over nine years after his retirement from the active ministry.

THREE ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF FIGHTING

Three West Side men were arrested early Sunday evening on the charge of beating Charles Juraszyk of 191 West Main street, who was so badly beaten that he had to be attended by a doctor.

Joseph Zagduf and Joseph Bigon were arrested by Officers Shaheen and F. Driscoll. The same policemen with Officer Davis, later arrested William Washut. All three gave bail of $500 for their appearance in court.

Straighten Up! Nicest Laxative, "Cascarets" 10c

Don't stay headachy, dizzy, sick. Nothing else relieves that bilious, constipated feeling so nicely as candy-like "Cascarets." Take one or two of these pleasant laxative tablets any time, to gently stimulate your liver and start your bowels. Then you will feel fine, your head becomes clear, stomach sweet, tongue pink, skin rosy.
"Cascarets" gently cleanse, sweeten and refresh the entire system. They never gripe, overact or sicken. Directions for men, women and children in each box, any drugstore.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING FOR YOUR PUNY CHILD?
For weak, frail, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets, and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, cod liver oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing helps like it.
But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.
Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated — easy to take. One boy gained 11¼ pounds in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.
Sixty tablets for 60 cents at Lee & Osgood Co. and all druggists—but be sure and ask for McCoy's—the original and genuine.
Give them to the sickly, frail child for 30 days and if they don't help wonderfully, your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

STUDENTS OF 27 COLLEGES RECOMMEND CHANGES IN FOOTBALL PROGRAMME

MIDDLETOWN, Dec. 6—(A. P.)—A committee of college under-graduates, reporting to student representatives of twenty-seven colleges here, today, recommended that the colleges of the country play only four intercollegiate football games each year, and these only with teams in their own class. The report was made at a session of the intercollegiate parley on education at Wesleyan university. The committee was composed of R. R. Brooks, president of the Wesleyan university college body, chairman; Edward Duffy, editor of the Dartmouth; W. L. Nichols, editor of the Harvard Crimson; Robert H. Thurber, of the Princetonian, and H. L. Moughton, of Bowdoin. The discussion was led by E. Kent Hubbard, of Middletown and Arthur Howe, formerly of Yale.

The committee also recommended that graduate coaching systems be instituted; that no coach be paid a salary beyond that of a professor, and that coaches be not allowed to sit on the players' bench during the game, "but that captains alone direct their teams so that under-graduates would be playing under-graduates and not coaches playing coaches."

The committee reported as follows:

"This parley was called for undergraduate consideration of how the purpose of the American college can best be furthered, granted that the purpose is primarily the training of the mind. Very subordinate to this purpose is athletics. All intercollegiate athletics were incidental in their origin and should have remained so in their growth. We believe in them, because they encourage friendship between colleges and foster unity within institutions.

"That one sport, football, has taken such a hold on under-graduates, alumni and the public that its importance over the course of the playing season looms larger than any other aspect of the college, especially over the primary aspect—intellectual thinking.

"We believe that this situation would be obviated largely by the colleges scheduling only four games each season, each game with a team in its own class and in its own vicinity.

"The reasons which lead us to this conclusion are:

"Schedules of only four games would render impossible the present annual elimination contests among the teams of the country, and consequently would render impossible the choice of mythical national and even sectional championships. Many teams would remain undefeated instead of a few.

"With this aspect removed, less publicity would be given the game by the press and the public imagination would not be whetted on that the fever of interest would be forced up within undergraduate bodies.

"The necessity for spring and early season training would be done away with, since the four games would be played on successive week-ends beginning late in October. Practice, as at present, could start two or three weeks before the first game.

"The crescendo of interest, at present extending over eight games, would be limited to four games; and as the large percentage of attention given football now would be lessened by the cutting down of the length of the season.

"Colleges playing teams only in their own class and vicinity would minimize making, and no small college teams the commercial aspect of schedule would be called upon to sacrifice themselves in order to make money for their institutions as at present. This altruistic motive given for these set-up games, the making of money to support other sports, is in no sense a defense for football. Appropriate taxes on under-graduates would serve instead. If such a step were necessary.

"We would also inaugurate the following rules within the colleges:

"That graduating coaching systems be instituted, and that no coach be paid a salary beyond that of a professor.

"That coaches be not allowed to sit on the players' bench during the game, but that captains alone direct their teams so that undergraduates would be playing under-graduates and not coaches against coaches."

PROGRAM OF BOXING BOUTS SCHEDULED FOR WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Dec. 6—Boxing will be revived at the Lorraine Mills Community House on Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, this winter, when in the building provided by the Lorraine Manufacturing company for the employes of the Westerly branch, Stuart D. Fisher, superintendent, the first of the series of bouts will be staged in the assembly hall on Thursday evening of this week, December 10th.

Matchmaker Phillip Fortin, ably assisted by Joseph Finster have arranged a card in an attractive listing that has made fight fans of Westerly and vicinity clamor for their complimentary tickets of admission, which have been denied young boys.

The two best men of their weight are coming over from the New London Sub-Base to match their fistic ability with two of Westerly's local boys. Sailor Shatraw, a 148 pounder will swap wallops with a local boy. Jim Ross. If signs mean anything, this bout will be a top notcher, and something any lover of the game would regret missing.

The other head-liner will be between Sailor Teese of the Base and Tom Hartley, the Watch Hill Coast Guard. On account of other arrangements, Tom will substitute for Anderson, enough said for these two boys, as both have earned their colors by hard knocks.

The five other bouts are all local scraps, and should prove fast and interesting. Joe Finster will be the third man in the ring with John Stefanski at the bell. Admission will be by courtesy of the management.

NUTMEGS CLOSE SEASON WITH BAD DEFEAT

Sunday afternoon at Sachem field the Nutmegs wound up their football season ingloriously, going down to defeat before the Lorraine Mills team of Westerly by the score of 13 to 0. The game was played on a field ankle deep in mud and therefore play was slow.

Two touchdowns, the first on a recovered fumble by F. McGrath, and subsequent run for touchdown by Carr of Westerly and the second on a long pass which Carr again converted into a score by a 40 yard run. The first try for extra point was successful while the second kick went wide of the posts. Both touchdowns came in the first period in about the first five minutes of play.

During the last three periods play was pretty even with the ball see-sawing between the 20 yard lines. Westerly resorted to the aerial game quite frequently but except for one or two occasions met with little success.

For Lorraine Carr, Travernett and Leone were the shining lights while Williams, Fidell, Murphy, Kramer and Clabby shone for the Nutmegs.

Score by periods:

Lorraine	13	0	0	0	—13

Time of quarters: 10, 12, 10, 12.

Referee: Moore, Lynn Electric; Umpire, Higgins, Greeneville Tigers; head linesman, MacGowan, Greeneville Tigers; timers, Parkhurst, Jewett City Speedboys and Rossi, Westerly.

GRANGE TALKS TO RADIO LISTENERS ABOUT FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—(A. P.)—Fresh from a football game for which he had been paid in the neighborhood of $26,000, Harold (Red) Grange, tonight told the largest audience before which he ever appeared that the rewards of football "are spiritual rather than material."

He broadcasted a football speech over radio station WEAF as a part of the New East Relief program for Golden Rule Sunday. During the afternoon he materially aided the Chicago Bears in their 19 to 7 victory over the New York Giants.

To his radio audience, he said:

"Football, I am convinced, is the best game that was ever invented. It demands more than any other game from the player. Its rewards are spiritual rather than material, but they are certain. The monetary [illegible] is secondary.

"The big thing I have won from football is not this present fortunate break which has enabled me to earn certain monetary rewards, but rather the more permanent matter of a training in manners, stamina, and ability to use mind and muscle more effectively."

He also included in his address a diet and schedule—excluding tobacco, and humor—for speaking athletes; called Iron Zuppke "the greatest football coach that ever lived;" and said his football training as an Illinois man had been of his own choice, and a surprise to his father.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE TO BE FORMED IN WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Dec. 6—For the formation of a basketball tournament with a schedule of games to be played at the Rhode Island state armory on Dixon street, Westerly, added impetus was given on Saturday night at the annual elimination competitive prize drill of Battery E, 243rd, R. I. C. A. C. (H. D.) Capt. John F. Datson, commander. Announcement has been made for the managers, captains or promoters of basketball teams to report at a meeting to be held at the Dixon street armory on Tuesday night of this week when it is hoped that plans can be perfected so that the first game can be played on Saturday night of this week.

One plan is to have at least five or six teams, all from Westerly, enter such a tournament, when as successful a season is looked forward to as that of last year, when record crowds gathered to witness the contests in which some of the fastest teams of New England were entered. The Westerly High school members are also desirous of having basketball listed among their school athletics, but a difference in playing rules might prevent them from entering a tournament, which if generally patronized, might require other playing nights than on Saturday evening.

BATTLING SIKI IS KNOCKED OUT BY NEW YORK COP

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—(A. P.)—"Battling" Siki, negro pugilist who once held the world's light-heavyweight championship, was fine $5 in police court today for an altercation yesterday with a policeman in which Siki was knocked out. He was saved from a workhouse sentence by his wife, who pleaded with Magistrate Nell for leniency.

Patrolman Leonard Smith, who knocked the former champion to the pavement, said Siki, while intoxicated, attacked him on his beat near Times Square.

"The next time you come into the court you'll go to the workhouse for a spell," Magistrate Nell warned Siki as he left the courtroom after paying the fine. Yesterday's fracas was only one of many in which Siki had been involved in recent months.

SATURDAY'S HAPPENINGS IN WORLD OF SPORT

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 5—(A. P.)—A denial that Charles C. Pyle, manager of "Red" Grange, has any liabilities or that any court judgment has been given against him was made here last night by O. W. Hammer, attorney for Grange, and his manager in the garnishment served on the football star here Wednesday.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5—(A. P.)—"Red" Grange's second invasion of Philadelphia was again a success. He scored two touchdowns for the Chicago Bears in their football game with the Frankford Yellow Jackets of this city today, enabling the western team to win 14 to 7.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 5—(A. P.)—Colgate's undefeated football team will not meet the University of Washington as a representative of the East in the tournament of Roses on New Year's day at Pasadena, Cal. Rejection of the invitation was announced by W. A. Reid, graduate manager, today.

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, Dec. 5—(A. P.)—Mickey Walker of Elizabeth N. J. arriving at Cape Breton with his trainer, Teddy Hayes, announced today that he would enter the woods tomorrow to begin training for defense of his world's welterweight ring championship against Tommy Milligan of Great Britain next Month in New York city.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5—(A. P.)—Alphonse Goossens and Gerard Debaets, the Belgian team tonight won the six-day bicycle race in Madison Square Garden through a desperate sprint in the last 20 minutes which lapped Reggie McNamara and Franco Georgetti.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Dec. 5—(A. P.)—Opposition to proposed change in "big three" football which would detract from the popularity of the game was expressed tonight by Head Coach Tad Jones of Yale at the annual smoker of the Yale alumni association of Montclair.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5—(A. P.)—The important games on the 1926 football schedule for Notre Dame were given out tonight by Coach Rockne as follows: October 16, Penn State at South Bend; 23, Northwestern at Evanston; 30, Georgia Tech at South Bend November 6, Nebraska at Lincoln; 13, Army at New York.

BOSTON, Dec. 5—(A. P.)—The advance sale of tickets for the football game here next Wednesday between "Red" Grange and his Chicago Bears and the Providence Steam Rollers reached the $8,000 mark tonight. The game will mark the debut of big league professional football in this city.

TWO FAST INDOOR GAMES AT STATE ARMORY TONIGHT

This (Monday) evening at the Armory the Norwich indoor league will swing into its second week when the Nutmegs and Faber's All Stars clash at 6.30 while Battery B and the Tigers meet at 9.30. Tonight's games will be important as the two winning teams of last week will be pitted against each other as will also the two losing clubs. Last week the Tigers won from the Nutmegs by the score of 9 to 8 while Faber's All Stars went down in defeat to the tune of 7 to 5.

In the opening game a reinforced Nutmeg team will clash with the Stars. Since last week the Nutmegs have strengthened considerably so that tonight Joe Faber's outfit will have to travel to win. For the Nutmegs Jim Kelly will pitch with Jab Burnes behind the bat; Gil Kampf will cover first and Ed Healy and Chubby Gibbs will play the two short stops with Bill Burnes at second and Ellie Segal at third. Carkin and Couture will be ready to go in at the infield while Segal will be available for mound duty. In the outfield Jim Falcone, Art Armstrong, A. Brown, F. Lambert, J. Fitzgerald, Joe Jackson and Tommy Winters will roam. The Stars lineup was not forthcoming but several well known athletes will be in their starting lineup.

In the 9.30 game the Tigers, with such stars as P. Labenski, B. Labenski, Phena Tombari, Burke, Lloyd Jarvis, McGowan, Goldblatt, Cimikoski, L. Hamil, F. Hamil, A. Tombari and Nevins. The Battery is expected to have their usual lineup of:

Goodrow c, Robertson p, Lemieux 1b, Beausoleil 2b, Berberich 3b, and Echelberry and Mish shortstops. In the outfield Lewis, Prodell and Coleman will perform.

The following is the league standing to date:

	W	L	Pct
Tigers	1	0	1000
Battery B	1	0	1000
Nutmegs	0	1	000
Stars	0	1	000

TAFTVILLE TO PLAY HARTFORD TEAM TUESDAY

Tuesday evening at Parish hall the Taftville basketball team will clash with the Hartford Crescents, a team made up of stars from the Capitol City quintets of the past few years. Included in the Crescents' lineup is Dutch Leonard, Tim Cronin, Sheehan and Welch, all reputed to be fast men as are playing the court game in Hartford.

The Taftville team will be the same as played against the Willimantic team last week.

RECORD CROWD OUT TO SEE GRANGE AND HIS TEAM PLAY AT POLO GROUNDS

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—Before a crowd of 75,000, the greatest that ever saw a professional football game in this country, Red Grange led his Chicago Bears to a decisive victory today over the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds by a score of 19 to 7. It was the second triumph of the Bears in the east in as many days and snapped the winning streak of the Giants who had captured seven straight games previously.

Grange was forced to share the spotlight with "Light Joe" Sternahan, quarterback of the Bears, who scored two touchdowns and gave the Chicagoans a winning margin in the first period, but the famous redhead provided the game's biggest thrill in its final moments when he leaped high to intercept a forward pass and raced 25 yards for a touchdown.

This was Grange's most spectacular feat but it seemed enough to satisfy the big throng, which jammed every nook and aisle of the National League park and exceeded the crowd which witnessed the Army-Navy classic there.

Grange, playing in little more than half teh game, was a constant threat when on the field, failing only once to advance the ball and paving the way for the winning touchdown besides scoring the last one. Figuring in 19 plays altogether, he accounted for a total gain of 153 yards, including 51 by rushing and 10 by running back kicks, besides which he heaved two passes for gains of 43 yards, received another for an advance of 23 yards and closed his performance with his 26-yard scoring spring. Just prior to that Grange was stopped by inches from making a first down on the Giants' one-yard mark.

The Bears outplayed the Giants with a well-rounded, versatile attack, getting the jump at the start when Sternahan, shaking off tacklers by the half dozen, dashed over for two touchdowns on short runs that followed steady advances of 65 and 55 yards.

The Giants pushed their only score in the second period when Tex White, substitute fullback, crashed three yards through center after the forward passing combination of McBride to Bomar had advanced the ball half the length of the field.

BASEBALL INTERESTS GATHERING IN NEW YORK FOR WINTER MEETINGS

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Baseball, shelved during an enthusiastic football season, has been brought into New York for a few stitches preparatory to the 1926 campaign.

Hotels tonight are filled with baseball men for the first time in several weeks, here to attend the international league meeting tomorrow, the national on Tuesday, the American Wednesday and the joint major session, which will be presided over by Commissioner Landis, on Thursday. There will also be a special meeting of the eastern league.

There is peace in baseball. A year ago when the clans gathered there were warm words and the war spirit prevailed. It almost came to hte point where either President Byron Bancroft Johnson of the American circuit or Commissioner Landis would have to step down for the good of the game but hostilities were halted when a committee, with several white flags flying, journeyed to Chicago and conferred with Johnson.

The meetings this week are expected to be record-breaking in the absence of harsh words. Johnson, Landis and all the rest should sit at the sessions in all their glory, each upon his throne once again at peace with his brothers and with the world.

Most important among the topics facing the annual gathering is that of a shortened season, to end with the last day of September. This promises to develop a large amount of discussion as the result of the late world's series, played in frigid weather in Washington and in a downpour in Pittsburgh. Many of the magnates favor the move, yet contend that the games should be fewer, while others believe that the 154 contests should be crowded into a shorter space of time by means of double-headers.

There will be opposition in this score, for the New York clubs are believed definitely committed to the same method that has maintained for several years.

The "trade winds" may be blowing out so far the seas appear to be as smooth as glass. Of course, as is the custom, the hired men of the wealthy baseball manipulators have arrived with the "bank rolls prepared to pay any price to bolster the home town team." Much talk always is heard but very few deals of great potent have been consumated at annual sessions in the past. Managers are expected to remain about as they are, except where minor circuit clubs draw from the major talent.

There is the possibility of an uprising in the international's gathering tomorrow. Although John Conway Toole, the president is said to have the support of seven club heads, the majors are understood to have led a determined fight to oust him because of his attitude on the draft question. Toole admits that some opposition to him exists but he believes that re-election is assured.

Boxing

Madison Square Garden, its new seats dusted off, by a record breaking throng witnessing the six-day bicycle race the past week, opens its doors to professional boxing on Friday when the light heavyweight champion, Paul Berlenbach, meets Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn. Delaney knocked out Berlenbach in four rounds at the old Garden on March 14, 1924, but by a trick of fate Berlenbach had gained the title without finding it necessary to encounter the Bridgeport man.

Both are in excellent condition for this, the first of several boxing championship tests scheduled for the new sport arena just off the "roaring forties." Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo will defend his lightweight crown against Lucien Vines, of France there on December 23 and in January Mickey Walker, welterweight king, will meet another European, Tommy Milligan of Scotland.

Collegiate Football

Collegiate football, undergoing its annual criticism from many sources, is not a matter of All-American teams and few coaches and other authorities in the country have failed to make known selections. Red Grange, meteor from Illinois, has played three professional contests in the past few days and has another engagement in Boston Wednesday. His earnings in Philadelphia and New York yesterday and today are believed to total $40,000.

Basketball and Hockey

Basketball and hockey in the colleges are well under way, but the clashing of the great rivals will not develop until after New Years.

BATTERY B TO OPPOSE Y. M. H. A. TUESDAY NIGHT

Battery B basketball squad has been holding frequent drills in preparation for the opening of their season Tuesday evening when they oppose the Y. M. H. A. at the latter's floor. The team shapes up as one of the best in this section and should be able to meet the best around these parts.

From the many aspirants the following likely looking quintet has been selected: Forwards, Berberich and Robertson; center, Coleman, Goodrow and Prodell at guards. With the above men playing at their best the local service company should be ready to step out with the best in this locality. Accordingly the Battery issues a challenge to any and all of the leading teams in eastern Connecticut for games. They would like especially to hear from New London, Taftville, Jewett City, Danielson, Mechanicsville and Willimantic. For arrangements write to basketball manager at the Armory.

FIND RUINS OF ANCIENT TEMPLE AT BEISAN

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6—(A. P.)—Further discoveries within the temple of Ashtoroth at Beisan, the Bethshan of the Bible, were reported in a cable despatch received by the University museum from Alan Rowe, field director of the museum's Palestine expedition. A statement issued by the museum tonight says that according to Mr. Rowe's despatch the expedition has discovered beneath the foundations of the lately found temple of Ashtoroth the ruins of an older temple of the same divinity.

"Within this older temple, Mr. Rowe reports the finding of a golden image of the goddess," the announcement says. "The brief cable despatch gives no further details but it is evident that this discovery of an earlier temple of Ashtoroth underneath the later one is of great historic importance.

"It will be recalled that during September, the expedition announced the discovery of the citadel of Bethshan of a temple of Ashtoroth, the first shrine of this goddess of the Philistines ever brought to light. This proved to be the very "house of Ashtoroth" mentioned in 1 Samuel, 31, where the Philistines placed Saul's armour as a trophy of victory after the death of the king in battle on Mount Gilboa, inscriptions and documents found within the temple and imbedded in its foundations, prove that the edifice was still standing at the time of David, about 1000 B. C.

"The new discoveries which reveal the existence of an older temple bequeathed his estate of $150,000 to the things.

"First, that Bethshan must have been destroyed at some date prior to 1000 B. C., when this older temple was laid in ruins, and that it was later rebuilt.

"Second, that this older temple was more magnificent than the later one indicating a more powerful civilization. The fact that the image of the goddess was made of gold is, in itself, a significant fact.

As to the actual date of the building of the older temple, there is nothing in the present despatch that would serve as date for its determination. There are, however, some indications that it must be as early as 1500 B. C., the time of Moses.

It is indeep not unlikely that the progress of the excavations may show that the temple of Ashtoroth at Bethshan was a centre of worship for the Canaanites and the Philistines at the time when Abraham was a sojourner in the land of Canaan about 200 B. C.

The University museum expedition to Palentine is being financed this season in part by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

MAINE'S FIDDLER READY FOR DETROIT TRIP

NORWAY, Maine, Dec. 6—(AP)—"Down to fighting weight" was the announcement of A. M. "Mellie" Dunham, "Maine's champion fiddler," before he "turned in" at 8 o'clock tonight for a good night's sleep in preparation for his departure tomorrow morning for Dearborn, Mich., to play his fiddle for Henry Ford at the manufacturer's invitation. Early tomorrow he and Mrs. Dunham will ride into town behind their old station horse to take their place with Governor Brewster in the parade that will mark Norway's send-off to her 72-year old champion.

The governor tonight telephoned that he will arrive in time for the celebration and A. B. McNaughton, general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk railroad, who arrived today in his private car, assured the local celebration committee that he would hold the train if necessary to assure a fitting send-off.

Word came from Montreal that four or five bands will meet Mellie and his wife on arrival there tomorrow night and that more than 500 tickets have been sold for the Canadian snow shoe club's banquet to them during their stop-over.

ALABAMA TEAM VOTES TO GO TO PACIFIC COAST

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Varsity football players of the University of Alabama, 1924 and 1925 southern conference champions, voted today in favor of making the journey to the Pacific coast to play in the tournament of roses football game on New Year's day against an opponent chosen from coast teams.

No further developments occurred today in the matter of Alabama's acceptance of an invitation to make the trip, Gordon Palmer, executive secretary of the university, speaking officially for Dr George H. Denny, president, stated today that the matter was in abeyance until the arrival of Jack Benefiel, chairman of the tournament of roses invitation committee, who, according to telegraphic despatch, was enroute to Tuscaloosa for a conference with university authorities.

ATTEMPT TO PROVE SPIRITUALISM FRAUD

LITTLE VALLEY, N. Y., Dec. 6.—(AP)—An attempt will be made to prove that spiritualism is based on fraud and deception in surrogate's court here this week under present plans of counsel for relatives who are seeking to break the will of Dr. W. Irving Hewitt of Olean. Dr. Hewitt bequeathed his estate of 160,000 to the Lilydale assembly of spiritualists.

ASSOCIATED PRESS PICKS ALL-EASTERN GRID TEAM

Dartmouth, as the east's outstanding eleven during the 1925 season, carries off the bulk of honors in the All-Eastern teams compiled by The Associated Press from the opinions of ten prominent coaches along the Atlantic seaboard.

In the consensus Dartmouth places four stars on the first team, twice as many as any rival college, while Andy (Swede) Oberlander, back-field ace of the Green forces, has the distinction of being the only unanimous choice of the coaches.

Oberlander's teammates on the mythical first team are Captain Parker at tackle, Mike Tully at end and Carl Diehl at guard, while Henry Sage gains a place at end on the second team, giving Dartmouth five representatives out of twenty-two men picked.

Eddie Tryon, Colgate captain and back-field ace, with 3 votes, and Ed McMillan, Princeton captain and centre, with 7 ballots, ranked next to Oberlander in popularity. Jake Slagle Princeton star, received votes for every position in the back field, but was favored most in the fullback position.

One of the most significant features of the poll was the unanimity among the coaches in their opinions on the back-field men. Only sixteen backs altogether received votes as evidence of the outstanding calibre of ball carriers.

Syracuse and Princeton, each with twoplayers, were the only colleges besides Dartmouth to place more than one man on the first team.

On the second eleven Pennsylvania, Columbia and Lafayette were the only teams placing more than one man, ties in several positions bringing in a larger representation.

The make-up of the elevens follows:

First Team

Ends—Tully, Dartmouth; Hanson, Syracuse.

Tackles—Chase, Pittsburgh; Parker Dartmouth.

Guards—Diehl, Dartmouth; Sturham, Yale.

Centre—McMillan.

Quarterback—Foley, Syracuse.

Halfbacks—Oberlander, Dartmouth; Tyron, Colgate.

Fullback—Slagle, Princeton.

Second Team

End—Sage, Dartmouth; Thayer, Pennsylvania; tackles, Joss, Yale, Spragle, Army, and Wiberg, Columbia (tied). Guards, Carey, Cornell; Skudin, Lafayette (tied). Centre, Robinson, Pennsylvania. Quarterback, Pease, Columbia. Halfbacks, Keefer, Brown; Kirkleski, Lafayette. Fullbacks, Amos, Washington and Jefferson, and Kruetz, Penn, (tied.)

BLUES HAVE EASY TIME DOWNING PERE MARQUETTE

HARTFORD, Dec. 6—(A. P.)—George Mulligan's Hartford Blues, Connecticut professional football champions, had little difficulty in defeating the Pere Marquette team of Boston, this afternoon at Clarkin field, winning 13 to 0. The game was played on a field that was ankle deep in mud from almost a week of rain, hampering attack of both teams.

Half of the "four horsemen," Harry Stuhldreher and Don Miller and, Grattan O'Connell, Boston college end, starred for Hartford while O'Leary and Higgins played best for Pere Marquette. The Boston combination was unable to make a first down against the Stalwart Blue frontier during the game.

Alabama to Make Decision

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Dec. 6—The faculty athletic committee of the University of Alabama, will meet here tomorrow to decide whether the football team will accept the invitation to play the University of Washington in the tournament of roses of New Year's day at Pasadena, Cal., it was announced tonight by President Denny.

Pottsville Wins Title

CHICAGO, Dec. 6—Pottsville won the national football championship today by defeating the Chicago Cardinals here by a score of 21 to 7.

ROGERS HORNSBY IS CHOSEN AS MOST VALUABLE PLAYER IN NAT. LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Dec. 6 (AP)—Announcement of the selection of Rogers Hornsby, manager and second baseman of the St. Louis club, as the most valuable player in the National League during 1925 and winner of the circuit's cash prize award of $1,000, was made today by James M. Gould, president of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Hornsby is the choice of a committee of eight baseball writers, one from each city of the senior League, Gould acting as chairman. The Cardinal star, who succeeds Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn pitching ace and 1924 choice, was voted three first places, three seconds and two thirds by the members of the committee.

Points were awarded under a scale making first place count ten and tenth place count one. On this basis, Hornsby led a field of 21 players for whom ballots were cast, the St. Louis pilot receiving 78 points out of a possible 80. Hazen Cuyler, Pittsburgh outfielder, was second with 61 points and George Kelly of the New York Giants third with 52 points.

Vance, last year's winner, was ranked fifth, being nosed out for fourth place by a single point. Glenn Wright, Pirate shortstop, who received one vote for first place, finished fourth with 43 points.

Dave Bancroft, Boston shortstop and manager, also received one vote for first place and was ranked sixth with 41 points. Jim Bottomley, St. Louis first baseman, finished seventh with 28 points; Pie Traynor, Pirate third sacker, eighth with 27; while Frankie Frisch, Giant captain, and Eddie Roush, Cincinnati outfielder, complete the "first ten."

Eleven other players received scattered votes as follows: Max Carey, Pittsburgh, 11; Irish Meusel, New York, 6; Adolph Luque, Cincinnati, and Charley Grimm, Chicago, 5 each; Zach Wheat, Brooklyn, Donohue and Hargand Sand, Philadelphia, 4 each; Harper and Sand Philadelphia, 3 each; Gautreau, Boston, 2; Vic Aldridge, Pittsburgh, 1.

Infielders as a rule were favored over players in others positions, the voting reveals while there was a noticeable leaning toward members of the world's champion Pirates. Three Pirates are in the first ten while the Giants and Cardinals have two each in the select circle.

The selection of Hornsby and its accompanying high recognition marks the culmination of five sensational years of batting on the part of the Cardinal star. He has led the National League with the stick for six straight seasons but the last five, in which he has compiled a grand average of .402, have witnessed his greatest work. His defensive skill, reliability and added value as pilot of the club also figured in the decision of the committee.

Voting on First Ten:

Hornsby	9	9	8	10	9	10	8	10	—78
Cuyler	4	6	10	8	8	8	10	9	—61
Kelly	5	7	9	9	10	0	6	6	—52

GOODRICH AND KANSAS ARE IN BEST OF CONDITION

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 6—(A. P.)—On the eve of their championship lightweight battle here, Jimmy Goodrich the titleholder and Rocky Kansas, veteran challenger, each professed complete confidence in the outcome.

Both men have completed their training and are reported to be in good shape for the bout. Reports of [illegible] much improved condition caused a last day shift in the betting odds. A few days ago Kansas was a 6 to 5 favorite but tonight it was reported that even money on Goodrich was going begging.

FRED MITCHELL TO COACH HARVARD BASEBALL TEAM

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 6—Fred Mitchell, former big league baseball player, and scout, pitching coach and business manager of the Boston Braves has signed a three year contract as head coach of Harvard baseball, the athletic committee announced tonight. Mitchell has been battery coach of the Crimson team for the past two seasons and has been connected with the coaching staff here in various capacities since 1913.

DON MILLER WILL PLAY AGAINST GRANGE WEDNESDAY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 6—Don Miller, famed as the running halfback of the "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame in 1924, will play with the Providence Steam Roller team of the National League, in the game with the Chicago Bears with "Red" Grange at Boston Wednesday, it was announced here today by Charles B. Coppen, manager of the Roller.

CHINESE FORCES ARE MASSING FOR BATTLE

PEKING, Dec. 6.—(A. P.)—War rumors, with the possibility that the scene of action will be along the Peking-Tientsin railway, have been given impetus by the defiance issued by General Li Shing-Ling, civil governor of Chihli province to Feng Yu-Hsiang, the "Christian general," and his alleged refusal to permit the latter to remove troops through Tientsin to aid General Juo Sung-Lien, commander of the 10th division and follower of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian war lord.

Feng's troops are reported to be moving toward Langfang, and Li Ching-Ling is countering by massing his forces in the neighborhood of Tientsin.

The French daily newspaper tonight issued an extra stating that the rails were torn up at Langfang, but the railway authorities deny this.

General Li is reported to have made an alliance with Wu Pei Fu, the Shih-Ii war lord, whose troops, on the point of invading Honan, are menacing General Feng's wing.

The minister of finance, Li Shi-Hao, has resigned and been replaced by Chen Chih-Tao. The foreign minister, Shen Jui-Lin, apparently is anxious to quit, but has been persuaded to remain temporarily on account of the tariff conference of which he is nominally chairman.

General Feng is despatching hundreds of camels with ammunition to Kaiping, together with reinforcements to assist General Kuo. The newspaper Yi Shi Pao reports that fighting began yesterday between General Li and General Kuo Min-Chun, commander of the second army, near Manchang, but owing to the strict censorship details are lacking.

The revised act governing the executive system has been forwarded to General Feng for approval. It is believed that as soon as he has agreed to this Hsu Shih-Ying, former minister of communications, will be appointed premier.

JAPAN REJOICES OVER BIRTH OF PRINCESS

TOKYO, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The Princess Nyako, who became the bride of Crown Prince Hirchito January 26 1925, presented the imperial family with a grand-daughter at 8:10 o'clock tonight. The newspapers issued extras and there is a general air of rejoicing throughout Japan. The imperial infant will be presented with an imperial sword at the traditional ceremony tomorrow.

Immediately after the birth the news was conveyed to their majesties, the emperor and empress, and to the prince regent. Then the public announcement was made by the household department.

The sword that is formally given to the newest member of the royal family was made by Sadakatsu Getzan, Japan's leading sword maker, from whom it was ordered several months ago. The child during its lifetime keeps this sword as an heirloom. On the seventh day following the birth another ceremony, that of naming the child, will be held, and on the fiftieth day the imperial granchild (by proxy) will pay its first tributes to the spirits of its imperial ancestors. All these ceremonies will be held in accordance with the imperial court act and the ancient traditions of the Japanese.

On the day the grandchild is named, a grand imperial fete will be held in the Homei hall (state room) of the imperial palace when more than

GEORGE SWANSON, NEW LONDON, MAY LOSE HAND CRUSHED AT STONEYARD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 6—George Swanson, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Swanson, 231 Vauxhall street, is a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from a crushed hand, sustained this afternoon, while amusing himself in a stone yard on Jefferson avenue. The boy with companions, went to the stone-yard about 3 o'clock and while the youngsters engaged in operating the mechanical device of the derrick, Swanson's right had became caught in the mechanism and was terribly crushed. He was given medical aid, and then transferred to the hospital for the injury may result in amputation. An X-ray picture of the crushed hand has been taken, but it will be a day or two before it is revealed whether the bones are crushed to the extent that the hand will have to be removed.

Jay S. Lafferty, a drummer, was fined $50 in the police court, Saturday, for reckless operation of an automobile. Lafferty was in the search for trade here. He attracted the attention of Policeman William Riordan by the way he operated his car and the officer asked to see the authority of Lafferty to be an autoist. He had a Rhode Island license but none for Connecticut. Lafferty said he supposed he was arrested for driving without lights, but the policeman explained that Lafferty had been imbibing liquor, but was not intoxicated. Lafferty was fined a sufficient amount to convince him that while his car was not lighted he himself was lit up.

George Ghere, a westerner, drove into Bank street and in spite of the fact that there are signs on the walk not to turn a car around, he disregarded them and whisked about as though he was alone in the highway. Officer Dorsey was a bit astonished to see Ghere manipulate the automobile, but he took him to the police station to "tell it to the sergeant at the desk." There Ghere was compelled to give a bond for appearance in court, where he was fined $5.

John Harrington, drunk when he was arrested, was fined $20. On his previous visit to the court a month ago he was fined $10 and had the same tale to tell them that he had Saturday. Judge Prince just doubled up on the fine Saturday and told John that when he came again the penalty would be a term in jail. Sympathy appears to be wasted on John.

A breach of the peace complaint against Joseph McFee was disposed of on a suspension of judgment. Joseph became involved in a row with a woman on Blackhall street and was alleged to have used language that would not be tolerated in polite society. The woman, he declared could outdo him in that respect. The latter did not appear in court Saturday as the case was disposed of as stated.

John J. Malloy, 22, a sailor attached to the U. S. destroyer Fanning, one of the fleet of rum-chasing craft stationed at the state pier, was taken into custody Saturday night, near the Y. M. C. A., Meridian and Church streets, charged by Samuel Goodman, South street merchant, with intoxication and breach of the peace. Malloy assaulted Goodman to such an extent that the latter lodged complaint with the police and Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Edward Riordan arrested the accused. He will be given a hearing in the police court Monday morning.

Joseph Busca, owner of one of the fishing craft moored at the municipal pier complained to the police this morning that his boat was broken into last night and several articles stolen. Sergeant John Cavanaugh, who investigated the complaint, found that entrance was gained by forcing a door and that the only plunder obtained by the thief was articles of wearing apparel.

Patrolman Henry Sylvia, in making his rounds through Montauk avenue, early this morning, discovered that a water-main near the Nameaug school had burst and a considerable quantity of water was being wasted. The city's water and sewer department was notified and the break was repaired during the day.

The police dragnet scooped in a couple of drunks, Saturday night. One was picked up on John street and the other was arrested on Clover court. Both will be presented in the police court Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. John Domigan, of Sunbury, Ohio, announce the engagement of their daughter, Martha Amelia, to Stewart E. Demosh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver F. Demosh, of Woodbridge street. Miss Domigan is an auditor of accounts in the postoffice at Washington, D. C.

Roch Deptula, proprietor of a "blind tiger," 833 Main street, was arrested this evening when Deptula's place was raided and a quantity of liquor seized. Deptula was charged with violation of the liquor law and was released upon furnishing in Felix Neidzewski, a surety on his bond of $1,000, the latter furnishing a cash bond for Deptula's appearance in the police court Monday morning.

Deptula has a suspended sentence hanging over him for violation of the liquor law, for Oct. 11 he was fined $200 on each of two counts and on the second count he received a suspended sentence of six months in jail.

The Deptula place has been watched closely ever since the arrest of the accused two months ago, as it was believed that liquor was continued to be sold there. This afternoon it was decided that liquor was to be found in the place and a search warrant was obtained from Judge S. Victor Prince by State Police Officer Frederick Caron and Frank Kulowski. The officers, accompanied by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolmen William Graham and Edward Riordan of the local police department, visited the place and conducted a thorough search, four quarts of "liquor" being found. This was taken to the state police barracks, Groton, and will be used as evidence against Deptula tomorrow. The state police also allege a second count on Deptula, claiming to have a witness who procured liquor there.

James Nagle, Connecticut avenue, was arrested tonight by State Police Officer Bernard Kenerson charged with violation of the automobile law and is scheduled for appearance in the police court Monday morning. Nagle was detected operating an automobile without having a license.

Owen C. Wolfe, Neptune park, complained to the police this evening that while his automobile was parked on Huntington street, near State street, Saturday night, a thief stole two blankets.

BIG AERIAL TRUCK OUT FOR FIRE AT 382 MAIN ST.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 6—A fire occurred shortly after 7 o'clock this evening in the upper part of the three and a half story wooden structure at 382 Main street, occupied on the ground floor by business establishments and on the other three floors as apartments.

When the fire was discovered, great clouds of smoke were pouring from beneath the eaves and from windows in the upper story. An alarm was rung in from Box 25, corner of Main and Federal streets, summoning a half dozen of the city's fire fighting equipment, including the new Seagrave aerial truck and for the first time since the truck was purchased, it was used in combating the flames.

The fire, which it is believed, originated from a defective chimney, was located between partitions and made the task of the department difficult in reaching it. The big 75-foot ladder of the truck was raised to the roof and other ladders raised in the rear of the building, permitting several lines of structure that the water could be poured between the partitions after several hose being carried to windows of the holes had been chopped in the walls of the structure. Even then it was slow work for the department to conquer the blaze, for it was not until three-quarters of an hour after the alarm was sent in that the fire was extinguished. The damage has not been estimated, but it is believed that the loss will be $1,500. The building was afire several days ago when a blaze was discovered in the bakery, but efforts of employes kept the damage slight. During the fighting of the fire tonight all trolley traffic on Main street was interrupted, city line cars and cars between New London and Norwich being held up.

Every man can see where there is room for a lot of improvement in all other men.

"BAYER ASPIRIN" PROVED SAFE

Take without Fear as Told in "Bayer" Package

BAYER

Does not affect the Heart

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians over twenty-five years for

Colds	Headache
Neuritis	Lumbago
Toothache	Rheumatism
Neuralgia	Pain, Pain

Each unbroken "Bayer" package contains proven directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100.

Wrinkles Removed "While You Wait"

It has been discovered that the mere application of a spoonful of powdered tarkroot mixed with a spoonful of lemon juice, actually removes wrinkles and creases in fifteen minutes or less! There's no rubbing, no work, and the expense is trifling—less than three cents! It is only necessary to spread the mixture over the face, sit down before the mirror, and watch those unwelcome marks of age, illness or worry disappear like magic. The effect is incomparably better than that produced by the most skillful massaging.

The mixture of course is perfectly harmless. While on the face a pleasant soothing sensation is experienced. It is easily washed off. Aside from its remarkable effect on wrinkles, there's nothing better for baggy cheeks or chin. No woman who purchases a package of powdered tarkroot from her druggist will regret having done so.

Palace Theatres

A new leading actor will be introduced to Norwich by the Richard Mansfield Players next Wednesday matinee and evening, Dec. 9, when they will return to this city to present "Why Marry," at the Palace theatre.

He is Harold Moulton, who will play the romantic lead in this play by Jesse Lynch Williams, which won the Pulitzer prize in New York, and which will be offered by the players all next week with matinees on Thursday and Saturday.

Mr. Moulton has had a most interesting and varied career upon the stage. As a matter of fact, he was destined for another stage before he became an actor—the concert stage. He was born in Chicago, but when he was a small child the family went to Europe to live. The first language he spoke was more likely French or German, or perhaps even Danish, rather than English, for his family lived in Brussels, Copenhagen, Berlin, Paris, and several other continental cities.

Returning to the United States, Mr. Moulton affiliated himself with Jessie Bonstelle company in Detroit, where his talent for the theatre and his attractive personality soon won him such prominence that he was given leading roles to play. For three years he was regular leading man with Miss Bonstelle, then he went back to Europe, going to England this time to play leads in support of Franklin Dyall, one of England's romantic actors.

From there he went to Europe, where he played prominent roles in three motion pictures, "La Garconne," "Lourdes," and "Je ne sais rien." Back to New York, then, to play the juvenile lead in "The Devil Within," last year at the Hudson theatre, followed by the leading juvenile role in "Three Doors," at Wallack's.

SHEFFIELD PORTER SENT TO NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 7—Walter Scott, about 45, residing at 1,000 Ocean avenue where he is employed as a porter by L. Tracy Sheffield was committed to the Norwich State hospital, this evening by Dr. Albert Labensky. Scott is believed to be suffering from over-indulgence in alcoholic drinks more than from any chronic internal disorder.

Scott was received at Lawrence hospital last evening as a medical patient, but there was nothing about his case that indicated seriousness. However, as a precautionary measure, Scott was detained at the hospital overnight, for another examination today. This forenoon when Scott was alone and he heard voices in one of the corridors he became possessed of the idea that relatives were at the institution for the purpose of putting in a claim for his insurance should anything develop that resulted in his death. Watching his opportunity and with no one in the ward but patients, Scott crept stealthily to a door leading from the ward to a corridor on the second floor and clad only in pajamas he raced through the corridor and down a flight of stairs to the main floor. Continuing through another corridor Scott opened a door and passed to the grounds of the institution. A call was sent to the police station, Capt. Charles Pinney, Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh and Patrolman John Foley responded, but before the police arrived at the institution Scott had been overtaken by an orderly and returned to the institution. Late this afternoon Scott displayed additional symptoms of unsound mentality and Dr. Labensky committed him to the Norwich State hospital where his case could be watched.

ESCAPED PRISONER CAUGHT BY NEW YORK POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 6—Private Douglass Patterson, station at Fort Wright, visited the police station Saturday night and reported that Private John Ulockage, a prisoner, who escaped from the custody of Patterson Nov. 12th., had been apprehended in New York. Private Patterson was on his way from Boston to Fort Wright with his prisoner and when the two soldiers were passing through John street on their way to the government wharf, Water street, Ulockage bolted and made his escape through Potter street. Patterson reported the escape of the prisoner at police headquarters, but not until Saturday when Ulockage was captured in New York were any traces of the fugitive's whereabouts found. Ulockage will be brought back to the island fort where he will be given a court martial.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Broadway Theatre

The Keith vaudeville bill that opens today at the Broadway theatre, will give Norwich theatregoers another opportunity of real entertainment on the stage and screen. From all indications it is equally on a par with last week's show which proved to be the biggest hit of the season. The main stage attraction is the Six Saxos in syncopation, song and dance. Saxophones make up the musical part of this excellent offering which has met with decided success throughout the land. Madeline Soison offers "A Miniature Song Circle." Nellie Dixon and Michael O'Brien in "Troubles in Cork," offer fifteen minutes of fun. Oliver and Stacey "Acting Natural," offer a routine of fun as Italian character comedians. George Beege and Rae Lupee featuring "Up-Side-down in 2 and 1," meet with success everywhere. The photoplay is by Warner Fabien (author of Flaming Youth) Wandering Fires with a great cast.

At the Breed

The motion picture "fan" of today demands thrills, adventure, love interest and "something to carry home and think about."

In Quo Vadis, First National's gigantic film version of the Sienkiewics novel, he will get all this and more. He will have more thrills than he ever had in one evening in his life; he will behold love that transforms base metal into pure gold; he will see the downfall of the most autocratic government in ancient times and the birth and spread of the Christian faith.

Quo Vadis is one of the most absorbingly interesting and thrilling productions that has ever been screened. It is correct historically, delightful artistically and perfect in detail and perspective, besides being a profound psychological study.

Nothing more realistic has ever been accomplished in photographic art than the portrayal of the great royal banquets, the burning of Rome and the scenes in the arena—the tossing of the Christians to the lions, Ursus' rescue of Lygia from the back of the raging bull, and others.

Emil Jannings, whose characterizations in Passion, Deception and other pictures, won him international fame, has the role of Nero and carries off the honors of the production.

American screen patrons are introduced to a new leading woman in the person of Lillian Hall Davis, noted English star. As Lygia she makes her debut on the screen in this country and gives promise of becoming a favorite here.

Quo Vadis will continue at the Breed theater until Tuesday.

Palace Theatre

"Cobra," with an all star cast including Rudolph Valentino, is the main attraction at the Palace theatre Monday and Tuesday. Mr. Valentino awakens more sympathy in it than he has awakened in any of his last several pictures. Not that the role of a Sheik, which he assumes in this picture, is sympathy awakening; only that he is honest enough to admit that he is a "rotter"—one admires him for his honesty. What contributes toward winning him most of the sympathy, however, is the fact that he shows loyalty toward his friend; although his friend's wife tempted him, he did all he could to avoid her for the sake of her friend.

An Italian count (hero) is saved by an American from being blackmailed by an Italian, to whose daughter the hero had written love letters. He comes with his friend to America, resolved to shun women. But he cannot resist them. The hero goes to Europe for a year. He returns with the hope of marrying his secretary, whom he loved sincerely, and who loved him. But when he finds out that his friend was in love with her, too, goes away, giving her up to his friend.

In addition to "Cobra," four exceptionally well balanced acts offer a variety of entertainment for the most sophisticated vaudeville fan. The Musical Zytos play thrilling tantalizing tunes with many different kinds of musical instruments. The Bliss Trio are sensational aerialists that will give a thrill to all who see their remarkable feats. Honeymoon Time, with six clever singers and dancers offer a variety of dances, eccentric, comedy and tuneful harmony singing. Brown and Elaine are the original laugh pirates. There will be no vaudeville or pictures shown Wednesday as the Richard Mansfield Players will present the Pulitzer prize play, Why Marry, both matinee and evening.

LEBANON

Rev. A. G. Littlefield took his text Sunday from 1 Chronicles 13.14. The C. E. meeting was led by Miss Cora Chappell.

Rev. Stanley Sellick took for his subject Sunday morning The Leaven of the Church. Miss Harriet Manning was the leader of the C. E. meeting.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Congregational church held an all day meeting in the church parlors last Tuesday.

The Mission society of the Congregational church met with Mrs. F. G. Stark on Thursday afternoon.

The Mission Circle held an all day meeting in the chapel of the Baptist church.

Mrs. C. M. Geer entertained for the day, recently Mrs. James Chouette, of Liberty Hill and Mrs. David Walsh, in the afternoon other members of the Gettogether club joined them and a quilt was tied. Supper was served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bruce and daughter of East Lyme, spent the week end Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bruce.

Mrs. Ella Foster and son, Edwin spent Thanksgiving in Hartford with Mrs. Foster's daughter, Mrs. Clarence Barry.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kneeland and family spent Thanksgiving in Canton, with Mrs. Kneeland's mother, Mrs. George Dewey.

Mrs. Sarah Gager entertained at Thanksgiving dinner and supper on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Aphens Nye and two sons of Fitchville and George Babcock of North Lyme.

Mrs. Walter Burgess spent a few days recently with her sister, Mrs. M. E. Locke, in Hartford, being there over Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Williams, Henry Williams and daughter, Miss Ruth Williams, motored to Springfield last Sunday.

Misses Mary and Elizabeth Randall are spending a few days in South Manchester, guests of Mrs. A. J. Lillie.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Geer and daughter, Miss Myra Geer, were in Hartford Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harvey and children of New London, spent the week end at their home in Lebanon.

Thomas Fowler spent Thanksgiving with his brother in New London. On Tuesday and Wednesday he entertained his cousin from New London.

Alfred Wyman, Sr., has gone to New York. His family will remain in Lebanon for some time.

F. G. Bruce and Ernest Martin went to Stafford Springs Sunday Afternoon to see the latter's brother, George Martin, who is a patient in the hospital there as a result of being struck by an auto. Mr. Martin was badly bruised and cut about the face.

Miss Grace Burgess entertained on Thanksgiving day, her brother, Walter Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Burgess and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burgess and daughter.

Mrs. Wells of Greeneville, spent a few days last week with Mrs. Aspinall.

Mrs. Sarah Gager was a recent guest of her nephew, Alpheus Nye, in Fitchville.

The "Dope" Situation

It is hardly necessary to point out that the problem is challenging all nations and has become serious and urgent. Take the situation in America for instance. In 1919 the special survey of the treasury department reported the number of addicts in the United States as exceeding 1,000,000, and increasing.

A health officer of Chicago, investigating cause of crime there, found drug addiction alarming among the youth of both sexes. Last year the Assistant U. S. Attorney General reported that more than 40 per cent of all prisoners were addicts and that the number is increasing. Judge McAdoo of New York City Courts estimates that of the thousands of addicts who have appeared before him, 95 per cent were below the age of 30 and 98 per cent were heroin addicts. The heroin addict is inherently a recruiting agent and soon recruits a gang. The members of this gang in turn soon start recruiting other gangs. —Adventure Magazine.

The average woman wastes a lot of time trying to transform a wrinkle into a dimple.

BROADWAY THEATRE

WHERE YOU ALWAYS SEE AND GET WHAT IS ADVERTISED

2:15—TODAY, TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY—7 to 10:30

A program which compares favorably with last week's show, which made such a sensational hit in Norwich.

VAUDEVILLE—THE WORLD'S BEST

An exclusive, special engagement of

(1) THE SIX SAXOS

A saxophone sextette in syncopation—jazzy and classical music as only a saxophone can bring forth—an attractive miss sings and dances as to lilting melodies.

(2) DIXON & O'BRIEN

Delineators of black-face fun offer "TROUBLES IN CORK." Their troubles bring a dozen minutes of fun.

(3) MADELINE SOISSON

Offering "A MINIATURE SONG CYCLE."

(4) OLIVER & STACEY

"ACTING NATURAL" enables this team of ITALIAN character comedians to show their comedy worth.

(5) BEEGE & QUPEE

Featuring their sensational novelty "UPSIDE-DOWN 2 in 1." An enormous success in America and Europe.

And on the screen the finest photoplay in town

"WANDERING FIRES"

With CONSTANCE BENNETT, GEORGE HACKATHORNE, WALLACE MacDONALD and EFFIE SHANNON.

POETRY

"Put Up Thy Sword."

"Woe to him that buildeth a town with blood," Hab. 2:12.

"Put up thy sword," unsheathed, or never more,
Exclaimed the Master to the impetuous one
Whose violent zeal his wisdom had o'erborne,
And smiting off an ear rash work had done!
Amazed, saw at Christ's touch the ear restored.
Bloodshed, by force, no purpose good had gained,
Anger, in armed defense, was not deplored—
"Put up thy sword"—ne'er should its blade be stained.

What, not for self defense? When threats outreach,
Cruel injustice suffered to bear away?
Was this the truth the Prince to Peace would teach,
Healing sword-wounds—to Cross then led away!

Yet ne'er again find we disciples armed,
Though to win victories forth for Him they went,
With Sword of the Spirit—enemies unharmed—
And, like their Master, lives in love they spent.

How slow His Church to learn the Hymn of Peace—
Ears stunned by roar of cannon and loud drums,
Nor death's shrieks from war's slaughtered millions cease!
Can wounds of war ne'er cured be, till Christ comes?

Just as He touched the bleeding ear, and healed,
Must greater miracle once more be wrought
Upon the soul of nations? Swords concealed,
Kept ready—drawn should battles need be fought—
"Put up thy sword"—clear is Love's word revealed,
For if unsheathed, hate and revenge will kill
Nor peace can e'er prevail on sea or land
Or bring to bloom the flower of God's goodwill.

—By Rev. George G. Phipps

Thistle

The garden within was shaded,
And guarded about from sight;
The fragrance flowed to the south wind,
The fountain leaped to the light.

And the street without was narrow,
And dusty, and hot, and mean;
But the bush that bore white roses,

She leaned to the fence between.
And softly she caught a cre'vice,
In that barrier blank and tall,
And shyly one thrust out through it,
Her loveliest bud of all.

And tender to touch, and gracious,
And pure as the moon's pure shine,
The full rose paled and was perfect.
For whose eyes, for whose lips, but mine!

—Helen Gray Cone.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Madge carries her age well, doesn't she?"
"Yes, I wonder she's stood the burden so long."—London Mail.

Telephone Subscriber—I say! You gave me the right number! And the first time I asked for it!
Operator (from force of habit)—"Please excuse us."—Stray Stories.

First Student—I wonder how old Mrs. Jones is.
Second Student—Quite old, I imagine. They say she used to teach Caesar.—Washington University Dirge.

"I told Tom the average woman's clothing only weighs eight ounces."
"And what did he say?"
"He thought it was a shame they had to wear such heavy shoes."—Life

"Is your herring good," asked the woman of the fish dealer.
"Mam?"
"Your herring—is it good?"
"No, madam," he replied, "I'm very deaf."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Young City Miss—"There isn't much pep to the girls out here, is there?"
Farmer Jimson—"Pep! Wahi, I dunno 'bout that, lady. Now dis mawnin' our gal Saryh milked 15 cows befoh breakfast."—Exchange.

Teacher (to tardy pupil)—Why are you late?
Tardy Pupil—I saw a sign—
Teacher—Well what has the sign got to do with it?
Pupil—It said, "School ahead, go slow."—Washington Star.

An angry purchaser dashed into the second hand car plant.
"You told me that auto would work like a charm," he began, but—
"Now my dear sir," replied the salesman, "I never supposed you were one of those superstitious persons who believed in charms."—American Legion Weekly.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—(By the Associated Press)—Financial interest this week was divided between the renewed bidding up of stock prices, the strength of sterling exchange following an advance in the London bank rate to five per cent and the rise in wheat quotations to new high levels for the season.

Railroad shares resumed their place in the speculative limelight of the stock market, the average price of twenty representatives issues reaching a new peak for the year. Prospects that consolidations in the south and southwest would be rushed through in advance of new legislation on the subject enlivened activity in this group, while the maintenance of freight traffic and earnings at a high level created a broad demand for the standard investment issues.

Meanwhile an orderly advance in industrial stocks proceeded, with only minor interruptions due to profit taking. Trading was featured by a revival of bullish enthusiasm for some of the motor shares and high priced specialties and the establishment of new high records by Maryland and other leading oil shares U. S. Steel and American Telephone took a prominent part in the upward movement.

The advance in wheat prices to the best levels of the season recalled the spectacular upturn of a year ago. Gains for the week ranged from 14 to 17 cents a bushel although the highest quotations were not maintained. Cotton futures were slightly lower on the week.

THE WEATHER

Conditions

There have been rains within the last 24 hours in the North Atlantic states and in portions of the Dakotas and local snows in the lake region and upper Mississippi valley. Elsewhere generally fair weather prevailed. The temperature has fallen in the lower lake region and the middle Atlantic states and it has risen in the plains states, the Missouri and Mississippi valley and in the interior of the west Gulf states.

Mostly fair weather will prevail Monday and Tuesday east of the Mississippi river.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Gaucher of Dion street moved last week into one of the apartments of their new house on Norwich avenue. Mr. and Mrs. William J. Smith and family of School street have leased the apartment vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Gaucher and are occupying it.

Miss Jean McAuley and Miss Agnes Gray of South Fifth avenue are registered at the Cornish Arms Hotel in New York, and will sail this week for a visit with relatives in Scotland.

John S. Andrew who has been spending several weeks in town has left town for Boston, Mass., to sail for his home in England.

At the regular Sunday evening meeting of the Young Peoples society of Christian Endeavor held in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church, the leaders were Miss Gladys Kinder and Miss Ruby Houston.

Tuesday being observed as the Feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary, a holy day of obligation in the Roman Catholic church, and designated by the pope as the patronal festival of the United States, there are to be special masses celebrated on that day at Sacred Heart church.

SENT TO STATE FARM FROM NORWICH COURT

Three men were sent to jail, two were committed to the state farm for six months, while another was set free by Judge Arthur F. Libby, who presided over the city court, Saturday morning.

John J. O'Malley, 44, a steamfitter, was charged with being a common drunkard, intoxication and breach of the peace, but entered a plea of not guilty. The court found differently and O'Malley went to the state farm for six months, a 30 day jail sentence being suspended.

Judge Libby warned the accused that if he continued his acts after his term at the state farm, the jail sentence would be put into effect. He also called attention to the statute covering the finding of a person a common drunkard, saying that three convictions were sufficient.

William Martin, 44, who had also been convicted more than the required number of times, was given six months at the state farm and a 30 days' jail sentence, suspended for a period of six months.

Two Danielson men were sent to jail for 30 days after they had pleaded guilty to intoxication, and a Norwich man, charged with intoxication, with two convictions against him, was fined $5 and costs, a total of $14.50. He lacked the money and was sent to jail to work out his fine.

KENTUCKY SENATOR'S CLAIM AGAINST BRANDEGEE ESTATE

Senator Richard P. Ernst, republican, of Kentucky, is the latest colleague of the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee, of Connecticut, to file a claim against his estate.

Senator Ernst seeks to collect a $1,000 note, with interest which he says bears the date of May 31, 1924.

ELKS HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR THEIR ABSENT BROTHERS

Norwich Lodge of Elks, No. 430, honored the memory of its "Absent Brothers," now numbering 142, of whom nine passed away in the last year, by holding the annual Lodge of Sorrow Sunday afternoon at 3:30 at the Broadway theater where the audience more than filled the main floor of the house. The lodge members, who had marched in a body from the Elks home to the theater, occupied a block of seats in the center of the house.

The exercises were conducted with much impressiveness by the officers of the lodge, with Exalted Ruler Charles W. Cassidy presiding, the stage where they were seated having been arranged with unusual fine effect for the service. The Elks purple, set off with green vines and palms, was the prevailing color. Over the station of the exalted ruler, in the center and at the rear, was erected the large Elks' clock, and at either side were four tablets bearing the names of the nine who had Carter; Nocturne, Logan; One Sweet Dennis J. Twomey, Dr. Thomas A. Crowley, Robert McSurney, Arthur F. Campbell, P. E. R., John T. Young, Israel Rabinovitch, D. Jewett Rathbone, Francis P. Pruitt and James E. Keating. At the appropriate time, an electric light was flashed on for each name as the roll was called. The cardinal principles of the order, Charity, Justice, Brotherly Love and Fidelity, were shown in letters of white on the tablets, the decorations having been carried out by Morgan Cronin and John H. Carney, P. E. R., with the palms from the Gedulidg greenhouses.

The Memorial address was eloquently delivered by James G. Hammond of New London and the music for the services was by Swahn's orchestra and the Colonial Male Quartette of Hartford, both rendering selections of exceptional merit.

As the audience was gathering the following orchestral selections were rendered: Onward, Christian Soldiers, W. Cassidy, exalted ruler; Felix P. Callahan, Zamecnik; Longing, Carrie Jacobs-Bond; Angelus, Massenet.

The formal exercises began with the following selections by the orchestra: March—Religioso, Chambers; overture—Consecration, Verdi; Idyle—Narcissus, Ring-Hager.

These were followed by the ritual conducted by the officers of the lodge, in which were included the invocation by Rev. Edward Capen Dunbar of the First Baptist church, orchestral selections and the following vocal numbers: Quartette, On the Sea (Buck); solo, The Lamp In the West, (Speaks), Charles Beach; quartette, Love's Old Sweet Song, (Molloy); solo, O, Loving Father, (Del Riego), Maurice Wallen.

Memorial Address

In his memorial address, Bro. Hammond spoke as follows:

We are called together as Brother Elks, and as families and friends of Elkdom in annual memorial service, to engage in ceremony holding a common concern.

It is, perhaps, timely and fitting that we give some thought to those conditions and elements directly relating to our order, that we may, in retrospection, refresh our memories the better to profit by the significance of today's lesson and its import. We believe it advisable to turn back the illustrious and sacred pages of our Antlered Association and gain wisdom and strength and inspiration from the early pioneers and founders of our order.

There was born to the wife of an English clergyman in the village of Exeter, Devonshire, England, Oct. 22, 1842, a son, Charles A. Sidney Vivian, who, during his brief span of life, for he passed at the early age of 33, was destined to do deeds of kindness and acts of brotherly love in a way that makes their memory a priceless heritage to our great fraternity that now numbers over one million men.

The early life of young Vivian in England was uneventful. He came to America in 1867, an English music-hall singer and actor. He was a man whose qualities were exceptional, and whose talents were unusual. His ready wit and congeniality soon attracted and drew about him a coterie of actors, artists, writers and good fellows whose spirit of comraderie was clean and wholesome. This happy lot of some score of friendly fellows were soon banded into an humerous, mock-heroic association known as the "Jolly Corks." Some months later, February 16th, 1868, to be exact, with name changed, the first charter and initial session of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was given to the world, under the kindly guidance and able leadership of Brother Vivian, our first exalted ruler.

Some ten years later we find Brother Vivian with his little band of players in the mining camps of Colorado. But an insidious disease had marked him, and two years later, broken in health, without funds, yet wonderfully rich in the love of his fellow men, we find him going from camp to camp, this sad-eyed, sweet-voiced singer, singing and preaching to the rough and hardened miners. They soon grew to love him and as, little by little, their coarse profanity and brutal ways gave way to awe and silent wonder o'er the change he had wrought to their lives. Brotherly love had come to him in full measure, pressed down and running over. He attracted honor and love as the road-side flower attracts the sunshine, and he sublimed the gold of it into perfume and exhaled it again a glory and a benediction.

On a later afternoon of March 20th, 1880, was held the first memorial service of Elkdom in Clarendon hall, New York City, and on that same afternoon at the same hour, as though the exalted ruler of the universe and divinely appointed, in a little western mining camp, our beloved Brother Vivian fell asleep, only to awake in the summer land beyond, where, in the infinite meadows of heaven blossom the stars, the forget-me-nots of the angels. We, his brothers, in annual retrospect, are want to peep through one of heaven's windows and pay tearful tribute to our departed brothers. Some few years later the remains of our founder were exhumed and reinterred in the "Old Meeting House" cemetery in Boston, where a beautiful monument erected by his brother Elks marks his sleep. God had made him a gentleman and a benefactor. Such, my friends, in brief, is the early background of our founder and of our order.

Let us pause, here and now, and rededicate ourselves anew to the cardinal principles of our Antlered Herd, of charity, justice, fidelity, and more especially brotherly love, and sincerely vow that in the year's passing we will constantly let the glorious sunshine of God's divine brotherhood flood the loving windows of our soul.

The men we mourn passed silently into the ranks of the dead; their places are vacant; the scenes of their labor know them no more; their voices are stilled forever to the ears of men. But yesterday they were our associates and our companions. In quickened flesh we greeted them in labors. It was a faith, not of their learning, their skill, of their science; neither did it come to them as the possession of the wise, nor as the spoil of the valiant, nor as the badge of the great and the noble, no. It was faith acquired at the altar of Elkdom. Easy of access, light of burden. Such was the faith that made these men true to their obligations and duties, their country and state, their homes, their fellows and their lodge. The same faith that prompted thousands of brothers to shoulder the musket and lend aid to that recent struggle over-seas, to the end that the home and fireside might endure forever. The same charity and brotherly love that but recently prompted our late brother to plunge into dangerous waters and save precious life at the forfeit of his own. What greater love is there than that a man should lay down his life for a friend.

The peace pact of Locarno, signed but yesterday, reaching out for the long-prayed-for tranquility of Europe, augurs fruition of our order's limitless horizon of everlasting brotherhood. Elkdom, in its search for an universal brotherhood and peace, would preach first, disarmament of the heart, before a lasting and enduring peace would follow the scrapping of guns and wars. Oneness with God, the heart and soul attuned, universatility of love, are more enduring and everlasting than pressure of power can ever be. Elkdom's foundation and very soul is firmly founded on that principal.

The star of fidelity has ever burned through the ages, it ever will.

Well did these brothers observe that mandate of our ritual, "Be charitable to all mankind," for they had that kindness of heart which is the sweetness of life and which has its place in every house and on every avenue. Their charity was that of remembering the forgotten, of defending the weak. Their charity was such as made the joy of giving their compensation. Such charity as has always characterized the Elks in their donations of millions for the relief of distress everywhere. Their charity sought not the flourish of trumpets but worked its way into the knots and snarls of life where was found the man whom this world had harshly hurt. Their charity consisted, not alone in the giving of alms, for they sought the handiwork of the Maker. Their charity rescued the fallen, supported the weak, brought back the lost. Their words were of kindness and of wisdom, and they bound up the wounds of their fellow creatures and put forth their efforts to hasten the coming of a better day. Their charity relieved the suffering and put the star of hope in the midnight of despair; it went down into the abyss of sorrow and into the region of hidden anguish and tears, and raised trembling hope in the depths of hearts that had been crushed.

To the members of this great brotherhood of men, memorial ceremony has a tender significance, for by it we were reminded this afternoon of our absent ones. There are moments and hours and days in all our lives that are sacred. There comes a time in the experience of every human being when some unexpected circumstance will awaken the dearest, the most tender recollections that slumber in the human breast and soul,—the perfume of a flower, a strain of music, the happy laughter of children, symphony of winds in the forest, the glad song of a bird will oftimes recall some faded memory, or reproduce in vivid colors before the mind's eye a picture that has been blurred by the mists of long forgotten days;. These, our brothers, are gone from us, yet in love and in spirit we are with them:

"There is no flock, however watched and tended,
But one dead lamb is there;
There is no fireside, how-so-ere defended,
But has one vacant chair."

What solace is there so great as that of brotherly love which warmed the hearts of these men whom we mourn, and which, in the light of a better day, will wrap mankind in the comforting embrace of a great brotherhood.

In the Golden Rule, "Do Unto Others As Ye Would They Should Do Unto You," lies the secret of all earthly happiness, but this ancient command of eleven words may be still further condensed into one word which holds hidden power of life, and that one word is "love." Love is the affinity of souls which binds hearts together and draws them close to God, making heaven possible here on earth, as well as hereafter.

It is a noble instinct of the living to signalise and extol the dead, and no organisation does more to cherish the memories of its departed brethern than our great Order of Elks. Prompted by that endearing sentiment we leave the rough concerns of the work-a-day world, and in fraternal bond-ship, united by ties of loving affection for our dead, we pay our tribute of respect to their memories. The road to our brothers grave shall not be forgotten, and whether his sleep of peace be marked by chaste tomb or humble mound, by yellow sands of the desert field, or by the hungering depths of the ocean's floor, yet, above them, share and share alike, we place our blossoms of tender memory.

In the city of Athens, Greece, but recently, with bared head we stood on Mars Hill, the very rock on which stood Paul the Apostle when he addressed the multitudes below, invoking understanding of the "Known God," to whom the Athenians, all unknowing, had erected altars bearing the inscriptions "To the Unknown God." We passed on, beyond the Acropolis, and paused at the tomb of Isocrates, that noble Greek, who, in the poisoned cup, pressed his lips upon the wet, clammy lips of death, and dying, ordered that offering be made the gods in thanksgiving that the sunset of his life had come. Elqnt reason teaches the existence of a Supreme Being. In these some font from which this universe comes, something which in itself is self existing, beyond which there is nothing? There is that font, infinite, omniscient, driving before it the flaming worlds of creation. Call it Jehovah, call it Allah, call it Spirit, call it God, for philosophy has no quarrel with names. As these worlds are finite so they are corrupting, and are even now in transit to that time when they shall totter and drop into the lap of nothingness. Then shall come to pass that which "Eye hath not seen, nor ear hath heard, nor hath it entered the mind of man to conceive, for all creation but one thing shall subsist and that shall be the soul." The souls of our dead shall live immortal, incorruptible, abiding in the interminable halls of the infinite, where earthly careers are at rest, there is fulfilled the object of creation, that all things on the earth, and in the sea, and in the skies were made to glorify the God of ages, who had no beginning, who will have no end, who before creation's birth dwelt in awful splendor; yet, in His foresight saw the hurrying throng, the streaming eyes of sorrow and bleeding hearts of hope, slowly toiling upward to the God-head, a God-head of love—love eternal—love divine;

"Life is ever Lord of death and Love can never lose its own."

Closing Exercises

Following the address, the exercises came to a close with a selection by the quartette, At the Altar of Truth (Mohr), an appropriate number by the orchestra, a verse of the lodge code and the benediction by Rev. Mr. Dunbar.

The officers of the lodge are: Charles W. Cassidy, exalted ruler; Felix P. Callahan, esteemed leading knight; James M. Osten, esteemed loyal knight; Nicholas Doyle, esteemed lecturing knight; William R. Balcom, secretary; Laurence E. Millea, treasurer; W. W. Carrigan, esquire; Fred Hutchinson, chaplain; Frank Stager, chaplain; Henry Bamber, inner guard; Hugh Kinder organist; Nelson J. Ayling, James W. Semple, James P. Hayes, trustees.

The memorial committee comprised Felix P. Callahan, John H. Carney, James M. Osten, Frank P. Donnelly, Arthur Jodoin, and the members of the quartet are Maurice Wallen, first tenor; Raymond Grant, second tenor; Charles Beach, baritone; Harry Coe Olmstead, bass; Albert Stanley Usher, accompanist.

GOLDEN RULE COLLECTION AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

At the three masses in St. Patrick's church Sunday, there was a special offering for the orphans of the Near East, in observance of Golden Rule Sunday. Referring at the 9 o'clock mass, to this day and its motive, Rev. John J. Reilly cited the sermon on the mount as the guide for Catholics, who should make of every day a Golden Rule day. It was the second Sunday in advent, the Epistle read in every mass throughout the world being Romans 15, 4-13 and the gospel Matthew 11, 2-10. Father Reilly preached from the tenet of the Apostles' Creed, "I believe in God, the Father Almighty, and in one Lord, Jesus Christ, born of the Father, conceived by the Holy Ghost." His theme was the faith which believes, although it cannot understand.

The preacher took up the subject of mystery, which surrounds nearly everything worth while in this world. The mystery of the Trinity, one God of three divine persons, too stupendous for even the angels, naturally baffles the weak reasoning of simple man. In the first book of Holy Writ the Creator speaks, saying "Let us do this," or "Let us do that," implying more than one presence. When John the Baptist baptized the Saviour in the Jordan, there came a voice from heaven, 'This is My beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased;" and the Holy Ghost settled upon the Redeemer in the form of a dove. Again St. John speaks of the Three Divine persons, Father Son and Holy Ghost, "and these three are one." Man, weak, handicapped, ignorant, cannot grasp the mystery—but it is his province to have faith in it, until that hour, when in the presence of the Beatific Vision all that is now dark shall be made clear.

St. Patrick converted a pagan nation by utilizing the little shamrock —three leaves in one—as a convincing symbol of the Trinity. What the Trinity means to every Catholic from birth till death, was touched upon. From each the Triune God should claim a trinity of love, loyalty and patient suffering, instead of the trinity which men in modern days too often set up—i. e., sin, self and honor.

Later Father Reilly assisted Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who had read the mass, in giving Holy Communion to row after row of men, women and elder children, the week-end confessions having been unusually numerous. The hymns were sung by the Junior choir, Henry J. LaFontaine, the organist, directing.

Stress was laid upon the fact that the coming Tuesday, the feast of the Immaculate Conception, of the Blessed Virgin Mary, is a holy day of obligation, when masses are to be at 5 and 8 o'clock, in addition to the regular week-day parish mass at 7. This is the patronal feast of all Catholics in the United States.

Beginning this week, the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May and his assistants will receive the names of all those in the great parish who are too aged or infirm to come to the church, that Christmas communion may be carried to them at their homes. In the same period preceding Christmas day the priests visit the public institutions, hearing the confessions of the Catholics, taking communion to them the following day.

MEMORIAL FLOWERS MARK MR. AND MRS. OSGOOD'S GRAVES

Saturday was the first anniversary of the death of Mrs. Eliza White Osgood, widow of former Mayor Frederick L. Osgood, of Washington street. Although the day was stormy, the members of the Osgood household lovingly decorated Mrs. Osgood's grave, in the Osgood plot in Yantic cemetery with white chrysanthemums and violets. The grave of Mr. Osgood was decorated with pink chrysanthemums. Every day since the death of both, except during the severest winter cold, this loyal tribute has been paid them, so that those visiting the cemetery have grown accustomed to look for the beautiful memorial flowers which cover their resting-place.

Up to now, no change has been made in the Osgood household, and the beautiful flowers grown on the place are thus utilized week after week.

MRS. JANE C. WILLIAMS, 91, HAS BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Mrs. Jane M. Cruttenden, widow of Newton S. Williams, who makes her home with her daughter, Miss Hattie C. Williams, of 281 Main street, reached her 91st birthday Friday. The event was celebrated by a quiet family gathering, those present including Mrs. Williams' two half-sisters, Miss Kate Cruttenden and Miss Lillian Cruttenden, of Crescent Beach, who are spending the winter in Norwich.

She had a handsomely decorated birthday cake, received flowers, cards and other gifts. Mrs. Williams and her sisters are the last surviving members of a family of thirteen, their ancestors coming from Guilford. Even at her advanced age, Mrs. Williams continues in very good health.

MUST ELIMINATE MORE HIGHWAY DANGER POINTS

Elimination of dangerous conditions on state highways was declared to be one of the most vital needs of present-day road engineering by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald in an address recently before the American Association of State Highway officials at Detroit. Too many safety devices destroy the value of important devices, he pointed out. The tendency has always been to place more warning devices than are necessary, and fewer directional, he said.

"Highway engineers must carefully study their locations and relocations with an idea of creating, as traffic increases, as few dangerous conditions as possible," he said, "so as to decrease the use of such devices, for as we increase and improve the surfaces, we can expect a greater speed which will be productive of more accidents unless we do.

"It is very important that devices be uniformly placed along the road so that operators of motor vehicles will know where to expect to find them. It is also important, due to the development of motor vehicle headlights, that signs be low enough so as to come within the rays of head-lights at night, and good practice would recommend that all direction and warning signs be located at night with automobile head-lamps for guides, and, if possible, in stormy weather.

"During fair weather and when the highway is clean, and when headlights are properly focused, symbols painted upon the pavements have been very efficient; but if there is snow or ice on the highway, or the road is dirty, or a temporary type of pavement is used, these signs are of no value, and in many places they have become so numerous that the public has generally ignored them.

"The worst possible condition I can think of is the motor vehical operator who is operating a car against glaring headlights on a strange road after dark and in a snow storm. That is my test for a good device, and if it can give the operator of the vehicle the proper information at that time, then I would not hesitate to use it.

"To my mind elimination is the only safety device which apparently is effective at grade crossings. It will, of course, never be possible to eliminate all the dangerous conditions, but when it is realized that within the next thirty years, we must expect three and one-half times the present-day traffic, it would seem that we should hesitate in the matter of placing highway safety devices and realize that the fewer of these that we use, the easier our future problems will be to solve.

"The indifference of the general motor public to safety seems to be the reason why many of these devices are in use. I see no reason at all for the use of the white line on curves or at the top of a hill. This white line, no doubt, increases maintenance cost on some highways more than it benefits traffic. If there is a motor vehicle operator at the present time who is not educated up to the fact that he should drive on the right-hand side of the road at a curve or on a hill, and should not pass vehicles where the sight line is obstructed, then it seems to me that his education has been sadly neglected, and the most effective safety device for him is ten days in jail."

32,000 AUTOS SO FAR REGISTERED FOR 1926

The state motor vehicle department announced Sunday that receipts from the registration of motor vehicles for 1926 has reached a total of $662,963.20 up to December 1, as against receipts of $361,897.10 on the corresponding date of last year.

Approximately 32,000 cars are equipped, so far as being registered is concerned, for use on the highways of Connecticut on the first day of the New Year, a greater number than ever before registered by this time, but indicative of a registration rate far below what is necessary to avoid extreme congestion of the registration work in the closing days of the year.

What with a 20 per cent. annual increase in Connecticut motor vehicles, the burden of issuing registrations becomes increasingly difficult each year. Only a few years ago, applications for certificates of registration for a year whose beginning was more than a month away, were rare, but in the effort to distribute the registration work over a longer period and avoid an almost hopeless jam at the end of the year, the department has used all the facilities at its disposal to encourage early registrations. Each year the date when applications for the new year will be received has been moved forward on the calendar and 1926 registrations have been available this year since October 20.

Six months more registry windows were added at the main office of the department at Hartford several weeks ago, a long counter attended by clerks to see that applications are in acceptable form was erected to avoid needless delays at the registry windows and the registry force was enlarged to accommodate applicants promptly. It was announced at the department on Sunday that, although there had been a better response than previously, the rate at which applications have been coming in has not been sufficient to keep the whole registry force busy. It was pointed out in this connection that those who are forced to wait in line because they do not apply for their registrations until the closing days of the year have only themselves to blame for their inconvenience, as the department has done all in its power to speed up applications.

Arrangements to handle larger crowds than before has been made, also, at the department's branch offices in New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury and New London.

MRS. JEROME MAYER PLANS SOCIAL AT HARTFORD HOME

A Hartford paper says: An entertainment arranged by Mrs. Jerome Mayer, charity commissioner, held at the Municipal home last night, was attended by more than 175 inmates and twenty-five nurses and doctors.

Mrs. A. J. W. Myers, accompanied by Mrs. O. M. Hibler, sang several songs, later giving some in dialect and playing her own accompaniment on the guitar. Readings and humorous sketches were given by Miss Dagmar Potholm and Mrs. Hibler played several piano solos.

Following the entertainment Superintendent and Mrs. Herbert Grant Bailey served refreshments.

New Corporations

New corporations which have filed their incorporation papers with the secretary of state at Hartford include the following:

The Putnam Music Shop, of Putnam has incorporated on a capital of $15,000.

The Maurice Metal Art corporation of Norwich has incorporated on a capital of $10,000.

Dr. Dunham at New Haven

Dr. Emma Dunham was in New Haven Sunday, to attend the meeting of the naturopathic physicians.

Love and poetry are seldom hampered by facts.

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

GERMANIA LODGE JUNIORS HOLD FIRST ANNUAL DANCE

Saturday night the Junior branch, No. 11, O. D. H. S., held a very successful dance in their new home on Market street, with over 500 people in attendance.

The hall was gayly decorated with streamers and bunting and the dance floor was resurfaced under the direct supervision of John Amburn. The hall has a spring floor and is the second largest in the city of Norwich. A new ventilating system has been installed and the checkroom overhauled.

In spite of the recent wet weather, the spirit of the patrons was not spoiled, many coming from Groton, New London, Montville, Baltic and Jewett City. Two heavily decorated fruit cakes made by the Providence Bakery, were awarded to Mr. Wenzel and William Selvidio.

Chairman Mitchell Cloutier was so pleased with the loyal support shown by the public, that he announced Germania lodge contemplates holding a series of dances this winter.

Shelby and his orchestra gave a program of dance music that could not be improved upon. Henry J. Rheaume had charge of the tickets and the cloak room was managed by Richard Sabrowski and Herbert Charnetski.

The refreshment booth did their usual rushing business and was in charge of Omer Dion and the Mrs. John Leirich and Margaret Oberta. Fred Richards and Emil Sauer assisted on the floor and Michael Richards filled the post of ticket collectors.

CRASHED INTO TRUCK ON WEST THAMES ST.

The Ford coupe driven by Daniel Coughlin of 194 Laurel Hill avenue was badly wrecked and Frank Gwiazdowski, of 120 North Main street received laceration of the scalp Sunday evening about 6 o'clock, when the car in which they were riding crashed into the rear of a Ford truck, owned by Samuel Arlewits of Montville, about in front of the home of Frank A. Bill, No. 100 West Thames street.

The force of the blow shoved the Ford truck across the sidewalk and into a fence bordering an embankment, breaking down a section of the fence and causing the front end of the truck to slide over the bank. The Ford coupe was whirled around until it was at right angles with the road, the front end being pinned against the rear of the truck. Both cars were considerably damaged, the coupe having the most damage, the radiator being pushed back against the motor, headlights and fenders smashed and the body twisted.

Mr. Gwiazdowski suffered a deep cut on the scalp, caused by flying glass that required four stitches, but other than a shaking up Mr. Coughlin escaped without injury.

RAIN CAME IN FLOOD EARLY SUNDAY MORNING

After nearly a week of rainy weather, the flood-gates of heaven appeared to open about 1:15, Sunday morning and for several hours some of the hardest showers in months fell. Evidently they were what the weather-wise call "the clearing showers," for in a few hours the weather cleared up, the wind having shifted to northwest. However, the temperature reached 52 degrees during the afternoon and there was no indication of anything like a cold wave.

In spite of the rain Saturday evening the streets were crowded and considerable early Christmas buying was reported.

Rivers and ponds are now full, swamps are boggy and in some places wells long dry are showing the effects of the welcomed rains. Dams on suburban rivers are small Niagaras, the water flowing with a volume not seen since early spring.

Those who went about Saturday, lamed from chronic "umbrella arm," consoled each other by observing, "Well anyway, it's lucky this isn't snow!"

ARRESTED AFTER CRASH IN CENTER OF CITY

After running into the rear of the automobile of George Gilman, of Bozrahville, near the Chelsea bank corner about 1:15 Sunday morning, John Wisneske of this city, who was driving an automobile was arrested by officers Shahan and Crary who stopped his machine in Franklin Square.

Wisneske, it is claimed, was driving while under the influence of liquor and after the crash he drove away and passed on the left of the flashing beacon at the bank corner, thus laying himself liable to the charge of evading responsibility and driving to the left of a traffic guide. The rear end of the Gilman machine sustained considerable damage.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE WHICH DROVE AWAY

Mrs. Edwin F. Colt is slowly recovering from the effects of being hit and knocked down by an automobile at 4.50 o'clock Thursday afternoon on the Jewett City road between the J. B. Martin company's plant and W. E. Baldwin's store. Mrs. Colt had several stitches taken in her head and received severe body bruises. The machine which came from the rear, was going at a fast rate of speed and neither slackened speed nor stopped after the accident. There seems to be no clue as to the owner or driver as Mrs. Colt was alone when struck and it was dark. No report was made at police headquarters so either the driver did not know that he had struck anyone or else he did not care to shoulder the responsibility.

COOLIDGE AN ADVOCATE OF CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING

Speaking Before the Annual Convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation, in Chicago, the President Predicted That Agriculture as a Whole Will Lead Industry in Future Prosperity—Assailed Legislative Proposals Savoring of Paternalism—Gave Assurance That the Administration Will Assist Farmers in Profitably Disposing of Their Products and Providing Better Storage Facilities and Cedit.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—(AP)—President Coolidge came into the middle west today with a message of encouragment for the farmer.

Addressing the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation, he predicted that, in spite of past and present adversities, agriculture as a whole will lead industry in future prosperity. Assailing legislative proposals savoring of paternalism, he promised to approve any agricultural relief plan "devised in accordance with sound economic principles."

"I propose," he added, "actively and energetically to assist the farmers to promote their welfare through co-operative marketing."

Tonight the president was on his way back to Washington. Tomorrow he expects to lay before congress his legislative problems which he discussed today.

The president's audience which packed the ball room of the Sherman Hotel and represented farmers of forty states listened attentively to the address which he read, with a few gestures. A half dozen times he was interrupted by applause, but his defense of the tariff as an aid to agriculture and his arraignment of proposals that the government engage in the marketing of farm products or in price fixing direct or indirect were greeted with silence.

At the conclusion of his address, however, the audience, by rising and applauding, showed its appreciation of it and the fact that the president had set out on a hurried 3,000 mile trip, which took him away from the capital on the opening day of congress, to lay his views on agriculture before the farmers of the country.

The president, who was accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, was in Chicago five hours. After his address, he attended a luncheon given by farm bureau officials while Mrs. Coolidge was guest of honor at a similar function tendered by their wives. Crowds lining the streets of the business district gave the city's distinguished visitors an enthusiastic greeting as they passed to and from the hotel in an automobile with top down to provide a better view, despite the raw, cold weather.

One of the passages of the president's speech which brought a round of applause was a reference to his life as a boy on the farm, and his contention that "we can not stop with the mere acquisition of wealth."

"The ultimate result to be desired," he continued, "is not the making of money, but the making of people. Industry, thrift and self-control are not sought because they create wealth, but because they create character. They are the prime product of the farm. We who have seen it, and lived it, we know."

With an assurance that his administration will assist farmers in profitably disposing of their products and providing better storage facilities and credit, the president expressed the view that agriculutre could thus be placed "on a sound and independent business basis."

To have agriculture worth anything, it must rest on an independent business basis," he added. "It can not at the same time be part private business and part government business. I believe the government ought to give it every assistance, but it ought to leave it as the support, hte benefit, and the business of the people."

The president launched into an attack of proposals that the government ought to give it every assistance and engage in the buying and selling of farm produce, and direct or indirect price fixing with the following observations:

"This would be a dangerous undertaking, and as the emergency is not so acute, it seems at present to have lost much of its support. No matter how it is disguised, the moment the government engages in buying and selling, by that act it is fixing prices.

"Moreover, it would apparently destroy co-operative associations and all other marketing machinery. For no one can compete with the government. Ultimately it would end the independence which the farmers of this country enjoy as a result of centuries of struggle and prevent the exercise of hteir own judgment and control in cultivating their land and marketing their produce.

"Government control can not be divorced from political control. The overwhelming interest of the consumer. Now the smaller interest of the producer, would be sure to dominate in the end."

The president did not speak at the luncheon, the food for which had been sent especially for the meal by co-operative marketing organizations in various parts of the country.

HUNTER REPORTED SLAIN BY ANOTHER SPORTSMAN

CARVER, Mass., Dec. 7.—(AP)—A search for the body of a hunter reported slain by another sportsman went on late today in the tangled wilderness of the Miles Standish reservation. Reports to the state police that the dead man's name was Atwood, and that a man named Richards, had been shot in the arm, were all that threw light on the tragedy.

The reservation, a 15 square mile tract almost primitive in its wildness, was thrown open to deer hunters at sunrise today. A deer and bird sanctuary, it formerly had been closed to hunters, but the ban was lifted because the rapid increase in deer was threatening the reforestation program.

Lieut. Joseph E. O'Conner of the state police received a report that a man had been killed and another wounded within an hour after sunrise. He sent a detail to the reservation, which is adjacent to this town, Plymouth and Wareham. It was thought that many hours would be required to search through the dense trees and undergrowth.

Special licenses to shoot in the reservation headquarters and at the offices of the state division of fisheries and game. Estimate as to the number issued ran from 900 to 1,400, which would have given an average of from 50 to 90 hunters to the square mile. Residents of this section said automobiles bearing hunters drove toward the reservation all day yesterday and predictions had been rife that casualties would result.

TWO WITNESSES HEARD IN RUM RING INVESTIGATION

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Beginning an investigation of the alleged rum syndicate headed by Will Dwyer, sportsman and race track owner, the federal grand jury today heard two witnesses whose names were not revealed.

Three additional warrants for members of the ring were issued today, making the number of persons sought 13. The same number have been arrested as members of the syndicate which, it is charged, was the largest ever operating along the Atlantic coast, its business reaching millions of dollars annually and its ramifications extending to the coast guard and land prohibition forces.

The investigation, which started under the guidance of three assistants of Federal Attorney Buckner, is expected to continue daily for a month. Every precaution is being taken to keep secret the identity of the witnesses and their testimony.

Much important evidence in the investigation is expected to come from members of the ring turned government witnesses in return for immunity from prosecution.

BOSTON DRUG STORE ROBBED FOR FIFTH TIME WITHIN YEAR

BOSTON, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Burglars with a penchant for robbing Walter S. Milleken's drug store in the Roxbury district have paid their fifth visit to the place within a year, the police made known today. A safe was blown open and $2,000 in cash taken. The robbers overlooked $11,000 in glod bonds and $5,000 in checks.

GREECE TRYING TO JUSTIFY THE INVASION OF BULGARIA

GENEVA, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Greece invoked the Corfu affair today to prove that she was justified in invading Bulgaria.

Displaying unexpected resistance to the special commission's recommendations against Greece in connection with the recent Balkan conflict, the Greek former foreign minister, M. Rentis, not only objected to the payment of reparations to Bulgaria fixed by the commission, but demanded that the council of the League of Nations ask Bulgaria to pay to Greece $750,000.

M. Rentis accused the commission of failing to hear the Greek side of the controversy while conducting its inquiry and declared that if the council approved the commission's finding, Greece would probably appeal to the world court of justice to determine whether reparations could be imposed without being based on an impartial inquiry.

The Greek representative insisted that Greece was justified in invading Bulgaria because her sentinels had been killed, and cited the Corfu affair, when Italian forces occupied that island after the killing of Italian officers on Greek soil, as a precedent which justified Greece in adopting coercive measures against Bulgaria.

GUILTY TO SENDING OBSCENE MATTER THROUGH MAILS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 7—(A. P.)—Rev. Albert Sidney Gregg, author, lecturer and superintendent of the American Civic Reform union was found guilty in federal court late today of sending obscene matter through the mails.

The verdict was returned by a jury about four hours after Gregg's trial on a charge of mailing a "Jane Doe affidavit" to members of the congregation of Rev. William C. Hicks, Cleveland pastor, in an effort to oust Hicks from his pulpit for alleged improper advances to a parishioner who had sought his advice, the jury deliberated only a few minutes.

Mr. Gregg was found guilty on all three counts in the indictment. Each count carries a sentence of five years in prison and a $6,000 fine.

Judge Paul Jones announced sentence would be passed Wednesday.

PROGRAM FOR WELL CHILD CONFERENCES NEXT WEEK

HARTFORD, Dec. 7—(A. P.)—Considerable increases in most communicable diseases in the state were reported to the state department of health last week. Measles jumped from fifty-five new cases a week ago to 115 reported at noon today. Whooping cough increased from thirty-two to eighty cases; scarlet fever from fifty to sixty-four and typhoid from five to nine. Diphtheria cases decreased from fifty-four to thirty-four during the period. The weekly bulletin reports that whooping cough is in the epidemic stage at Newtown.

Well child conferences next week have been announced as follows: Monday, South Coventry; Tuesday, Westbrook; Wednesday, Broadbrook and Clinton; Thursday, Salisbury and Eastford; Friday, Westport and Moosup. All conferences are open from 2 until 4 p. m.

Macri Case Expected To Go to Jury Today

Girl Defendant Sobbed as Her Counsel Began the Argument For the Defense—Argument Uncompleted.

LITCHFIELD, Conn., Dec. 7.—(AP)—With Olympia Macri, defendant in the murder trial now in progress in the Litchfield county superior court, sobbing audibly, Joseph Koletsky, her counsel, late today began the argumnet which the defense hopes will bring about the girl's acquittal for killing John Bagnano. Attorney Koletsky addressed the jury for one hour after Frank B Munn, assisting the state in the prosecution, had presented the state's case for more than two hours of the three allotted each side.

The defense will continue its argument after court is opened tomorrow for two hours, then the state will close with State's Attorney A. A. Alling using the time left the prosecution. Although the charge to the jury of Judge George E. Hinman is expected to require more than an hour, the case is expected to go to the jury some time tomorrow afternoon.

Before court was adjourned today, Judge Hinman advised the jurors to make whatever arrangements necessary so that they could be "kept together after the case is submitted to you." Before they were dismissed, he cautioned them of the added importance at this time "not to subject yourselves to outside influences."

The largest crowd that has yet attended the retrial was present today, the 23rd day and the first day of the sixth week. During the afternoon session, Sheriff Frank H. Turkington provided about 40 additional seats by placing chairs within the railing. The majority of those who listened to the fervid pleas of counsel were women, many of whom came up from New Haven county.

The defendant sat through the state's opening argument with her head buried in her hands, her handkerchief to her eyes. Mrs. Mary Todd, the matron, comforted her by occasionally stroking her hair and by keeping her arm about the girl's shoulders.

Without flinching the defendant heard the case as brought out in the evidence put before the jury by Mr. Munn who paced the floor behind the counsel table as he urged the jury not to forget that the killing was "deliberate and intentional, and was not justifiable." In closing Mr. Munn said that the state of Connecticut "tells you there is no self-defense here. You are not asked to punish the defendant, you are asked to say whether she is guilty or not."

As Mr. Koletsky prepared to launch his court argument, the girl began to cry violently. She buried her head in Mrs. Todd's arms and her shoulders shook. After a few minutes however, she quieted and wept silently.

COAL CONFERENCE TO BE HELD IN HARRISBURG TODAY

HARRISBURG, Dec. 7—(A. P.)—Governor Pinchot today completed preparations for a meeting here tomorrow with business men from the anthracite region as a further step in his efforts to terminate the mining suspension. This meeting, he made clear tonight, will cause no modification of the program which he laid before the miners and operators on November 28.

The conference will be closed and the governor maintained silence as to just what subjects will be taken up.

A half dozen representatives of civic and business organizations in the hard coal region are expected.

In making clear his intention of adhering to the proposals he laid before the opposing groups, Mr. Pinchot said the plan "has been approved by the public and miners and I see no reason for changing it." The program was accepted by the miners as a basis of settlement but the operators declined to agree to it.

In a telegram today to President Coolidge thanking the executive for withholding from publication his reply to the letter of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, in regard to the bituminous situation, the governor said he believes the plan he put forward "to be fair to both miners and operators and it frankly sets the public interest in the highest place."

"I shall continue to use my best efforts to get anthracite coal for those who need it," he promised the president.

Before the close of the week he expects to announce his decision as to whether he will call a special session of the state legislature, in connection with this possibility the governor has been considering the advisability of including the coal situation as one of the subjects for special legislation.

KIP RHINELANDER IS KEEPING IN SECLUSION

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Dec. 7—(A. P.)—Victor and vanquished in the suit of Leonard Kip Rhinelander to annul his marriage to his negro wife, Alice Jones Rhinelander, had disappeared today while their attorneys worked on plans to carry the legal battle further.

Alice and her mother, Mrs. George Jones, left their home early today, the daughter to recuperate from her experiences during the trial. Previously she said she would go to Florida, but members of her family would not reveal the place she will rest.

Rhinelander, who had avoided the public eye since the verdict unfavorable to him was returned by the jury Friday, left his hotel yesterday and is in seclusion.

Mrs. Grace Miller, sister of Alice, when asked about her disappearance, said, "They went by train because Alice is in no condition to drive. Alice and mother spent most of the day packing. Alice received many telegrams. They didn't tell me where they are going. Father knows, but his lips are sealed."

John T. King Has Been Subpoenaed

To Appear at Investigation of Miller's Administration of the Office of Alien Property Custodian.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The possibility of further investigation by the federal grand jury into Thomas W. Miller's administration of the office of alien property custodian was seen today in reports that John T. King, former republican national committeeman from Connecticut, had been subpoenaed to appear before the body Thursday.

Mystery surrounded the rumor, however, and federal officials would not verify it. "That is a matter that I decline to say anything about," said Federal Attorney Buckner. Hiram C. Todd, special government prosecutor, could not be reached.

King, who was charged with Miller with returning property of the American Metal company to a Swiss corporation owned by Germans, was an important witness against Miller. The former alien property custodian was indicted with four German and Swiss citizens and three German and Swiss corporations for conspiracy to defraud the government, but King was not indicted.

HOPE ABANDONED FOR THE STEAMER COTOPAXI

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Virtually all hope has been abandoned for the finding of the steamer Cotopaxi which left Charleston on Sunday Nov. 29, bound for Havana with a cargo of coal, and which has not been heard from since last Tuesday when S O S signals were received from the vessel, it was revealed here tonight after an exhaustive search from Norfolk to Cuba by coast guard vessels.

It is believed that the steamer fell a victim to the tropical storm which swept up the Atlantic coast, although there is a possibility that members of her crew numbering thirty men were picked up by a passing vessel. The hope that the crew was saved is only slight, however, since a lapse of considerable time has failed to bring word from any of them.

The Cuban government also has taken in the search, it became known today, but has likewise abandoned hope of finding the steamer. The coast guard officials here said today that they felt it practically impossible to conduct a systematic hunt for the vessel since at the time it gave distress signals its location was not given.

BERINGER TO BE FRENCH AMBASSADOR TO THE U. S.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—(A. P.)—Premier Briand will present the nomination of Senator Victor Henry Berenger to be ambassador to the United States at a council of ministers presided over by President Doumergue tomorrow morning, and the nomination is practically certain of unanimous ratification.

Senator Berenger is expected to leave France shortly to relieve Emile Daeschner, the present envoy in Washington. The official reason given for the replacement of M. Daeschner in that the ambassador has reached the age of retirement for the Present diplomatic service.

However, it is an open secret that the Caillaux debt mission on its return from Washington made an unfavorable report on the preparatory arrangements made for the mission by the ambassador.

MANCHURIAN WAR LORD DECISIVELY DEFEATED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7—(AP)—A dispatch to the state department from Minister MacMurray in Peking received today described the defeat of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin at Mukden as "a complete debacle."

The minister added, however, that while there was a general exodus from Mukden, no danger to foreigners was expected.

In view of the situation it was generally expected here that Chang would leave China within the next few days probably for Darlen or Korea.

The complete collapse of the Manchurian war lord leaves the situation in the region between Peking and the great wall of China greatly involved with little to indicate to which side the various provincial military leaders are throwing their support. Apparently a new alignment is taking shape with the Christian general, Feng Yu Hsiang, at the head of one group and marshal WuPei-Fu endeavoring to organize the other.

DEFENDANTS WIN TWO SUITS FOR $350,000 EACH

BOSTON, Dec. 7.—(A. P.)—Verdicts for the defendants in two suits for $350,000 each, brought by the H. B. Watts company of Boston, against the American Bond and Mortgage company and against William J. Moore of Chicago, were ordered by Judge Walsh in the superior court today. The Watts company held that the defendants had interferred in a contract to build an apartment house in Brookline, a proposition in which Mrs. Myrtle B. Hayes, who claimed to be a representative of Charles M. Schwab, was interested.

Mr. Schwab, whose deposition was read in evidence, said that he was willing to invest $350,000 in the bonds of the Chatham, Inc., as the house was to be known, but only to avoid unpleasant notoriety. He disclaimed having given authority to Mrs. Hayes to act for him.

TILSON WARMLY GREETED AS REP. LEADER IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—When the state of Connecticut was called this noon to answer the roll and its members take oath of office the entire membership was present and with upraised hands swore to uphold hte constitution of the United States. Republican Floor Leader Tilson was greeted with hearty applause when he entered the house chamber and again when he took his seat at the head of the "leaders' table," which commands the highest prestige of any on the floor of the house.

The entire Connecticut delegation were sworn in this noon in the house. In the senate Bingham nad McClean were in their seats when the session convened but as they had taken oath when they began their terms of office no formality was observed when they took their seats today.

REPUBLICANS VICTORIOUS IN EVERY TEST IN THE HOUSE

Nicholas Longworth Was Elected Speaker by Substantial Majority—Insurgent Republicans Cast 13 Votes For Cooper of Wisconsin—In Test of Republicans to Amend the Rules They Won by a Vote of 208 to 196, Several Regulars Joining With the Insurgents and Democrats—In the Senate the Program of the Republican Leaders Was Carried Out Without Debate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—(A. P.)—The sixty-ninth congress put under way today its first, and long, session. A small group of insurgents started the fireworks in the house, but despite their opposition and that of the democrats, the republican majority rolled up with the Coolidge landslide of 1924, moving on to victory in every test of strength.

Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio, former republican floor leader, was elected speaker in a three-cornered race in which the democrats supported Finis J. Garrett of Tennessee, their floor chief, and the insurgents cast their ballots for Henry Allen Cooper, of Wisconsin. The vote was;

Longworth 223; Garrett 173; Cooper 13.

Five voted present.

The announcement of the election of Mr. Longworth was greeted with applause, and when the new speaker was escorted into the chamber on the arm of Representative Garrett, he was given an ovation in which both sides of the house membership and the crowded galleries joined.

With the organization preliminaries over, the next test of strength was on a proposal of the republican leaders to amend the rules so as to make more difficult the discharge of a committee from the consideration of legislation referred to it.

Here again the republicans won, but by a narrow margin, the vote being 208 to 196. Several of the regulars joined with the insurgents and democrats in opposing the amendment.

The scene in the senate was in sharp contrast to that in the house. The programme mapped out by the republican leaders was carried through with no semblance of debate and the session lasted only 25 minutes, three senators—LaFollette of Wisconsin; Robinson of Indiana, and Williams of Missouri—were sworn in, and organization was completed with the election of Edwin P. Thayer of Indianapolis, as secretary of the senate.

Only one question had threatened to disturb the calm of the opening session and that was smoothed out just before the gavel fell. This was whether there should be immediat discussion of the right of Gerald P. Nye of South Dakota, to a senate seat as the appointee of Governor Sorlie. Friends of Mr. Nye had the subject referred to committee.

As the proceedings moved forward, two figures on the senate floor held the attention of the crowded galleries. They were Vice President Dawes, who only recently returned from his campaign over the country for a change of senate rules, and Robert Marion LaFollette, who, as his father's successor as a senator from Wisconsin, gains the distinction of being the youngest man to sit in this body in more than half a century.

Although many of the senators wore long tailed coats, Mr. Dawes apepared in a double-brested suit of blue serge. He rapped sharply for order and after the brief announcement that the senate met in regular session under the constitutional requirements sat back in his chair except for the time it took to administer the oath to new senators.

Appearing in formal dress a few minutes before the session began, Mr. LaFollette was greeted by a number of senators of both parties who came to know him in the years he acted as secretary to his father.

When the session opened, the young senator took a seat in the rear of the chamber until the time came for his colleague and political enemy, Senator Lenroot, to escort him to the dias to take the oath.

After the oath had been administered and he had signed the senate register, he was congratulated by a number of the republicans, first among them Senator Butler of Massachusetts, chairman of the republican national committee.

TAX REDUCTION BILL INTRODUCED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7—(A. P.)—Tax reduction gained immediate attention of the house today as the new congress opened.

The non-partisan revenue measure drafted during the last seven weeks by the ways and means committee was the first bill introduced. Before the first day's session had ended, Chairman Green of the committee, had formally reported on the measure and it was promised right of way.

Continuing on this record breaking pace, the house tomorrow will take up the bill, which will be one of the most important confronting the new congress, and Mr. Green today predicted its passage, without material change, before the end of next week.

Representative Tilson of Connecticut, republican floor leader, and Representative Garrett of Tennessee, democratic leader, both urged immediate consideration of the measure, which would cut federal taxes by $325,736,000 in the next calendar year.

Submitting the committee's report, Chairman Green explained that in framing the bill, it had apportioned the treasury surplus available for tax reduction "not only among the tax payers whose ned of relief seemed greatest, and where it appeared it could be made with the least disadvantage to the government; but, as far as possible, to so distribute them as to bring the maximum good to all of our people."

The report explained in detail the revisions made in tax rates, which, provide relief for virtually every federal taxpayer, and the changes in administrative provisions, some of which increase exemptions now allowed while others are designed to stop apparent loopholes for evasion of taxes under the present law.

The chairman served notice he would asked the house to conclude general debate on the measure this week, and then take it up for amendments under the rule limiting debate on each proposal to five minutes for each member.

By sending the bill to the senate next week, leaders hope for its enactment by March 1, so advantage may be taken of the reduction in income taxes when first installments were due, March 15.

NAVY'S REBUTTAL RESTS IN THE MITCHELL TRIAL

WASHINGON, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Prosecution counsel in the army court martial trial of Col. William Mitchell rested the navy's rebuttal to the air officer's charges of incompetency late today and the court recessed until tomorrow. At that time it will take up the army phase of the trial.

On hand and waiting to be called to offer evidence defending the war department and army from Col. Mitchell's attacks are some twenty or more high ranking officers, more than half of whom are generals. An unofficial list of these, made available tonight, named thirteen general officers. They were:

Major Generals Hanson E. Ely, head of the army war college; Mason M. Patrick, chief of the air service; Dennis E. Nolan, deputy chief of staff; M. W. Ireland, the surgeon general; Charles P. Summerall, second corps area commander, New York; Robert H. Allen, chief of the infantry; Robert C. Davis, the adjutant general; George C. Rickards, former chief of the militia bureau; Malin Craig, chief of cavalry; Frank W. Cox, chief of coast artillery, and Clarence C. Williams, chief of ordnance. Brigadier General James E. Fechet, assistant chief of the air service, and Hugh Drum, assistant chief of staff, were included, as were also about ten other officers whose experiences from time to time have spread over air service control and operations specifically mentioned in the Mitchell trial.

The selection of these high ranking witnesses to testify against Col. Mitchell is regarded as an evidence of the weight the department attaches to the controversial issues involved in the trial and its determination, to crush to the best of its abilities the charges of incompetence, criminal neglect and almost treasonable conduct of the national defense that led to his citation before the court under the 96th article of war.

PROBING CHARGES THAT CRIMINALS ARE PROTECTED

BOSTON, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Attorney General Jay R. Benton today set on foot an investigation of charges made recently by Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, that persons accused of crime are protected by politicians and public officials, and that laxity exists in the courts.

As a first step the registrar was summoned to the office of the attorney general and spent an hour in conference with Mr. Benton. No statement was given out later. Mr. Goodwin had been instructed to furnish the attorney general with whatever information he had in his possession substantiating his charges. Mr. Benton also announced that he was investigating a number of court records back to February, 1924, for instances of laxity in dealing with criminals.

Gov. Fuller today declined to comment on the action of the attorney general, saying he would prefer to wait until the investigation had been completed.

While state house activity got under way as a result of the Goodwin charges, the case which precipitated the controversy was before the courts with the indictment and arraignment of four youths recently arrested as "traveling highwaymen" who had committed a number of holdups in Greater Boston. Goodwin alleged that Charles Roper, one of these, had been arrested 15 times, and kept out of jail through the activities of Representative John J. Fitzgerald of Boston.

CUMMINGS REPLIES TO ROGER S. BALDWIN'S LETTER

STAMFORD, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Homer S. Cummings, former democratic national committeeman, who made an address Thursday night last, at Yale university in advocacy of the United States' participation in the world's court, tonight replied to a letter addressed to him by Roger S. Baldwin, who had taken issue with his criticism of United States Senator Borah. Mr. Baldwin lives in Woodbury and is a son of former Governor Simeon E. Baldwin and in the last national election campaign was a foremost advocate of Senator LaFollette for the presidency.

Mr. Cummings said in part: "Mr. Baldwin's letter like all Gaul is divided into two or three parts. That part which refers to Senator Borah is trivial but otherwise unobjectionable; that part which misqhotes me as well as Shakespeare and 'Tom' Reed puts me into such excellent company that I am disposed to overlook its vulgarity. That means is x x x false x x x in every particular."

CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTING TO MURDER HIS DAUGHTER

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Antonio Marte was committed to jail today after he had been arraigned in district court charged with attempting to murder his daughter, Mary, a few days before she was to have been married. He pleaded not guilty. Failing to provide $20,000 bail, he was held for hearing Dec. 21.

It was charged that on Nov. 23 Marte entered his daughter's room where she lay asleep, slashed her throat with a razor and then attempted to cut his own throat. The daughter rushed to a neighbor's apartment who sent the pair to a hospital. The daughter's condition is still critical. The police said that Marte opposed the girl's proposed marriage to Pedro L. Jardi.

NORWICH-WILLIMANTIC ROAD IN POOR CONDITION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 7—Motorists are doing all in their power to detour away from the stretch of highway from Hyde's Corner, in Franklin, to the foot of Franklin Hill, where the road is being torn up preparatory to laying a concrete surface next spring. Made worse by incessant rain last week this piece of road is the most undesirable encountered in these parts for some time. The chances of escaping poor traveling to motor between this city and Norwich are sadly lacking. Some who have tried their luck by traveling around through Lebanon, coming out near Yantic, or by taking the old Bailey Ravine road, leading from Hyde's Corners, have decided to remain on the main highway in the future where the bad going is at least for a shorter distance. Bus 100, operated between this city and Norwich by the Connecticut company, floundered off the side of the road in Franklin, Saturday, and sank to the axle. A large sedan had to be dug out of a miniature grave which it was digging for itself in the mud at the foot of Franklin Hill and many others got out and looked at the springs on their machines after plowing through.

HOPKINS FOUND SANE, PLEADS GUILTY TO CHARGE

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 7.—John Hopkins, 55, of The Ridges, who was detained at the local police headquarters since Saturday forenoon, pending an examination as to his sanity, was declared sane by Doctors R. C. White and C. E. Simonds, who were appointed as a commission to examine the man. He was taken before the Mansfield town court at 1:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. Hopkins pleaded guilty to charges of breach of the peace and resisting an officer and Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews imposed a combined fine of $20 and costs amounting to $16.77, which was paid. In addition to this City Justice Andrews imposed a sixty-day jail sentence, which he suspended, placing the accused on probation for six months. Hopkins was warned that any recurrence of trouble would lead to his being sent to jail. Hopkins was taken from his home by State Policeman Edward R. Burnes when he interferred with his wife, aged 70, who had called a truck to take away her belongings. First Selectman Daniel C. Flaherty and Judge L. J. Storrs, of the Mansfield probate court, were appealed to and they selected the commission of physicians. Grand Juror Carleton P. King prosecuted the case. Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins were married about one year and one-half ago.

Officers elected at the convention of Union of Franco-American Gardes of New England held in St. Mary's hall Sunday, following the exhibition prize and dance staged here Saturday evening, were as follows: President, Captain Therrien, of North Grosvernordale; vice presidents, Major Vasina, of Fall River, Mass.; secretary, Lieutenant Gamasse, of Fall River, Mass.; treasurer, Major Blanchette, of North Grosvernordale; organizers, Captain David Breault, of Putnam, and Captain Bastien, of Southbridge, Mass. The convention was in session for about five hours and was convened by Captain Therrien who was re-elected president. Among matters of interest which were discussed it was voted to hold the next convention in Southbridge, Mass., next November.

MYSTIC

Joseph Riley Sanford died at his home, Cedar Crest, West Mystic, December 4th, after a short illness. He was born at Lyme Rock, Conn., April 8, 1864, the son of Charles Sanford and Polly Ann Wright. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Alice Sanford, a son, Samuel Sanford and two sisters, Mrs. Alice Williamson and Mrs. Emma Dunn, of Winsted. He was president of the Textile company and originator of Santex and a man of wide experience in the industry and during his residence here has made many friends. He was a man of excellent morals and principles and truly a Christian gentleman. It is hoped his son will carry on the business that has been established here. Prayer service was held at his late home Sunday morning at 9 o'clock by Rev. Byron U. Hatfield, followed by services in the Methodist Episcopal church, Winsted, at 1 p. m. Interment was in Lyme Rock cemetery.

The rain Saturday night apparently ended it for the present. It came down in torrents washing some of the streets and sidewalks badly. Some of the streets that had been repaired for the winter will require repairs again.

Williams Women's Relief corps have planned a Christmas tree and each member will bring a gift to hang on the tree. The members are engaged in knitting blocks for an afghan that will be sent to Allingtown hospital, West Haven, to be used by the veterans. They appreciate using them as they are bright and pretty and have the warmth in them. The corps also voted $25 for the World War Memorial fund. The dollar social was a financial success.

A special communication of Charity and Relief lodge, No. 73, F. and A. M., was held Monday evening in Masonic Temple, at which time the Master Mason's degree was conferred on a class of candidates. Supper was served at 6 o'clock. This was the final work of the year for the present officers.

WILLIMANTIC REPUBLICANS WIN MAYORALTY AND BOARD OF ALDERMEN

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 7—John C. Tracy, republican candidate, won the race for the mayoralty in the city of Willimantic Monday by a majority of seven votes over T. Frank Cunningham, democrat, in one of the most closely fought elections in local history. The republicans further succeeded in carrying three ward aldermen and one alderman-at-large giving them control of the common council. Miss Florette E. Grenier, candidate for assessor, and the only woman on the ballot, was the sole republican, besides Mayor Tracy, to issue victorious on the general ticket by virtue of vote count James S. Donahue, Jr., making his second biennial run for the position of city clerk and treasurer against his present and former opponent John B. Edgerton, duplicated the excellent run which he made two years ago and led both tickets by nine votes. James B. Fogarty, democratic candidate for sheriff was next in line. For the ward aldermanic elections William E. Jackson, appearing for the first time as candidate for re-election from the first ward, held the outstanding majority.

The third ward came through with its usual boost to the total of democratic votes and accounted for the election of every successful democrat, all of whom wer outrun in every other ward, with the exception of Amie J. Martineau, second candidate for alderman-at-large, appearing against Wilfred J. Lavaude. Mr Martineau controlled the fourth ward in addition to the third. The highest republican vote drawn from the third ward was 126 by Miss Grenier where as the lowest democratic was 470 by Thomas O'Brien, another candidate for assessor. Although the democrats succeeded in getting to the polls, many of the hundreds of voters who were lost to them in the third ward by removal from the city as an outcome of the strike at the American Thread company plant, yet a normal vote from that section would have brought victory to Mr. Cunningham for mayor.

Favored by fair weather and a sudden spurt of interest on the part of the voters, party leaders were gratified as the day progressed. The polls opened at 6 o'clock and the balloting continued light during the forenoon. At 11 o'clock with half of the voting time having elapsed the figures equally those of two years ago 1765 having been cast. Brisk voting kept the officials' busy about the noon hour and at 2 o'clock 3,622 votes had been cast. At 4 o'clock the polls were closed and 3,590 votes were in the ballot boxes. The approximate figures by wards were:

First 720, second 1,420, third 550, fourth 480.

Other than one of considerable activities for the workers at the political headquarters the day was without unusual incidents.

At 6:50 o'clock the second ward officials stationed at the old town hall on Church street, from where the final returns were later announced, had finished counting. The third ward results came in next and were soon followed by the fourth. These were compiled and the totals from the first were awaited. During this time the official of the first ward were having their difficulties over two ballots on which they could not agree. A compromise was finally reached when the democrats conceded one vote. At 8:25 o'clock the finals were announced by Chief Moderator Attorney John Harvey. The official counters were: M. E. Sullivan, L. J. Gerry, William S. Congdon and James J. Lee. The results:

Republican—Mayor, *John C. Tracy 1795; aldermen-at-large, *Charles H. Beebe 1732; Wilfred J. Lavaude 1672, city clerk, John B. Edgarton 1700; treasurer, John B. Edgarton 1700; sheriff, Louis Hodis 1696; auditor *Edward F. Whitmore 1775; assessors, *Florette L. Grenier 1783, Charles R. Cone 1754.

Democratic—Mayor, T. Frank Cunningham 1788; aldermen-at-large, *William A. Buck 1755; *Aime J. Martineau 181; city clerk *James S. Donahue Jr. 1876; treasurer, James S. Donahue Jr. 1862; sheriff, *James B. Fogarty 1853; auditor, *John M Bransfield 1800; assessors, *Thomas J. O'Brien 1765, assessors, *Thomas J. O'brien 1765; *William H. P. Sweet 1775, (said to have declined).

Democrat—Aldermen, 1st Ward—Albert J Piche 270; 2nd Ward—Bert F. More 858; 3rd Ward—*Arthur J. Dubreuil 448; 4th Ward—Robert O. Snow 390.

Next Eclipse

The next total solar eclipse will be in Sumatra next January, and already astronomers from Swarthmore college, the United States Naval Observatory have sailed to observe it, but before many years have elapsed people of the North eastern part of the United States will again have an opportunity to witness this rare phenomenon. On August 31, 1932 a total eclipse will run up and down through parts of Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine. Pole eclipse will start near the North Pole and the path of totality will enter the country in northern Vermont, and will leave across the Atlantic Ocean between Portland, Me., and Portsmouth N H As this will occur about 3:30 in the afternoon, the chances for clear weather should be fairly good.

One man may speak for another, but one woman can't talk for another with any degree of general satisfaction.

There Was Nothing So Good for Congestion and Colds as Mustard

But the old-fashioned mustard plaster burned and blistered. Get the relief and help that mustard plasters gave, without the plaster and without the blister.

Musterole does it. It is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Gently rub it on. See how quickly the pain disappears.

Try Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

"Had to be carried 'round like a baby."

LAID UP BY NEURITIS AND RHEUMATISM

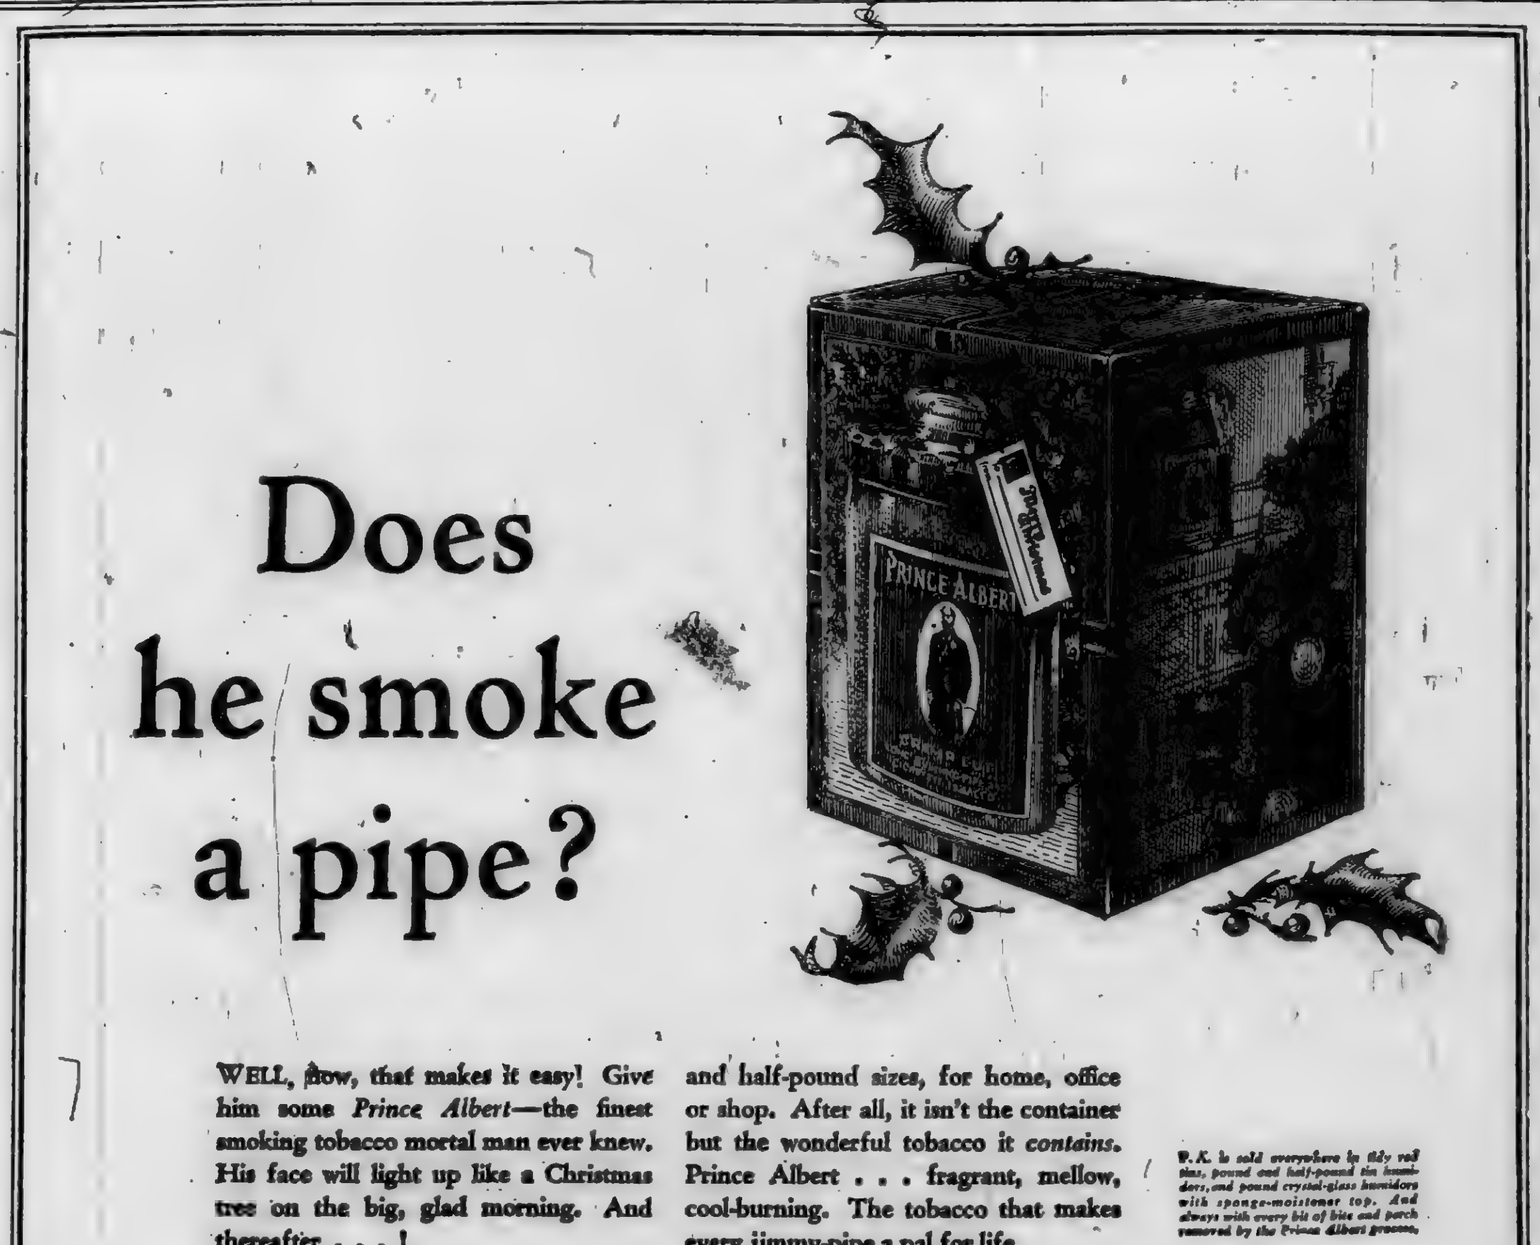
— Is quickly put on his feet by simple home treatment

Many people who have suffered for years from the crippling pain of rheumatism or neuritis report that they have got amazing relief from a very simple home treatment.

"I could not walk for two weeks," writes a man from Moncton, N. B., Canada. "I had to be carried around like a baby. But one bottle of Sloan's Liniment put me on my feet again."

Just a little Sloan's patted on lightly—and a healing tide of fresh, germ-destroying blood is sent tingling through the pain-ridden tissues. No rubbing! It's the medicine itself that does the work.

Soon the swelling and inflammation go down. The aching stops. Almost suddenly you find yourself really free from pain, really comfortable at last. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.



Does he smoke a pipe?

WELL, now, that makes it easy! Give him some Prince Albert—the finest smoking tobacco mortal man ever knew. His face will light up like a Christmas tree on the big, glad morning. And thereafter . . . !

There's the handsome pound crystal-glass humidor with the sponge-moistener top. All fussed up in holiday attire, with a space provided for writing "To....." and "From....." No further wrapping needed. Fine for home or office.

Then there are tin humidors in pound and half-pound sizes, for home, office or shop. After all, it isn't the container but the wonderful tobacco it contains. Prince Albert . . . fragrant, mellow, cool-burning. The tobacco that makes every jimmy-pipe a pal for life.

Just write "P. A." opposite the name of every smoker on your Christmas list. That's the answer to your Christmas puzzle, so far as the men-folks are concerned. And, my, what a lot of pleasure it's going to mean. Not only to them, but to the giver!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Look at the U. S. revenue stamp—there are TWO full ounces in every tin.

PRINCE ALBERT

DANIELSON

BERLIN BANK ELECTS S. B. POTTER TREASURER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 7—Trustees of the Berlin Savings bank, of Kensington, this state, on Monday afternoon elected Sherwood B. Potter of Brooklyn and Danielson as treasurer of the institution. Mr. Potter succeeds Francis Deming, recently deceased, who for many years was treasurer of the bank.

The Berlin savings bank has been established more than 50 years, has assets well in exces of $5,000,000, and is in splendid condition.

Mr. Potter's election will be a source of gratification for all his friends in Danielson and Brooklyn, as well as in other parts of the state. He has had much banking experience, having been with the Brooklyn Savings bank before its removal to Danielson and later again with that institution in Danielson. Further intimateness with the banking business and banking circles has been gained by Mr. Potter through his connection with investment houses both in this state and in Massachusetts.

Mr. Potter spent his youthful years in Brooklyn, where his father was long resident. He is a graduate of Killingly High school. A number of years ago, with his father and brother, he was engaged in business in Norwich.

During the last session of the legislature Mr. Potter was the republican member from the town of Brooklyn and is credited with particularly valuable service as secretary of the committee on banks and in other capacities at the capital.

During the greater part of this year Mr. Potter has been connected with the office of State Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne and has been engaged as an examiner of banking institutions throughout the state.

The past week, while he has been doing some special work for the Windham County National, there had been no suggestion that he was to be elected to his new position, so the announcement came as a great surprise.

HOPE FOR RECOVERY OF MISS BEATRICE MAYNARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 7—Reports from the Rhode Island hospital at Providence Monday afternoon indicated that Miss Beatrice Maynard, 26, of 26 School street, Danielson, was in serious condition as the result of injuries she received in an automobile accident at Greene, R. I., Sunday, when she was thrown against the windshield of the car in which she was riding and had her throat cut by broken glass. While Miss Maynard lost so much that it was believed Monday a blood transfusion would be required, there was hope that she will eventually recover.

Miss Maynard and Idela J. Fournier, also of Danielson, were driving toward the Pawtuxet Valley when a car owned and driven by Jean Piere of Grove street, Putnam, came around a sharp curve at Greene. Approximately 50 feet after rounding the curve the Piere machine was in practically a head-on collision with the car in which Miss Maynard and Miss Fourier were riding. The impact of the cars threw Miss Maynard against the shattered windshield and a gash about an inch and half long was made in her throat, from which the blood poured in a stream, an artery having been severed. She also sustained a cut over the eye.

Miss Maynard was taken in the car of J. M. Barnes of Arctic to the office of Dr. Ira E. Hasbrouck, at Washington, who gave her first aid attention and then summoned an ambulance to convey her to the Rhode Island hospital at Providence. Nearly two hours elapsed between the time Miss Maynard was injured, just before the noon hour, and the time she arrived at the hospital. In the meantime her loss of blood had been severe.

Mr. Fournier was not at all injured, nor was Mr. Piere or any of the other three men riding in the car with him hurt in any serious degree. The two cars were quite badly damaged.

Coventry officers placed Piere under arrest and took him to Washington to hold.

Mr. Fournier contends that he had pulled the car he was driving far over to the right of the road to avoid a crash with the Piere machine, which, he holds was running on the left hand side of the road.

Mr. Fournier did not return here until Monday, having spent the night at the hospital in Providence, anxiously keeping in touch with Miss Maynard's condition

Miss Maynard is the daughter of Philip S. Maynard of Danielson and a member of the force at the Brooklyn

PUTNAM

PUTNAM VOTES DOWN SALARIES FOR OFFICIALS

PUTNAM, Dec. 7—By a vote of 475 to 109 the citizens of Putnam today rejected the amendment giving salaries to the mayor and aldermen. There were no contests among the candidates as the democratic caucus ratified the republican nominees, this being the reason for the light vote. For auditors and registrar of voters and for ward aldermen, both parties have a representation.

The officials elected are as follows: Mayor, Victor Chapdelaine, r.; alderman at large, Charles A. Richards, r.; collector of taxes, Archibald Macdonald, Jr., r.; treasurer, Charles A. Brown r.; auditors, Lucius P. Merriam, r., John J. McGarry, d.; registrar of voters, Herman G. Carver, r., George A. Potvin, d.; alderman from ward 1, E. C. Rogers, r., Charles A. Ryan, d.; alderman from ward 2, Warren W. Ames, r., Alfred Pigeon, d.; alderman from ward 3, Leo Delisle, r.; Edward Dubois, d.; alderman from ward 4, Desire Labby, r., Willis D. Carroll, d.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF LARGER DONATIONS TO FUND

PUTNAM, Dec. 7—The Thanksgiving committee of the Day Kimball hospital acknowledge the larger donations of money as follows:

The Guerin mills, Mechanicsville, $50.00; Adams Manufacturing company Putnam, $25.00; Heminway Silk company, Putnam, $25.00; Connecticut Mills Co., Danielson, $25.00; Goodyear Cotton mills, Goodyear, $15.00; colored people of Putnam and vicinity, $51.00; Christ church, Pomfret, $34.30; Bible class, Attawaugan M. E. church, $13.50; Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Greig, Dayville, $10.00; Fred Ashton, Putnam, $10.00.

The committee is not yet able to give in full the amount of donations of money, fruit or vegetables and groceries but it is expected to equal the generosity of former years. The hospital has many friends who are willing to give when called upon.

That the people of Dayville sent fifty donations from their little village the committee deems worthy of mention.

The Putnam Alumni association has a committee in charge of raising a fund to be used in some form of a testimonial and an expression of gratification of the community to the members of the undefeated champion football team of 1925 of the Putnam High school. It is expected that some kind of a gift to each member of the eleven will be made. The committee in charge is composed of James E. Murray, Keyren Cotter, Ernest C. Morse, Stanley Shaw and Armand Lizotte. The president of the association assumed the responsibility of appointing the committee while acting in an ex-officio capacity.

John Costa, of Fall River, Mass., was before the city court here this morning charged with overloading his truck to the extent of 812 pounds. He admitted the charge and, was fined $1.00 and costs, the latter amounting to $11.12. The arrest of Costa was made by State Officer Nelson.

Stanley Polac, who escaped from the North Grosvernordale police station ten days ago, is still at large, and the whereabouts of Stanley Simonski who it is thought helped Polac make his escape, is not known. Polac was arrested by Officer Coderre and after a hard struggle was finally landed in the police station. According to the officers of the town, Simonski broke a window leading to the cell at the station and then smashed the lock with a stone. Nothing has been seen since of either of the two men.

Mrs. Luella M. Kimball assisted by Miss Hazel Schmoll were the hostesses of the North Grosvernordale Women's club at the home of Mrs. Kimball. The club was entertained by an interesting lecture on "India and what I know of its people and their problems", by the Rev. F. W. K. Jones. Miss Lucy Sarkissian played several selections on the piano and refreshments were served by the hostesses. The next meeting will be on December 17, at the Tourjelotte house when the High school teachers will be the hostesses. This meeting will take the form of a Christmas party. Mrs. Eva Chubbuck, Mrs. Signa Carlson and Mrs. Madelaine Rawson will be the special committee in charge.

The officers of the club are as follows: President, Mrs. Luella M. Kimball; first vice president, Mrs. Eva Chubbuck; second vice president, Mrs. Luella M. Hathaway; secretary, Miss Marjorie Hathaway; treasurer, Mrs. Alice Covell. The executive committee consists of the officers and Mrs. Mary E. Chandler, Mrs. Martha H. Chandler. The entertainment, Miss Marguerite Burns, Mrs. Martha Tourtelotte, Mrs. Hattie Blake. Membership committee, Mrs. B. F. Reardon, Mrs. Mary C. Elliott and Miss Ruth Engles.

The club members are Miss Dorothy Arnold, Mrs. Hattie Blake, Miss Marguerite Burns, Mrs. Signa Carlson, Mrs. Martha Chandler, Mrs. Mary Ella Chandler, Mrs. Eva Chubbuck, Mrs. Alice Covell, Mrs. Minnie Covell, Mrs. Esther Crandall, Miss Louise Drude, Mrs. Mary B. Elliott, Mrs Mary C. Elliott, Miss Ruth Engles, Miss Edith Gilson, Mrs. Jennie L. Green, Mrs. Luella E. Hathaway, Miss Marjorie Hathaway, Mrs. Dorothy Keegan, Mrs. Luella M. Kimball, Miss Margaret Leary, Mrs. Annie F. Lewis, Miss Helen Mack, Miss Mary Malloy, Mrs. Lola Rawson, Mrs. Madelaine Rawson, Mrs. Bridget F. Reardon, iss Margaret V. Reardon, Miss Lucy Sarkissian, Miss Hazel Schmoll, Miss Martha Siiro, Miss Alice Sinnott, Mrs. Marcia Strait, Miss Margaret Toohey, Mrs. Martha Tourtelotte, Mrs. Alice B. Walter.

Miss Blanche Prevost, of North Grosvernordale, was the guest of Miss Alice Aubin, at Attawaugan, for the past week.

Mrs. Fred Gagnon, of Main street, has been the guest of friends and relatives, in North Grosvernordale, for a week.

Miss Stella Gustafson, of Brattleboro, Vt., has been visiting friends and relatives at her former home in North Grosvernordale.

Mrs. Harry Prentice is making a good recovery after an operation for appendicitis at the Day Kimball hospital.

William Easton, of Woonsocket, spent the week-end in the city, with his family, on Pleasant street.

James Kelly, of Mill street, has returned from a visit with friends in New York city.

Miss Sadie Harrison, of Worcester, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Harrison, on Bridge street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moss, of Fremont street, were in Providence, on Saturday.

Miss Mary Curran, of Worcester, has been the guest of her grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Maloney, of School street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moss, of Chapel street, have returned from a visit with their daughter, Mrs. Clarence Barrett and family, at Hartford.

Harry Goldman, brother of Selig Goldman, a former manager of the Bradley theatre, was here from Worcester calling on friends.

Miss Blanche Tetreault, of Saundersville, Mass., has returned to her home after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Wells.

Fred Jurvis, of Hartford, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jarvis, of Livery street.

Henry H. Davenport has returned from an automobile trip to California and after spending a few days in Putnam, went to Harrisburg, Pa., to visit his family. From there he will go to Florida to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Blanchette and Miss Yvonne Blanchette, of Lowell, Mass., have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Brodeur.

Mrs. Clarence G. Webster and two children, of Willimantic, have been recent guests of Mrs. Webster's mother, Mrs. G. W. Gifford and family, on Ring street.

Miss Rose Rowe and Miss Olive Morley, of Providence, were week-end guests of Miss Rowe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Rowe, of Railroad street.

Mrs. Emery Munyan and son, of Worcester, are the guests of Mrs. Munyan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell D. Ross, of Main street.

Arthur Lucier, of School street, has returned from a visit to New York city.

Miss Esther Spratt, of Woonsocket, formerly of Putnam, has been visiting friends here.

Mrs. Thomas Duffy and son have returned from a trip to Boston.

Savings bank. Much sympathy was expresed for her during Monday and many hopes expressed for her prompt recovery.

The body of W. Frank Chapman, who died at the home of his daughter in Hyde Park, Mass., is to be brought to Danielson for burial. Mr. Chapman was for a great many years resident in Brooklyn and was one of the most respected residents of that town. For years he owned a farm place on the Pomfret road.

An infrequent sight for many months past was water pouring over the Assawaga river dam in the rear of the Keystone block, but it was doing that Monday after the heavy rains of the past few days.

On Monday sale of Christmas seals was begun in the lobby of the postoffice. This is for the convenience of the public and promptly suggests to many that the time is at hand to buy these seals.

Wauregan people would be very appreciative if the Connecticut company would run its motor coaches down the hill to the old trolley station and save patrons of the service from walking up the hill to the new highway to get aboard a coach, or from walking down the hill upon leaving one.

The afternoons have become as short, approximately, as they will be this season. Each afternoon this week the sun is setting at 4.18.

On these December days many an automobile is falling into the hands of the sheriff under attachments. It appears that having a car is not always an evidence of untold wealth.

The body of Anson Rix, who died at Lawrence, Mass., is to be brought here for burial. Mr. Rix was a cousin of Mrs. Ardele Kennedy of Furnace street. Mr. Rix also leaves a brother, George, of South Manchester.

At her home in Wauregan Monday morning the death of Mrs. Mary Louise LaRock, 72, occurred. Mrs. LaRock, long resident in Wauregan, was a native of Canada. Her husband died about 15 years ago. She leaves a daughter, Miss Azalia, and a son, Wilfrod, with whom she made her home, another daughter, Mrs. Arthur Messier of Wauregan and a third daughter, Mrs. Patrick Lennihan, of Providence. A granddaughter, Miss Dorothy Lennihan, also survives.

At the Orpheum theatre Thursday evening the greatest musical treat of the season. Professors Piamandon and Paquin, graduates of the Conservatory of Paris in a song recital.—Adv.

It was estimated Monday that nearly four inches of rain fell in the streams of the past week. This exceptional rainfall in so short a period is being reflected in the condition of rivers and ponds in this vicinity, all of them have risen very considerably.

Danielson will have a delegation at Braves field in Boston, when the Chicago Bears with Red Grange in the lineup, meet the Steam Roller team of Providence in a game of professional football.

Noting the death in Philadelphia Sunday of Dr. Russell H. Conwell, noted lecturer, author and educator, it is recalled that he was the commencement day speaker at graduation exercises of Killingly High school, in Danielson, a number of years ago, delivering his famous lecture Acres of Diamonds.

The motor coach line of the Connecticut company through this territory is operating as smoothly as could be wished. The coaches are running right on schedule time, maintaining in this respect the good record of the trolley cars for so many years.

For operating a motor car on a registration issued for another machine, L. A. Bradford paid a fine and costs in the town court Monday morning. The total was slightly in excess of $12.

One of Danielson's banks already has upwards of 150 members in the Christmas club being formed for 1926.

The fund with which to purchase Christmas cheer for needy families in Danielson is growing from day to day. Many here each year improve the opportunity to give to this fund. Receptacles for coins are to be found in various business places in town.

This week, on specified days, Attorney Louis A. Wolsard has Dayville and East Killingly on his list of communities to be visited for the purposes of collecting personal taxes.

Cars owned by F. E. Cunnsen, of Broad street and Benjamin H. Paine, of Abington, Mass., were damaged in a collision at the junction of Broad and Reynolds streets Monday morning. Mr. Cuneen was going north on Broad street and Mr. Paine coming down Reynolds street when the accident happened. Another car, east bound on Reynolds street contributed somewhat to the confusion that caused the accident. No one was injured.

In observance of the feast of the Immaculate Conception, a holy day of obligation, hundreds will attend the four masses to be read at St. James' church this morning.

Plans for the additions authorized built at the high school were at the office of Supt. William Parker Monday and were examined by several concerned with the development of the building program.

Mrs. Elizabeth Edwards, who lives at the Old People's home was severely burned recently when she lost her balance and fell onto a stove.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

People here would be grateful if the railroad trolley company would repair the dangerous holes at the crossing and kindly restore the station platform electric lights. With three big busses and numerous autos arriving and departing it is necessary that there should be some light to guide pedestrians.

JEWETT CITY

TO RECEIVE RED CROSS HONOR ROLL CALL FLAG

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 7—In response to a request to the Red Cross national headquarters for a report as to how the roll call here had been conducted and the result up to date, a telegram has been received by the chairman, from Washington which reads: "Congratulations on splendid results in 9th roll call in your chapter. Headquarters appreciates efforts made by you and your workers. Can you send me photographs of roll call windows." Signed Douglass Griesemer, national chairman. This chapter will be entitled to an honor roll call flag because the membership enrolled is more than in the 8th roll call. Reports are not all in yet, and a complete account cannot be given until they are brought to the chairman. She is doing follow up work in each section, which all takes time.

NEW FIRE WHISTLE VALVE IS INSTALLED

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 7—The borough has purchased a new valve for the fire alarm whistle, and it was placed in position Monday afternoon. Leaks had occurred in the old shell off which made the change necessary. The occasional blasts during the afternoon were for testing purposes.

SHOWING FRIENDS BOOK WRITTEN BY HIS FATHER

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 7—J. W. Hannan of Baltic, a member of the local order of Masons, and a man of considerable botanical knowledge is showing his friends in the borough a book written by his father William I. Hannan. There are but a very few copies in America, one of which is in the Pawtucket, R. I., public library. The title of the carefully prepared volume is The Textile Fibres of Commerce, and is a handbook on the occurrence, distribution, preparation, and uses of the animal, vegetable and mineral fibres used in cotton, woolen, paper, silk, brush and hat manufacturers. The book was published in London by Charles Griffin and Co., Ltd. Two hundred and twenty five pages, with an elaborate plan of illustrations drawn and photographed from the natural object, serve to prove the author's scientific familiarity with this important and much studied subject.

Friends are interested to learn, that Mr. Hannan is, according to British record, a corresponding member of the Manchester Microscopical society; lecturer on botany at the Heginbottom Technical school and school of art, Ashton-under-Lyne; lecturer to the Workingmen's club association, Manchester; and lecturer on cotton spinning at the Chorley science and art school.

Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Scates, Rev. A. H. Clement and Rev. J. W. Payne, were in New London Monday to attend the county ministers' meeting.

Some local trappers, holders of a license, are, perhaps unconsciously so, guilty of infractions of the law.

Traps are being set on posted land, without the permission of the owner, in which case the trapper is as liable to arrest, as though he had no license. In a few cases, pet cats and dogs have been caught in traps set for skunks on posted land.

Among the future screen masterpieces to be seen at the Finn theatre, will be The Midshipman, featuring Ramon Navarro.

Monday in the borough was another record breaker for mild temperature. With a white frost at sunrise, and the mercury at 32, at noon the reading was 50, with people on the streets with out wraps or overcoats. One man observed that every such day helped to stave off the time when he would be scraping the bottom of his coal bin.

Incidental with the fact that William Tyndale was the master of seven languages, a local man recalls that some years ago, the late Fred Montgomery, a one time resident of Jewett City, could read and write seven languages. Any of which he could handle as though it was his native tongue. Some forty years ago, when J. E. Leonard was justice of the peace, there came a civil case at law, in which the plaintiff was a Russian Jew, the defendant a Polish man and the witness an Italian.

It is well remembered by some of those who were present at the trial, of the remarkable performance of Fred Montgomery, as the interpreter, without the slightest hesitation and with apparent ease, Mr. Montgomery straightened out the jumbled mess of testimony, presenting it to the court in fluent English, French, Spanish and German could be handled equally well and were at the tip of the interpreter's tongue.

Seventeen men and six women of the M. E. church attended the debate held at Trinity M. E. church, Norwich, Friday evening last. The debators on the affirmative were L. D. Howe and Irving Thornton, on the negative, Albert Broadman and Paul Bradlaw. The question debated was "Resolved, That the Constitution of the United States be so amended as to limit the presidential term of office to one term of six year."

The judges were Rev. J. W. Payne and John Harris of Jewett City and J. B. Stanton, Norwich.

The decision was handed to the Jewett City men, Edwin Floyd, president of the Trinity M. E. church, Men's Class was toastmaster.

Remarks were made by George Thornton Lee of the J. C. Men's Class in place of the absence of the president, Rev. J. W. Carter, Rev. J. Harlow Graham of Norwich and Rev. George Brown, Gales Ferry. An invitation to meet with the Gales Ferry Men's Class was given by Rev. George Brown. This meeting will be held on Lincoln's Birthday with a chicken pie dinner.

Fred C. Geer of Norwich was the nuts, cheese, apples and coffee were accompanist for the singing. Doughserved by Norwich women.

The following committees for Christmas have been selected by the M. E. church.

Tree: L. D. Howe; decorating, A. A. Gardiner Class; greens, Frank Mell; candy, Willing Workers, with Mrs. Carter, as teacher; recitations, Mrs. Frank Mell, Mrs. I. M. Thornton, Miss Arlene Burdick.

The school children in both the public and parochial schools started the sale of the Christmas seals Monday. Every stamp sold helps some tubercular patient. A case which will need attention was reported on Monday; and the money raised here will help take care of it.

Mrs. Margaret Murray, James, Raymond and Elizabeth Murray and Clarence Johnson, of Pawtucket, were Sunday guests at the Welch home on Green Ave.

Mrs. Abby Knight is spending the winter at the home of her son, Horace, at Lisbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Leach motored to Providence on Sunday to attend a funeral.

On Sunday evening, Alfred Royle, superintendent of the Sunday school of the Congregational church, conducted a very unique and interesting service for the young people. His subject was "How can we translate Christmas into service?" In the absence of Fred Ledger, who was to render a solo, George Inglis kindly substituted with Miss Helen Gallup at the piano. Following the young people's service, Rev. W. C. Prentiss gave a short service followed by an illustrated address on Niagara. The vestry was well filled with people, who thoroughly enjoyed the services.

On Monday evening the C. J. S. society held their last meeting of the year in the vestry of the Congregational church. A nominating committee was appointed. On Thursday evening there will be a young people's conference at the parsonage of the Congregational church, to discuss matters of vital importance and make plans for the winter. This will be followed by a social hour. On Saturday afternoon the Camp Fire Girls will hold a meeting with their guardian, Miss Rose Beaudry.

At a recent meeting of the standing committee of the Congregational church the following nominating committee was appointed; Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Lathrop, Edward Hall, Miss Rose Beaudry and Perry Wilcox.

John Birracree has returned to Plainfield after an absence of several months, and has again taken his old position as clerk of Lawton Inn.

Robert Flowers was the victim of a reckless Ford sedan driver who ran into him and knocked him down Saturday night near St. Paul's church. Mr. Flowers sustained quite a serious injury to his leg and was given assistance by Earl Butler, who was with him at the time, Dr. Haddad, who happened along in his car, drove the injured man home. The reckless driver continued on without stopping to see the extent of injury to Mr. Flowers. In about the same place and doubtless by the same Ford sedan, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cooper came near being hit.

GALES FERRY

At Sunday morning worship in the Methodist Episcopal church, the Rev. George Smith Brown, spoke from St. Matthew 15;13—"Every plant, which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up." The theme being Prohibition. A duet, In the Garden, was sung by D. R. Povey and C. E. Colver, following the offertory. Activities for the week, were announced as the Thursday evening prayer meeting, and a chicken pie supper on Tuesday evening.

At the Sunday school, at noon, Assistant Superintendent D. C. Perkins gave a short talk, following the lesson study, on Paul, whose life the school had been studying for the three months past.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

John J. Quinn is spending a week with relatives in Philadelphia.

The final rehearsals for the senior play "Old Acre Folk," are being held daily. The proceeds will be added to the Washington trip fund.

J. H. Valentine, who has been confined to the house with pneumonia for several weeks, has recovered.

Mrs. Nettie Lyon, of Westford, is in Staffordville, where she expects to spend the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Theodore M. Lyon.

The monthly meeting of the Stafford Business Men's association was held Monday evening.

Mrs. Fred Williamson, of West Stafford, has been spending a few days with her sister in Springfield, Mass.

Favorable reports are received of the condition of George Martin, who has been in the Johnson Memorial hospital, being treated for injuries received when he was struck by an automobile, on East Main street, several days ago.

Miss M. Maude Cumminskey has returned home after several days' visit with relatives in New York.

Samuel Kuslansky will sail from New York, on Saturday, for Paris, where he will visit his daughter, Miss Mollie Kuslansky.

George Kapsis, of Springfield, was a Stafford visitor Monday.

EXTRAORDINARY EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS IN GEORGIA

Georgia has prepared for the heaviest school year in the history of the state. In anticipation of an increased enrollment in the public schools of 200,000 pupils, probably reaching a total of 1,000,000 children to be provided for, 170 new school buildings were completed during the past summer at a cost of $2,144,187, and 174 school consolidations were effected, combining 612 former schools. All records in the employment of teachers were broken, 18,000 having been engaged for the session 1925-26.

MAINTAINING THE ARMY

One of the important matters that always comes before congress is the question of army maintenance. This develops in connection with the appropriation for army maintenance, and for that reason the annual report of the war department which deals with this matter will come in for careful consideration.

As is to be expected, aside from setting forth the achomplishments by the department, Secretary Davis points out certain things which call for attention. He considers it his duty to point them out. He hopes that they will get the action which he believes that they deserve but in case they do not the responsibility will rest upon congress and not upon the war department.

Secretary Davis refers to the condition of the army barracks, which would be better than buildings of a temporary character, to the number of desertions from the service, to the fact that the army has been drawing upon the "fat" in the shape of the surplus from the war and that the time is coming when there will be no more of such "fat", to the need of better protection in the Panama Canal zone and to the need of outlays at Hawaii that will make it the advanced naval base which it is considered to be but which does not measure up to requirements.

These are to be found among the recommendations which Secretary Davis has made. He of course points out that they involve an outlay of money and draws attention to the fact that it is in the interest of keeping the country prepared in case it becomes necessary to go to war. Secretary Davis isn't anticipating any departure from peace but he is placing before congress conditions which exist and which he believes ought not to be overlooked in planning for the future. In connection with the war department as well as other departments the policy of economy can be expected to prevail, but there must be consideration of the needs and the future before it can be determined where adequate preparation should cease and economy be allied. By knowing the situation the possibilities can be better understood.

SPEED WARNINGS

Opposition to the speeding motorist comes from all directions. It is so contrary to what has prevailed in the past that it is difficult to get use to, and it is so unnecessary in most instances that there is an unwillingness to accept it. There are points where fast driving may menace no one except those in that particular machine and there are others where it endangers many others.

An Indiana farmer has given some thought to this situation and believes that the speeding automobile should be equipped with some device whereby it will give warning for some distance in advance that it is coming and by the very fact that such warning is being sounded it will be known that it is speeding. This the farmer declares "would be an advantage to farmers' families who have to cross the road to the mail boxes, as well as for many other reasons."

This farmer has been studying his cream separator which has a device which rings a bell when a sufficient speed has been attained to do the work and he figures that a device operating on the same principle could be applied to an automobile and get into action whenever a certain speed was attained.

There is nothing unreasonable about it. It could be done quite the same as it would be possible to apply a Governor to an automobile which would make it impossible for it to exceed a fixed speed limit, but the fact that such devices could be applied does not mean that they would always be permitted to operate. A siren or bell on some machines would be working most of the time under such conditions and the annoyance of it to those in the particular machine would be such that a way would be found for putting it out of commission.

But speed in the highway is a problem that must get consideration from more than one angle. It involves many more than the one who is actually speeding and that is why there is legitimate ground for the insistence that the rights of others should get consideration.

BOLIVIA AS A BUFFER

Statements given out which carried the idea that Chile had appealed to the league of nations against the stand which is being taken by General Pershing as the head of the plebiscitary commission in Tacna-Arica have been found to be incorrect. While Chile had been keeping its embassies in other countries informed of the progress of the matter, the same has been done by Peru, but Chile has also seen fit to present similar information to the league. That is of course no more than Chile has a right to do. Any appeal that it would be disposed to make would naturally be directed to the United States.

From the feeling that has been manifested and that exists on both sides of this famous South American dispute the adjustment is not only going to be a difficult one, but no little doubt exists as to the amount of respect that the decision will get once it has been made. This is because of the bitterness that prevails between the countries at the present time.

While there appears to be no prospect of any such thing being accomplished, it would be a fine thing for the peace of the Pacific coast of South America if arrangements could be made whereby these disputed districts, or the center of them could be acquired by Bolivia. This would place a buffer state between the two quarrelsome neighbors and it would also give Bolivia an outlet to the sea which it needs and ought to have. Such an idea is not a new one, but because of the bellicose spirit that exists and the inability of Bolivia to step in and make an offer which might get consideration a deplorable state of affairs has been allowed to drag along for more than a generation.

Under such circumstances the position of the chairman of the commission to direct the plebiscite is not an enviable one. Follow as he will the middle of the road and a determination deal out nothing but justice and first one will feel aggrieved and then the other and when it is all over both will be ill tempered and dissatisfied even though they have promised to abide by the result.

MEETING A CRISIS

Having prefaced the test of his policies by the declaration that "I am the government," Premier Briand displayed that same manner in his appeal to the lower branch of the French parliament for support. He was faced with the need of getting the bill dealing with French finances through the chamber of deputies. He was convinced of the justification for the provisions in the bill that he presented and he was not looking for a compromise. He set forth his position and the facts. There was no backing or filling about it being an inflation measure but the situation is such that action of this kind was called for. He insisted upon it and he got it. That means that the emergency will be met for the time being and it is to be expected that other bills will be adopted that will serve to bring about a reform in French taxation.

Inflation is not going to settle the financial problems of France. It is simply an expedient and France must anticipate the coming of much additional taxation. This has been put off repeatedly but the situation only grows worse the longer it is delayed. The strong effort in behalf of a capital levy tax has for the time being, at least, been sidetracked. It is one of the demands of the socialists but their influence in the government is at the present time less effective than before the failure to support Herriot.

Briand was regarded as the man of the hour for France. He has talked with force and apparently made a favorable impression. In what was regarded as a crisis met it unflinchingly and he has come out victorious. The deputies have done well to follow him and to set a fine example for the senate.

Dr. R. H. CONWELL

Probably there has been no better or more widely known lecturer than Dr. Russell H. Conwell. He has not only spoken throughout the length and breadth of this country but he has been heard in all parts of the world. He was constantly in demand because he had a message and an effective way of delivering it.

Dr. Conwell was a man whose earnings from the lecture platform ran way into the millions, and yet at the time of his death he was the possessor of little material wealth. He believed in the extension of assistance to those who were worthy and appreciative. He saw the opportunities for placing his funds in such channels as would prove a benefit to humanity. He devoted his money to the helping of students to get an education in founding and maintenance of hospitals and in the establishment of Temple university of which he was president.

There are those who are interested in helping and relieving humanity who apply their millions to such purposes after they are dead. Dr. Conwell believed that he could get the most satisfaction out of such work doing it while he was alive, and certainly he was most liberal in his philanthropy. He was desirous of seeing the effects of his policies and having a say as to how they were applied.

The influence of such a man is certain to extend down through the years with the institutions which he founded and maintained, standing as monuments to his memory in addition to the words which he must have spoken to millions. More than Philadelphia will mourn the passing of Dr. Conwell.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 7—Among the 3,500 bills to be introduced in congress the first week of the winter session, will be several pertaining to aircraft. One of the most important will be regarding commercial aviation. This measure, as introduced in the senate will come from Senator Hiram Bingham and will be for the purpose of increasing commercial aviation and be an aid to civilian aviation.

Senator Bingham's bill will largely follow the recommendations of the president and the president's board. Senator Bingham is co-operating with the department of commerce in the matter and also with the committees of commerce in the senate and interstate commerce in the house before which such measures must go before they come up for a vote in the congress.

Senator Bingham has already been in conference with Secretary of Commerce Hoover, and has been asked by Senator Jones, chairman of the senate committee and Congressman Parker of the house committee, to introduce the measure. In addition to this Senator Bingham feels assured that the measure will be sponsored by Senator Hale and Senator Wadsworth, who are respectively chairmen of the naval and military committees of the senate.

The Bingham bill will cover inspection of aircraft; examination of pilots, investigations of suitable air routes; lighting of air routes; the establishment of radio directional finding facilities for aircraft; and the provision for an additional assistance of commerce to co-ordinate all the activities of the department of commerce that can be used to promote air navigation and to work with the other new assistant secretaries of the departments.

Senator Bingham was a member of the air board, and immediately after their report had been made public, Senator Cole Blease of South Carolina came out with a statement that he would not only a department of air craft created but he wanted Bingham to be the first man to head such a department.

When asked how he felt on that matter Senator Bingham laughed and said he was quite content with the office he now holds.

Another attempt will be made at the coming session of congress to put through legislation reapportioning among the states, the number of members of the national house of representatives. The present number is 435. New England is represented as follows; Massachusetts 16; Connecticut 5; Maine 4; Rhode Island 3; New Hampshire 2 and Vermont 2. This was fixed by the last reapportionment following the 1910 census.

The Constitution requires the taking of a census for that purpose "within every subsequent term of ten years" following the first three years of the meeting of the first congress of the United States. Usually the census is taken immediately at the expiration of the ten years, but the term "within" has been construed to give ten years leeway, thus allowing 20 years, approximately to pass without a census to determine the number of members of the house. That is, a census might be taken the first month of the prescribed ten years in one instance and no other be taken until the last month of the next prescribed ten years. In the present instance the taking of the census has been delayed, to the delight of states that dread a reapportionment and the disapproval of states that will gain the rein. Bills introduced in the past congresses have both increased and decreased the membership of the house. Predictions here today are that the membership will remain the same under the next vote of the house in which case several of the New England states will be affected. If the number is decreased Maine will be the first to lose one of her districts, as her population showed a decrease under the last census.

There have been bitter fights over bills introduced to increase or decrease membership, in the past, few years, finally a bill retaining the present number was passed by the house but died in the senate.

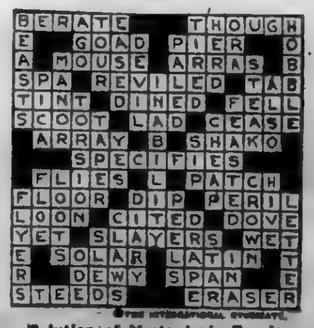
Now the work must be done over again. The New England states that would lose under a retention of the present number are Vermont, a loss of one; Maine a loss of one, Rhode Island a loss of one, New Hampshire would remain the same as at present, with Massachusetts and Connecticut each gaining one member, but as that would require a redistricting of the state, not much enthusiasm seems to be developing along that line.

The only New England member on the census committee at present, is Fenn of Connecticut, who will be chairman in the coming congress.

In the preliminary bout for committee prestige and strong positions, New England came out a winner. The republican conference of the house on Saturday nominated Treadway of Massachusetts as a member of the powerful steering committee, and White of Maine, as a member of the rules committee, which has no less power. That assures New England representation on those powerful committees, which will be of great value to that section of the country, when matters of paramount importance are pending.

Tilson of Connecticut has been a member of the rules, and Winslow of Massachusetts of the steering committee, but the advancement of Tilson to the floor leadership and the voluntary retirement of Winslow from congress, left New England without representation on those all powerful committees.

It had been anticipated that there would be objection to giving those choice positions to New England, as there is a strong feeling among western members that New England has a pretty big slice of prominence in national affairs. Beginning with the president, and running down through senate and house we find president pro tempore of the senate by Moses, Floor Leader Tilson of the house, the chairmanship of naval affairs, by Hale of Maine, postoffices by Moses of New Hampshire, banking and currency by McLean of Connecticut, Fernald of Maine has public buildings and grounds, Keyes of New Hampshire senate expenditures, and other New England senators and representatives are due for chairmanships through chance of personnel and seniority. A full list will not be available until after senate and house organize, but those above mentioned are safe in the hands of New England and beyond recall. And Fenn of Connecticut will be chairman of census.



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

HER EXPERT ADVICE

"Don't let him get away with it!" warned the officious woman from across the hall when the young married woman said that Tom wouldn't eat oranges unless they were sliced and had to have his reading chair just so.

"Unless you want to be a slave," she said, shaking her head, "you will be firm from the start. Don't pay any attention to him when he starts being fussy! With some men you must have it over with in one big fight, and with others you can just go right on as though you had not heard them.

"I had a cousin whose husband started out about like yours when they were first married. His oatmeal had to be cooked exactly two hours and sixteen minutes or else it distressed him terribly and he never could enjoy wearing a collar himself if when he found the collars piled bent side up. He wanted the bent side down. He didn't like his morning newspaper put on the left side of his plate and he raised a row if he got home and found his wife had taken the freshness away from the evening paper by opening it first.

"He was kind about all these things and patiently reminded her until I saw how the poor girl was headed and gave her a talking to, just as I am giving you.

"I told her to make it snappy. So she just ignored him in his foolishness and I have not a bit of doubt that she would have cured him completely only they got a divorce the next year, and it was just as well, because no women could be happy trotting around after a man who was so fussy about silly things.

"Take my own case. George always came home at first with tickets for musical comedies which he said he enjoyed, but I soon stopped him wrecking his taste and discrimination that way! Why look at ankles and listen to jazz when there are good lectures everywhere?

"So I informed him kindly but firmly that he could return the tickets and come with me to hear a fine talk on excavations in the orient. He always wanted to go to some popular mystery play when there was grand opera in town, and I wish you might have seen his judgment when it came to ties and socks.

"That man just rioted in bright colors and plaids and stripes and checks, so after explaining to him how ridiculous it was for a married man to dress himself up like a college teahound I gave up and just took the stuff back and brought him what he ought to wear. Black hosiery and gray ties are cheap and all right for any man who isn't trying to attract a roving eye.

"Why let a man spend money for non essentials when his wife can use it to much better advantage? If a man's collar is clean nobody much looks at him, anyhow, although you can't combat his innate conceit and make him realize it!

"Look out for your husband when he takes a fancy to pretty women. George invariably, when he had dinner parties, asked to have the most impossible women seated next him. He always picked out the fluffy ones, but you may imagine that I put my foot down on that and saw to it that if there was a lady with a cast eye or poor complexion she got the chair next George. I don't believe in letting men run into temptation.

"Why, when a woman is married she has to think for her husband, literally, be brains and a mother and an all-seeing Providence to him because if you let a man alone to run free as his fancy dictates, there is bound to be trouble, especially for yourself.

"You will have no time whatever, what with humoring all his little notions and keeping up with his quaint ideas! I very shortly took that all out of George, let me tell you! He may have rebelled at first, but he gave up at last and practically acknowledged that I knew best and I scarcely had to bother with him at all—"

"I don't believe I've seen your husband going in and out since we moved here," said the young married woman with polite curiosity.

"Oh," said the officious woman right away, "of course you haven't! You see, George and I got a divorce last spring. Somehow we couldn't get along at all! I was a perfectly good wife, but he wasn't able to appreciate or understand me!"—Exchange.

Stories That Recall Others

Start Alike, Anyway

A teacher was giving a lesson recently in the study of the constitution and Declaration of Independence. In the course of the lesson she called for an explanation of the statement that all men are created equal. A small lad overflowing with the ginger of youth answered:

"Well, they all weigh about the same when they are born."

Tony's Rabbit

Some years ago when much new railroad construction was underway Bill was the head of a gang that was grading a new roadbed.

One morning, he said, while they were camping out near the place where the roadbed was being built, Tony, a member of the gang, came into camp with a skinned rabbit and it was served for his breakfast. He enjoyed it so much that there was no surprise when the next morning, and the next, he was served a similar meal after bringing it. Finally Bill got curious, knowing that none in the gang had a revolver, and called Tony in to inquire where and how he got the game.

"It's easy," said Tony. "I go out near here and throw out some meat and pretty soon the animal he come and say 'meow, meow' and I walk up to him, and he brush against my leg and I knock him in the head with a club."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

M. Louis Loucheur, who has succeeded M. Caillaux as French Minister of Finance, is considered to be exceptionally well qualified for that important post by reason of his wide experience and his high business capacities. M. Loucheur is by profession an engineer and before he entered the public service he had achieved an international reputation as a builder of railways, not only in France but in Turkey, in the Balkans, and in Russia. During the war he filled the post of Minister of Munitions and it was under his supervision that countless war factories were organized and maintained in all parts of France. His services were especially notable in connection with the manufacture of explosives and chemicals. In the period immediately following the close of the war he held office as Minister of Reconstruction.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Bible and Faith.

Mr. Editor: In your Saturday morning Bulletin, there appeared a rather poor example of the 20th century intelligence and hailing from our neighboring metropolis, Jewett City. In reading the letter of H. Kresnow, it stresses the fact that many people of our present day have acquired the "moving picture mind"—all life is to them is a series of snapshots, with no chance for a time exposure. Hence they cannot think straight on any subject.

Mr. Kresnow finds fault with the Bible simply because it enjoys the largest circulation of any book published and because there are certain countries that are ruled by the church and Bible, that they are down, down in a rut. It would be interesting to your readers, Mr. Editor, if Mr. Kresnow would name those countries where such chaos exists. As a matter of fact the countries where the church rules, the Bible is forbidden, on the other hand where the Bible is freely circulated (I mean the King James version) the church is not so aggressive in its regime. Why? Because it is a library in itself, and offers a complete system of ethics, of history and philosophy.

The simplicity, concreteness and vividness of its narrative passages is unequalled in the realm of literature. The main qualities of the book are as valuable now as before the days of science and German philosophy. The King James version is the product of the life strivings of godly men, of sanctified loyal truth, of suffering and martyrdom, of pure love for common humanity, of toil and sacrifice by the most learned scholars of the Christian era. Every one should read and cherish the Bible.

Voltaire believed that he had dealt a death blow to Christianity. La Harpe was a young disciple of Voltaire, whose genius and gifted pen he expected would complete the demolition. The time came when France reaped the harvest which Voltaire had sown. The French revolution broke out and La Harpe, with a host of others was cast into prison. He and the rest awaiting death, did what they could "to drive dull care away." There was one old gentleman among them, who had a Bible which was his constant companion. La Harpe begged a loan of it. Its perusal startled him. "Here," he said, "is everything to excite curiosity, and here is also everything to satisfy it!" His life was saved and he himself converted to God. He came out of prison to build the faith which his master (Voltaire) had hoped he would utterly destroy.

Thomas Paine once said, "In five years from now there will not be a Bible in America." This brilliant but deluded American was not only a poor but a false prophet. Now each year 30,000,000 copies of King James Version Bibles and portions are published in 770 languages and dialects according to the American Bible society.

And back of all, above all, are those everlasting verities set forth in the Bible which alone can guide mankind toward ever better things in ever better days, and which, if those verities prevail, as prevail they must and will, at last will crown the race with splendor of honorable good will, beneficient peace and righteousness undefiled.

Mr. Kresnow, quotes a "great" thinker when he says, "Doubt is the beginning of wisdom; faith is the beginning of superstition." What a capricious statement! If faith is superstition then I am glad that the Pilgrim Fathers were superstitious when they landed at Plymouth Rock in 1620 and laid the first cornerstone of this great republic! What would become of the thousands of inventions if the respective inventors did not conceive and had no go on indefinitely describing numerous human achievements that would have never been perfected without faith!

Mr. Kresnow takes a dig at the Fords. But he does not think of the faith that Henry Ford had in his invention. Mr. Kresnow does not know that one can find a Bible in almost every room of Henry Ford's home. Henry Ford's faith in the Bible, the sermon on the mount, the golden rule in business and last but not least his faith again, in his vast undertakings have made him what he is today. Mr. Ford deserves his success. The same is true of Golden Rule Nash.

Concluding, Mr. Editor, permit me to quote Napoleon, "The Bible is no mere book, but a living creature, with a vigor, a power, which conquers all that oppose it."

ALEXANDER E. POREDA.

Yowler Visits Buster Bear

What you yourself find you can't do
Get some one else to do for you.
Yowler the Bob Cat.

Yowler the Bob Cat was in a terrible temper as he left the place in the swamp where Paddy the Beaver and his family were at work on a new dam which would make a pond of that swamp. In the first place, Yowler didn't want a pond there. He much preferred the swamp as it was. Always he had found good hunting there. But a pond would put an end to his hunting there. This in itself was enough to make him lose his temper is very short, as you know. But to have Paddy the Beaver grin at him and calmly go right on with his work was too much. Yes, sir, it was too much. Yowler right then and there had such a fit of temper as only a Bob Cat can have. As he went away he had declared that that dam never would be finished.

Now, as Yowler in his den thought things over he realized how foolish it had been to declare that that dam never would be finished, and his knowledge made him angrier than ever. He might, he just might, catch one of those Beavers before the dam was finished. But that wouldn't prevent the others finishing the work. He would try to catch one of those young Beavers anyway, for young Beaver is good eating. His mouth watered when he thought of it. But he must do something else to prevent the finishing of that dam or be always laughed at by Paddy the Beaver.

"Buster Bear!" The thought fairly popped into his mind. "Buster is the very one to help. He is so big and strong that he can tear that dam to pieces faster than Paddy can build it. I'll run around and call on Buster."

It didn't take Yowler long to find Buster. Yowler knows all about his neighbors and he knew just where Buster would be likely to be taking a nap, and just when he would be likely to awaken. So he went straight over there and waited.

When great big Buster Bear awoke and, yawning and stretching, came forth to go look for something to eat, the very first person he saw was Yowler the Bob Cat. Buster frowned, for he wasn't particularly friendly with Yowler. Yowler pretended not to see the frown.

"Good evening, Buster Bear," said he most politely. "It looks as if we are going to have a very nice night. What a pity it is that the big swamp up the Laughing Brook is to be taken away from us."

Buster Bear suddenly sat up and stared hard at Yowler. "What did you say?" he demanded.

"I said what a 'pity it is that the big swamp is to be taken away from us," repeated Yowler.

"What would you do?" growled Buster.

"Who says it is?" demanded Buster in his grumbly-rumbly voice way down in his throat.

"Why haven't you seen what is going on up there?" asked Yowler with an air of great surprise.

"I've seen Paddy the Beaver and his family building a new dam across the Laughing Brook, but what of that?" growled Buster.

"What of that!" exclaimed Yowler. "Oh, nothing, only when there is a big pond there there won't be any swamp to hunt in. That's all."

Buster's small eyes snapped. "That is a fact. You are right, Yowler, quite right. I hadn't thought of that before," said he.

"Paddy the Beaver seems to think he owns that swamp and can do with it just what he pleases," continued Yowler. "That swamp always has been a good place to hunt in and I for one don't like the idea of losing it. That swamp is just as much yours and mine as it is Paddy's, and it seems to me that something ought to be done about it."

"That is all very well to say, but what can be done?" demanded Buster.

"I don't know," confessed Yowler, with the slyest of sly looks in his yellow eyes. "If I were a little bigger and stronger I know what I would do."

"What would you do?" growled Buster.

"I would go up there and tear that dam down. Anyway, I would tear a hole in it big enough to let all the water out," said Yowler. Then he sighed. "But I am not big or strong enough," he added.

Buster Bear said nothing, but turned and began to hurry away in the direction of that swamp.

The next story—Buster Bear Goes to Work.

From Small Beginnings

Samuel S. McClure, a Great Publisher

In County Antrim, Ireland, in 1857, there was born a little son to Ite McClures. When the little baby smiled what could be more natural than for some one to say: "Shure, 'tis the good fairies do be whisperin' to him, and tellin' him o' the good luck to come." And the good luck did come—but it came because of his own efforts and not because the fairies brought it to him on a silver spoon.

The first effort that the lad, "Sam" McClure, made when he was old enough, was to go where there were both work and opportunity—and go he did, to America. Here he worked hard, went to school, saved money that he had earned, and went on to college, graduating at 25 from Knox College, Illinois. In those days the bicycle was just coming into its own, and so, two years after he had won his degree, S. S. McClure went to Boston and became editor of the Wheelman. At about the same time he founded the McClure Syndicate, an organization that sent out material to many newspapers. In the course of years this grew into a most important work.

After having gained experience not only with the Wheelman but also with the celebrated DeVinne Press, S. S. McClure said to his friends; "There is room for a new kind of magazine—a magazine that will have life; that will treat of live topics, and make people think."

Therefore, at the age of 36, he established McClure's Magazine, which he at once raised to great popularity by publishing a series of highly daring articles on subjects of great public importance. Perhaps the most interesting of all that he published was the remarkable story of the life of John D. Rockefeller, presented with many illustrations and with graphic detail. Then, also, he published a most interesting life of Mary Baker Eddy, the founder of Christian Science.

S. S. McClure, in 1915, after some experience in a book publishing firm, established the McClure Newspaper Corporation and became editor of The Mail. His work and personality made him one of the most influential of all publishers. He told the full story of his life in a book called "My Autobiography." The story of such a life of enterprise is well worth telling.

IN A CLASS BY HIMSELF

As the story is thirty years old, it can be told now, to point a moral: the tale itself needs no adornment. Judson Harmon was attorney-general in Cleveland's second administration, and he could hardly have been called a fortunate experiment. Senator "Jim" Smith of New Jersey flung himself indignantly out of the attorney-general's office one day, and the first person he met was William Howard Taft, who was not then Governor of the Philippines, to say nothing of president of the United States or Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. "Isn't Harmon the most complete jackass that ever held public office in the United States?" said Smith. "I'm sorry," replied Taft, with all his well known urbanity, "but I am committed to Hoke Smith." Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania is in a class by himself. No ordinary rules will include him.

He is always imitating somebody. For years it was Roosevelt, and the strenuous life. For some time past it has been Woodrow Wilson, recently with eleven points instead of fourteen. But in spite of his constant copying, he has an originality all his own. No one knows better than Pinchot that he can settle the strike in the anthracite regions, and have the men back at work in a week, by offering to call an extra session of the state legislature to repeal the Miners' Certificate Law. Few of us are very clever, but the dunce has everybody's sympathy so long as he does not play into the sharper's hands by trying to be unscrupulous himself. Pinchot tries to be clever, with the presidential bee in his bonnet. He proposes that the men shall go back to work at once, pending an arbitration and the concession of impossibilities. His first point is the only vital one, and Lewis, contrary to newspaper headlines and editorial assumptions, declines to let the miners go back to work.

But even more absurd, Pinchot proposes to fix war wages and ten per cent additional as the minimum for five years, oblivious of the fact that the use of substitutes has already taken away part of the market for anthracite, and that the miners will be lucky if in that time they get 75 per cent of their present wages, with the price of hard coal in New York under rather than over $10 a ton. In this case at least Pinchot is not imitating anybody. He is his own preposterous self.—Barpn's Weekly.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

TWO MORE SUPERNUMERARIES ARE APPOINTED ON POLICE FORCE

Francis J. Kelley and Edward A. Burns were appointed supernumerary officers of the local police force Monday evening at the December meeting of the court of common council. The meeting was called to order at 8:10 o'clock by Mayor Milo R. Waters and the minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading, according to custom.

Petitions were received and acted upon as follows:

From Edwin R. Edwards and about 50 others for a guard rail to be placed on Hinckley Hill. Alderman Gebrath stated that the petition was being acted upon by the public works committee who have taken the matter up with the street commissioner. The petition was referred to the public works committee.

From Henry H. Gallup and others asking that lower Washington street be better lighted. The petition asks that new lights be placed where necessary and the present lights be changed around to provide adequate lighting for that section of Washington street. Petition was referred to the police committee with power.

From Dr. John T. Boynton for an arc light in front of his premises at No. 175 Broadway. Referred to the police committee with power.

From William H. Murphy, et. al., asking the council to look over the roadway in the vicinity of the Central building on Broadway, with a view to locating a crosswalk there. This was referred to the police committee with power.

From Jacob R. Slosberg, et. al., asking the city to accept South Golden street as a city street. Referred to the public works committee.

The council voted a recommendation that an arc light be placed at the foot of Fifth street, near the main entrance to the U. S. Finishing plant. The recommendation was referred to the police committee with power.

Lake Street Sewer Cost $50,856.49

The monthly reports of the city treasurer and street commissioner were accepted after which the public works committee submitted the following report and recommendations on the Lake street sewer:

The committee on public works begs leave to report that the sewer from Lake street playground to Hickory street, and in Hickory street from Baltic to North street, in Brook street, in North street from Hickory street to East Baltic street and in Pratt street, the construction of which was authorized at council meetings held June 15th, 1923, June 13, 1924 and June 12, 1925, is completed. The cost of said sewer is $50,856.49.

Your committee recommend the adoption of the following resolutions:

Resolved—That the following named persons are especially benefitted in their lands by the layout and construction of a sewer from Lake street playground in Hickory street, in Hockory street from Baltic street to East Baltic street and in Pratt street opposite or near their respective lands to wit:

Westerly side of Brook street—Mikaloi Galkowski.

Resolved—That Milo R. Waters, Henry Gebrath, Nicholas J. Spellman and Maurice Looby be and they are hereby appointed a committee to hear said persons and all others in interest in reference to a proposed assessment for benefits from the layout and construction of said sewer from Lake street playground to Hickory street and in Hickory, Pratt, North and Brook streets and to report said proposed assessment to the court of common council for its action thereon.

Resolved—That due notice in the manner provided by law be given to such persons as are interested in said proposed assessments to appear before said committee in the council chamber in the city of Norwich on Monday, the 4th day of January, 1926, at seven o'clock, p. m., standard time, then and there to be heard, if they see cause, in relation thereto.

The report was accepted and the recommendations adopted. The public works committee submitted a report of progress on the matter of the acceptance of Tyler avenue by the city and the report was accepted.

Grant Petitions For Lights

The police committee reported the following petitions for lights granted: H. C. Lone for a light at Washington place; Elizabeth Gleason for a light on Everett street; George H. Caswell for a light on Hinckley place, Henry H. Vignot for a light at Chelsea court.

The police committee recommended the appointment of Francis J. Kelley and Edward A. Burns as supernumerary police officers. The clerk was authorized to cast one ballot in favor of each of the applicants and they were declared elected.

The council then received and accepted an invitation from Nemrod Grotto to attend their circus at the armory and to take part in the Grotto parade this (Tuesday) evening when it is expected that 1,200 will be in line. The members of the council will meet at the mayor's office at 7 o'clock.

A claim was received from Thomas M. English for $12.80 for a broken spring on his automobile received while the machine was being driven through Champion street. The claim was referred to the finance committee and the corporation.

Adjournment was taken about 8:40 o'clock.

FOUND HANGING DEAD IN BLACK POINT SHACK

A body which is believed to be that of James Burns, 58, a summer employe of Mrs. Carl Davis of Niantic, was found hanging dead Sunday afternoon by two sailors in the old shack known as the Carl Rawston house near Black Point, East Lyme.

Curiosity to see what was in the old house led the two sailors to visit it Sunday afternoon, according to the medical examiner, F. H. Durt of Niantic. When they found the body, they reported the matter to Constable Charles Tubbs and First Selectman Fred A. Beckwith of Niantic who called the medical examiner.

It is probable, according to the medical examiner that the man had been dead two or three days. This conclusion was drawn from the fact that the rope had deeply disfigured the man's neck and the fact that his clothing and shoes were dry despite the rainy weather of the past few days.

The medical examiner said that evidently the man had tied the rope to a rafter in the house, made a granny knot for a noose, and then jumped from a chair, leaving him suspended. The condition of the body indicated that death was instantaneous.

By permission of the medical examiner the body was removed to undertaking rooms in New London.

The man weighed about 165 pounds had gray hair, blue eyes, a gray mustache, teeth in good condition, was full faced, 5 feet 4 1-2 inches in height, face slightly pitted.

He was dressed in a heavy black overcoat with the initials D. W. S. on the inside, a black coat with white stripes made by Brooks Brothers of New York, dark blue pants with white stripes and a brown fedora hat. The shoes were of the army type. The only money found on him was 50 cents. The clothes appeared to be of good quality, according to the undertaker the man was well preserved and did not have any indications of a man who did not take care of himself.

CONNECTICUT D. A. R. BUYS "CONNECTICUT BELL"

A gift of $3,500 for the purchase of the "Connecticut Bell" in the "Star Spangled Banner national peace chime," at Washington Memorial chapel was announced Sunday at Valley Forge, Pa., by the Rev. Dr. W. Herbert Burk, pastor of the chapel. The money was contributed by the Connecticut State Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The chime will consist of thirteen bells, representing the 13 original colonies, and will be dedicated on July 4, 1926. Funds for the bells are being raised in all the other original colonies except Rhode Island, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

PREPARING STREET FOR TRAVEL IN WINTER

The city streets are undergoing a general patching and scraping for the winter. Street Commissioner John C. Donovan had a force of men at work Monday patching Broadway, Central avenue, Franklin street, McKinley avenue, and Broad street and the road scraper was at work on the lower end of Boswell avenue, Hamlin street, Oak street, Crescent street, part of McKinley avenue and on lower Hickory street. Today (Tuesday) the men will be at work on the West Side and the filling in of the holes on West Thames street will be started soon.

BOY STRUCK BY TRUCK SUFFERS FATAL INJURIES

While crossing the street towards his home on Harland road shortly before noon Monday, Harry L. Sherman, Jr., 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Sherman, was struck by a motor truck of William M. Ryan & Son, Inc., of West Thames street, and was so severely injured that he died shortly afterwards at the W. W. Backus hospital. The truck was driven by Matthew E Ryan who was on his way home to dinner, with the unloaded truck.

The little boy was with two schoolmates at the time, one of them being Muriel Lawakoski, who were on their way home from school. According to the driver of the truck, the children were on the sidewalk from which the little boy stepped off into the street and was hit. When Ryan stopped the truck and got out he saw one of the children holding the little boy in his arms. Ryan immediately took the little boy in his arms and calling the driver of Congdon's truck, which was following him, he carried the little boy immediately to the hospital.

Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve with Coroner J. J. Desmond, began their investigation as soon as they were notified of the accident. Dr. Gildersleeve determined that the little boy's skull had been fractured and that other bodily injuries had been suffered. Undertaker Guger took charge of the body.

Coroner Desmond had not concluded his finding Monday night, but in his investigation in the afternoon the condition of the brakes on the truck was looked into. Mr. Sherman, who is an automobile mechanic, charged that the brakes were defective, and an expert machinest was called in, who tried the truck up Broadway and down Union street, declaring that the brakes needed taking up.

Coroner Desmond is to continue his investigation.

NORWICH TOWN SHOCKED BY FATAL ACCIDENT

The sad news concerning the sudden death of little Harry Sherman, cast a gloom over the Norwich Town community. The fatality happened at the foot of Harland road which adjoins Washington street, just as the little fellow was crossing to proceed up Harland road. The trolley headed for Yantic, which left Franklin Square at 11:30, had just stopped at this point to let off a passenger, who when at a location half way between the corner and the Sheltering Arms, was attracted by the accident, and turning back, recognized the child as that of a neighbor. Although it was generally reported that the little boy was instantly killed when the truck passed over his body; another report in circulation was that he was immediately rushed to the Backus hospital, where he died within a few minutes after arrival.

The little fellow, who was six years old last July, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sherman (Katherine Conant) until recently residents of the West Side. Besides his parents he is survived by a sister, Dorothy Sherman, eleven years of age. The family had recently located in their new home on the Harland road, having moved there August 1st., of the present year. The little fellow, who was an exceptionally bright and attractive child, was loved by all who knew him. He was in the first grade at the Town Street school, Miss Jennie L. Congdon, teacher, having attended kindergarten last year, at the West Side school. The sympathy of this and other communities, where the child was so well known, goes out to the parents in their great bereavement. Mr. and Mrs. Jerome F. Conant are grandparents on the mother's side, and the late John Sherman and Mrs. Sherman, of Mountain avenue, grandparents on the father's side.

WILL PROVIDE SKATING PONDS IN THIS CITY

Plans for providing skating ponds in different parts of the city were considered by the recreation commission at its meeting last week with Chairman William J. Fitzgerald presiding.

It was voted to assist the West End Community Association in caring for the pond at East Great Plain. Arrangements have been made for a pond at the Duwell field on the East Side, and the rolling mill pond at Thamesville will be put in shape for skating. The commission expects to be able to light these ponds for night skating and will keep them free from snow as in past years.

The Lake street playground has been entered by the commission in a national contest for playground beautification, the purpose of which is to encourage the beautification of American playgrounds. Awards in cash and nursery stock are to be made to the winning playgrounds. These prizes will be awarded not to the most beautiful playgrounds, but to those showing the greatest progress in beautification from now until the contest closes on November 1, 1926. It is planned to secure the help of the children in planting trees, shrubbery, and flowers. Their work supplemented by grading and surfacing should develop a playground in Norwich that all may point with pride to.

Those present at the meeting were Chairman Fitzgerald, Mrs. Alex Pasnik, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Drew, R. J. Swanton and J. L. Johnson.

FINANCIAL QUESTIONS FOR COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

Two financial matters are to come up before the special meeting of the New London County Agricultural Society this week, with which is combined the adjourned annual meeting of the society. The meeting will be called upon to vote whether to raise a second mortage on the society's real estate to pay off the outstanding bills, and also to hear the report of the committee appointed to propose a plan for raising the necessary funds to pay off the floating debt of the society.

SUSIE AND HER BOY FRIEND TAKE PEEP AT ROTARY BOXING BOUTS

It seems that Susie and her Boy Friend did a little peeping last week at the windows of Henry Vignot's barn when Henry entertained the Norwich Rotary club with boxing bouts. Susie makes a confession in the following letter and expresses her views on boxing in general.

Dear Sports Editor:

I gotta confession to make to you and maybe you'll be peeved and maybe you won't, but anyhow here goes. You know them boxin' bouts that Henry Vignot held up in his barn for the Rotary club last Wednesday night, well, me and the Boy Friend seen them bouts. Yep, we did, but you didn't see us 'cause we was on the outside lookin' in. Maybe we auta not done it, but believe me, I gotta a great kick outa them and so'd the Boy Friend. 'Member how it rained ? Well, me and the boy got soakin' wet seein's how we ain't no ducks. Gosh, when I say wet I mean wet and don't mean maybe. That ain't all I got either. I gotta cold that's just 'bout blocked up my bronko tubes so's all I can do is make motions when I wanta tell someboy somthin'. I think the boy friend's goin' have the croup.

But a cold ain't all I got outa standin' out in that rain. When I got home my pa was waitin' for yours truly. The Boy Friend sees the old boy standin' in the hall and he starts swimmin' for home, leavin' me to face it all alone. Some brave sheik I'll say. Well, I slops up the front steps and oozes into the family castle. Then my pa opens up. Oh boy, my old man wags a mean tongue when he spills what's weighin' down that old fashioned 2x4 mind of his. Gosh, he opens up like a battery goin' into action, and, believe me, some of those things he said musta parched his tongue before he got 'em out. No I ain't goin' to tell you all he said, which was plenty.

"Where you been, Susie, 'til this hour o' the night ?," is the openin' broadside. I told him where I'd been. "Why'd you go ?" he asks. I told him I went so's I'd get some ideas what people meant when they talked about that manly art of self-defense you hear so much about. "H'm, you couldn't get cold in that rattle head o' yours, say nothin' about gettin' ideas." With that dirty dig he goes up to bed. Well, believe me, I fooled him all right, 'cause I gotta cold and plenty of ideas, and I'll tell this bow-legged old world them ideas and them little cold gems is buzzin' round in my head 'til it feels like bee-hive.

Well, I'm going to try and sort 'em out and parade 'em before the critical eye of the dear public. The ideas, I mean, and not them little cold gems although I wish I could get rid of them as easy. Maybe you'll think I'm all wet about boxin' but I ain't waterlogged yet. Well, what I saw through the winda that night has made me think boxin' ain't the brutal cave-man stuff some o' them old moss-backs try to make you think it is. All the time I stood there, first on one hoof then on the other like one o' them birds you see pictured carryin' babies, I didn't see a thing that could be said was rough and bloody.

Believe me, if some of these women would take up boxin' instead o' cigarettes and bridge they'd be a whole lot better off. If a woman could hand outa good wallop in the eye once in a while to the boso she's hitched to for better or worse, I'll bet there'd be fewer divorce cases and things'd be a lot more harmonica. You don't see no he male startin' a argument with a nother man if he thinks maybe he'll get a poke in the nose, do you ? You wouldn't see so many wife beaters either and the girls'd be a whole lot safer from these pettin' drug-store outlaws.

Believe me, if woman should take to boxin' as a indoor sport, the weaker sex would getta lot more respect from their opposites. My message to the down-trodden female is to lay offa the gossip and don the padded mitt and maybe then we'll make the men sit up and take notice.

Just imagine what a surprise it would be to friend hubby when he comes home and wants to know "why in heck supper ain't ready," if the little wife should come back and say "Now looka here, you big brute, lay offa that stuff or I'll give you a smash on the nose." And then if he pulled any rough stuff, just haul off with a left hook and floor him for the count. I guess he'd remember not to speak outa turn again. He'd say next time "Well, dearie, can't I help you get supper, you've worked so hard today I know you're all tired out." That's the way to have 'em talk.

Well, them's some of the bright thoughts that was flittin' through my head along with them cold germs while I was outside soakin' up the rain like a blotter. But to get back to the boxin' bouts. I'll say I enjoyed 'em 'specially two or three. I guess the boy friend did too 'cause every time a feller'd make a swing the boy friend would swing, too, and I was duckin' them right hooks 'til I wished they'd put on a wrastling bout for a change, so's I could get a rest. Them two little kids in the first bout was a coupla screams. Didja ever see so many funny faces in all your life. Guess everybody liked it the way they laughed. I thought that Fowler man from New London would have a stroke he laughed so hearty. Then I saw our mayor shakin' with mirth, too.

Another one I liked was the one 'tween that Young Coulin feller from up top o' Taftville and his big brother Minnow. That young feller throws a mean set of boxin' gloves. Gosh, to watch him box you'd think he had 'bout 14 hands, he hits so fast. And believe me they ain't no love taps either. That kid's goin' be state champeen again some day and I don't mean maybe. Gosh, it was funny to see that Jackie Wilson hoppin' around the ring like squirrel tryin' to keep outa the way o' them flyin' mitts. The boy friend said Mr. Wilson was a referee but he didn't wear no white knickers like them football fellers.

Maybe you ain't goin' to like what I say next but it's my habit to speak right out plain what I think, so here goes. I didn't like the way you wrote up that bout 'tween Battlin' Worth and Slasher Kid Harris. You said the big feller won the bout. I guess you musta been out in the rain too, 'cause you sure was all wet when you said that. If I'd been givin' a official verdict on that bout I'd said that the little feller was the champeen. Didn't he knock the big feller down ? And didn't the big feller want to stop fightin' and rest every now and then ? Well it looks to me like you muffed a lotta good pints and I say that the Battler won and I don't care who noses it. So there.

Well, justa bout as thing was over a coupla fellers looks outa the winda and sees me and the boy friend so's we beat's away in the kid's bone shaker. I see in the paper you had some eats. Gosh, I wisht I'd had some o' them and maybe I wouldn't be nursin' this cold.

Well, I hope the women read this letter and take notice. I think boxin' would do 'em a lotta good. It would put a lotta color in their faces and they wouldn't have to use so much rouge and powder. Women are doin' about all the things men are, such as votin', wearin' knickers, playin' golf and some of 'em, like I saw up to Boston, are even drinkin' sympathetic gin, so's they tell me, I guess boxin' would do 'em good. I'm gettin' me a pair o' them boxin' gloves and the boy friend's goin', to show me how to use 'em. Maybe he'll wisht he hadn't if we ever sign up for a life-time bout.

Your wheezy friend,
SUSIE

FOOTBAAL NEEDS FEWER REFORMERS SAYS TAD JONES

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 7—(A. P.)—Head Coach T. A. D. Jones of the Yale football team, expressed the opinion here tonight that "what football needs today more than anything else is fewer reformers." He believes the game will work out its own salvation if given time. Coach Jones expressed these views when shown a statement by Dr. Stewart Paton, of Princeton who gave it as his opinion that the game was a menace to the physical and mental well being of the players.

HARTFORD BLUES TO PLAY AT BOSTON ON SATURDAY

WATERBURY, Dec. 7—(A. P.)—Manager George Mulligan, of the Hartford Blues, Connecticut professional football champions, tonight closed arrangements with the St. Alphonse team, of Boston, Mass., for the appearance of the Blues at Fenton field, Boston, on next Saturday.

FOUR PIRATES ON ALL-STAR 1925 NATIONAL LEAGUE TEAM

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP) — Four members of Pittsburgh's world champions are included in an all-star 1925 National League team, based upon the ballots of the committee of eight baseball writers which has selected Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals as the most valuable player in the circuit.

The committee chose from the Pittsburgh team Pitcher Aldridge, Infielders Wright and Traynor and Outfielder Cuyler. Boston was the only team which failed to get representation in the line-up, but not because at least one member of the club failed to receive a generous vote.

Manager Dave Bancroft was sixth in the list of contestants for the valuable player prize, but Wright, shortstop of the Pirates, received two more votes than the Hub pilot and consequently won the all-star rating.

Max Carey also received a high vote, but, like Bancroft, was eliminated because another player filling the same position shaded him in the balloting. With eleven votes, the Pirate center fielder was one short of the total cast for Eddie Roush of Cincinnati, while Emil Meusel of the Giants, who received a place on the team, drew only six votes. This total, however, was high enough to place him at the top among the left fielders.

The all-star team follows:

Pitchers—Vance of Brooklyn, Luque and Donohue of Cincinnati, Aldridge of Pittsburgh.

Catchers — Hargrave of Cincinnati and Wilson of Philadelphia.

First base—George Kelly of New York.

Second base—Hornsby of St. Louis.

Shortstop—Wright of Pittsburgh.

Outfield—Cuyler of Pittsburgh, Roush of Cincinnati and Meusel of New York.

In the balloting announced yesterday for the most valuable player, a selection which carried with it a cash prize of $1,000, Hornsby received 73 votes, 12 more than Hazen Cuyler.

Others who ranked in the first ten and their votes follow: George Kelly, Giants, 52; Glenn Wright, Pirates, 43; Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn, 42; Dave Bancroft Boston, 41; Jim Bottomley, St. Louis, 28; Pie Traynor, Pirates, 27; Frankie Frisch, Giants, 13; Eddie Roush, Cincinnati, 12.

Players who received votes in the valuable player contests but were outside the "first ten," follow:

Carey of Pittsburgh, 11 votes; Meusel of New York, 6; Luque of Cincinnati, 5; Grimm of Chicago, 5; Wheat of Brooklyn, 4; Donohue of Cincinnati, 4; Hargrave of Cincinnati, 4, Harper of Philadelphia, 3; Sand of Philadelphia, 3; Gautreau of Boston, 2; Aldridge of Pittsburgh, 1.

Players who received no votes in the balloting for the most valuable player but who were placed on an "honor list" by the committee, follow:

HORNSBY SETS NEW BATTING MARK FOR FIVE YEAR AVERAGE

NEW YORK, Dec. 7, (AP)—Rogers Hornsby, hard-hitting manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, has removed any doubt of his place among the greatest batsmen of modern times.

When "Rajah" led the National League for the sixth straight time this season he also compiled the astonishing five-year batting average of .402, a mark which eclipses by two points the best five straight years Ty Cobb ever had. Cobb amassed an average of .400 in his best stretch of batting, 1909 to 1913, inclusive.

Hornsby's marks for the 1925 season, his first as manager, were as follows:

Batted over .400 for the third time, equalling all records in the history of the game.

Led both major leagues in batting.

Led both major leagues in home runs.

Scored 133 runs and made 203 hits, including 40 two-baggers, ten triples and 39 homers.

Hornsby, a native of Winters, Texas, of rugged build and with 180 pounds distributed through his 5 feet, 11 1-2 inches, appeared with the Cardinals for the first time in 1915. He was purchased from Dennison of the Western Association for a reported $500.

He came to the majors in an era that had produced Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, and immediately following upon that which brought forth Hans Wagner and Nap Lajole. Batting records considered impregnable had been erected by this quartet.

For a time the bat of Hornsby was in restraint, for his activities as a shortstop undoubtedly took much from that sturdy frame during a season. It was in 1920 that the Texan went to second base to remain there and become, perhaps, the greatest batsman of all time.

When Hornsby started his attack upon the hitting crowns, Babe Ruth was poling looping flies over the far fences and the nation's fandom thought in terms of home runs. The old-time rugged hitter was forgotten, the men such as Lajoie and Wagner. Even Cobb and Speaker were obscured by the phenomenal Ruth.

But the Cardinal second baseman persisted in his quest, smashing away at the deliveries of National League pitchers until he became one of the most feared of batsmen.

He gained his first crown in 1920, equalled and passed the four-time championship of Wagner, and then in 1924 set up a modern season mark with .424. During Hornsby's rush to renown, Cobb, Speaker and Ruth faltered and today the manager of the Cardinals is considered the greatest hitter of them all.

EIGHT DUAL MEETS ON BROWN WRESTLING SLATE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Eight dual meets have been arranged for the Brown wrestling team for the season of 1925-1926, according to the schedule announced tonight by Manager Bruce E. Tietjens, '26, of Napoleon, Ohio. The Brunonians will also enter the New England intercollegiates at Cambridge, where M. I. T. will act as host to the association.

Yale, Springfield, Harvard, C. C. N. Y., Brooklyn Polytech., and M. I. T., all of whom were on the schedule last year, and Tufts and the University of Pennsylvania as newcomers, complete the schedule. Stevens is dropped from the list.

The schedule is as follows, with meets at home unless otherwise specified:

January 9, C. C. N. Y.; 16, Yale at New Haven; 19, Springfield; 23, University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; February 13, Tufts; 19, Brooklyn Polytech.; 27, M. I. T. at Cambridge; March 6, Harvard at Cambridge; 12 and 13, N. E. I. A. A., Cambridge.

ROCKY KANSAS WINS LIGHTWEIGHT TITLE IN FAST BOUT WITH GOODRICH

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 7—(A. P.)—Rocky Kansas of Buffalo tonight won the lightweight championship of the world from Jimmy Goodrich, also of Buffalo.

In a stirring 15 round bout replete with action every second the veteran challenger outscored the champion and achieved the goal he set himself to win more than 14 years ago.

The new champion, a sturdy, stocky fighter of Italian descent, has been the idol of Buffalo boxing fans for years. His victory tonight surprised the experts who had figured that the youth and skill of Jimmy Goodrich would carry him through.

Goodrich was chosen successor to Benny Leonard in an elimination bout last summer, without fighting Leonard who retired. Kansas was defeated by Leonard three times.

Kansas piled up an imposing lead in the first, third, fourth and fifth rounds. The "Buffalo Hercules" fought back in determined fashion and refused to relinquish his lead.

The new champion's scores were largely registered with vicious lefts to the face and head which early opened up big cuts about Goodrich's eyes. Neither boxer hesitated to mix it up when occasion offered and more than once the bell found them toe to toe, hammering away at one another viciously.

The bout drew the largest indoor crowd in the history of Buffalo boxing, nearly 12,000. Receipts were estimated by promoters at $35,000.

The judges were George Patrick of New York and Thomas Flynn of Brooklyn. James Crowley of New York was the third man in the ring.

The Preliminaries

Bobby Tracey, Buffalo, received the decision over Budy A. Hearn, Buffalo, in 4 rounds. They are welterweights.

Tony Russo, Pittsburgh, and Luke Carr, Buffalo, lightweights fought six rounds to a draw.

In the semi-final Frankie Garcia of Utica, a brother of Bushy Graham, defeated Charles Pinto, of Buffalo, in a fast six round bantamweight bout.

GRANGE'S $300,000 MOVIE CONTRACT BRINGS HIS EARNINGS TO $500,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 7—(A. P.)—Red Grange trod a golden path in his spectacular week-end visit to New York.

The former hero of college gridirons, now starring as a professional with the Chicago Bears, left the city this afternoon for Washington to fulfill a playing engagement there tomorrow after realizing close to $400,000 here within the short space of 24 hours on his fame and name.

The climax of Grange's financial operations, now as sensational as any of his performances on the football field, was the signing of a motion picture contract today under which he was immediately handed a check for $300,000, representing a flat guarantee for his appearance on the screen.

In addition to this Grange was paid $36,000 for participating in the 19 to 7 victory scored by his Bears over the New York Giants yesterday at the Polo Grounds before a record crowd of 75,000 and received $40,000 more from Metropolitan business concerns obtaining his endorsement for sweaters, dolls, caps, shoes, tobacco and souvenirs.

Grange gained about 150 yards during his short afternoon's work against the Giants so that his share of the gate receipts represented $240 for each yard he advanced. This amount he received for his game here was nearly double that for any previous engagement and brought his total estimated revenue from actual playing to about $90,000.

All told Grange has accumulated close to a half million dollars since he left the University of Illinois two weeks ago.

The remarkable earning power attached to his name and prowess has had no equal in professional athletic ranks. Not even Babe Ruth in his palmiest days as the idol of baseball idols commanded the financial return of Grange. Ruth's annual salary with the Yankees for several years has been $52,000 while other interests are not believed to have increased this beyond $100,000 for any single season.

Grange's movie contract was negotiated by his manager, C. C. Pyle, with W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Pictures Corporation of New York. Red will start work on his first picture about March 1, 1926 after completing a transcontinental tour with the Bears.

Following the game in Washington tomorrow, Grange and his team-mates journey to Boston for a battle with the Providence Steam Rollers Wednesday. Twenty-five games altogether remain on the Bears' schedule, the itinerary taking them to Florida and thence across the country to the Pacific coast, where the tour will wind up about the middle of February.

TOOLE RE-ELECTED WITH $2,000 SALARY INCREASE

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP)—John Conway Toole was re-elected president of the international league for a five year term at an increase of $2,000 in salary at the annual meeting of the league today. Despite the opposition of the major leagues, President Toole was chosen on the first ballot by a vote of 6 to 2, Buffalo and Newark casting ballots against the selection.

The magnates also voted to play a 168 game schedule starting April 14 and closing September 19. Lawrence Solomon of Toronto, Mike Kelly of Syracuse and Jack Dunn of Baltimore were appointed a schedule committee to draft a playing program and report at a special meeting to be held in Toronto, probably February 8.

The fight against Toole was led by Samuel Robertson of Buffalo and Charles A. Davids, new owner of the Newark club.

When the call was sounded to make the election unanimous Davids switched to the majority and cast his vote for Toole but Robertson remained by his guns.

In addition to the five year contract, the magnates voted to increase Toole's annual salary from $10,000 to $12,000, and granted an annual increase of $1,250 to William J. Manley, secretary to President Toole.

According to the tentative playing program the northern teams will open in the south and the southern teams will close in the north. The magnates also discussed a change in the option rule which will permit managers to send out first year players on option without asking for waivers. This proposition will be discussed further at the special meeting in Toronto.

ATHLETICS NOT INTERFERING WITH STUDIES AT CORNELL

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 7—(A. P.)—Athletics at Cornell university do not interfere with the academic work, Gilmore Dobie, coach of the football team declared tonight in a reply to a criticism of the game made by Dr. Stewart Paton, professor in Princeton university.

"Athletics at Cornell are so conducted as to be of no detriment to academic procedure," Dobie said, asserting that criticisms have been directed at football by those who have little interest in the game.

FOOTBALL MENTORS SEE NO HARM IN THE PRO GAME

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The attack upon professional influences in football and the effect of all-American team selections in emphasizing individualism, launched by Edward K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee, found rebuttal today in statements by two gridiron authorities, Foster Sanford of Yale, former Rutgers coach, and Parke Davis of Princeton, historian of the game. Their opinions were quoted by the New York Sun as an answer to Mr. Hall's remarks, made at a dinner given Saturday to members of an all American team selected by the Sun.

Taking issue with Hall's attitude, Davis professed to see no harmful affects in selecting all-American teams or in the growth of professional football.

"If professional football continues to progress," said Davis, "college football will not be injured a particle, for the reason that thousands of young men, who cannot attend universities, will learn to play the game well enough to earn good salaries, so long as the professional game is played honestly and is capably managed, hostile criticism is not deserved."

Sanford, while saying he always has been opposed to professional football and while head coach at Rutgers refused $125,000 for his services in connection with it, nevertheless expressed the belief that the "pro" game has come to stay. He added that the material for professional teams was to be found outside of college ranks as well as in them and ventured the belief that he could "put together a non-college eleven that would defeat any of our leading varsity teams."

Sanford also said he saw no evil influence in selecting all American teams.

"Fundamentalism in football is out of date," Sanford said. "The game has outgrown old fogey ideas."

ALABAMA SIGNS TO PLAY ON PACIFIC COAST

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The university of Alabama tonight signed a contract here to play in the tournament of roses football game at Pasadena, Calif., on New Year's day against a Pacific coast team yet to be selected, Announcement was made by Jack W. Benefiel, representing the coast teams, who has been here several days trying to sign an eastern competitor.

MANY TRADES EXPECTED TO BE MADE AT TODAY'S NATIONAL LEAGUE MEETING

NEW YORK, Dec. 7—(A. P.)—Armed with persuasive adjectives, good intentions and bulging pocket-books, magnate and manager were lined up here tonight for the annual barter in baseball stars tomorrow at the annual meeting of the National league.

There was no indication tonight that they would be required to call upon oratory for anything else. Baseball corridors echoed notes from a turbulent session of the International league today, but they failed to chase the dove of peace from the camps of the senior baseball circuit and of the American league, the latter of which will go into session Wednesday. Furthermore, signs pointed even to a joint session of both leagues without discord on Thursday.

A flare-ups between High Commissioner K. M. Landis and President Ban Johnson of the American league apparently had left no sparks likely to be fanned into new flames, so that the jingle of the money bags and the verbal barrage at the auction block appeared to have the center of the stage.

It appears generally established that both leagues will approve an earlier closing of the season but not a shortening of the 154 game schedule. President John A. Heydler of the National league favors terminating the race on Sept. 26 in the west and Sept. 29 in the east, this permitting the world series to get under way Oct. 1.

Several magnates have suggestions for improving world series contests. Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh opposed Ban Johnson's plan to do away with extra boxes and bleachers at the post-season event. Dreyfuss seeks to have the open seats screened to prevent outfielders going out of the playing field to catch fly balls.

Clark Griffith of Washington brings with him a proposal to make all future world series ties free games, with rain checks to be issued for the game on the succeeding day. President Heydler of the National league and Dreyful also seek to avoid unnecessary delays on account of rain, the latter's recommendation being to have called games played out from the point at which they are stopped, with the same line-ups.

Still another suggestion to prevent possible postponement of world series games will provide for starting time to be fixed at 1:30 instead of 2 p. m.

Both New York clubs are in the market for players. Manager McGraw of the Giants has made no attempt to disguise the fact that he needs a catcher. There were rumors of a trade several weeks ago under which Pitcher Luque and Catcher Hargrave of Cincinnati would come here for several New York players, but it failed to materialize. Expectations are now held out for a deal between New York and Philadelphia by which McGraw would acquire Pitcher Jimmy Ring and either Jimmy Wilson or Dutch Henline, catchers.

Manager Arthur Fletcher of the Phillies was on the scene early today and admitted he was in the market for trades "that will strengthen my club," but said he had not talked with McGraw.

Contrasted with Miller Huggins of the Yankees, who has announced he is ready to part with most of his veteran stars in order to build a new machine, Bill Veeck of the Chicago Cubs brings a "million dollar checkbook" from the city with an outlook considered here as rather dim. Most of the other clubs in the league are looking for trades which will involve players, and as the Cubs are expected to offer cash only, their business outlook is not as bright as Manager Joe McCarthy might have hoped.

BASKETBALL

Fast Preliminary Game

TAFTVILLE FIVE CLASHES WITH HARTFORD CRESCENTS THIS EVENING

What promises to be the stellar basketball attraction of the season will be staged in the Parish hall this evening when the Taftville Five will meet the fast Hartford Crescents.

The hoopsters from the Capitol city will present in their line up an array of basketball stars that have a state wide reputation of being top notch performers of the chalked court.

Trotting in the forward berths will be "Abe" Silverman and Tim Cronin. Silverman, a former captain of Hartford High for two seasons and high scorer for the Dixie five, state champs last season, Cronin is a former Kacey star having performed on the local court on several occasions. Dutch Leonard will jump at center. Dutch needs no introduction to the majority of fans in this vicinity as he has played a stellar role both with and against the local team for the past four years. In the back court McKiernan and Bennett will form the defense. McKiernan is no stranger in these parts having performed in a creditable manner on many baseball diamonds in this vicinity last season. Bennett is a former Dixie star.

The local team have hit their winning stride after their surprising defeat on their opening day and with the following lineup will endeavor to annex another victory to their record. Harris, Normandin, Gauthier, F. Murphy, Coleman Bros. E. Murphy.

In booking this star aggregation the local management has gone to considerable expense to endeavor to give the fans in this vicinity the best attraction in the state with the anticipation however that they will turn out en masse to support the team to the limit.

In the preliminary game the Celtics will clash with the Taftville Nordics.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Building in Norwich is almost at a complete standstill as far as starting any new building is concerned. During the past two weeks only two applications for permission to build have been received at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton and during the past week only one permit was granted. Up to December the building in Norwich had exceeded the record for a year and with only three weeks to go to 1926 it is probable that a new record in building will be set.

The large number of new homes that have been erected during the year is reflected in the large number of flats and tenements that are vacant and for rent at the present time. The present year has seen a record number of new dwelling houses erected, many of them of the cottage house type while others are of the two-family kind. This means that many families that have been renting apartments have moved into their own homes leaving many tenements and apartments vacant.

The rain of last week held up building operations locally as well as in the entire eastern part of the state. Some progress was made on interior work but the exterior work was almost at a standstill.

The only permit granted by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton was to Max Belt to erect an addition to his garage in the rear of 59 Asylum street. The addition will be 20x24 feet and of frame construction and will conform to the same type of construction as the present garage. The building will have a cement floor and foundation and the roof will be covered with asbestos shingles.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week the number of sales of real estate in Norwich was eight, exactly the same as for the same week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $38,765 and $57,432.

In New London there were six sales or real estate during the past week, four less than for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $14,980 and $35,000.

Building Permits in State

Building permits were issued during the past week in the towns of the state reported in these columns to the number of 313 as compared with 253 in the like week of 1924, and 242 in 1923. The cost of new construction for this week was $1,773,762. In the like week of last year the cost of new buildings for which permits were issued amounted to $1,023,019, and in 1923, $696,1[illegible]

Building Outlook

At the present there is every assurance that business during the early months of 1926 will measure up to the last half of this year. Operations in the steel industry are at a level above 80 per cent of capacity and orders for the future are being received in large volume. And in general the other industries are proportionately busy. There is, however, one factor in the situation which might be termed a weakness and which must not be overlooked. That is the condition which has resulted from three successive years of tremendous building construction. Declining rents and increasing vacancies have given rise to the belief that a check in the huge amount of speculative building will be witnessed during the coming year. And this in spite of the enormous volume of construction work required by the normal annual growth of the country's population and replacement demand, would mean a material shrinkage in the year's building totals and a recession in all industries dependent on construction. "Only speculative operations at a level well above immediate prospective demand," says the National Bank of Commerce of New York, "can prevent a decline."

New London

Plans have been completed for alterations to the rear section of the Thomas Hose House on Williams street. That part of the building was recently declared unsafe by the building inspector. It is planned to shore up the present walls with new piling and to make repairs necessary to meet the requirements of the building department. The city purchasing agent will receive bids for the proposed work.

Sub-contracts for the dining hall, being erected at Connecticut College on Mohegan avenue, by H. Wales Lines Co., Mercer building, have been awarded as follows: Roofing, Thames Sheet Metal Works, 14 Hamilton street; mill work, Hawthorne Sash & Door Co., Moore avenue. The owners will do the plumbing, heating and electric wiring.

The contract has been awarded to Fowler & Rathbun of Norwich, for a house on Williams street for Clyde R. Smith, 12 Fowler street. From plans prepared by the contractors, the house will be 24x32 feet, of frame construction, arranged cottage style for one family. The cost will be about $5,000.

The cellar is being excavated for a house in the rear of Montauk avenue for Silas Maxson, Jr., 233 Bank street. The proposed house will be 32x24 feet, containing five rooms. There will be steam heat, with a gas burning heater, fireplaces and other conveniences. The work will be done by day labor.

Work has been started by Manuel Sousa on a house at 104 Squire street. The dwelling will be 22x26 feet, cottage type, arranged for one family. The owner will do the carpentry work and will let sub-contracts for the remainder of the work.

The contract has been awarded for an addition to the dwelling of Mrs. Martin Burke in Waterford. The addition will be 10x22 feet, two stories high, of frame. The contract also includes interior alterations to the present house. There will be new plumbing and electric wiring.

The house which is being built in the rear of 714 Montauk avenue for Silas Maxson, Jr., has been plastered. As reported before the house is of bungalow type, arranged for five rooms.

Another house on the same street, for which the same sub-contracts have been awarded, is ready to be plastered. The second house, 22x30 feet, with an ell 12x12 feet, will contain five rooms.

Bids will be received until December 9, at 11 a. m., at the office of the city purchasing agent, Municipal building, for the remodeling of the heating system at the Nathaniel Wm. school (east section). Plans and specifications may be obtained at the office of the city engineer.

Building Permits

Antone Enos, cottage, 135 Bayonet street, $4,000.

Samuel Epstein, addition, 176 Jefferson avenue $500.

Manuel Sousa, frame cottage, 104 Squire street, $5,000.

E. J. Carlson, garage, 507 Ocean avenue $200.

C. R. Smith, frame cottage, 768 Williams street, $5,000.

R. W. Goodfellow, frame [illegible] Farnsworth street, $1,000.

Number of permits issued for the week, 7; estimated cost of buildings, $16,800.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

A soldier of the Revolutionary war, Samuel Atwell, died at his home in Montville, 75 years ago leaving a brother and two sisters, all over 80 years of age, one of them over 100 years old.

Items from the Courier of 1850, in part, are as follows:

December 3, 1850—Information being turned over to the Courier continues to point to the advantages of the direct railroad route to New Haven via this city, in preference to routes through Willimantic or New London and the arguments advanced are most sound, although we believe that New London will be selected if the necessary money is subscribed. By every possible means of getting at the subject, the Norwich route is the shortest and will afford better running time for all trains, but this probably will have nothing to do with the final disposition of the case, despite the fact that Norwich capital is on hand, ready to be given at once if the route through this city is selected.

The new and splendid steamer Connecticut, but just placed on the New York and Boston route, via Norwich, made her first trip on the 18th and had on board six newly married couples. The Union is safe, for three of the brides of northern men, were southern women.

One hundred California men have offered $500 each for ten concerts, and will take the risk of selling tickets, if Mr. Barnum will take Jenny Lind to that state for ten concert appearances. The sum of $500,000 for ten concerts is a tidy sum and Barnum will probably accept.

There was a fatal accident at Staffordville on Thanksgiving day, when a gun went off while two hunters were enjoying a friendly scuffle, the shot striking one man in the breast.

Thursday, December 5, 1850—An alarm of fire was sounded last evening at half past eight. The fire companies were out in a twinkling; and it was but a few minutes before they were playing away at the burning building, which proved to be a wooden barn, small and old, on Union street, and occupied by Mr. Bennett, of the "Up Town Hourly." The property is owned by Mr. Edwin Gavitt, whether insured or not, we do not know. Mr. Bennett expresses a belief that the barn was set on fire through design.

There was a fatal accident on the Providence and Worcester road yesterday morning, the up train running into a standing train, which was on a siding (the switch being wrong). The engineer and firemen jumped and saved themselves but the baggage master was crushed between two cars. Several passengers were bruised, but not seriously.

The Spanish government has issued orders for the release of the remaining Contoy prisoners according to an announcement by the state department.

Saturday, December 7, 1850—Samuel Atwell, aged 95 years and 6 months, died in Montville, November 26th. He was a soldier of the Revolutionary War, having served during most of the war. He belonged to a family of eleven children, three sons and eight daughters, one brother and two sisters surviving him. The brother is over 84 years old, one of the sisters is over 80 while the other sister is nearly one hundred and one years of age. She was married at the age of 20 and has been housekeeping for 81 years.

The name of the post office at Quondock, Windham county, has been changed to Sterling. The name of Sterling, in the same county, has been changed to Sterling Hill.

Mayor Buckingham presided at the meeting of the court of common council of the city of Norwich, held December 4th. As a part of the business Alderman Hovey submitted a proposition from the Norwich Mutual Assurance company, relative to their liability to pay city taxes, which was referred to the mayor and Alderman Hovey, with full power to act in the premises.

Word has been received of the loss at sea of the screw steamer Helena Sloman, 300 tons burden, 180 horsepower, built in England about six months ago, while enroute from Hamburg to New York. She carried a passenger list of over 180 persons and nine lives were reported lost, 175 people having been rescued by the American Packet ship Devonshire, Captain Hovey, from London.

As we prepare to formally open the doors, tomorrow, on the Greater Plaut-Cadden Store, let us turn back the pages of time fifty-three years to the little store founded by A. Plaut and reflect on the great progress that has been made.

Nearly three generations have passed since this business was founded and many times we have been forced to move to larger quarters and to expand to meet the growing needs of the business. Year in and year out we have grown because we have served faithfully, honorably, conscientiously.

This growth—this progress—is due to the fact that The Plaut-Cadden Co. was founded with IDEALS, with PRINCIPLES, with FAITH in the people. We were pioneers in the Credit Service Business. We have made it possible, by means of our Liberal Budget Credit System, for many thousands of people to possess the finer things of life—for themselves and for their homes—the things that make life richer and happier.

With greater facilities and greater resources we are better prepared now than ever before to render greater and more helpful service.

For many months we have prepared and planned for this great event and now that we are ready to present to you this Greater Plaut-Cadden Institution, the spirit of thankfulness and celebration is in our hearts and we invite you to come and help us celebrate this event—one of the happiest in our career.

A great occasion like this calls for unusual deeds, unusual offerings, unusual values—and the startling announcement described below, as well as the countless out-of-the-ordinary opportunities that abound throughout the store are our expressions of the spirit of thankfulness and celebration.

So come and celebrate with us and inspect this wonderful store—your store—one of the largest institutions of its kind in the East—housing one of the most complete displays of Fine Guaranteed Home Furnishings, Pianos, Orthophonic Victrolas, Musical Merchandise and Jewelry in the New England States.

Simultaneously with the opening we renew our pledge of adherence to the principles upon which this business was founded and which have been responsible for its great growth.

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 7—That the newly elected members of the Westerly town council, holding their first regular session in the council chambers of the Westerly town hall, Monday morning, at the beginning of their two-year term, intend to conduct the business of the town of Westerly as if it were their own individual private business was evinced by the careful way in which all bills against the town were carefully scrutinized, which, if carried through, will leave no "debit balances" as did the former council, retiring after a four-year term. There was some delay in opening the session promptly at 9:30 o'clock, as it seemed that the new councilmen "caucused" in the ante room. After considerable delay they filed in and Council President John D. Nichols, the only member of the former council body occupied the center chair at the back of the table occupied by Former Council President Campbell of the old council. All the councilmen attended, Rogers E. Trainer occupying the seat of Former Councilman Morrison, Harry H. Coleman, that of Former Councilman Utter, Peter Nardone, that of Louis Rossi, Isaac G. Smith, Fowler's, A. Clifford Holdsworth, that of Nichols' (now council president) and Thomas F. Moore, that of Farquhar Smith. There were also present Council Clerk Everett E. Whipple and Town Solicitor Ferguson, Jr., who were with the old council. When the session closed about 11:45, Solicitor Ferguson asked the council to go into "executive session to consider matters," which they did.

The first business was the reading of the minutes of the last regular session of the old council held on Nov. 4th., in which Clerk Whipple in reading the bills ordered paid, spoke of the "no funds available" in the miscellaneous account which had existed since last September, caused by the so-called system installation by Wall & Co., of Providence. The Nov. account still showed $285 due that concern. For the recording of the town ordinances in the records of the town clerk's office, unsatisfactory was the statement made of the work done outside of the office. The minutes of the organization meeting of the present council, held on Friday evening, Nov. 6th., were then read and the new council fathers were ready to grapple with the new problems which were to confront them. Check was made of the matters laid over for the term of one month, which included the election of constables to serve warrants, James W. Burke and Russell L. Slocum. The brakes were applied to the hasty payment of bills when it seemed to be the plan of all the new councilmen to make a more careful check of the bills presented the town for payment.

It then appeared that there were no vouchers for the payments of salaries of officers in the office of the Westerly town clerk or in the office of the Westerly water works, where the list submitted read, "payment of water works bills, $1,981.84." The installation of sewers was being paid for by contract $5,827.99. Councilman A. Clifford Holdsworth asked about the amount of the salaries paid in the Westerly water department and Town Solicitor Ferguson said that the Westerly water commissioners have power to sign weekly salary lists. "Is it not from funds of the town that they are paid?" asked Councilman Trainer. "According to the law, that is the case," said Solicitor Ferguson. "And determined by vote of the council," continued Councilman Smith. "That's going some", exclaimed Councilman Trainer. Town ordinances, page 109, water dept. sec. 2, gave the law in this regard but it was also stated that no ordinances had been passed regulating exactly the duties of the water commissioners. Councilman Trainer believed that the water department should render a complete statement, including entire expenses. Solicitor Ferguson stated that a committee should be named to take up the matter. "It is no use to cover up, not that it is not legitimate, but the councilmen should know amounts, as a new council ought to know," continued Trainer. Councilman Holdsworth moved, seconded by Councilman Trainer, that payment of the November water works bill be held up until such time as a complete bill of monthly expenses could be presented by the water department and that direction be given the council clerk to send a copy of the council vote to the water commissioners, Tristam D. Babcock, Thomas H. Morrison and Lewis Stanton, Thomas McKenzie, superintendent.

"What do you do when there are no funds, as in the 'miscellaneous account,' asked Councilman Smith, "keep on voting?" As no exact answer was made, it is apparent this council will do as the last, "keep voting," with the possible exception that the time is nearer at hand when funds will be available from a financial town meeting.

Regarding the other town officers, Councilman Trainer asked if there was not a vote recorded that these officials be paid by the year and should they not show in statements to the council. "If you want it, it's up to you," said Town Clerk Whipple, "but one town council had said that it was not necessary." Mr. Whipple explained that cards were signed by town clerk office officials and police officers, when they receipted for their pay, and these cards could be produced. Officers over which the Westerly town council had no control by law, said Mr. Ferguson, were the overseer of the poor, Westerly board of highway commissioners and Westerly school committee. Councilman Coleman said that he would not be in favor of holding them up, not the present, but have the next show the figures desired, which holding up procedure President Nichols thought would "create a hardship on some." Councilman Smith's idea was that they can be put together in a few days to show the figures desired.

On motion of Councilman Holdsworth, seconded by Councilman Moore, it was voted to pay all bills with the exception of the water works bill, and additional police bills included. The new school construction bills were O. K'd. which it was said would probably be the last. The bills:

Poor department bills, $457.47; hospital bills, $57.00; dog bills, $32.00; miscellaneous bills "no funds available," $175.65; town officers, $10.94 (summoning jurors); town hall, $32.05; police, $25.72; street lights, $1,004.05; mothers aid, $37.35; new schools, $1,536.68 and printing and advertising, $1.00.

Mabel A. Saunders, appointed deputy town clerk by Town Clerk Whipple, received the approbation of the town council and was so voted.

The recommendation from the Zoning board of Westerly, that the Westerly town council appoint a building inspector to act under the general laws of Rhode Island, together with the recommendation of the advisability of passing an ordinance regulating the construction of buildings, was voted received by the council.

George E. Egger, Westerly's fire chief, petitioned that he be appointed building inspector, and on motion of Councilman Coleman he was made building inspector for the remainder of the year, to Jan. 4th. His salary was voted at the rate of $200 a year. It was the intent and apparent, that to carry on the duties, a much larger sum would be voted later for salary as the duties become more exacting.

Edwin Barber, Jr., former sealer of weights and measures, whose appointment was passed at the previous meeting, was voted reappointed on motion of Councilman Holdsworth.

James W. Burke, Russell L. Slocum and William Russell Dower were voted police constables for two years with power to serve civil writes on motion of Councilman Coleman, seconded by Councilman Smith.

Police matters laid over from the previous session were taken up and on motion of Councilman Coleman of the police committee of the council, Thomas E. Brown, Michael Curtin, George H. Champlin, Robert M. Kessel, George L. Madison, Fred Ferraro and LeRoy Norman were voted police constables with pay.

Thomas E. Brown, on motion of Councilman Coleman, seconded by Councilman Trainer, was voted chief of police. It developed that next June was the time that Chief Brown's duties as superintendent of motor vehicles expired. The appointment of a sergeant of police was taken up and passed over as not amounting to much as the rate of pay was stated to be 30c., a day more than a patrolman. A bond of $50 is required from the chief and from the town solicitor. If other officers make charges a $50 bond is required.

The following were voted police constables of Westerly without pay and without power to serve civil process, when, to the list submitted by Chief Brown, Columbus Zertarini was added by Councilman Coleman and Howard Thorp by Councilman Trainer. They follow:

Alexander Aitken, Adam Archie, Harry L. Barber, J. Henry Burk, William E. Burk, Michael J. Burke, Horace E. Burdick, Edwin Barber, Jr., Milo M. Champlin, Frank H. Crandall, Charles H. Davey, Robinson Hindle, William P. Crockett, Willard P. Hall, William Hamilton, George W. Hoxie, Frank E. Knight, Harry King, Charles M. Lamb, Adolf L. Leon, Louis Leone, Elmer L. Lanphear, Charles D. Maxson, Hugh J. Mulvey, Jeffrey L. Moore, Chrystie McConnell, William J. Motes, Alexander Mitchell, Archie Meikle, Walter H. Nash, Shelby C. Nicholas, Samuel T. Patton, Thomas P. Patton, George E. Phillips, Max Raithel, Guy Page, Raymond A. Reynolds, John Roan, John Reardon, Warren T. Sheffield, Robert Sankey, Rudolph A. Saunders, Harry Scott, Ralph Sparge, Oscar S. Swallow and Joseph D. Wilcox.

Dr. Samuel C. Webster a superintendent of health, reported no cases of contageous disease in Westerly in the months of November.

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown's report for the month of November showed 9 arrests for the month as follows: Common drunkard 1, carnal knowledge 1, operating automobiles under the influence of liquor 3, peddling without a license 1, unsound mind 1, sending threatening communication 1, and one party taken into custody.

Changes in the automobile parking ordinances were voted approved as follows: On the north side of Broad street between the Westerly post office and the Westerly Memorial and public library from the post office boundary line 30 minutes stop is permitted. On the west side of Main street, in front of the Briggs building, where the curbstone was set back recently, a 15 minute stop is now permitted, where, previously, no stop was the rule on that side of the street. The change came from a complaint of the merchants there.

Amendment was voted to the hackney-carriage ordinance, when to the penalty formerly inflicted for violation, $20 and an imprisonment penalty of three months or both were added.

A resolution presented relative to the cutting down of Union street and the completion of a highway through from Broad street to turn and meet Main street, just beyond the property of Mr. Orville George Barber, was voted laid on the table, on motion of Councilman A. Clifford Holdsworth, seconded by Councilman Trainer. The further vote read that the president of the Westerly town council should call a special council meeting that the members might know more about the proposition. Previous to the vote, Solicitor Ferguson, in explaining the resolution stated that it was the purpose of the Westerly town planning committee, consisting of former Councilmen Campbell and Utter and Harvey Perry, to take up the matter of damages to the abutting property owners and that direction be given to call a special financial town meeting to consider the financing. The estimate showed that $55,000 would be the cost, and, as the highway appropriations could not carry the burden, that legislative authority be obtained for a bond issue serially for $5,000, to be retired each year for ten years to pay the cost. Solicitor Ferguson said that 10 per cent of the electorate of the town could petition if the holding of the meeting was not directed by the town council. In making his motion to table, Councilman Holdsworth said, "We know very little about the proposition." The date of Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock was set for the joint meeting on the project by the council, town planning board and special committee on Union street changes.

The council approved the action of Westerly Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton for the issue of his notes date Dec. 20, 1925 and due June 30, 1926, to the amount of $23,200, for the payment of town debts. One councilman questioned the interest rate.

J. Edward Durfy was voted a milk dealers' license.

It was voted to receive deeds, one each from Mary A. Carney, Mary E. Ryan, A. T. L. Ledwidge and Belle S. P. Nibecker, for property along the east side of Spring street, where Supt. Thomas McKenzie, for the sewage department, had secured the rights so that sewer main drains could be laid.

Several of the councilmen asked if they could not have keys to the Westerly town hall as they did not care to be kept waiting outside when they wished to enter the building. Custodian of the building, Town Clerk Whipple, said that no councilmen since the time of Councilman Haswell and Councilman Flynn had possessed keys, and the statement was also made that Councilman Campbell never had a key. It seemed that when councilmen retired from office they kept the keys for souvenirs and Councilman Trainer suggested that Clerk Whipple keep back some of the councilmen's pay, if the key was not surrendered. The council then arose to retire to the conference room, but remained in the chamber when the representatives of the press departed.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following transfer: Dec. 5, Frank I. Payne to Fannie S. Payne, an undivided one-half interest in a certain lot or parcel of land with dwelling house and improvements on the north side of Granite street.

Judge William A. Wilcox, Clerk A. G. Martin and Town Solicitor George R. McKenna, all of Pawcatuck, visited Stonington, Monday morning, when, in the Borough hall town court room, a number of probationers of tender years, whose conduct did not meet strict requirements, were lectured before being returned to the custody of Probation Officer Grandy.

The death of Harmanus Welch Goff occurred Sunday evening about 7 o'clock, at his home in Pawcatuck, following an illness of less than two weeks. He suffered a slight shock Tuesday, Nov. 24, which was followed by a general breakdown.

Mr. Goff was born in East Hampton, Conn., May 23, 1845, and at the time of his death was in his 81st year. He passed the most of his life in his native town, coming to Westerly some six years ago. He was employed at the dahlia gardens of George L. Stillman during most of this period.

He is survived by his wife, Harriet A. Goff, two brothers, two sisters, three grandchildren, a stepson, R. B. Hayes, of Waterbury, Conn., and a stepdaughter, Miss Lillian Russell, of this town.

He was of a quiet disposition and industrious up to his last illness. Fraternally he was an Odd Fellow.

Sixty-five new members and $66.75 in cash contributions were added Monday to the campaign totals of the annual Red Cross roll call. Miss Kathryn Cottrell, treasurer of the drive announced. The various team captains and their workers are continuing the campaign with renewed energy this week in an effort to bring the roll call to a close as soon as possible.

Friday's reports, including a theater collection of $66.61, amounted to 160 members and $232.86 in cash.

Miss Frances Mitchell, of New London, arrived in Westerly, Sunday afternoon, to be the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Fremont Nye.

John Nield, Jr., returned to Norwich, Sunday evening, after being the week end guest of his parents and relatives in Westerly and Pawcatuck.

Miss Lucinda Barber has returned to her duties in a local office, having concluded her vacation.

In the short session at West Kingston, Monday morning, before Associate Justice Antonio A. Copotosto, the contested divorce case of Abbie E. Pearce vs. Langworthy H. Pearce of Westerly, was heard. A divorce was granted on the grounds of neglect to provide and the custody of three minor children was awarded the plaintiff, while the respondent was ordered to pay the sum of $5 weekly.

Grand jurors, having been summoned, are to report at West Kingston, Wednesday, when the attorney general's department has cases for indictment.

Herbert R. Ellis, a former Westerly resident, is the owner of 1,000 acres of land, recently purchased at the newly built town of Riverdale, below Jacksonville, Fla., and 40 miles up land on the bank of the St. John's river. While on a recent visit to Florida Fred S. Ople, of Westerly, met Mr. Ellis and purchased a considerable tract of land from him.

STONINGTON

Dr. James H. Weeks has but recently had three ancient relics of olden times added to his collection of antiques. One is a portion of a horse whip made of all black whale bone. The handle is woven with bone threads and highly polished. It is the handiwork of the times of 1850 or thereabouts. Another is a whip handle of black bone, with fine bone weaving on the outside, and with three sections of white bone carved from a walrus tusk or sperm whale's teeth. Next comes a guager's steel drawing knife made half oval, with handle at each end. James H. Stivers contributed the first and last mentioned to the Week's collection, and Benjamin F. Ross the second mentioned. There are a good many ancient relics of Stonington's prosperous whaling days known to be in existence and in the hands of Stoningtonites. Some of the older residents of the town have even been parties off the old whaling trips.

William F. London of Pawcatuck has had three apartments completed in the Potter block above the post office. Two are at present occupied. One of these was formerly the quarters of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

Deputy State Factory Inspector George Costello of Groton, inspected the Atwood Silk Co., plant Friday.

Major Charles P. Williams of Newport, R. I., was here on business Friday.

Mrs. James Culley and Mrs. Thaddeus Brown were callers in Westerly Saturday.

Miss Lucy Chesebro of Providence, spent the week end at her home here.

A. O. Muller was a caller in New London Saturday evening.

Stanley Brainard spent the week end in Groton and New London.

The Stonington ambulance is in charge of Sergt. Roaul Delegrange and Squad 4 during the month of December.

Miss Roberta Murphy of Waterbury and Miss Constance North of New York, were guests of Miss L. Brown Monday. They continued on to Boston in the evening.

Funeral services for Mrs. Nicholas B. King were held Saturday morning in St. Mary's church. The bearers were Joseph De Bragga, Manuel Mellow, Gell Pont and Manuel Clay, members of the vestry of Calvary church.

Albert Barber, of the Road district, was in town Saturday.

The body of the late Rev. Erit E. Schmits was brought here from Ansonia for burial Saturday in Evergreen cemetery. Rev. William P. Williams of Calvary church, and Rev. George Suisley of Hartford conducted the committal services. Bearers were Thomas Wilkinson, Alexander Loper, F. LaVerne Burdick, R. L. Burtch, Thomas Cutler, George Halett, all Angus Chesebro of New London, was a week end caller here.

A line fence is being put up between the property of Oscar F. Pendleton and Atwood Machine shop.

An incident is told of a local merchant's untimely fall during the latter part of last week. He had been in the post-office on Water street to get his morning's mail and had just pushed open the swinging door and stepped to the sidewalk, when his feet went flying out, from under him and he and his mail landed in the middle of Water street. A nine year old boy, with a scooter, stood looking at him with a dazed expression on his face. He was the guilty party who had been coming down the incline at that part of Water street, at an alarming rate of speed, knocking the merchant's feet from under him before he even had a chance to think what had struck him. The merchant got to his feet and picked up his mail. Finding he had no bones broken he continued on his way.

The merchant now declares that boys should be more careful how they drive bicycles and scooters past the post office doors, or more pedestrians will suffer the mishap which befell him.

Be sure you're wrong; then back up. "I will now proceed in the following manner," said the detective.

"—PROPER TEMPERATURE IN THE NURSERY"

Indian Lake, N. Y.
May 7, 1925

Dear Sir:

In the cool days of Fall and Spring I was confronted with the problem of how to obtain the proper temperature in the nursery to bathe my wee baby daughter. That was the beginning of our acquaintance with our warm little friend, the Perfection Heater. Now at the age of eight, little daughter dresses for school in the comforting glow of our heater (whose number has been increasing to three) and with the family enjoys a cheery breakfast by the aid of the same unfailing warmth.

Always ready, we have found the Perfection Heater indispensable in the bathroom and for the many emergencies which arise in every family where a quick source of heat is needed.

Very truly,

Mrs. M. T. Baker

Sailors' Odd Words

Prof. George T. Flom of the University of Illinois says that the reason sailors use such strange and odd words is traceable to the mystery of the sea and the sailors' fear of the mysterious power of the sea. Uncommon words are employed to cope with the feeling that they are intruders in a realm ruled over by powers more mysterious and terrible than any on earth.

The Valley of Delight

O tell me, have you seen it,
The Valley of Delight?
Its glades are full of Roses,
Its sky is ever bright;
There's just enough of shadow
To dapple and to dance;
And all around
Is Fairy ground
Of love and of romance.

And it hath Waterlilies,
The Valley of Delight,
Upon a lakelet floating
In fragrant gold and white.
Up through the tide, like Naiads,
They burst their silver bars:
Though in the earth
Each had its birth
They always face the stars.

The home of bird and blossom's
The Valley of Delight;
There's naught that man can picture
That may not meet his sight;
The loveliness of Nature
Is all that's lovely there;
Why Mayn't it be Sometime I'll see
That Vale forever fair?

I often think about it,
The Valley of Delight,
Though none I've met has seen it,
No eye by day or night,
And I may never find it,
And yet I know its gleam;
And joy is mine
To see it shine—
If only in a dream.

The Human Plan

Child, weary of thy baubles of today—
Child with the golden or the silver hair—
Say, how wouldst thou have built creation's stair
Hadst thou been free to have thy puny way?
Could thy intelligence have shot the ray
That lit the universe of upper air?
Wouldn't thou have bid the surging stars to dare
Their glorious flight and never stop nor stay?
Yet, casting on this life thy weak disdain,
Thou triest to guess thy lot in loftier places,
To draw the heaven of our human need;
A door of rest, a flash of wings, a strain
Of 'trancing music, and the long-lost faces!
But, after all, what may be Heaven, indeed?

NEW LONDON BOOZE-SELLER TAUGHT JUDGE PRINCE MEANS BUSINESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 7—In the police court this morning Judge Prince hit Rock Diptula a legal wallop that was the hardest administered to a liquor law violator in this city in a long period. He fined Rock $200 and sent him to jail for a stay of ten days and he also ordered him to be locked up for twenty days, after Rock has served that sentence, for selling liquor on the 27th of last month. Diptula was fined $400 in November for the sale of liquor, but he was permitted to pay the fine and avoid serving the jail sentence on suspension of judgment. Rock promised to refrain from selling booze, but he was evidently kidding the court when he agreed to do as he was told to do. Now the court has demonstrated to him that he made a serious mistake in not keeping his promise. State Policeman Fred Caron has been aware for some time that Diptula was engaged in selling liquor so he determined to catch him at the game. Caron handed a decoy a $5 note with an agreement that if he bought the booze the evidence was to be used to convict the seller. The "stool" is Ben Posopodi, a Pole. He danced in to the Diptula place and bought candy, and while he was there he also bought two pints of booze and paid $4 for them. The arrangement Officer Caron had with Ben, after the latter had been searched to make certain that he had no bottle in his possession, was that he should wave his hands when he made his exit to show that he had bought hooch. Both arms went into the air when Ben came from the Diptula house. A search warrant was secured and the house was searched. Half a gallon of alcohol was found. It was the genuine stuff and gauged 165 per cent.—enough to take the coating off any stomach. Diptula had no defense to make, so didn't attempt any. His attorney simply demurred and that was overruled instanter. Diptula was not without funds and friends for a bond of $1000 was deposited in cash for him, and his friend stood ready to pay any portion of the money to secure the liberty of Diptula.

John J. Malloy, a sailer, was in an ugly mood, Saturday night, when he loaded up with liquor. He is stationed at the pier, so he got into the vicinity of Church street and there attacked a tailor named Goodman, who is understood to have been on the way to the New York steamer. Mr. Goodman complained to the police and Malloy was arrested. In court today he was fined $10. Mr. Goodman was not here to appear against him on a charge of breach of peace.

James Nagle made the mistake of operating an automobile without being in possession of a license. State Policeman Kenerson saw the auto with four young fellows in it capering in Huntington street and then the ride was concluded. There wasn't another bit of fun in it. Today Nagle was fined $10.

A breach of peace complaint against Mary Bivona, of Belden street, was polled. She was engaged in a row with neighbors some months ago and then was warned. Since that time things have been peaceful in the neighborhood of the Bivona house, so that case was disposed of.

Michael J. Shea got his from the court! He was charged with intoxication and pleaded guilty, admitting that he was justly before the court. He did the same thing when he was presented on the 27th of November, when he pleaded to be treated with consideration, on a promise to get on the water wagon and to stay there. Mike didn't do as he promised Judge Prince he would do. On the 27th ult. a jail sentence of 10 days was suspended. Today he received a sentence of 30 days for Sunday's performance, while the sentence previously imposed and suspended was revoked. That means a month's confinement for Shea, and the working out or payment of costs of more than $20. Half a dozen other drunks drew suspended sentences.

Henry Libby has sold to Samuel Freeman a tract of land on Friendship street.

Lawrence B. Brockett of Johnsonville, N. Y., has sold a house and lot on Ocean avenue to his brother, Clarence Brockett.

William B. Self of South Orange, N. J., has sold two parcels of land on Pequot avenue to Ernest E. Rogers.

The Eagle Realty company has sold five parcels of land on the former Burrows Homestead plat, Bayonet street extension, to Gaetano Strazza and Nicolo Cicirrelli.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad today sold to the State of Connecticut three small parcels of land at the approach to the Thames river highway bridge. It is understood that the state will cause the approach to be widened where the railroad land has been acquired and by doing so will eliminate the extreme danger that exists at that point at present.

Alonzo Beebe, 82, one of the best known residents of Waterford, died at his home Sunday following a lingering illness from infirmities attending his advanced years. Mr. Beebe was a stonecutter. He is survived by a son, Alonzo M. Beebe, also of Waterford.

George Swanson, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Swanson, 231 Vauxhall street, who sustained a bruised right hand, Sunday afternoon, when that member was caught in the cogs of a derrick, will not suffer the loss of that member. An X-ray picture taken at Lawrence hospital has revealed that only one small bone was fractured.

Charles E. Blackman, 81, one of the veteran employes of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company, died Saturday afternoon at his home, 26 Woodbridge street. Mr. Blackmar, who had been in feeble health for a long time, was employed by the Chappell company many years as a teamster. He is survived by several step-brothers and step-sisters.

Gus Olson, of 22 Pearl street, employed at the plant of the New London Ship & Engine company, died at Lawrence hospital a week ago. Olson falling from the second story veranda of the block, 6 Union street, sustaining fatal internal injuries. The body was forwarded to Minneapolis, Mo., today, where the funeral and burial will take place. Olsen's sister came here from Minneapolis Sunday and took charge of the body.

After an absence of three or four years James Burns, about 55, and a former resident of Mystic, returned to Niantic within a few days, apparently for the purpose of ending his life. At least that is the act that Burns committed for late Sunday the lifeless body of the suicide was found suspended from a rope that had been fastened to a rafter in a dilapidated shack at Black Point, a short distance west of Niantic. Identification of the body was established late this afternoon by Attorney Marion R. Davis. What prompted Burns to end his career, it is not known for so far as could be ascertained he had not been observed about the streets by residents of the village since he departed from Niantic several years ago.

Sunday afternoon sailors were walking the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, between East Lyme and Lyme. When they were about to pass the shack they decided to inspect it and entering the dilapidated building they were horrified to observe the dangling corpse of the victim suspended from the rafter. The body was fully clad and a quarter-inch rope that Burns had fastened securely about the rafter was also securely tied about his half off the ground, assuring sure neck and with his feet a foot and a strangulation.

Following finding the body the sailors went to Niantic where they made known the existence of the suicide in the shack and Selectman Fred A. Beckwith went to the hut and then caused Medical Examiner F. W Dart to be summoned. After viewing the body, Medical Examiner Dart ordered the body transferred to a New London undertaking establishment where it is being held pending its being claimed by a relative, provided some of Burns' kin can be located.

It was the opinion of Medical Examiner Dart that the body had been suspended from the rafter at least two days, if not longer.

William McDowell, about 40, of 41 Orchard street, and a traveling salesman, had a novel, but unpleasant experience this evening when within a space of an hour he was receiving treatment in a physician's office, treatment at a hospital and finally a lodger in a cell at the police station.

McDowell was a guest at the Crocker house and shortly after 7 o'clock he started walking east on Main street. he suddenly collapsed, falling to the sidewalk where he appeared to be writhing in pain. Patrolmen Braxton Hill and Clarence Wells caused the victim to be taken to the office of a physician, where McDowell was treated for acute indigestion, and then ordered him removed to Lawrence hospital. When the ambulance arrived at the physician's office, McDowell was so violent that a sailor offered his services to assist the officers. McDowell was finally landed at the hospital and there he continued his fits of violency. After a half hour's stay in the institution, and during which time he received medical treatment, it was determined that McDowell was not a victim of indigestion, but was roaring drunk. The police were notified and McDowell was placed in the patrol and brought to the police station, being placed in a cell, instead of a hospital cot, to await his presentation in the police court tomorrow morning.

Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin, who recently underwent a serious operation to his eyes has returned to his abode, Nathan Hale street. Mr Cronin's condition shows a marked improvement and it is believed that he will experience a much added improvement within the next few weeks. However, it will be many weeks before he resumes the duties of his office for the nature of his eye trouble is such that he will need a long rest and an elimination of the rigid use of the optics.

Mrs. John Penders, of 11 Mountain avenue, complained to the police this evening that a stranger had robbed her home of a quantity of jewelry.

Mrs. Penders declared that her husband returned home Sunday afternoon and was accompanied by three men, strangers to her. While she absented herself from the house, one of the men is alleged to have stolen a lady's gold watch and chain; a man's gold watch and chain, rosary beads; three breast pins and a flash light. Mrs. Penders did not discover the theft until she returned from her employment this evening. No information could be obtained from Penders as to who his companions were of the day before.

A woman residing at 280 Huntington street and who refused to give her name, complained to the police this evening that she had been robbed of $2.25. She declared a man, apparently a farmer appeared at her home and stated that John Lawson, another occupant of the house, had ordered potatoes from him and that the farmer wanted his money. Lawson was not home, so the woman gave the fellow the money, after which he departed, supposedly for the potatoes, but he failed to return.

John Patterson, 60, of Moncton, New Brunswick, died Sunday at Lawrence hospital where he had been under treatment since last Monday, death resulting from pneumonia. Mr. Patterson, who was a member of the crew of the tug Earle Kesler, is survived by a wife who resides at Moncton.

NEW LONDON FOX HUNTERS DIVIDED INTO TWO CAMPS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 7—There appears to be intense rivalry among the fox hunters in the town of Waterford, in which section foxes have appeared in considerable number of late. The rivalry is between the hunters who seek their game with a dog and gun and those who hunt with traps. This rivalry resulted in a prosecution this evening in which the complainant was George Chappell, who alleged that Fred Damon, of New London, had violated the laws of the state in using scented bait to allure Reynard into a trap. Mr. Damon was arraigned in court but the evidence against him was declared to be insufficient to convict and he was declared not guilty.

NEW LONDON ACCEPTS GUTHRIE SECTION LAYOUT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 7—The city council this evening voted to accept the layout of streets in the Guthrie section recently acquired by the Pequot Realty company and to permit of the laying of sewer and water pipes, there and the grading of the proposed streets, the laying of curbing, etc. The realty company proposes to deed to the city land that shall be used for highways forever. The sections are to be known as Guthrie place, East Guthrie place and West Guthrie place.

The contract for repair of the Thomas Hose company house was awarded to McWalter & Co., at a prize of $1725. Two other bids were received for doing the work, viz: $2100 and $3,400. There was some discussion as to whether the city would be protected in the event that conditions such as were encountered in the construction of the Crystal avenue bridge across Winthrop's cove, but that was regarded as an improbable result of the work. Some 220 feet of brass pipe was voted to be bought from the C. S. Mersick company of New Haven for $524.40. Twelve inch cast iron water pipe was voted to be purchased from the Warren Foundry company at $65 a ton. The Raymond and Alexander company of New London was awarded the contract for a carload of tile pipe.

The committee on public works reported that it could come to no agreement with B. L. Armstrong in regard to a street which it is proposed to lay out in the Pequot section and the matter was left in statue quo. The layout of Chappell street was accepted by the council.

Mrs. Emily C. Speirs, whose term of office as a member of the planning board expires before next Monday, was reelected for a term of five years. Councilor Whiton nominated Mrs. Seirs and as there was no other nomination the election was unanimous.

Permission was given for the installation of three underground gasoline tanks.

Councilor May brought up the subject of a municipal Christmas tree, but action was not taken upon the suggestion, as the city manager was of the opinion that citizens should move in the matter and express their interest in whether a tree should be provided. He said that last year the city did contribute something for the purpose. Mayor Fox suggested that the council might show some interest in the matter as disclosing the spirit of the occasion.

A dozen applications for permission to erect buildings or to alter buildings already erected were presented to the council. They included a request for permission for the Central Vermont Railroad company to construct a storage shed near Fourth street. That permission was withheld until a vote was passed providing that the permission given should not disturb the rights of the city in Fourth street and that said rights should in no way be abandoned.

HARRIS-VAUGHN WEDDING TOOK PLACE WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 7—Announcement is made of the recent wedding of L. Colt Harris, 22 Truman street, son of Albert E. Harris, and Miss Helen E. Vaughn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Vaughn of Jersey City, N. J. The marriage took place at the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church last Wednesday and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles F. Spaulding. Because of the recent death of the groom's mother the affair was very quiet. The only attendants were the groom's father and the bride's mother. Mr. Harris is employed by the city's water department and the bride for a number of years had been in the office of the internal revenue department, at Newark, N. J.

TODAY'S EVENTS

This is the 175th anniversary of the birth of Lady Anne Barnard, who wrote the popular ballad, "Auld Robin Gray."

Seventy-five years ago tonight residents of Baltimore paid as high as $100 a ticket for the Jenny Lind concert in that city.

The National Association of Insurance Commissioners is to meet in Chicago today and will continue in session until Friday.

Blind Artists to Entertain

An entertainment that will include music, vocal and instrumental, wit and humor, will be given Wednesday evening at Odd Fellows hall by John and Mary McCay, two blind musical artists. The programme will be of a popular style that will be pleasing to all. Each one of the entertainers sings and each serves as the accompanist for the other. Mr. McCay is also a pianist of much ability and clever in impersonations and humorous selections.

Christmas Appeal For Toys

Once more we of the Family Welfare Department of The United Workers appeal to you, our generous friends.

You and we want to make Christmas merry for the more than one hundred children that look to us for a happy day. But we feel that we should use the money given us for stockings and handkerchiefs. We know however, that no child could get a thrill out of such gifts nor feel that Christmas had indeed come unless it had brought toys and candy too.

Who will come to the rescue. Won't your children? Surely they have playthings in good condition that they would like to give and so get the blessing of Christmas.

Any toys or money sent to No. 9 Washington street by Saturday of this week will be most gratefully received. Should you wish us to call for your gifts please telephone 878-2.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Parade Before Grotto Circus

The Grotto circus and freak city arrived in town Monday afternoon and tonight the armory on McKinley Ave., will serve in the role of "the big top." It is the "greatest show on earth," of its kind. Fred H. Graves, also Mrs. Stone, managers of this freak city, with their retinue of attendants and score of side show freaks, vaudeville acts, etc., created a mild sensation as they came into town Monday. This show is staged for the benefit of Nemrod Grotto, and is the biggest attraction of its kind that has ever visited Norwich. It is entirely new, intensely interesting, and educational in many respects.

Tonight's performance will be preceded by a street parade at 7 o'clock; all Nemrod Grotto prophets are expected to meet at the Grotto hall at 6:45 and to wear the "Fez". From there, the line of march will be over Church street, to Washington Square, down Main, to Burnham Square, counter march to Franklin Square, up Franklin St., to armory, where the doors will be open to the public at 8 o'clock.

Admission only ten cents.

Broadway Theater

Volumes of applause and laughter greeted the excellent Keith vaudeville acts at the Broadway theater yesterday. This same program that attracted capacity crowds at both performances yesterday, will hold forth today and Wednesday.

Madeline Soisson, a dainty bit of femininity, offered a colorful song cycle rendered in a pleasing voice which was greatly enhanced by her personality.

Nellie Dixon and Michael O'Brien in Troubles in Cork, are two blackfaced comedians who know how to get a laugh, as a result there were 12 minutes of fun and song.

The Six Saxos proved to be a real novelty inasmuch as six saxaphones are used to render a good variety of musical selections. An attractive missings and dances to their accompaniment. They might be called syncopated syncopators.

Oliver and Stacy are Italian character comedians whose comedy is of the laugh a sentence variety with a few songs for good measure.

George Beege and Rae Zupee featuring Up-Side-Down-2 in 1 is totally different from the usual closing acts, which met with the same success here as they received in Europe and the big cities of the Americas.

Warner Fabians novel Wandering Fires is the screen photoplay featuring Constance Bennett, George Hackathorne, Wallace McDonald and Effie Shannon.

Breed Theater

One of the most noted and finely balanced casts that has appeared in any recent motion picture is presented in The Circle, which is coming to the Breed theater Wednesday and Thursday.

The production was directed by Frank Borzage for Metro-Goldywn-Mayer and is one of the best of the many successful screen plays that this young director has made.

Following closely the original play by W. Somerset Maugham the screen version is filled with humorous situations. With a serious subject for its basis it has been treated in a satirical and ironic manner which gives it a refreshing and surprising difference from the usual run of screen plays.

The picture has a short prologue in which the wife of an English lord elopes with their mutual friend. A lapse of 20 years occurs and in the main play many amusing situations arise when the son of the deserted nobleman finds himself facing the same fate that fell the lot of his father.

Eleanor Boardman offers a fine portrayal as the young wife. Three of the most noted character actors of the screen, Alec B. Francis, George Fawcett and Eugenie Besserer form a triangle which supplies a tight vein to the picture, Malcolm McGregor as the young lover and Creighton Hale as the methodic young husband are convincing.

Quo Vadis, the new gigantic production from the novel by Henryk Sienkiewics which has been attracting capacity audiences at the Breed will end its successful engagement today, showing at 2.15 and 7.30.

Palace Theatre

One of the most interesting discussions of marriage ever presented will be offered at the Palace theatre next Wednesday matinee and evening, where the Richard Mansfield Players will appear in "Why Marry?" the Pulitzer Prize Play by Jesse Lynch Williams.

All the storm of wit and delicate shafts of satire centre around Helen and Ernest, a couple of young scientists who are deeply in love but refuse to marry because they are so anxious to preserve that love. It sounds paradoxical, and the conventional family that complete the cast of characters are shocked beyond words when they learn the way in which the couple plan to evade the irksome bonds of matrimony.

Of course Helen, being the woman in the case, is immediately ostracized. Society is more lenient toward men who break the social conventions. But, as Ernest points out to them in a heated speech, "She is not on trial before you; marriage is on trial before her!" For it is after a close observation of the marriages about them that this radical young couple make their startling decision.

How it all works out makes "Why Marry?" a fascinating play, and the lovers are beautifully and brilliantly enacted by Haroldine Humphries and Harold Moulton.

NIGHT LIFE OF PARIS LOSING ITS SHABBINESS

Visitors to Paris who have not seen the city since before the World war notice many changes these days and nights. Leaving aside the fashionable night quarters where the animation is undoubtedly greater, the visitor cannot help being impressed by the improved condition in the night side of the city's life in the avenues leading to the outer districts formerly the highways of indigent folk of both sexes and of all ages, many obviously outcasts.

Most of them used to make their way to Les Halles. There was shelter, too, at the Central markets. Illighted cafes were numerous in the adjacent narrow streets. There, for 2 sous a cup, a man or a woman might buy a drink and linger over it, even sleep across a table till daybreak. Nearly all of these cafes are gone. So has the necessity for them. There are still homeless people to be seen, but they are unobtrusive compared with those of former years.

Better provision for necessitous cases and, above all, the general absence of unemployment in France are undoubtedly responsible for the change.

U. S. Silver Production Gains

Production of silver by mines of the United States in October amounted to 4,982,815 ounces, compared with 4,844,585 ounces in September and 4,943,913 ounces in August. In the first ten months of this year silver output from domestic mines totaled 58,837,860 ounces, compared with production for all of 1924 of 64,221,655 ounces and an output in 1923 of 66,163,333 ounces. United States, Canada, Mexico and Peru, representing about 81 per cent of the world's total silver productive capacity, produced 14, 090,667 ounces in October, or approximately the same as the average of the past three months to Nov. 1 up to 156,355,699 ounces compared with 191,401,240 ounces in all of 1924.

MARKET WAS BULLISH.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(By The A. P.)—Aggressive bullish demonstrations were resumed in the stock market today, lifting prices of many standard railroad and industrial shares sharply higher. The broad buying movement expressed Wall street's favorable response to the remedies proposed by President Coolidge for the country's agricultural ills and its confidence that the present session of congress would bring forth constructive legislation.

Railroad shares displayed impressive strength, the price average of representative issues again mounting to a new high level for the year. Buying of the carrier stocks was in contrast to their usual reaction to the gathering of a new congress. The announcement that October earnings were the highest in the past five years and reports of forthcoming consolidations accentuated the rise in this group.

New High prices for the year were established by both high grade and speculative issues. With hints of favorable developments sounded in connection with this week's meetings of the Baltimore and Ohio and Southern Railway directors, the stocks of these companies were carried up around the year's best prices. Prospects of an early amalgamation of the Walter Roads lifted Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville and Nashville, and Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis to record peaks on gains of 3 to 5 1-2 points. Atchison, Pennsylvania, Kansas City Southern and Western Pacific also forged into new high ground.

A rise in the call money rate to 5 1-2 per cent. after renewals had been effected at 5 per cent., failed to halt the upward movement of prices. Sporadic realizing sales were promptly absorbed and short selling in some of the vulnerable industrial issues made little headway.

A spectacular rise of 18 points in Chrysler featured the revival of activity in the motor shares. Renewed buying was promoted by reports of early dividend action, a factor which also contributed to a jump of 8 1-2 points in Hudson Motors. Mack Trucks, White Motors, Pierce-Arrow, Studebaker, General Motors, Dodge and Jordan resumed their advance, with gains ranging from 1 to 3 points.

Oil and food company shares ran a close race with the motors in an attempt to capture speculative favor in the industrial list. Further gasoline price advances created a fresh demand for the petroleum stocks, with the Pan-American issues, General Petroleum and California Petroleum showing conspicuous strength. Fleischman spurted up to a new high record at 148 and closed at 146 5-8, for a net gain of 7 1-8 points while Postum Cereal closed 3 points higher at 93 after selling at a new top price of 96.

Spirited bidding for U. S. Steel, which rebounded more than 2 points to 137, provided a firm foundation for the advance of other industrial shares DuPont moved up almost 5 points and Baldwin, Central Leather issues, United Cigar Stores and Consolidated Cigar made a good showing. American Can, however, was hammered down more than 4 points on the belief that a prospective split up of shares already had been discounted.

Trading in foreign exchanges was quiet. Demand sterling failed to extend the improvement shown last week and was quoted fractionally lower at $4.84 7-8. French francs held steady around 3.85 cents.

TAFTVILLE

The annual meeting and election of officers of Council Gagnon, No. 209, Union St. Jean Baptiste d'amerique, was held Thursday evening in the union's rooms at Parish hall, with the president, Joseph C. Marsan presiding. There was an unusually large attendance, and three new members proposed by Mr. Marsan were voted into the council. Mr. Marsan announced that Alma Forcier, one of the national directors, had offered a prize of ten dollars to the council in district No. 8, that secured the most members before the next district meeting which is to be held in Occum on the fourth Sunday in February. J. O. Tellier addressed the meeting, stating that with proper cooperation the members of the local council could follow the example set them by Mr. Marsan and add from 50 to 75 new members to the rolls before that time.

It was voted to give a play some time in January, the funds to go into the treasury. The election of officers resulted as follows: Chaplain, Rev. Henri F. Chagnon; dean, Mrs. Mathias Paradis; honorary president, Joseph Gauvin, Sr.; president, Joseph C. Marsan; vice president, Mrs. A. Benoit; secretary, Omer Tellier, Jr.; assistant secretary, Wilfred Tellier; financial secretary, Armand Lippi; treasurer, J. O. Tellier, Sr.; master of ceremonies, P. Gauvin; first sentinel, Alphonse Provost; second sentinel, Edmund Proulx.

Under the present board of officers the council has made great strides during the past year. Mr. Marsan is now serving his seventh term as president, and Mr. Tellier his twelfth term as secretary.

At both the Taftville Congregational church and the Sacred Heart church on Sunday, attention was called to the Near East Relief fund. At the former, a special collection was taken for that cause.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Frohmader of Dion street have been recent visitors in Hartford.

Miss Helen C. Aberg has returned to Willimantic after passing several days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue.

Miss Noela Mersier of Montreal, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Marsan and family of Hunters avenue.

George H. Young of North Third avenue has been a recent visitor in Boston.

Joseph D. Aiken of the Ponemah house has left town in his automobile to spend some time at his former home in Charleston, S. C. He was accompanied by Harry E. Prentice of Norwich, who is to return by train.

A Workers' conference was held Monday evening in the parlors of the Taftville Congregational church, with the superintendent, Victor H. Davis presiding.

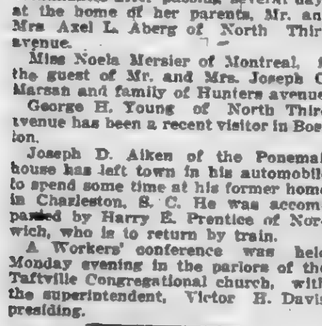
Clean Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"



Hurry Mother! Even a bilious, constipated feverish child loves the pleasant taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to cleanse the bowels and sweeten the stomach. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

SUDDEN DEATH OF GEORGE PARK REVEALS MARRIAGE LAST SEPTEMBER

The body of George Park, about 60, an employe of the town of Norwich and a former supernumerary police officer of the local force, was found in his apartment at 310 Main street about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. Mr. Park had been dead a week or ten days and according to Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve, death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage.

A peculiar odor attracted the attention of occupants of the building. Dr. Gildersleeve, whose office is below the apartment occupied by Mr. Park, and Police Officer John Donovan went into the apartment and found Mr. Park dead on the kitchen floor. Clutched in one hand was a paint brush and in the other a paint can. He had evidently been doing some painting in the room when stricken. Dr. Gildersleeve expressed the opinion that death had come a week or ten days ago as the body was quite badly decomposed. Mr. Cleaves, a next door neighbor, said that he had seen Mr. Park a week ago Saturday and had spoken to him. He had not seen him since. Undertaker C. A. Gager was called and took charge of the body.

Mr. Park had not worked at all last week and his absence had occasioned some concern on the part of the town authorities, by whom he was employed but it was believed he might be in New York city for the week.

For the last six years Mr. Park had been employed by the town of Norwich and prior to that time was superintendent at Hodges' Livery stable. He had also served the city as a supernumeraay police officer a number of years ago, having been on the supernumerary list for about ten years. Mr. Park had charge of the cutting of the grass at Chelsea Parade and up to this year cut the grass with a hand mower. Last summer the town purchased a motor driven mower for Mr. Park's use. Mr. Park took great pride in the appearance of the parade. He was well known for his ability in preparing clam bakes and chowders. He was formerly a member of Ionic camp, No. 7694, Modern Woodmen.

His only surviving relative in this city is a cousin, Mrs. Clyde Booker, of East Great Plain. Mr. Park was a native of this city and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus R. Park.

WAS PREPARING APARTMENT FOR WIFE'S COMING

It was disclosed late Monday afternoon that Mr. Park had been married at Preston City on Sept. 13, last, his wife being Josephine R. Kruger, who was employed here as a nurse by the Kaplan family during the war and went to New York with them when they left Norwich. The marriage took place at Preston City, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. C. Harrison, the Baptist minister. Mr. Park requested Town Clerk G. V. Shedd to keep the issuance of the license and the return of the marriage certificate secret so that Mr. Shedd passed that word along when he filed a copy of the certificate with the Norwich town clerk, Charles S. Holbrook.

The sudden death of Mr. Park, however, unsealed Mr. Holbrook's lips as he considered it necessary that the town officials should be informed of the marriage and he showed First Selectman W. S. Murray the marriage certificate Monday afternoon.

Mr. Park had a room at 34 Franklin street, but was evidently preparing the Main street apartment for his wife to join him. He had not occupied his room since a week ago Saturday and letters were found there, which had come for him last week, giving his wife's address as 67 East 77th street, New York.

Selectman Murray communicated with Mrs. Park late Monday and she intended to leave New York by a late train in the evening and to stay overnight with her sister, Mrs. Watson, in New London, before coming here this (Tuesday) morning.

JUST WHAT YOU NEED

FOR CONSTIPATION AND BILIOUSNESS

Folks who are "dizzy," bilious and regularly troubled with constipation, should stop taking harsh salts, strong purgatives and calomel—and use Dr. Schenck's Mandrake Pills whenever the occasion requires.

Dr. Schenck's Mandrake Pills are safe, pleasant, gentle, thoroughly vegetable and cannot form a habit. They clear your head, sweeten your stomach and cleanse your system of poisonous waste by promoting free and natural Liver and Bowel action. One trial will convince. At your druggist 25c a box.

TWO GIVEN FINES FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

Fines of $200 and costs and suspended jail sentences of 30 days each, were imposed on two drivers found guilty of driving while under the influence of liquor in the city court Monday morning. One of the drivers fined was John Wisneske of this city. Wisneske was the man who collided with the rear of the machine driven by George Gilman, early Sunday morning. The crash occured near the Chelsea Bank corner. The other driver fined was James Casey, 20, of Norwich Town. He was driving a machine which landed in a yard in Greeneville. Both of the accused paid their fines.

The continued case against Frank McClosky, 18, of this city, charged with receiving stolen goods, came up but was again continued, this time until Saturday, December 12th. McClosky is out on bonds of $500. He is held in connection with the break at the store of the Eaton-Chase company on Main street for which Wilfred Porter, 22, of this city, has been bound over to the superior court.

Joseph Bigos, William Washinut, alias Zaskiet and Joseph Zeodel were found guilty of breach of the peace and each fined $7 and costs. They paid. They were charged with striking Charles Juraszyk of No. 191 West Main street. He claimed he was knocked down and beaten by the three men, two women joining in the melee.

Samuel Ariewitz of Montville, was presented on a charge of violation of the motor vehicle laws in not having his truck parked within six inches of the curb. Judge Arthur F. Libby nolled the charge. The charge grew out of an accident on West Thames street late Sunday afternoon when a Ford coupe driven by Daniel Coughlin of No. 194 Laurel Hill avenue, ran into the rear of Ariewitz's truck, pushing it across the sidewalk and into a fence.

Two men were fined for intoxication, a breach of the peace charge against another was continued until Tuesday and a Greeneville man drew a ten day suspended jail sentence of a breach of the peace charge.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE IN DRIVE FOR $500,000

Connecticut College for Women, the only woman's college in this sate, has launched a campaign for better pay for teachers. Thousands of circulars containing facts on the present inadequate pay of teachers were put in the mails Monday to Connecticut citizens interested in education and its varied problems.

The college now has started an effort to obtain $500,000 for endowment, most of which will be used to increase teachers' salaries. In the pamphlet issued Monday, Connecticut college points out that an ordinary hod-carrier working 300 days a year gets $1,900 within $100 a year as much as the average salary to college professors. In making this comparison however, the college explains that Connecticut college is not the exception to the rule but that college faculties everywhere are very much underpaid according to any other profession.

Connecticut college in its ten years' existence has established a record that places it beyond comparison with many older institutions. The record was achieved, the college points out, largely through the exceptionally good work of its faculty. The average salary at Connecticut college is but $2,000 and if the college is to retain its present faculty it must pay more money and in order to pay higher salaries the college now seeks endowment.

The General Education board realizing the college's needs has offered to give $150,000 for endowment providing the college first raised $500,000. Organizations are being perfected in every city in the state to help the college attain its goal. The undergraduates in an organized effort have already subscribed more than $50,000 and are making plans to raise many more thousands.

RAISE QUESTION ON TUBERCULOSIS IN EMPLOYMENT

In the course of a scientific presentation of patients and X-ray pictures, at the monthly conference of the medical officers of the state tuberculosis sanatoria, which was held Monday at the Seaside at Niantic, there suddenly flamed up a sharp discussion of a highly important current public question.

Dr. John F. O'Brien, the superintendent of the Seaside sanatorium, was contending that injury or accident could never be the cause of tuberculosis of the bones, nor for that matter the cause of tuberculosis in any part of the body, and he quoted some recent European estimates of the length of time that must elapse between the infection with tuberculosis and the first symptoms of the disease in bones or in lungs.

Dr. O'Brien admitted that tuberculosis appeared frequently after accidents and injuries, but he insisted that the injury merely localized or revealed an already existing tuberculosis. As many of the physicians who were present at the conference are frequently called as experts before the courts and the compensation commissioners in cases in which employes charge that their tuberculosis was caused by factory accidents or by the very nature of their occupation, the subject proved to be of the liveliest interest.

It was brought out during the general discussion which followed that in a recent paper by Zollinger, a Swiss authority, figures were announced which gave the minimal period of incubation for tuberculosis of the bones and joints as between four and six weeks and the maximal nine months. The minimal period of incubation for pulmonary tuberculosis was given as one week and the maximal four months. The purpose of quoting the paper at the medical meeting was to revive the question whether a case of tuberculosis that appeared before the minimal or after the maximal period of incubation should not be ascribed to something else than an injury or occupation for which compensation was claimed. However, the Connecticut law on the subject is such that, if the employe can show that his tuberculosis was aggravated while he was engaged in certain work, his employer is liable for compensation.

Many of the doctors present expressed the opinion that the law would eventually have the effect of barring from employment in Connecticut anybody who had ever been in a sanatorium or had even been suspected of having tuberculosis or had tuberculosis in the family, and would subject applicants for employment to a rigid clinical examination.

Mass for Miss Driscoll

At 7.30 Monday morning, in St. Patrick's church, a month's mind high mass of requiem for Miss Annie A. Driscoll, whose home was at 45 Uncas street, was sung by her brother, Rev. Alfred F. Driscoll of Bridgeport. At the same time the rector of the parish, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May was offering the Holy Sacrifice at St. Joseph's altar. Rev. John J. Reilly, a classmate of Father Driscoll at the American College in Rome, was seated in the sanctuary. Henry J. LaFontaine was at the organ and the Gregorian mass and incidental solos were sung by Roderick E. Sullivan and Mr. LaFontaine.

Of a Long-Lived Family

Ezra Fitzalund Dart, of Montville, who reached his 93th birthday, Dec. 1st, continues very active and as usual the past season had a fine garden, doing his own planting and harvesting. Except for deafness, Mr. Dart is exceptionally well, and his sight continues so keen that he reads without glasses.

Mr. Dart was the brother of Mrs. Cynthia Dart Allen, who had reached 92, at the time of her death, in Oct. 1924, at the home of her son, Dr. J. H. Allen, of Church street, Norwich.

DR. THEODORE L. STORY HAD A GOOD DAY MONDAY

Monday evening, favorable reports were received from Dr. Theodore L. Story, of Holden, Mass., formerly of Norwich, who underwent a serious operation for gall-stones Thursday last, at the Holden hospital. It was characteristic of Dr. Story's grit that he would take no anaesthetic, but was conscious throughout the operation, which was performed by his friend and associate surgeon Dr. Frank Hall Washburn, a fellow of the American College of Surgeons.

When news of Dr. Story's critical condition reached his Norwich relatives, Mrs. Arthur E. Story, his sister-in-law took his mother, Mrs. Arthur L. Story, of 267 Main street to Holden, Mr. Story following.

Now that Dr. Story is making such a favorable recovery his mother has returned, bringing with her her little six-year-old grand daughter, Olivia Story. It is planned to have Dr. Story come to the home of his brother, Arthur E. Story, assistant secretary-treasurer of the Chelsea Savings Bank, as soon as his condition warrants the change, that he may recover completely. His wife will accompany him.

BRINGS $10,000 SUIT FOR INJURIES RECEIVED

Suit for $10,000 damages has been brought in the superior court against William J. Zahaba of this city by Benjamin Pyzo, a minor 18 years old, also of this city to recover for injuries he received on North Main street on the night of Sept. 2, 1925 when he was struck by an automobile owned by the defendant and operated by Edward Popham.

It is alleged that Pyzo was struck when he was engaged in fixing a tow rope to an automobile that was parked on the right hand side of North Main street, facing westerly. The parked car, it is claimed, was properly lighted and was off the traveled portion of the highway on the shoulder of the road, only one foot of the rear end of the parked car abutting on the concrete allowing 17 feet clearance to pass the parked car. Pyzo was dragged along the ground about 12 feet. It is claimed, sustaining injuries that consisted of laceration of the skull, broken left thigh, teeth chipped and general bodily injuries, causing him to be disabled from attending to his ordinary occupation for a long time and to expend large sums for medical attendance.

The suit is returnable before the superior court in January.

TWO CONNECTICUT GIRLS BEST DEMONSTRATION TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Dec. 7—In winning first prize in the demonstration team contest held at the National 4-H Club Congress at Chicago last week, Evelyn Camp and Dorothy Baldwin of Middletown, Connecticut's representatives, gain the distinction of being the best 4-H Club demonstration team in the country. This was the statement of A. J. Brundage, State Club Leader, here today, after receiving word of the Middletown girl's victory.

"The Perfect Foot and How to Clothe It", was the subject demonstrated by Connecticut's entry, and in this they scored a decisive victory. Eleven other teams, representing every section in the United States were entered in the contest, with Iowa second, and Minnesota third.

Automobile Damaged in Westerly

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Dec. 7—Frank Colletti, of Franklin street, Norwich, complained to the Westerly police that while he was parked on the White Rock road near the entrance to the White Rock farm Sunday night about 8.30 o'clock his automobile was struck in the rear by the Buick touring car operated by John M. Riley of White Rock and a fender was torn off for which he wanted damages. Police Patrolman George L. Maddison investigated and both parties appeared at the Westerly police station, when Sergeant Curtin at Colletti's request had Dr. Michael H. Scanlon summoned to test Riley's sobriety. The doctor pronounced him not under the influence of liquor. Riley claimed that there were no lights on Colletti's Velie sedan. No arrests were made.

Tanney Corporation Expanding

The Tanney Corporation of this city is about to open a new store in Webster, where the corporation has taken a lease for 20 years on the store at 147-149 Main street. This gives a fine floor area, 44x240 feet. During the coming year eight new stores are to be opened by the corporation, which is doing a constantly enlarging business.

GAVE DAIRYING ADVICE OVER THE RADIO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Dec. 7—A. R. Merrill, dairy specialist in the extension service of the Connecticut Agricultural college, gave a lecture on "Buying Dairy Cattle" here tonight, the eighth of a series of radio lectures to be broadcasted from Station WCAC, Storrs.

After citing figures to show that Connecticut dairymen buy 7500 cows each year from sources outside the state, Mr. Merrill outlined the more important points to be observed in the purchasing of dairy cattle.

Mr. Merrill closed his lecture by strongly advising all Connecticut dairymen to buy a good pure bred bull, to weigh their milk, to raise a few heifers from their best cows each year, and to be efficient dairymen. He declared that dairying is profitable when business methods are used.

Avoiding Willimantic Road

Motorists who are driving to Willimantic from this city are avoiding the road over Franklin hill in this soft weather. State highway work in changing the highway at this point have made it tough going in the mud and soft dirt over which the machines have to travel.

NORWICH TOWN

In the First Congregational chapel Friday evening, two successful playlets were given under the auspices of the Sunday school classes of Miss Louise Hopping and Miss Rose K. Durr. The first on the programme was entitled, An Interrupted Proposal. Following were the characters: Stephen Howard, a practical joker, Esther Durr; Samuel Tracy, his friend, Dorothea Buckley; Thomas Stone, a householder, Florence Wheeler; Mrs. Stone, his wife, Dorothy Waterman; Helen Stone, their daughter, Ruth Sterry; Mrs. Ramsey, their next door neighbor, Ruth Barber; Betty, a maid, Helen Schwenk. This was followed by a song recital by Mrs. Richard Quinn, soprano. The accompanists were Ruth Sterry, violinist, and Louise Sterry pianist. The second playlet, A Bachelor's Reverie on Christmas Eve, was by these three young men: Colonel Carroll, an old beau, Arthur Avery; the colonel's old negro servants, Moses, Charles Barber; Elijah, Elton Odgers. The fourteen sweethearts were: Dorothy Waterman, Bessie Whaley, Lucile Browning, Dorothea Buckley, Ethel Whaley, Rose Durr, Marion Buckley, Louise Avery, Ruth Sterry, Ruth Barber, Florence Wheeler, Louise Sterry, Victoria St. Martin and Grace Wheeler. The interior of Colonel Carroll's dining room formed the stage setting. While the story was read aloud behind the scenes by Miss Sadie J. Dawson, the characters acted their parts in pantomime. The cast was capably coached by Miss Dawson and Miss Durr. The ushers were Kenneth Gimbel and Benjamin Barber.

At the Sunday morning worship of the First Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, preached from II Kings 22:10, And Shaphan the scribe showed the King, saying, Hilkiah the priest hath delivered me a book. And Shaphan read it before the King. The sermon theme was "The Gift Of A Book". (Tyndale's Translation of the New Testament). This year marks the 400th anniversary of the first translation of the New Testament from the original Greek to the English language. This translation was performed by William Tyndale in the year 1525, under many difficulties and hardships. He was imprisoned and finally suffered a martyrs death at 53 years of age. During this service Deacon and Mrs. Dwight W. Avery were appointed the delegates to convey greetings of the mother church (First Congregational of Norwich Town) to the Windham Center Congregational church, on the occasion of the 225th. anniversary of its founding. Mr. and Mrs. Avery will attend the services at the last mentioned church Thursday evening. Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the Norwich Town church, has been invited to preach the anniversary sermon at Windham Center, Sunday morning, December 13th., at 11:15 o'clock.

Rev. Charles E. Reeves, will supply the pulpit of the Norwich Town church in the absence of Rev. Mr. Bailey on that date.

Mrs. Burton Jopson was in charge of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the Congregational chapel Sunday evening, when the topic was, How Can We Translate Christmas Into Service? 1 John-4:7-14.

For the Congregational mid-week service for conference and prayer, the theme assigned is, The Promise of Peace. Isaiah 9:1-7.

The annual meeting with election of officers of the Foreign Missionary society connected with this church is to be held in the chapel Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. James B. Aldrich preached on Sunday morning from Isaiah 1-3. The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib; but Israel doeth not know My people doth people doth not consider. In the evening Rev. Mr. Aldrich used for his sermon text, Matthew 13:33. And when the multitude heard this, they were astonished at His doctrine. Miss Grace Mitchell was the leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service. The topic was, "How Can We Translate Christmas Into Service?"

A business meeting of the Sunday school was called at the close of Sunday school at the Methodist Episcopal church. The purpose of the meeting was to make plans for Christmas.

It was voted to have a sacred music service on Sunday evening, Dec. 20th. Miss Hazel Cruthers and Miss Florence Brown are in charge of this service.

On Christmas evening it was voted to have the annual Christmas tree concert. F. H. Bushnell was asked to procure the Christmas tree, and Miss T. Brown was asked to take charge of the concert. Miss Gertrude Tefft's class of young men were chosen to obtain the greens for decorating the church and vestry, and this class with the aid of Miss Theodora Brown's class is to decorate. Mrs. Stanton W. Brown and Mrs. Albert Miner were chosen a committee to buy gifts for the Christmas tree.

The December meeting of the Dorcas Home Missionary society of the First M. E. church, will be held at the parsonage, with the president, Mrs. James B. Aldrich, Thursday afternoon.

A very large company of relatives friends and neighbors, attended the month's mind requiem high mass for the repose of the soul of James Keating, Monday morning at 7:30, at the Sacred Heart church, celebrated by the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan.

Mrs. William A. Murphy was in charge of the musical part of the mass and for a waiting hymn, Miss Mary Buckley sang, When Evening Comes.

Today (Tuesday), the Feast of the Immaculate Conception and a holy day of obligation, masses will take place at 5 o'clock and 7 o'clock in the morning.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS DEALS WITH 46 SUBJECTS

Treating of Economics the Chief Executive Warned Congress That We Have a Debt of Over $20,000,000,000 Calling For Interest and Sinking Fund Requirements of Approximately $3,100,000,000 Per Annum—Praised the Budget System as a Economic Measure—Favors Giving the Taxpayers the Full Benefit of Proposed Tax Reduction Next Year—Advocated Reduction of Armies, Rather Than Navies—Sanctions World Court of Purely Judicial Nature—Requests Observance by the Public of the Prohibition Laws, of Continuing Efforts For Its Enforcement by Public Officers and Favorable Action by Congress on Budget Recommendation For Prosecution of That Work—Solicits Increased Federal Authority to Deal With Labor Disputes in the Coal Industry—Would Strengthen Aviation Without Radical Change in the Organization of the Army and Navy Air Services.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(A. P.)—Wide range of legislative recommendations, some of them new, others a reiteration of policies he has advocated to congress for the last two years was contained in President Coolidge's annual message transmitted today to the house and senate.

Abandoning his custom and that of Presidents Wilson and Harding of addressing a new congress in joint session, Mr. Coolidge submitted his message in writing. One of the longest presidential messages in years, aggregating 10,000 words, and touching on 46 subjects it was read by clerks in each house.

In the field of domestic legislation, the executive urged further tax reduction, giving approval to the bill drafted by the house ways and means committee; recommended action to strengthen aviation along lines proposed by his air board; renewed his advocacy of power to deal with labor disputes in the coal industry as proposed two years ago by the coal commission; advised a curtailment of the shipping board's powers and control of the merchant fleet by one executive, and touched again on the need for encouragement to co-operative marketing as an aid to agriculture.

The president also appealed for observance of the prohibition law by the public and vigorous enforcement with the co-operation of states. He renewed his advocacy of railroad consolidation, governmental reorganization and increased state and local co-operation in reclamation projects, opposed return for the present of property seized from aliens during the World war, and recommended sale of Muscle Shoals to the highest bidder.

In a lengthy discussion of foreign affairs, Mr. Coolidge appealed for favorable senate action on the proposal for American adherence to the world court voiced gratification over the Locarno security assembly, and expressed willingness for the United States to take a lead in any feasible plan for further reduction of land and sea armaments.

In the preface of his message, the president set forth the view that the country "does not appear to require radical departures from the policies already adopted so much as it needs further extension of these policies and the improvement of details."

He also stressed anew the necessity for government economy, insisting that it is the pathway to further lightening of the tax burden.

(Text of the message is printed on Pages 10 and 11.)

BOTH HOUSES OF CONGRESS SETTLE DOWN TO BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—(A. P.)—Congress received President Coolidge's annual recommendations for legislation today and then got down to business.

The house took up the $325,000,000 tax reduction bill, debating it for more than three hours, while the senate received a flood of bills dammed up on the opening day yesterday by early adjournment out of respect to two senators who have died during the recess.

The president transmitted his message to the two houses by messenger and it was read by the clerks. The reading was received in the senate with silence, but in the house there was frequent applause from the republican side for the recommendations, and at the end the members generally stood and applauded.

A number of bills designed to carry out most of the major recommendations of the chief executive were introduced during the day and still others will follow. The president gave approval to the principle of the tax reduction measure, which the house expects to pass next week.

Republican leaders of the house issued no statements on the president's message, but Senator Curtiss of Kansas, the republican senate leader, said:

"It was a strong message and lays out a good plan for congress to follow."

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic floor leader, endorsed that part of the message relating to the world court; expressed disappointment over the reference to aviation and said there was no reason why this country should not cooperate in the league of nations proposal for an international disarmament conference.

"A very mediocre paper," was the assertment of Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the democratic floor leader. He added that it seemed to "be shot through with too much political opportunism."

House debate on the tax bill began early in the afternoon with an apparent spirit of good feeling on both sides, but before the discussion of this non-partisan measure had gone very far politics had crept in and there was considerable verbal pummelling from both sides of the dividing aisle.

The brief debate in the senate was more or less in facetious vein with the vehicle a resolution by Chairman Moses of the postoffice committee, to continue present postal rates until the next session of Congress. Action was postponed, although Mr. Moses served notice that hi committee would not be able to report new rates at least until next April.

UNITED MINE WORKERS ARE TO MEET THURSDAY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—(A. P.)—Prepared to take up any new phase in the anthracite coal strike, the executive boards of the three hard coal districts of the United Mine Workers will meet here on Thursday. President John L. Lewis, who returned to headquarters from the west today, said there was no significance in the gathering of the boards as they would consider purely routine matters in connection with the suspension. Many minor matters come up during the progress of a suspension which have to be considered and disposed of but which have no direct relation to a settlement, it was said.

The members of the boards are also members of the anthracite scale committee, which includes three practical miners from each district and the international officers. The meeting of the boards here will enable them to take up any proposition that might come as a result of Governor Pinchot's conference today with business men from the hard coal fields.

Mr. Lewis repeated his statement made before he left Harrisburg last week that the contest was now between the anthracite coal consuming public and the governor, as the miners had accepted the proposition of the governor as a basis of settlement.

ITALY EXPERIENCES A WAR DEBT AGREEMENT

ROME, Dec. 8—(A. P.)—The war debt agreement entered into between the United States and Italy was ratified today by the Italian senate. The loan arranged with the Morgan company of $100,000,000, was also ratified.

In the opinion of Count Volpi, the finance minister, who headed the mission to Washington for the funding of the debt, the two measures represented, so far as Italy was concerned, the "real end of the war."

Senator Wollemborg, a former minister of finance, voiced a caution against the unlimited inflow of American money. He recommended the strictest control by the government of all proposed loans for public or semi-public enterprises in Italy. He advised that the Morgan loan be invested in profitable industries, instead of merely forming a gold reserve.

Count Volpi announced that the money would be invested in interest bearing values of the first order.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY CENTRAL POMONA GRANGE

MERIDEN, Dec. 8—(A. P.)—Officers of the Central Pomona grange, were elected here today in conjunction with the formal opening of the local order's new building. They are as follows: Worthy master, Clifford Brock, of Middletown; overseer, Walter Wood, Bristol; lecturer, Mrs. Lena Greenbacker, Middlefield; steward, J. H. Broderick, of Cromwell; assistant steward, Bertram E. Ward, Meriden; chaplain, S. B. Carpenter, of Plainville; treasurer, H. S. Blake, New Britain; secretary, Mrs. E. B. Adams, of Berlin; gate keeper, Frank Roberts, Middletown; ceres, Mrs. R. H. Erwin, Newington; pomona, Mrs. Hattie Tolles, Southington; Flora, Miss Alden, New Britain; lady assistant steward, Mrs. Belle Kennebecker, of Middletown; member of executive committee, R. H. Erwin, of Newington.

NOT TO EXTEND CREDIT TO GROWERS OF TOBACCO

HARTFORD, Dec. 8.—(A. P.)—The fertilizer dealers of the Connecticut valley voted today to sell their product to growers of tobacco only for cash next year, deciding that it would be for the benefit of the tobacco industry to do all possible to curtail the growing of tobacco in 1926.

It was further decided at the meeting at the Hartford club which was attended by 25 manufacturers and dealers, to instruct fertilizer salesmen to carry on an educational campaign, reasoning with the growers that one year with a loss is better than stocking the market to provide an unestimable number years of no profit.

Olympia Macri Found Not Guilty of Murder

Verdict Returned by Jury After Deliberating an Hour and 42 Minutes.

LITCHFIELD, Conn., Dec. 8—Olympia Macri, was today acquitted of the murder of John Bagnano whom she shot and killed in the lobby of the Palace theatre, in New Haven, on February 26. The jury, the second one to hear her case in less than a year, was out only one hour and 42 minutes before returning a verdict.

The defendant as she left the court house after all of the spectators had been ordered out received a big ovation from her friends, many of whom have attended the retrial almost daily. She will spend the night here and return to New Haven tomorrow, her counsel, Joseph Koletsky, announced.

When John S. Davy, the foreman, gave the verdict, the young mother who tonight "returned to the infant for whom she suffered so much" dropped into the arms of the matron, Mrs. Mary Todd, who has constantly comforted the girl during the 24 days of the trial. She sobbed violently for a few minutes and then wiping the tears away, smiled bravely at her counsel and Mrs. Todd.

The jury retired at 3:18, but it was not until 3.45 that they received the exhibits which had been introduced in the evidence, and began deliberation. It was learned that Davey, retired shoe dealer of Torrington, had been named foreman soon after the jury retired.

At 4.54 the jury signified that it was ready to come in. There was a stir in the courtroom as the judge and counsel were notified and took their places.

Before calling in the jury, Judge Hinman told the spectators that he did not know whether the jury had reached a verdict. The spectators would have to remain quiet and not make any demonstration, he said. If they were to remain in the courtroom. He asked the police officer to take the name of any person making a demonstration.

The jury was then brought in with Mr. Davey the first man in the file. He had exchanged places with Mott Darling, the 74 year old juror, who was sick one day early in the trial causing the jury to be dismissed for that day. The other jurors took their accustomed seats.

The clerk of the court, W. F. Dodd, polled the jury and asked if a decision had been reached.

"We have," replied Mr. Davey.

"What is your decision?" the clerk asked.

"Not guilty," was the response.

The spectators kept their seats as the jury filed back into the jury room and then out of the court house. The spectators were then allowed to leave the court room.

After they left Judge Hinman asked if there was anything further to come before the court and Mr. Koletsky moved that the prisoner be discharged. This was done by the court, and the criminal side of the Litchfield county superior court was indefinitely adjourned.

"Oh, I'm so happy," was the only comment Miss Macri made. She went into the judge's chamber with her counsel and talked a few minutes to Judge Hinman. Then she left the court house to be welcomed with a rousing cheer by her friends who had gathered on the sidewalk.

In the crowd were Olympia's father and mother, her sister Theresa, her brother Fred and her baby Lucy. Her father has been at the trial constantly while the other members of her family have been here occasionally.

Olympia, her baby and many of her friends, then went to the hotel at which Mr. and Mrs. Koletsky have been staying during the trial. There she was congratulated by the jurors who came up to the Koletsky room from downstairs where they were having dinner. They wanted to see the baby. Four of the jurors at the former trial and their wives were present.

STAMFORD DENTIST WAS FINED FOR ASSAULT

STAMFORD, Dec. 8.—(A. P.)—Dr. James Henry Fagan, dentist, was fined $50 and costs today on a charge of assault and breach of the peace as a sequel of a disturbance in his office early today.

Miss Agnes D. Priest, of New York city, the complainant, testified that the dentist broke five milk bottles on her. She required surgical treatment. She was not held as a defendant. Several other persons in the affair escaped arrest.

He was well known in medical circles throughout the state, being particularly popular with the summer colony at Ocean Beach, New London.

Riot At Coal Mine Near Pittsburgh

Trouble Started When Crowd of Men and Women Attacked a Supply Truck.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 8.—(AP)—One woman is dead, another is in a critical condition and three men, including one deputy sheriff, were injured as the result of an attack by a crowd of men and women late today on a Pittsburgh Coal Company supply truck at Montour mine No. 10, at Library, near here. Reserve deputies sent to the mine by Sheriff Robert Woodside, soon quieted the disorder, which started when members of the crowd threw bricks and other missiles at the truck.

The driver, Frank Flora, lost control of the machine when a brick shattered the windshield. The truck, enroute to the mine with supplies, careened from the road, crushing Mrs George Timko and Mrs. Susie Bezek. Mrs. Timko died a few minutes after reaching a hospital. She suffered a skull fracture. Mrs. Bezek's ribs were crushed. Her condition is critical.

Flora sustained broken legs while Carl Martin, a deputy, who was riding on the truck, and Andy Brookmyer, the driver's helper, were cut and bruised.

Deputy sheriffs have been on duty near Montour No. 10 since hte Pittsburgh Coal company re-opened the mine a month ago under the 1917 wage scale. The first disorder at the mine was reported to the sheriff last Sunday. Two negro miners reported that they were attacked by a crowd. They were rescued by deputies.

MAINE'S CHAMPION FEELS AS FIT AS HIS FIDDLE

DETROIT, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Mellie Dunham, Maine's champion fiddler, accompanied by Mrs. Dunham, alighted from a train here late today, walked through the railroad station, stepped into a luxurious automobile, and then dropped from sight somewhere in the recesses of Henry Ford's organization.

The automobile which met the fiddler and his wife at the station headed rapidly for Dearborn, the suburb which is the site of the Ford estate. At that moment the publicity which has been Dunham's since he opened the letter inviting him to come to Detroit to play for Henry Ford came to an abrupt stop.

Mr. Ford refused to see newspapermen and the refusal covered his guests. Persons in close touch with the Ford organization said they had not seen the fiddler and there was nothing to be said. It was reported that a statement "might be" forthcomnig tomorrow.

It was intimated at Dearborn that Mr. Ford was not altogether pleased with the publicity that had been given his invitation to the fiddler, some reports going so far as to say that the motor manufacturer had felt that a private invitation to a man and his wife should not be broadened to include "all the newspapermen and photographers in the vicinity." Persons in the Ford organization, though, refused even to discuss this angle of the situation.

The last time Dunham and his wife were seen publicly today was when they crossed the railroad station, the fiddler with his precious fiddle tucked under one arm and with a pair of snow shoes made especially for Mr. Ford under the other.

"I feel fine," he commented, "and I could fight, run or wrestle."

He also said that he and Mrs. Dunham had "slept like tops" on their first Pulman ride, explaining that the experience was something like "riding in a wagon behind a jogging horse."

QUEEN OF RUM RUNNERS WAS BORN IN TAFTVILLE

NEWPORT, Vt., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Hilda Stone, known to the liquor patrol as the "queen of the border rum runners," raises turkeys on a farm for a pastime when she is not raising the dust of the Vermont roads in an effort to outrun the border patrol with a load of smuggled liquor, she told interviewers in the jail here today. Mrs. Stone is being held in default of $1,500 bail pending a hearing on liquor running charges. She was captured for the third time in four months last Friday.

"It's not so exciting as rum running and does not pay as well," she declared, "but a there is money in raising turkey."

Freely admitting that she liked to run liquor for "the thrill of it," and that it was "rather fun" to be chased by officers, Mrs. Stone said that she was born in Taftville, Conn., 28 years ago, and now calls West Halifax, Vermont, her home, although her post office address is Colerain, Mass., just over the line. Her husband, she said, runs a sawmill in West Halifax.

Mrs. Stone refused to say to whom she delivered liquor nor would she comment on the charges of the border patrol that she operates for a liquor ring in Greenfield, Mass., that is in turn controlled by a New York organization. She declared that she has been arrested only twice, asserting that she was not the woman who walked out of the North Stratford jail last week through a misunderstanding of the authorities.

"That," she said, "was a case of mistaken identity."

FRENCH FINANCE BILL GOES TO PARLIAMENT TODAY

PARIS, Dec. 8—(A. P.)—France must wait another day before being financially saved, the opponents of M. Loucheur's bill said today when the plan for restoration of the French treasury, unanimously approved by the council of ministers, was withheld from parliament until tomorrow afternoon.

It had been expected that the finance minister would introduce his bill this evening, but an eleventh hour discussion by the finance committee and even among cabinet members caused its postponement.

TO SEARCH RIVER FOR BODY OF SMITH COLLEGE JUNIOR

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Dec. 8.—(A. P.)—A search of the Connecticut river between the dam at Holyoke and Windsor Locks for the body of Miss Alice M. Corbett of Utica, N. Y. Smith college junior who disappeared from her dormitory on November 13 will begin at once as a result of a new clue unearthed today in Holyoke by State Detective Joseph V. Daly, who is in charge of the hunt for the missing student.

TURKS FAIL TO BLUFF THE COUNCIL OF THE L. OF N.

Head of Turkish Mission Threatened That Turkey Would Never Turn Over to Arbitration the Destinies of Mosul—Tamed Down When the Council Voted to Accept the Opinion of the World Court in Decision of Whether Mosul Would Go to Great Britain or Be Handed Over to Turkey.

GENEVA, Dec. 8—(A. P.)—Turkey lost the first round tonight in the battle for Mosul. The council of the league of nations, despite a vigorous Turkish protest, and even a threat to leave Geneva immediately, unanimously voted to accept the consultative opinion of the world court as a guide to its settlement of the problem whether Mosul will go to Great Britain as part of the Irak mandate, or be handed over to Turkey.

The world court has declared that the council has a clear right definitely to determine the Mosul frontier. Turkey voted in the negative when the ballot was taken, but President Scialoia announced that neither the vote of Turkey nor that of England would be counted, in pursuance of the terms of the covenant.

The next step of the council will be a direct effort to mediate between the parties; but if this fails the general opinion is that the council would proceed to impose its decision on the disputants, if it can secure the necessary unanimity. Such unanimity may be difficult, as M. Linden, of Sweden, is said to lean towards an award more favorable to Turkey than to his colleagues.

Today's proceedings were dramatic in the extreme, and the crowded council chamber got a series of genuine thrills. However, M. Linden may stand on the sovereignty issue he insisted as reporter on the controversy, that unanimity was obligatory in accepting the world court's ruling, and laconically informed the Turkish representative that he was sorry but the votes of the parties to the dispute did not count.

Munir Bey, Turkish minister to Switzerland, who heads the Turkish mission, warned the council that his country would never turn over the destinies of Mosul to the uncertainties of arbitration, and declared that Turkish preliminary assent to any decision was indispensable, because the council could only mediate. He threatened to bolt the negotiations, but later, when the council accepted the world court's ruling, toned this down to announcing that Turkey would pursue the negotiations until an actual award was made against her without her consent. If that happened he informed the council, his powers ended, and he must consult the Angora assembly.

HIGH OFFICERS TESTIFY IN TRIAL OF COL. MITCHELL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—(A. P.)—Economy and army air service itself were blamed today by high ranking officers, testifying before the Mitchell court martial, for aviation and other troubles now vexing army executives.

The war department and the general staff, the two agencies blamed by Col. William Mitchell, technical prisoner before the court, for incompetent administration of the national defense, were defended by the six witnesses heard—three major generals and three lieutenant colonels.

Major General Hanson E. Ely, commandant of the Army War college, opposed a unified air service, defended the army's existing organization and declared the best defense was a "balanced army" with all arms cared for and developed in proportion to their value to the whole. As far as the budget permitted, he said, money should be expended on each arm, with the air service sharing among those most essential to a proper defense machine.

The War college chief was succeeded on the stand by Major General Robert H. Allen, chief of infantry, and M. W. Ireland, surgeon general. The infantry general told the court that his branch suffered much the same as the air service did from the necessity of continuing use of war time equipment due to lack of funds. General Ireland agreed with him that recommendations for improvements in the medical corps had been disapproved by the general staff, as had infantry and air service recommendations.

The purpose of this line of questioning by the prosecution counsel was to show the court that the general staff treated recommendations from the various branches without bias or discrimination, and often rejected recommendations from the branch heads because they called for expenditure of funds which the staff did not have available.

The prosecution counsel brought the economy situation forcibly before the court when he showed through Lieut. Colonel H. E. Bullis, a general staff reserve officer, that it would cost the government as high as $36,000,000 a year to give the air reserve pilots training for one hour a week, described by defense witnesses as a remedy for one air service trouble.

INVESTIGATING ESPIONAGE CONFESSION OF FRENCH GIRL

PARIS, Dec. 8—(A. P.)—Official silence marked the beginning of the judicial investigation today into the espionage confession of the 25-year-old Parisien Marthe Moreuil, with whom, it is alleged, three Englishmen are implicated—James Leather, Ernest O. Phillips and William Fischer.

Mlle. Moreuil apparently has been engaged in espionage activities for several months, her efforts being directed against the air defenses of France. Her confession is accepted by the police with reservations.

The magistrate, M. Peyre, today conducted searches of the domiciles of all three men under arrest, but it is understood that no incriminating evidence was found. The men are loud in proclaiming their innocence.

ITALY EXPERIENCY A SEVERELY COLD DECEMBER

ROME, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Relief from the grip of the most severe December weather Italy has known for a generation was promised by the weather bureau tonight.

Rome today shivered in a temperature of 26 degrees above zero fahrenheit.

In Naples two beggars were found dead in the streets, having succumbed to cold and exposure. Thousands of poor in Naples are reported to be suffering acutely from thefreezing weather. Snow is reported on top of Mt. Aetna.

Many trains throughout Italy are snowbound.

BALTIMORE BANK TELLER HELD FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

BALTIMORE, Dec. 8.—(A. P.)—Leo J. Farrell 23 year old receiving teller of the Mercantile bank of Baltimore, was arrested today and charged with the embezzlement of $55,000 from the institution. His signed confession already was in the hands of President J. P. Healy of the bank, and he had waited since October at the home of his parents while auditors went over the books, waiting for word that he was wanted.

Bank officials did not believe they had uncovered the total of the loss in Farrell's $55,000 speculation. They stated definitely, however, that the bank's financial status was not threatened.

"CHRISTMAS MELONS" ARE COMING TO STOCKHOLDERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—Recent rumors in Wall street that a crop of "Christmas melons" was ripe to be cut up for Christmas presents were fulfilled today with the declaration of extra or increased dividends by a number of leading companies. These were in addition to the scores of companies who declared their regular quarterly dividends due at this season.

The increased or extra dividends were well scattered over the list, including rails, rail accessories, steel, telegraph, banking, coal stocks and one or two specialties, and will result in enlarging disbursements to stockholders about $15,000,000.

Western Union increased its dividend one dollar, going from a $7 to $8 annual basis.

In the railway list, the Virginian railway, anticipating the early lease of the road to the Norfolk & Western road, increased its annual dividend rate from four to six per cent. The American Brake Shoe & Foundry Co., increased its dividend rate from $5 to $6.

The Glen Alden Coal Co., after deferring dividends at the regular directors' meeting last month, due to the acute situation in the anthracite fields today came through with the regular semi-annual dividend of $3.50. The Mohawk Valley Coal Co., added 20 cents to its regular quarterly dividend of 30 cents.

The National Licorice Co., added five per cent., to its regular semi-annual dividend of 2 1-2 per cent., on common stock.

Two dollars were added to the regular quarterly dividend of $5 by the Bank of New York and Trust Co. In addition, the bank declared a bonus of ten per cent., of their annual salaries to be paid to officers and employes of the bank as a Christmas present.

Midland Steel Products Co., repeated its action of last June by declaring an extra dividend of $1 on preferred and 47 cents on common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1.

The Marland Oil company, which resumed dividend payments last June at the rate of $3 annually, contributed to the melon cutting by making a quarterly payment of $1, virtually putting the annual dividend rate of a $4 basis.

The directors, in line with previous practice, did not specify the current declaration as being for a quarterly period. Although payments have been made every three months.

Elliott Fisher company declared an extra dividend of $3, and the regular quarterly dividend of $1 on the common shares. In September an extra dividend of $1 was declared.

Electric Storage Battery company also declared an extra dividend of $1, and a quarterly dividend of $1.25. The previous rate for this company was $1 quarterly, with an extra dollar at the end of each year.

ROTARIANS PAY TRIBUTE TO DECEASED MEMBER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 8—Pausing in their deliberations during their weekly noon day meeting and luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday, local Rotarians paid homage to their recently departed brother member, Fred D. Jordan whose death Sunday evening was a widespread shock to the entire community. Upon presentation by Gerard E. Loiselle of the resolutions committee, a resolution was unanimously adopted by the club, offering the sympathy of the members to the family of the deceased. The funeral of Mr. Jordan will be held this afternoon and between the hours of one and two the stores of the city will remain closed in respect to his memory. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock led the members in prayer for the deceased.

President John F. Ahern was in charge of the meeting which was largely attended. President C. L. Beach of the Connecticut Agricultural college, at Storrs, was scheduled to deliver an address but due to another engagement he was unable to be in attendance. With Richard E. Dodge of the program committee, he attended the funeral of Mrs. Orpha J. Stevens which was held during the afternoon.

An election program was carried out by the club. Two Rotarians John C. Tracy and Aime J. Martineau who were elected mayor and alderman-at-large, respectively, in the city election Monday, addressed the meeting. The former expressed his appreciation to the public for his election and said that although not an elocutionist he was a newcomer in the political field who had the interest of the city at heart at all times.

Mr. Martineau placed particular emphasis on the fact that he had not accepted the nomination for a selfish reason, but had simply carried out the Rotary principle, "Service above Self."

Two outgoing Rotarian officeholders in the municipal government, Mayor George W. Hickey and Pierre J. Laramee, sang their swan songs. Politics, the former said, should not even be considered after election and he added that at the present time the city was in excellent financial condition, which fact would give the incoming administration an excellent opportunity to carry on, with a greater Willimantic as an objective. Alderman Laramee made the statement that a great factor in the sucess of the efforts of any administration is the united support of the public and he felt that in the future that support would be accorded. Cigars were passed around to the members by both Mr. Tracy and Mr. Martineau. Harry S. Gaucher also passed around the cigars in honor of his having become a daddy recently.

William A. Dawson called the attention of the members to the approaching poultry show, which will be held at the state armory under the auspices of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association, in conjunction with Company C. The members pledged their individual support to the success of the show. James B. Fullerton expressed appreciation to the members for their participation in the recently closed Willimantic Industrial company stock drive.

Since its organization a number of years ago, Mr. Jordan has been one of the most ardent supporters of the association in the city.

CITY MEETING LASTED BUT EIGHTEEN MINUTES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 8—Only eighteen persons were in attendance at the adjourned city meeting which was held in the town hall this afternoon. The meeting was called to order by Mayor George W. Hickey and the call for the meeting was read by City Clerk James S. Donahue Jr. Corporation Counsel Thomas J. Kelley presented a resolution covering five of the six clauses, for receiving and passing upon the annual reports and accounts of the city officers; the detailed estimates of the departments for the coming year: to approve the budget of appropriations as adopted by the common council and to determine whether or not to authorize the common council to borrow such sums as necessary during the year not to exceed the amount of the appropriation in each department.

The appropriations in the several departments were read by the corporation counsel. A few comments followed by Edward F. Whitmore and Otto B. Robinson. The mayor explained a few of the budget items concerning increases or decreases and then Corporation Counsel Thomas J. Kelley moved that the budget amounting to $179,955 be adopted as accepted previously by the board of aldermen. This course was taken. The meeting was in session but eighteen minutes.

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS FOUND IN SPRINGFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Dec. 8—Sunday morning the police were notified that some one had broken into the fruit store of Arthur Benevenuti on Main street and taken about $10 in change that had been left in the cash register Monday morning when the store of Joseph Wasserman was opened it was discovered that this store also had been entered and about $30 removed from the cash register. While the local and state police were trying to get some clue to the burglary they received word from the Springfield police that three boys were being held in that city. The boys said they were from Stafford Springs and seemed to be quite flush with money. Sergeant Harmon of the state police and Officer George Kealy of the borough police went to Springfield and brought the three boys back to Stafford Springs where two of them made a clean breast of the whole situation. They said that they went to the rear of the fruit store and raised a window and then went in and took the money. The same operations were used at the Wasserman dry goods store, except that after breaking a glass in a rear window, the bolt in the door was pushed back and the door opened. One of the young burglars, Andrew Aldrelsky, who has been in the reform school at Meriden, was out on probation.

Officers from the reform school came here this morning and took Andrelsky back to the school. His companion was Wilfred Dorsey, who has been on probation on a previous occasion. The case against Dorsey, which came up in the borough court this morning was continued for 60 days by Judge Heald. Dorsey is 17 years old and Andrelsky 16. The third young man, who was with them when taken into custody in Springfield was not implicated in the breaks and he was discharged.

JEWETT CITY

TO ESTABLISH BUS STATION ON MAIN STREET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 8—Further evidence is at hand, substantiating the claim of the Connecticut company, that it will spare no pains to permanently establish efficient bus transportation for the hundreds of weekly patrons from Jewett City.

There are plans in negotiation for the securing of a favorable waiting depot on the Main street, which will be the central stopping places for the busses. It is possible that at some future meeting that the board of borough government, always anxious to cooperate in any move or arrangement that looks toward the betterment of home town conditions, may deem it proper and expedient to set aside a space of 50 feet, on either curb, near this waiting room, where the busses may make contact with the sidewalk. Such arrangement would eliminate the necessity of passengers having to enter the traffic of the busy street, to enter the car.

Many local people feel that any action on the part of the borough officials, to cooperate in rendering the service of the Connecticut company safe, efficient and dependable, is a step in advance and that this opportunity should not be overlooked.

TO IMPROVE PHONE SERVICE IN JEWETT CITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 8—The Southern New England telephone company has begun work on important improvements and changes that are to be perfected within the borough limits.

Thirty poles are to be changed for new ones, where the 50 pair line service cables are carried. The cables when replaced, will carry a larger number of wires, which will facilitate the desire of the company to give new private line service without delay. The improvements will also make possible the carrying of fewer patrons on any crowded circuit. Incident to these changes will come a large amount of extra work to be accomplished by the borough electric light commissions.

The poles that carry the telephone cables, also accommodate the high tension wires of the local electric lighting and power system.

All their lines, span wires, cross arms and transformers will have to be changed in accordance with the new proposition.

During the day time, for some weeks hence, there will be periods, when on account of sheer necessity, the current will have to be shut off in certain sections of the borough. Neither the electric nor the telephone linemen can be expected to work on top of a 30 foot pole, when there exists the extra hazard of getting mixed up with a 2200 volt, high tension electric system.

At the open meeting of the Knights of Columbus Monday evening, an audience of about 300 witnessed a fine evening's entertainment.

First on the program was a fast three round boxing bout between Everett McCluggage and Isador Urvant, which resulted in a draw.

Then a very instructive talk was given on Physical Culture by Prof. Charles Glaske. Prof. Glaske has made a study of physical culture in various foreign countries, including Germany, Sweden, Finland and Japan, and he stated that the United States gives greater opportunities than any other country in the world for the study of physical culture, by virtue of its numerous and well equipped libraries. He also gave a wonderful exhibition of various exercises for the development of the human body, both external and internal. Following this came feats of strength, the most outstanding of which was standing his upright and holding on his shoulders a heavy iron bar, to which five men added their weight, making a total weight of over 700 pounds.

Prof. Glaske closed his entertainment with a series of hand balancing stunts, ably assisted by Charles Saunders and Theodore Boule.

The audience was very much enthused and gave Mr. Glaske a rising vote of thanks on conclusion of his entertainment.

After the meeting Prof. Glaski said that if any one interested in physical culture would get in touch with him, he would be willing to assist them in any way possible.

Local people are reporting with pleasure the many favorable results which are being realized by advertising in these columns. Close to 3000 Bulletin readers, in this vicinity alone, are sure to have brought to their notice every week day morning, any offer or announcement made by advertisers, who consider this column favorably. One local woman, recently lost a valuable piece of jewelry. She told her friends, meanwhile hunting high and low. As a final resort a small adv. was prepared and sent to The Bulletin. The woman then returned to her home and found the missing jewel without further trouble. The adv. was cancelled—and the woman reporting her satisfaction, remarked: "that she didn't even have to get it printed." Surely a new mark in advertising efficiency.

The regular meeting of the Town Nurse committee was held Monday evening in the Red Cross chapter room. Miss Alice Brennan reported for the month of November showing the number of metropolitan visits to be 144, baby 16, total 160. Other visits, adult 31, baby 7; deliverys 1, emergency 1, total 80. Total number of calls for the month 250. Bill sent to Metropolitan for $112, amount of money collected $37.75, total amount of money $149.75.

X-Ray Fault Detector

Rapid analyses of materials in the laboratory by the use of X-rays in a much shorter time than required by the older chemical methods is promised by Prof. Urban of the minero-chemical laboratory at the Sorbonne, according to Science Magazine. With the assistance of Engene Delounay, he has just completed a series of tests of the X-ray method.

The apparatus used is composed of an X-ray tube; a lead screen in which a small slot has been pierced; a "selector" or tantalum, as a filter for the rays; a stand to hold the piece to be studied, and a detector to measure the intensity of the radiation received—the intensity being indicated by the displacement of an illuminated spot.

The material to be analysed is placed in the beam, and when it is in good condition, the spot of light remains stationary; but if a fault in the material appears, the electrometer registers physics, the deviation is proportionate to the amount of the fault in the matter. By this method the smallest faults can be detected.

Gold For Far East Bride

Wedding customs in the far east demand that the brides wear ornaments of gold. They wear gold earrings bracelets, etc. Because of this demand 1,000,000 worth of "marriage gold" was recently shipped from New York to the Straits Settlements, says the Pathfinder. This gold was in United States coinage and will be melted and used for ornaments and dowry purposes. Shipments of this kind were formerly sent from San Francisco, but now there is a direct steamship service from New York via the Panama canal.

Helps Britain Pay Back U. S.

An American admirer of Great Britain paid the interest upon the British debt to the United States covering a period of 12 months.

An official announcement made by the Chancellor of the Exchequer says that a gentleman resident in the United States who was born in England has just fordwarded bonds to the value of £1,100 as his contribution toward the reduction of the British debt, with an expression of his appreciation of the attitude of Great Britain toward international affairs. The statement of the Chancellor of the Exchequer concludes:

"Mr. Churchill desires to express his Majesty's Government's warm appreciation of this generous gift." The man's name was withheld.

After 12 years' suffering with constipation, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brought lasting relief

Florida woman feels ten years younger. No more headaches or medicine.

Think what it means to be everlastingly free from the dull, throbbing headaches, sallow skin and perpetual tiredness which are constipation's toll. But let Mrs. Bevis tell you her inspiring story:

Words can't express my gratitude for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. For 12 years I suffered with constipation, always taking medicine, had dull headaches and never felt well. For the past 12 months I've eaten ALL-BRAN and haven't taken one drop of medicine. I've gained in weight, my health is so improved I feel 10 years younger. (Signed) Mrs. F. S. Bevis.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will bring sure relief to you just as it has to Mrs. Bevis and thousands of others. Or it is a bulk food that doctors recommend. It is guaranteed to be permanently effective, if eaten regularly, or the purchase price will be returned by your grocer. Only ALL-BRAN brings sure relief.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Try the recipes given on the package. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is nature's own way of cleaning the intestine. Made in Battle Creek, Mich. Served at leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

Floor of Biscay Bay

The stir caused some two months ago by the alleged discovery by a French government vessel that the floor of the Bay of Biscay had undergone a sudden upheaval and that, in place of the abyss marked on the marine charts, there was now a comparatively shallow plateau, seems to have been a hoax. A special survey ship of the French government, the Gaston-Riviere was sent out to check the soundings reported, and Dr. Charcot's scientific ship, the Pourquoi-Pas, collaborated in the work. After the most thorough investigation it was changed in any way since the charts in general use were made.—Science.

Transportation Wastes

One prolific source of waste in the United States comes from lack of proper freight terminals in our large cities. According to Secretary Hoover there are cities where the terminal distribution costs on many commodities are larger than some long haul rates. It is estimated that 500,000,000 a year is wasted in transportation for which the shipper is responsible, such as improper car loading, wrong routing, and bad packing.—Thrift Magazine.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

In a message which deals directly with a number of important questions before the country President Coolidge offers valuable suggestions to congress. He has pointed out the need of action in various directions and taken the opportunity to set forth the advantages which have been gained by the pursuit of certain policies in the past. In such a programme as he sets before congress he directs attention to matters of national importance, some of which, he is frank to say have been hanging fire too long, some have been monopolizing too much attention and some have failed of what was intended. Taken as a whole it was an outspoken expression of facts which cannot fail to get serious consideration if the best interests of the country are to be served.

President Coolidge devotes much attention to the question of government economy and here he can point with pride to what has been accomplished under policies which he has personally sponsored. It is a convincing statement of what economy amounts to and there is a lesson therein which states and municipalities might well take to heart. When he says that "We have nearly accomplished deflation," it means much, but it is apparent, even as he says, that this does not mean that further economies will not come * * * The real improvement, however, must come not from additional curtailment of expenses, but by a more intelligent, more ordered spending. Our economy must be constructive. While we should avoid as far as possible increases in permanent current expenditures, sometimes a capital outlay like internal improvements will result in actual constructive saving. This is economy in its best sense * * * Economy is the method by which we prepare today to afford the improvements of tomorrow."

This is deserved praise which the president gives to the operation of the budget system. Likewise he has good words for the revenue act by which the reduction will be accomplished and bespeaks for it certain, quick action which the nonpartisan character of the measure favors. Well does he say that "All these economic results are being sought not to benefit the rich, but to benefit the people. They are for the purpose of encouraging industry in order that employment may be plentiful, business good, to encourage prosperity and better conditions in all directions."

His position in regard to the world court is positive. He believes that we should join under the conditions stipulated and discharge our duties voluntarily. "Wars," he declares, "do not spring into existence. They arise from small incidents and trifling irritations which can be adjusted by an international court. We can contribute greatly to the advancement of our ideals by joining with other nations in maintaining such a tribunal." * * *

The president gives his approval to the debt negotiations, terming them generous but certain that "wherever sacrifices have been made of money, it will be more than amply returned in better understanding and friendship." * * *

He is correct in stating that "the report of the air board ought to be reassuring to the country, gratifying to the service and satisfactory to congress, and there will be thorough approval of his insistence that Muscle Shoals has assumed a place all out of proportion with its real importance, and should be disposed of. There will be general support for the statement that it should be transferred to private management.

As for the shipping situation the president calls for the placing of the fleet under direct control of a single executive and a disposal of surplus ships. He deplores the helplessness of the federal government in the coal situation and insists that authority should be lodged with the president and the departments of commerce and labor to deal with an emergency. Well does he say that the report of the last coal commission should be brought forward and acted upon.

As for prohibition he continues to maintain that there should be enforcement of the law and that it is the duty of all who come under the jurisdiction of the law of the land to observe the spirit of it.

Concerning the railroads he recommends consolidations. He stands as an advocate of superpower plants for the use of waterpower; believes more authority should be given to the governor general of the Philippines and a careful investigation should be made of the expenditures and success of the laws in our outlying possessions. He has something to say in regard to mothers' aid, thinks the time has come to consider classifying all postmasters, collectors and prohibition agents under civil service, emphasizes the need for departmental reorganization and rightfully insists that even handed justice should be given to the negro.

The message is a straightforward, constructive statement of facts and needs. It teems with sound economies and excellent advice. It deserves the careful attention of congress and the thoughtful reading of everyone.

GOODWIN'S FIGHT

In his efforts to bring about safer conditions on the highway of Massachusetts, Motor Vehicle Registrar Goodwin of that state has had much to say in the past about the failure of the courts in that state to properly enforce the law. He has repeatedly pointed out where leniency was having its harmful effect upon respect for the laws and the rights of others, the tenor of his complaint being that if the courts would do their duty in the enforcement of the law there would be a better regard for the law and greater safety on the highways.

As the result of his latest statement concerning this matter, Attorney General Benton of the Bay State has called upon the motor vehicle registrar to back up his charges. In view of the manner in which he has set forth his cases in the past there seems to be no reason to believe but what the motor vehicle registrar will not only be able to but will be eager to place his information and records before the state's department of justice. Seemingly he has aroused some response to conditions which he has long deplored.

What the investigation which the attorney general has set on foot will result in remains for the future to disclose, but when it is possible to show that an individual has been brought into court at least 15 times for various charges and on only one instance did he serve any time, being able to get probation repeatedly and no punishment for violation of probation, it appears that Registrar Goodwin is striking at a defect that is serious.

In his fight for better service on the part of the courts Mr. Goodwin has conducted a courageous and commendable fight. He fully understands the obstacles to be encountered but he is nevertheless fearless and determined. He is making a fight in behalf of the public of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, and he does not hesitate to criticize the courts when conditions show such action to be necessary. When courts are functioning to the encouragement of crime it is time that reforms should be instituted.

DEER HUNTING

Every year there is a list of hunting fatalities, where the persons killed were mistaken for prey, where they inflicted the fatal wounds themselves through tripping and discharging their firearms or didn't know they were loaded, or where improper knowledge of the use of firearms brought the inevitable result.

Maine is the big contributor to such a list, especially the killing of one hunter by another in mistake for deer. But the menace of the hunting of big game and the danger in permitting firearms in the hands of those who are not fully aware of the importance of using them with care is repeatedly disclosed in connection with the hunting season for deer in Massachusetts.

On the opening day this year a 17 year old boy killed himself while displaying his automatic revolver to his sister just before he planned to try to bring down some game with it. This brings to attention the danger which cannot fail to exist when hunting is undertaken in thickly settled communities where shots which may be well directed toward game may miss the mark and do serious harm beyond. It is one of the possibilities which surrounds the hunting of big game with much danger unless the hunter knows his locality and knows how to handle his weapon for the protection of others and himself.

DISARMAMENT

Working into a position where serious consideration and possible favorable action may be taken concerning disarmament is not the easiest thing imaginable. It has to be done against the various objections that can and are sure to be raised by the ones to be included.

Every nation stands in a different position and it is possible for each one to set forth various reasons why it considers it necessary to follow out policies concerning armament which have long prevailed. They understand that there are different situations, but they view with suspicion any intimations that the things they have been guarding against for centuries will not spring up to bother them once they depart from past practices.

It is one thing to call a disarmament conference but it is another thing to have it accomplish what is sought. It provides a time for the placing of the cards on the tables by the participants but all are not agreed upon the effectiveness of the trump cards that may be played.

Conditions have changed greatly for the better. Conditions for peace of a lasting character are more bright. No harm can come from talking about disarmament, but actually accomplishing it is another thing, desirable though such a goal may be.

NEW BOOKS

The Old Mount Carmel Parish. By George Sherwood Dickerman. Board, 220 pages, illustrated and indexed. Published for New Haven Colony Historical Society by Yale University Press. Price $3.50.

As the result of some 40 years study and delving into family history the author has brought out a most valuable book from a historical standpoint, in the preparation of the Dickerman Geneology and the continuation of studies connected therewith his thoughts were turned to the family history in a larger scope, the discipline of circumstance which influenced fathers and mothers at the outset, the consequences that have followed, the dispersion of families and what they have done in other communities.

The neighborhood which gives this book its title is somewhat obscure in Connecticut annals. State histories contain only the barest allusions to the old New Haven parish, which the town of Hamden displaced at its organization. But the story of this old neighborhood can hardly be regarded as less interesting because of this obscurity. Perhaps it is a more impressive example of unfolding life in those times. For most of the people along the Atlantic seaboard in the 18th century lived an obscure life among rural surroundings, and from that rural population have come the virile forces that have been foremost in our country's development. Pioneers bred in the old Mount Carmel parish have borne their full share in the national development. They migrated to Litchfield, to Berkshire, to Vermont, to the Susquehanna frontier, to the New York woods and up the Mohawk and beyond.

Such a volume requires much time and careful study to assemble the hidden facts. The writer has displayed great interest and his book shows the efforts that have been put forth to gather what must be even more greatly treasured as the years go on. It will be of particular value to those searching for historical facts and those interested in geneology if their families are in any way connected with the old Mount Carmel parish.

The World Court. By Antonio S. de Bustamante. Cloth, 379 pages. Published by The Macmillan Company, New York. Price $3.

The author of this volume, which has been translated by Elizabeth F. Read, is a judge of the permanent court of international justice, vice president of the Institute of International Law, member of the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague, professor of international law at the University of Havana and a member of the American Institute of International Law.

This is the first authoritative and intimate story of the world court to appear in the English language. All the questions about the court which have been raised inside the senate and outside during the past few years are dealt with in this book. It describes in detail what does and what does not come under the court's jurisdiction; what is the court's relation to the league of nations; how the judges are nominated and elected; why they do not represent national interests. It answers the question as to whether nations can be dragged before the court contrary to their own wish; whether or not the court has sanctions; how the court is paid for and what it costs; just what procedure the court follows in rendering advisory opinions.

The volume has been prepared for the purpose of being easily understood by the general reader and there is a historical perspective that will appeal to students and experts. One of its main achievements is to demonstrate that the world court is not a new idea, but is the result of a long standing and widespread desire for an international tribunal.

It contains an extensive bibliography, the statute of the permanent court of international justice and the rules of the court.

Yellow Fingers. By Gene Wright. Cloth, 332 pages. Published by the J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

Out of the Sampaeng, that quarter of Bangkok where the Chinese hide all manner of evil beneath a glittering show of Shangsi and Satsuma, the yellow fingers of Kwong Li reached for the forbidden loveliness of Nona Deering. Nor are they satisfied when the sharp thrust of a jewelled kris frees her for a moment from their closing hold. Yet what is "Brute" Shane of the Louak to believe when his mates drag on board a terrified English girl, rescued from the center of vice and iniquity, begging for a passage "anywhere from Bangkok"? But even on the short sail to Malay the danger of a typhoon betrays to him his growing love, and he rounds the headland Dessa Louak forgetful of his bewitching little protege, Saina, who watches always for the first sight of her Captain Sham. Into her heart creeps a passionate doubt, confirmed by the sight of the girl in the captain's cabin. She plans to strike at Nona. The results are complicated and serious and trouble is appeased only by a dramatic sacrifice.

It is a tale of the east, gorgeously told, in which the author applies understanding touches of pathos and a reality of emotion rare in romance.

Cousin Jane. By Harry Leon Wilson. Cloth, 388 pages. Published by Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, New York, N. Y. Price $2.

In Cousin Jane Harry Leon Wilson makes his central figure a girl—the first Wilson heroine—and she is real and appealing. Cousin Jane comes on the scene at ten years of age in the year 1900—a proper little girl in buttoned shoes, velvet coat and bonnet with rosebuds, who is being withdrawn from her select boarding-school because her fortune has been lost on the stockmarket by her guardian. So Jane is taken to "Tolmon's Folly," the great house built by her pioneer grandfather in the little California mining town, which went to sleep years ago when the gold played out. Here her strange cousins live, three of them in their odd environment of faded splendor, stopped clocks and declining prestige. These are seen through Jane's bright eyes with an effect nothing short of marvelous in its humor and truth.

Jane grows up. Little has changed in her maturing years except the disappearance of Sarah, leaving a little cousin to drudge in her place. The only escape offered Jane is by Guy Pedfern, the village boy she is drawn to, but refuses to marry. Then almost the next day Jane realizes she is "not old, but only not too young"—things begin to happen at the "Folly". Jane's triumph in the end has the curious twist that only the author can give. Eventually Jane found life, although some dreams were shattered.

Booth and the Spirit of Lincoln. By Bernie Babcock. Cloth, 320 pages. Published by the J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

Handsome, impassioned, there was no more striking figure in Washington than the young actor, John Wilkes Booth. In such a favorite an occasional bitter melancholy could well be forgiven. Nor could Bessie Hale, waltzing past in the arms of Bob Lincoln, dream for an instant that something deeper than jealousy darkened her lover's face. Then a shot rang out at Ford's theatre, a horse galloped by the sentry at the post road, Washington was left with a great wrong to avenge—and Bessie Hale, with the memory of moonlight, lilacs and a farewell the tragedy of which she did not begin to comprehend. The nation avenged its martyr. The waters of the Potomac closed over a dishonored name. But the story does not end there. From rumors persistent through 60 years and human testimony difficult to gainsay, Mrs. Babcock has made an imaginary romance of the escape of Booth and his subsequent reappearances. As if under a spell we follow the "living dead man" through the swamps beyond the bloodhounds, over the mountains to the west, to Mexico, China, even the South seas.

The beauty of the book lies in the conversion of Booth from a bitter enemy to a lover of Lincoln. The author is well known as an authority on Lincoln and most of the incidents on which she builds her story are not generally known.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

"We are enjoying a season of quiet and rest," explained Mrs. Alger when I arrived unexpectedly at her summer home, Rivermarge. "Mr. Alger has gone on business and Joysie and I are just taking it easy. I'm afraid it won't be very exciting for you, Lucille."

"Really, dear Mrs. Alger, my city jaded spirit craves the quiet and rest of this lovely spot. If you'll let me stay a few days I know it will do me a world of good," I said.

"Of course you may stay, Lucile," she returned graciously, but Joyce told me later that she was surprised at her mother. "For," she said, "mumsey told daddy that for once she wasn't going to wear herself out entertaining company; and daddy said he'd been wondering for a long time why she ran a free summer hotel. Daddy's awfully funny, isn't he?"

"Yes, he's quite a joker," I answered, smiling. "What do you usually do evenings here, Joysie?" Mrs. Alger had gone to bed with a headache and the 10-year-old had begged to sit up on the porch with me for a while. The intense quiet of the place was trying.

"Oh, when daddy is here we often go out in the car, but when mumsey and I are alone we just sit around."

"Let's take the car and have a little whirl this hot evening along the river road," I suggested.

"But, Lucile, I mustn't ever disturb mumsey when she has headaches. I can't go up and ask her."

"I'm sure she wouldn't mind your going out with me. I'm a good driver. Come on, Joysie, honey." I coaxed, and in a few moments we were sailing down the river road.

"Isn't this lots jollier than stewing on the porch?" I asked as I turned off into a beguiling country lane. "Let's get away from all the other cars." We drove in silence for some time, for my small companion was strangely quiet until the car stopped suddenly.

"I was afraid all the time in this lonesomey road," she remarked tearfully. "Something's the matter, and we can't get home."

"Do be a better sport, Joysie," I said firmly, and I jumped out to look at the engine. It was too dark to see anything. "Is there a flashlight in the car?" I asked and Joysie said there was not.

"Then I'll walk up to the farmhouse there and ask for one," I said resourcefully. Joysie went with me the short distance and after much pounding on the door we heard a gruff voice demanding from an upper window to know what we wanted at that "unearthly hour."

"It's only a little after 11," I replied pleasantly, "and I'd like to borrow a flashlight to look at our engine."

"We ain't got none of them contraptions," replied the voice from the window, "and it's time for respectable people to be in bed."

"We want to go home to bed. Haven't you a lantern of some kind you can lend us?" I asked patiently.

"Probably never see it ag'in if I do. You wait a minute there."

We obeyed this order and in a moment we were joined by a middle-aged man in overalls. He swung a lantern in our faces.

"You gals ain't got no business out this time o' night," he said. "Ain't you the Alger girl?"

"Yes," murmured Joysie dolefully.

"I know your folks. I don't see what they can be thinking of—"

"It isn't their fault at all," answered Joysie with sudden spirit. "My mother doesn't know where we are and I'm afraid she'll be awfully worried."

"I'll bet all you need is gas," said our burly friend. "I'll take a can down."

Sure enough, that was it, and we were soon on our way home.

We found Mrs. Alger in hysterics on the porch. She had telephoned to the village to have searchers sent out, for she had imagined that Joysie and I had been kidnaped and the car stolen.

"Don't try to explain or say a word, Lucile," said she, clutching Joysie in her arms. "I couldn't endure a word of excuse."

All I could do was to go to my room and I left the next morning before Mrs. Alger was up. It must be terrible to have such an emotional nature as Mrs. Alger. She should see herself psychanalyzed and try for better self-control.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Things that Hold Him

Mr. Editor: I hope and pray that every one that reads this will also stop and consider and make the best and greatest choice that this man and others have made. You will never regret it.

"I once met a scholar," says Bishop Whipple, "who told me that for years he had read every book that he could which assailed the religion of Jesus Christ, and he said he would have become an infidel but for three things. First, I am a man, I am going somewhere. Tonight I am a day nearer the grave than I was last night. I have read all such books can tell me. They shed not one solitary ray upon the darkness. They shall not take away the only guide and leave me stone-blind. Second, I had a mother. I saw her down the dark valley where I am going and she leaned upon an unseen arm as calmly as a child goes to sleep on the breast of its mother. Third, I have three motherless daughters (and he said it with tears in his eyes;) they have no protector but myself. I would rather kill them than to leave them in this sinful world if you blot out from it all the teachings of the gospel."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Maj. Gen. Andre W. Brewster, U. S. A., who goes on the retired list today on his own request, was born in 1862, and his early studies were for the profession of law, in Philadelphia. At the age of 23, he obtained a commission in the Tenth Infantry, and served in Indian wars. In the war with Spain he was breveted first lieutenant for gallantry and sent to the Philippines. After a short service there he went to China as a captain, and won a Congressional Medal of Honor in the capture of Tien-tsin, during the Boxer rebellion. When the United States entered the World war, Gen. Brewster, then a colonel, went overseas with Gen. Pershing, and became inspector-general of the American forces in Europe. Recently he has been in command of the First Corps Area, with headquarters in Boston.

Stories That Recall Others

His Mother Likes the Teacher?

When "sheik" found out that his teacher was going hunting Thanksgiving day he asked if he could go along. The teacher said: "I think you ought to go hunting with some boy of your own age, 16 or 17 years old."

"Oh, I can't do that. My mother won't let me," said "sheik."

"Well, why not?" asked the teacher.

"Because she's afraid I might shoot one of them."

Cheap at Half Price.

Sadie was the less attractive of two sisters. But her lack of looks had not detracted from her ability to win a husband, as she was happily married while her more attractive sister was still single. Because of the favoritism shown the married sister, the "bachelor girl" was continually "peeved." One day her mother urged her to "stop sulking and get some sense and marry a dry goods merchant as Sadie had done."

"Married, married, that's all I hear any more. Why, I wouldn't marry a guy like Sadie's husband with a half dead business in a dying town for six like him," the unmarried sister exploded.

"Well, he's a nice man," her mother replied, "And whenever she wants a new dress she can get it wholesale."

From Small Beginnings

Sir Josiah Mason, the Great Humanitarian

"That key ring makes me think," said a man one day, as he looked meditatively at a round key ring that he held in his hand. "What about?" his companion asked. "Oh, about little fellows out on the streets, about steel pens, and orphans." "Come on, Sherlock," the friend laughed, "tell me the mystery. How do you hitch up key rings and steel pens and orphans?" "It's all in the story of a man I read about the other day—Josiah Mason," the man answered. "Here it is:

"About 100 years ago, people didn't use fountain pens the way we do; they didn't even have steel pens. They wrote with quills made from goose feathers. Then, in 1829, along comes a young man about 24 years old, who sets to work making steel pens. Was he a success? Well, I should say, no! He couldn't make steel pens fast enough. He made more pens in a year than the world had ever made quills in a century. In fact, he made money enough to buy all the geese in England, if he wished to buy them. Josiah Mason was one of those miserable little chaps out on the streets. He had no good home, few friends, and little comfort. The only school he had was the street and the shoemaker's shop. He grew up, and did anything he could. He became a sort of mechanic, and, finally, found a way to make key rings like this round one here. It was a handy thing, that key ring, and he made money. With that money he set up the pen factory, for he saw how much good pens were needed. Then, when he was as rich as old Croesus, he built a home for orphans, spent a million and a half dollars for it, for he said: 'I don't want other boys to starve on the streets the way I did.' Then he took another million dollars and built a great college, for he said: 'I never had a chance to learn anything; I want other boys to have the chance.' He did so much good that he was made a knight. Finally, in 1881, at the age of 86, the good old pen-maker died. I tell you—there's a novel for you: the street boy selling his things to eat; the millionaire building orphanages—'Josiah Mason!' He tried his best to help himself and others. That's why I look at the key ring."

CHILD TRAINING

ENCOURAGE SIMPLICITY

Edith Lochridge Reid

Children, naturally, have very simple tastes and inclinations.

How is it then that many of them even before the age of five become spoiled and petulant and demanding? This is the reason: their natural tendency toward simplicity has not been fostered and developed.

Since a mother is the strongest influence in a child's life in his early years, surely it is Mother, then who must hold to the simple standard if the beautiful artlessness of childhood is to be preserved.

"Give Baby his other rattle box, he's tired of this one," a mother said to her little daughter in my presence. So the rubber rattle was picked up and put away because Baby had thrown it down a number of times, and a pink celluloid one was substituted.

Without entering into a discussion of whether rattles are ever suitable playthings for babies—this mother was destroying the ability of her child to find pleasure in simplicity. The baby was barely old enough to grasp anything in his hand. As yet his own fingers and fists were a perfect marvel to him. He would have played with them contentedly until he dropped off to sleep, and when he awoke and was once more fed and comfortable those same fingers would have been as attractive and novel as if he had never seen them before.

Yet in the space of half an hour of his waking time, he had been entertained with two different rattles, a bright balloon tied to the foot of his bed and one of another of several toy animals which aroused very little interest in him.

Giving the baby toys too early and in too great a variety creates unnatural inclinations and desires. He is being forced ahead, and like a hothouse bulb, he may grow more quickly but he will be less sturdy in character than if permitted to develop naturally.

Drawing attention to the baby's accomplishments repeatedly and exploiting his achievements before visitors or relatives are sure ways to make him self-centered and artificial in manner. How can he remain unconscious when folks continually exclaim over his abilities, and direct attention to him?

I have a friend with a cunning three-year-old boy. Occasionally I drop in to call on her, but never do we have an opportunity for a good old-time chat on little personal affairs or any sort of consecutive conversation for Billy always interrupts: "Mother, see what I'm doing," and if Mother doesn't look immediately he screeches louder than ever, "Watch me now! watch me!"

And more often than not the mother says to me, "Look at him—don't you think he's quite wonderful to be able to do that at his age?"

Another mother dresses clothes until Anabel is vain. Each time this mother embroiders a new frock she sends Anabel around the neighborhood among her friends to show how cute she looks dressed up in her new togs. Alas! Simplicity will soon be a lost art with Anabel.

Surely we cannot blame our boys and girls for their sophistication and false attitudes toward life when they grow older if we do not cherish as beautiful and precious traits their unconsciousness and simplicity. Mothers will do well to remember that it is in babyhood and during the early pre-school years that a child is "spoiled" in the sense of losing his native innocence of thought and manner. To cultivate simplicity means to add a rare charm to any personality.

Freaks at Customs Sales

Whenever the United States government puts on its customs auction sales there are certain to be many freak and valuable articles available for the curious one willing to lay out a few dollars without seeing first what they are buying. Wooden bobbins, painted flower pots, lithographed posters, fire crackers, pillows, samples of bricks and wooden bottle stoppers were among the articles picked up by the inquisitive buyers at a sale in New England.

"Send One Over"

A solid trainload of 104 Graham Brothers Trucks was shipped recently to six Dodge Brothers Dealers in Florida. Ten days after arrival every truck had been sold—and more were on the way.

This is an exceptional record—but it illustrates an important point.

Business men need no longer feel that they must devote valuable time to investigation of trucks before making their choice.

The remarkable record of Graham Brothers Trucks has reduced an important buying problem to the simple expedient of asking the Dodge Brothers Dealer to "send one over."

Mr. and Mrs. James McCall, of Greene avenue, have had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Eric Rosner, with their little daughter, Pearl, of Glastonbury, over Sunday and Monday. The girls are graduates of the Mystic Oral school for the Deaf, at Mystic.

Sherwood B. Potter, of Brooklyn, Conn., just appointed treasurer of the Berlin, Conn. Savings Bank, married Miss Louise Furness, daughter of Mrs. Furness and the late George W. Furness, of Norwich. Mrs. Furness makes her home with her duhagter, at Brooklyn.

OBITUARY

Henry Mueller

Following a long period of ill health, Henry Mueller, 44, of No. 127 Baltic street, died Tuesday afternoon at 3:10 o'clock. Mr. Mueller underwent an operation Monday but his condition was so serious that he failed to rally. Mr. Mueller was born in Germany, Sept. 5, 1881, but most of his life had been passed in this country. In New York city, Sept. 18, 1909, he was united in marriage with Catherine Quinn.

For the last nine years Mr. and Mrs. Mueller have made their home in this city. Mr. Mueller was employed as a fireman and mailing clerk by The Bulletin company for some time but was forced to give up work on account of failing health. Mr. Mueller is survived by his wife and two children, Mary E. Mueller and Henry J. Mueller, both of this city.

James D. McCarthy

James D. McCarthy, former vice president of the New London County Farm Bureau and manager of the Norwich Co-operative Exchange and president of the Norwich Milk Producers association, died suddenly Tuesday morning at 7:45 o'clock at his home in Scotland Road. Mr. Murphy, who had been up and around as usual Monday, was taken ill about 6 o'clock Monday evening.

Mr. McCarthy was a native of Franklin, and was born May 28, 1871, the son of John and Mary Murphy McCarthy. Nov. 12, 1901, he was united in marriage with Catherine T. Connell, the wedding ceremony being performed by the late Rev. Hugh Treanor at St. Patrick's church. For over 18 years he had been engaged in farming in this vicinity.

Mr. McCarthy was a member of St. Joseph's parish, Occum. His farm was one of the finest in this vicinity. He was considered an expert in farming and his advice was often sought. Surviving him are his wife, one son, John A. McCarthy, his father, John T. McCarthy of Fitchville, one brother, Florence McCarthy of Brooklyn, N. Y., and two sisters, Mrs. Michael Sweeney and Mrs. Elmer Lathrop, residents of Fitchville.

Mrs. Michael Nolan

After an illness of about six months, Catherine, wife of Michael Nolan, formerly of Taftville, died Friday at her home in Plainville. She was born in Taftville and was the daughter of John and Honora McCormick Murphy. Sixteen years ago she was united in marriage with Michael Nolan and since that time had lived in Plainville.

Surviving are her husband, three sisters, Mrs. Nellie O'Neil of Norwich, Mrs. John Hardigan of Worcester, Mrs. John Woods, of Baltic, and four brothers, James Murphy, of New Britain, John Murphy of Bridgeport, Valentine Murphy of Willimantic, and Daniel Murphy of this city. She also leaves a cousin, Dr. Patrick McCormick of Washington, D. C. The funeral was held in Plainville Monday morning and burial took place in St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

FUNERALS.

Mrs. Charles Muench

(Contributed)

Those who have long known and valued the late Mrs. Charles Muench as a good and helpful neighbor, a devoted mother, a model wife and a kind and generous friend, feel that her worth demands added tribute of appreciation.

Her good deeds were done quietly and without thought of public comment or applause; but at her passing, these numberless acts of friendliness and charity and true Christian motive were recalled by many, who would pay her memory this tribute of affection and esteem.

Although best known in her own household, her influence extended beyond the limits of her home, so that she will be long remembered by those acquainted with her faithfulness to her daily duties, her willingness to aid in times of sorrow or trouble, her neighborly interest in the welfare of those about her.

The fine qualities of her nature were manifested when illness came, and when, with Christian fortitude and courageous resignation, she accepted trial and suffering, firm in her faith in an all-wise Father, Who thus prepared her for an eternity of happiness and reward with Him, Whom she had ever served with loving obedience and in unshaken trust. Those who gathered for her funeral rites were sincere mourners, expressing to her relatives heartfelt sympathy in the loss of a faithful wife, fond mother and devoted home-maker.

Ruth Graham

The funeral of Ruth Graham, younger daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. Harlow Graham, was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of her parents, No. 86 Williams street. Rev. Myron E. Genter, superintendent of the Norwich Methodist district, conducted the service, assisted by Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, this city, and Rev. Marvin F. Stocking, of Westerly. Burial took place in Maplewood cemetery. Rev. Mr. Genter conducting the committal service. The Henry Allen and Son Co., had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Leonard A. Chapman

Funeral services for Mrs. Leonard A. Chapman, 52 Union street, Norwich, were held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the undertaking rooms of George G. Grant of Taftville. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. D. A. Pitt, pastor of the Central Baptist church. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and there was a number of floral remembrances. Burial was in Lovett cemetery, where the committal service was read by Rev. Dr. Pitt. The bearers were Chauncey House, Howard Maynard, Arthur Chapman and Irving Babcock.

John Hildebrand

The funeral of John Hildebrand was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his home, No. 44 West Thames street, with a large attendance of relatives and friends. The service was conducted by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, and burial took place in Maplewood cemetery. Friends acted as bearers. The Henry Allen & Son company had charge of the funeral arrangements.

POULTRY SHOW OPENS WITH BIG EXHIBIT OF HIGH CLASS BIRDS

With nearly 600 entries the Norwich Poultry and Pet Stock Association, Inc., opened its three-day second annual show Tuesday in Pulaski hall. The show which is open to the public from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., will be continued today (Wednesday) and Thursday. There are a number of high class entries from Norwich and surrounding towns and the show, this year, is classed as one of the best and finest of its kind in the state or New England, for that matter. The pens are arranged about the sides and through the middle of the large hall. Were there any more entries it would be difficult to find accommodations for them. Many poultry and pet fanciers took occasion Tuesday to visit this splendid show which is a credit to the association. Birds and pet stock that have taken prizes at some of the largest New England fairs are on exhibition at the show. There is a wide variety of poultry, geese, ducks, pigeons, squabs, and guinea pigs shown and all are attracting very favorable comment.

The judges, H. E. Beebe of Waterford, this state, and L. M. Hallenbeck of Greendale, N. Y., put in a busy day inspecting and judging the entries and it was well into the evening before their work was completed.

That an unusually large variety of poultry and pet stock is on exhibition this year can readily be seen from the fact that the entries include Barred Rock hens and cockerels, shown by Harold Frink; White Rocks, shown by Harold Doney, Westerly, R. I.; Golden Seabright pullets, Light Brahmas, Silver Seabright bantams, Silver Spangled Hamburgs, Mottled Houdans single comb Silver Leghorns, Silver Cockerels, Silver hens, various varieties of bantams, Pekin ducks and in the guinea pig show, Peruvian Cavies, black and white and tortoise and white, etc. There is also a splendid pigeon and squab show, among the larger entrants being James L. Tourtellotte. Mr. Tourtellotte is showing a wide variety of his well known birds including his famous tumblers. He is the possessor of a homing pigeon that was released in New Jersey on a Saturday afternoon and arrived back at Mr. Tourtellotte's pens in this city on the following Monday morning. This bird is highly prised by Mr. Tourtellotte.

Without doubt the largest exhibit is that owned by the Gem Poultry yards, showing Wyandottes, bantams and silver Andalusians. Another large exhibitor is Frank Cumpstone of Waterford, featuring Rhode Island Reds, Plymouth Rocks, White and Buff Cochins and bantams. Harold Doney of Westerly is featuring in his exhibit White Plymouth Rocks. Another large exhibitor is the Uncasville Poultry yards, featuring Golden Seabright bantams. The Uncasville Poultry yards go first prize on silver cockerels, first and second on Golden Seabright pullets, first Golden Seabright cockerel, first and second on Silver Seabrights, and second and third on silver hens. This is the best bantam exhibit in the show. Another prize winner in the bantam show is George Wilson. He took first on silver cockerels, first on silver hens, first, second and third on Golden Seabright hens. The prize for the best pen of bantams in the show went to Frank W. Cumpstone of Waterford, who also took first prize for the best pen of Pekin ducks. C. A. Ricker is showing a number of his famous Rhode Island Reds. The prize winning list had not been completed up to closing time Tuesday night but it is expected that it will be completed by today (Wednesday).

Other exhibitors who are showing splendid entries include William W. Waters, featuring Columbian Wyandottes and Mottled Houdans and Brahmas and P. J. Desmond, showing silver spangled birds. Clark's Pet Shop of this city has a large exhibit of poultry and pet stock food, and accessories for the well regulated poultry and pet yard.

SUIT OVER NOTES TRIED IN COMMON PLEAS

Trial was proceeding in the common pleas court at New London Tuesday in the $650 damage suit of Waterman & Wolfe, Inc., against Mary J. Rogers of New London. The trial is before Judge C. B. Waller and a jury.

The case arose over two notes, one for $200 and the other for $300, alleged to have been signed by the defendant and given Foster & Co., on Dec. 26, 1921, which, according to the plaintiff, are as yet unpaid. The plaintiff came into possession of the notes when Gordon Foster had them discounted by Owens C. Wolfe, when he purchased a Ford coupe.

The defendant charged that Foster falsely and fraudulently represented to the defendant the nature and character of the notes he wished her to sign and also that at the time the defendant was in a serious mental and physical state and that her eyesight was bad. The defense also charged that Foster told her that if she would sign the notes for certain stocks and bonds which he was selling, he would keep the papers in his pocket until the next day when he would destroy them if she then decided not to go ahead with the deal.

The defense claimed that on Dec. 16, the day after the defendant had signed the note Foster again called and, upon being told that she had changed her mind, he pulled from his pocket papers and tore them up, placing the pieces back in his pocket. The defendant charges that whether he tore up the notes or not, any note which has her signature was secured solely by stealth and trickery.

Mr. Wolfe was called to the witness stand. He identified both notes and, upon cross examination, admitted that eventually the National Bank of Commerce was paid for the notes by his own personal check and that the bank crossed off the amount against the corporation. He stated that he felt that it was up to him to make good to the corporation as Foster had purchased the car through him. He admitted that taking the notes, discounting them, returning to Foster the difference between $500 and the interest plus the first payment on the car was an unusual transaction.

The witness, when asked to examine closely one of the notes, admitted that the abbreviation Dec. was in blue ink while the 26, was in black ink and that also it looked as if the figure 2 in 26 had been placed over a figure 1.

Attorney Philip Z. Hankey is counsel for the plaintiff and O. Hadlai Hull for the defendant. Trial of the case will be continued today (Wednesday).

CONNECTICUT AUTOMOBILES BRING $554,890 IN TAXES

Tax collections from automobiles, etc., in Connecticut during the first ten months of this year amounted to $554,896 as compared with $515,217, for the same period a year ago, according to figures issued by the bureau of internal revenue, at Washington.

The Connecticut total was made up of $15,590 from automobile trucks and wagons, $173,118 from other automobiles and motorcycles, and $366,193 from tires, parts or accessories, etc., this year, as compared with $17,035, $78,757 and $519,425, respectively during the first ten months last year.

The total of such tax collections for the twelve leading states paying such a tax amounted to $18,907,254 this year, and to $24,531,242 last year.

Dog Was Killed

A hound was killed, near the Chelsea parade Tuesday afternoon, when it was struck by an automobile operated by W. R. Hart of New London. The dog was one of two that were playing and chasing each other in the street when it was struck.

James Jackson is back at his work in Norwich, having spent the week end with his family in Mystic.

THRONG FILLS ARMORY FOR GROTTO CIRCUS

Preceded by a parade from Grotto hall to the state armory, with colorful effects furnished by the Grotto drill team in their brilliant Zouave costumes, the drum corps in Mexican costumes and the Nemrod Grotto members wearing their fezzes, the indoor circus and freak city, under the auspices of the Grotto, opened at the Armory Tuesday night with a crowd that packed the building to the doors. Leading the parade was Swahn's full military band and accompanying the paraders were automobiles conveying as guests for the evening Mayor Milo R. Waters, Chief George Linton and members of the common council.

At the armory everything that goes to make up the circus atmosphere was in evidence. Nemrod Grotto men, provided with megaphones, did the ballyhooing for the freaks that were exhibited, red and yellow balloons floated in the air, an excellent vaudeville entertainment was put on, Thumm's orchestra filled the air with music for dancing and the crowd milled up and down the aisles in the center the refreshment booth was arranged where ice cream sandwiches, hot dogs, and pop corn were dispensed by Mrs. George N. Chappell, Mrs. Anthony Bernard, Miss Charlotte Fowler, Miss Bertha Hahn and Miss Susie McNeely.

The freaks and wonders on display included Niles, the reversible man, Princess Marie, the snake charmer, The Transparent Lady, Sweet Adeline, the fat girl, The What is It, Charlie Townsend, the anatomical wonder, Cramer, the man with the elastic skin. The Sleeping Beauty slumbered on, undisturbed by the roars of the Wild Man from Borneo in the adjoining tent.

The Sleeping Beauty takes her daily slumber from 2 to 6 in the afternoon in the window of Schwartz Bros., store on Main street.

Other tents in the armory contained Koo-Koo, the bird girl from Mexico, Marie DeVere, the champion lady sword swallower, Le Roy, the human pin cushion, Col. Gulliver, the American Giant, Tiny, the living kewpie doll, and Mamie from Missouri, the fat girl with arms that measure 34 inches, a waist 6 feet 2 inches and hip measurement of 7 feet 6 inches.

The Chase Cliff Kennels exhibit prize police dogs at one corner of the armory, attracted much attention to these fine animals.

The indoor circus will continue its attractions for two nights more under the direction of the Grotto committee, which comprises Raymond Brittin, general chairman, Kirk Ricketts, William W. Tanner, A. E. Fowler, Bradford Ricketts and James Jones.

DUPONT GUN CLUB HELD ANNUAL DINNER

The Dupont Gun club held its annual game dinner Sunday afternoon at Mark Tracy's hunting lodge at East Great Plain. Officers were elected as follows: President, Clyde Whitman; vice president, Gus Hague; Fred Lockwood secretary to take the place of Leroy Messer who died during the year, treasurer, Eddie Gauthier; chef, Herman Falvy. Games were played and many fishing and hunting tales were told while waiting for dinner to be served. At 1.45 sharp the chef rang the dinner bell and all members were seated. Prayer was offered by Bro. Paul Higgins and all brothers hung their heads in silence for one minute to pay respect to Brother Messer. The menu consisted of roast rabbit, rabbit pie, mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, roast pork, celery, boiled onions, home made biscuits and pumpkin pie. Coffee and milk and various kinds of cocktails were also served.

After dinner Toastmaster Chas. Bialowas called on the champion bass catcher and also long distance bait caster of eastern Connecticut, Fred Lockwood, who gave a long talk on angling and bait casting and the best ponds to fish in. Gus Hague was the next man to be called on. He spoke on hunting and the ways of different kinds of game. Walter Brown, the well known coon hunter, was present and gave a long talk on coon hunting. Pres. Whitman was called upon next and gave a long talk on the game conditions in this part of the state. Radio selections were next given by Gus Hague, the radio expert. John R. Sullivan, the Irish tenor, also rendered a few selections. Those attending were Clyde Whitman, Gus Hague, Fred Lockwood, Allen Brown, Eddie Gauthier, Herman Talvy, Mark Tracy, Paul Higgins, Walter Brown, Chas. Bialowas and John P. Sullivan.

GAINING NEW MEMBERS FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

At a meeting of the membership committee held Tuesday, twenty-two new members were secured for the local Chamber of Commerce. An effort is being made to increase the membership in order that the chamber can increase its activities, and also to take care of its losses during the past two years.

The chamber does not represent any particular business interests. It has in its membership manufacturers merchants, professional men, and women. Its purpose is to work for the welfare and the development of the community as a whole. The activities already recorded show the truism of this statement.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce is authority for the statement that eighty-five per cent., of the cities throughout the country, having a population of 10,000 or more are supported and maintained by annual dues of $25. A few cities, taken at random from this list, having a population similar to Norwich, are given below, the dues in each case being $25:

City	Population	Members	Income
Phoenix, Ariz.	29,053	750	$18,750
Ft. Smith, Ark.	28,811	467	11,450
Pensacola, Fla.	31,035	410	10,250
Port Huron, Mich.	25,944	675	16,875
Joplin, Mo.	29,355	450	11,250
Kingston, N. Y.	26,688	400	10,000
Newburg, N. Y.	30,366	475	11,875
Asheville, N. C.	28,504	600	15,000
Mansfield, O.	27824	400	10,000
Marion, O.	27,897	550	13,750
Steubinville, O.	28,508	540	13,540
Zanesville, O.	29,569	637	15,925
Lynchburg, Va.	29,956	620	15,500
LaCrosse, Wis.	30,363	800	20,000

The Connecticut Chamber of Commerce states that the following cities in this state are supported on the same basis:

New Britain	Middletown
Hartford	Bristol
Meriden	Naugatuck
New London	Waterbury
Greenwich	Stamford
Bridgeport	New Haven
Norwich.	Manchester

The twenty-two new members who have signified their willingness to cooperate with others of the local chamber to promote the interests of Norwich are:

Dolco Garage, Williams Tire & Supply Co., E. V. Ross, House of Corey, Callahan Oil Co., Dr. Robert R. Agnew, John C. Donovan, Texas Oil Co., Norwich Plate Glass Co., W. S. Spencer, N. E. Chemical Co., Liggetts, John A. Holland, Rev. S. A. Ickis, Wm. H. Shields, Jr., Dr. Vincent D. Eldred, Avery Smith, T. N. M. Lathrop, New York Electric Co., James McGrory, Norwich Exide Battery Service, E. B. Patterson.

The chamber extends a cordial invitation to anyone interested in its work and having faith in Norwich to become a member. There are over 300 citizens of Norwich who are at present good supporters of this organization. The greater the number, the greater the influence for building Norwich, and making its competition felt for growth.

The closing prayer at the business session was by Mrs. A. S. Hurlburt, and the hostess served delicious refreshments.

SUPREME COURT APPEAL BY CITY OF NEW LONDON

An appeal to the supreme court has been taken by the city of New London from the denial of the motion to set aside the verdict in the suit of Johanna Keating against the city in which a jury gave her a verdict of $7,500 for injuries she received in a fall on one of the city streets. Notice of the appeal was filed Tuesday with Judge George E. Parsons, clerk of the court.

On the trial of the case Miss Keating won the verdict against the city. Judge C. L. Avery denied the motion to set aside the verdict, from which the city of New London now takes an appeal.

ACADEMY MEN GIVEN THREE PLACES ON ALL-INTERSCHOLASTIC LEAGUE TEAM

ALL-INTERSCHOLASTIC LEAGUE TEAMS

FIRST TEAM		SECOND TEAM
H. Cragan, Stonington	Left End	Rossi, Westerly
Duke, Stonington	Left Tackle	Fiddes, Westerly
De Rocco, Westerly	Center	Schwartz, Norwich
Rover, Stonington	Right Guard	Caron, Chapman
Novogroski, Westerly	Right Tackle	Stephans, Norwich
J. Brown, Champan	Right End	Montgomery, Chapman
Courbois, Norwich	Quarterback	F. Cragan, Stonington
Meikle, Westerly	Left Halfback	Tombari, Norwich
McCaffery, Stonington	Right Halfback	Martinelli, Westerly
E. Brewer, Norwich	Fullback	Salimeno, Westerly

The above mythical football teams, chosen from the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league, were picked by Tommy Winters, a local football enthusiast who has seen practically every game played by the four teams in the league. Winters picks three players from the Academy for the first team and places four on the second team. Westerly high places three on the first team and four on the second while Stonington places four on the first and one on the second. Chapman Tech the weakest team in the league gets one place on the first team and two on the second.

Mr. Winters in choosing the teams for the Bulletin writes as follows about his choice:

For the pivot position DeRocco of Westerly is chosen, for the most part, in view of his consistent work throughout the year. His play, while not being spectacular, was dependable at all times. Schwartz of Norwich is chosen for the second group mainly as a result of his brilliant late season work when he seemed to find himself after a mediocre start.

For guards Polsky of Norwich and Rover of Stonington are named. Polsky's work was outstanding in the backfield line this year, his general all-round play continuing well above the average through the entire season. Rover of Stonington should team up with Polsky in splendid fashion as he also was one of the outstanding linemen in the league. For the second team choices Caron of Chapman and Fidell of Norwich, two huskies, are named. These boys although lacking the experience of the first choices put up a hard game at all times for their respective teams.

For the tackle berths, Capt. Duke of Stonington and former Capt. Novogroski of Westerly are nominated. Duke's work was outstanding throughout the season. Added to his line play was his punting ability. The Stonington leader carried practically all of the kicking burden for his school. Novogroski, captain of Westerly the first part of the season before he transferred to Stonington, is a veteran of several seasons, and although he played but a short time for the Rhode Island school his work showed that he is deserving of a place on this team. Stephane of Norwich and Fiddes of Westerly are given the second team tackle berths. Stephane, although handicapped by an early season injury put up a nice game in the last three or four tilts. Fiddes, who was elected captain of Westerly after Novogroski left put up a good game especially against the Academy when he many times broke through and smeared the ball-carrier.

The wingmen chosen are H. Cragan of Stonington and J. Brown of Chapman. Cragan put up a stiff game for his team and was about the only outstanding end of the year. At the other extremity of the line Johnny Brown of Chapman, regularly a backfield man, is placed. As Brown is too valuable a man to leave out and as there was no room for him in the backfield the only way out seemed to be to place Johnny at end. His speed, adeptness at catching passes and his shiftiness at running a broken field, all tend to advance the theory that the Chapman star would fit in at end. Montgomery of Chapman, a flash down-field under kicks and a dependable receiver of passes along with Rossi of Westerly make up the second team line.

In the first team backfield there is a quartet that would be hard to beat. Norm Courbois of the Academy at quarter was about the class of the league. His headwork in calling plays, his clever handling of kicks, his ability as a drop-kicker and catcher of passes along with his fine work as safety man made him the ideal signal barker of the year. At least three of the six N. F. A. league games were won because of Courbois' all-round play. Ray Meikle of Westerly, one of the best broken field runners in these parts and a good kicker grabs the left halfback berth while McCaffery of Stonington is placed at right halfback although he played most of the season at quarter for his team. Meikle also played at quarter for his school but both these men should be able to play the half back positions with little trouble. Radio Ed Brewer of the Academy is chosen for fullback. An ideal line-breaker Brewer also was about the best defensive back seen in these parts for a long time. The 1926 football team capt-elect rounds out a backfield that would be hard to equal in high school football. Both offensive and defensive strength would be in abundance while a passing or kicking game could be resorted to in an emergency without materially weakening the team.

In the second string backfield F. Cragan of Stonington, although regularly a half-back, should fit in easily at quarter. His chief asset was his ability at spearing forwards. At left halfback Pheno Tombari, a dangerous man at all times in a broken field and also a kicker of no mean ability, is placed while Martinolli of Westerly teams up with him at right half back. At full-back Salameno of Westerly, a good defensive man, is chosen. Salameno also was no slouch at rushing the ball, making many appreciable gains with his long sweeping end jaunts. The second quartet of backfield men could also give a good account of themselves against all opponents. Being not quite so powerful as the first team, nevertheless they would have enough offensive and defensive strength to make all comers travel to win.

M'COLLARS-FLAHERTY BOUT TONIGHT AT NEW LONDON

NEW LONDON, Dec. 8.—Looking as fit as the proverbial fiddle, and confident that he feels just as he looks, Battling McCollars, Newark negro scrapper, who meets Martin Flaherty in the main bout at the Lyceum theatre at Joe Grills' show Thursday night arrived in town yesterday afternoon, accompanied by Irish Patsy Kline and a retinue of trainers. Less than two years ago McCollars was practically unknown in the fistic world. Then he hopped into the sporting columns with a surprising victory over Sailor Jack Perry which gave him the middleweight title of the Atlantic group of Uncle Sam's sea fighters.

His only stock in trade at that time was a devastating right hand.

Now a word for his opponent, Mauling Martin Flaherty. Martin is a product of the old school. He got his early teaching from his dad, and he inherited the latter's fighting heart. He is a clean living boy, and when at his right weight and against a man who will bring the fighting to him, he is dangerous every minute he is in the ring. Marty has been batting all over the Bay State and has been winning consistently from some of the best boys in the business.

Scotty Carroll on Card

Considerable local interest is being manifested in the Scotty Carroll-Young Cross bout. The interest centers chiefly about Scotty. Since coming here as an army recruiting officer he has made a lot of friends and he will have a large following rooting for him Thursday night. Scotty received the official commendation of the United States army for his heroic work at the Crocker house fire and his bravery manifests itself in other directions also. Although just entering the ranks of the professional he has demonstrated that he has the makings of a courageous scrapper.

Johnny Peters of Bridgeport who has made himself popular through two slashing fights here, meets Bobby Robideau, Brooklyn's Battling Nelson, in the semi-final 10-round bout, and Kid De Bartlo of Westerly will hope to swell his list of kayo victims in his preliminary bout with Young Levinsky.

DUWELL A. C. HOLDS FIRST SMOKER OF WINTER SEASON

The Duwell Athletic club made merry Tuesday evening at their first smoker of the winter season in their club rooms on the East Side. As a social event it was a decided success and no small amount of credit goes to the committee in charge of which John Riley was chairman and also acted as announcer for the boxing bouts that formed a feature of the evening's entertainment. Mr. Riley during the evening made a graceful presentation of a gift to James Pedace who was high in last week's pinochle play. Mr. Pedace responded feelingly and expressed his gratitude for the useful gift.

The first event of the evening's program was a wrestling match between C. Dickerson and Cy Perkins. These youngsters battled for 20 minutes to a draw.

The boxing bouts were all of four rounds and no decision was rendered in any of them. The bouts were J. Williamson vs. Kid Valet, Willie Pedace vs. L. Iacol, Bill Quinn vs. Ike Cramer and L. Dix vs. Kid Nelson.

Refreshments of sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee were served by the committee. The club is planning another smoker in the near future.

BABE RUTH IN DEFENSE OF THE PLAYER-WRITER

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Babe Ruth tonight came out in defense of his role as a player-writer in connection with consideration of this issue by the Baseball Writers' Association of America at its annual meeting Thursday. In a letter to George Daley, president of the New York chapter of the association, the Yankee slugger congratulated the chapter upon its resolution to adopt a "hands off" policy on the player-writer question.

"The strange thing to me," Ruth wrote, "is that few fellows who would stop me from doing articles for the papers, never tried to stop me from helping boys, visiting sandlots and asylums, batting up balls and talking to kids and fans—and all those kind of things I am glad to do for newspapers in connection with my articles. I was sure glad Judge Landis approved your resolution."

EASTERN LEAGUE TO OPEN SCHEDULE ON APRIL 21ST

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—The Eastern Baseball League, in special meeting today, adopted a 154-game schedule to start April 21 and end September 19, representatives of the Springfield, Providence and Pittsfield clubs being named a committee to draft the list of games.

Early in February there will be another meeting in New York for adoption of the schedule. The player limit was set at 16.

Bruins Beat Maroons

BOSTON, Dec. 8—(A. P.)—The Boston Bruins defeated the Montreal Maroons, 3 to 2 in a National Hockey league game, here tonight.

PENN READY TO SAY SEIGE TO BASKETBALL TITLE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—(A. P.)—For the first time since the season of 1920-21 Pennsylvania's aspirations for an inter-collegiate league basketball championship seem wel founded. Five seasons ago Danny McNichol, now an assistant coach, led his team to a title. Since that time Quaker teams have figured prominently in championship games but have failed to win first honors.

Although five of the 1924-25 varsity men—Carmack, Dessen, Kneass, Morris and Block—were lost by graduation, Head Coach Eddie McNichol wears a smile because he has a nucleus of such stars as Paul Davenport, Louis Sherr, Emanuel Goldblatt and Rogero Lindsay.

Davenport captain of the team, played forward and guard last season. McNichol will keep him at forward this year, a position for which he has natural ability. He is one of th ebest field goal losers in the squad.

Paired at forward with Davenport will be M. W. Chapman, who last year served his apprenticeship on the junior varsity. Chapman's development has been so rapid that he has been given a regular position over a half dozen more experienced players.

Sherr is a fixture at center. He was the sensation of Penn's brilliant spurt of last year that carried the team to victory in the final game over the previously undefeated champion Princeton quintet.

Goldblatt, regular guard last season, is again holding down the defensive position. Last season Goldblatt had fewer goals scored on him than any other guard in the league. Lindsay, a substitute guard and forward last season, is opposite Goldblatt. He is the tall, angular type of court player and has improved greatly over his form of a year ago.

McNichol has a host of capable substitutes, including a number who last year were members of the junior varsity five. Clarence Fields, star in football, is making a determined fight for a guard position. Gene Cannell and Harvey Matthews are forward candidates of prominence. W. J. Ramage seeks the pivot post and William Lukaswits and Frank Dawson are prominent guards.

Twenty-one games including the league contests, will be played by the varsity five. A home-and-home arrangement with the Army is a feature of the schedule.

The following football officers are approved for the 1926 season: W. E. Minor, Jr., manager; S. Robbins, assistant manager.

TWO WESLEYAN CAPTAINS ARE NAMED FOR 1926

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Dec. 8—(A. P.)—George B. King, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was re-elected captain of the Wesleyan university soccer team at a meeting of letter men today. King has made his letter for two years as a member of the soccer team and also is a member of the varsity tennis team.

Jerald B. Newton, of South Kent, Conn., was elected captain of the cross country team. He has been a member of the team for two years and also is a member of the track team.

HARLOW RESIGNS AS COACH AT COLGATE

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(A. P.)—The request on Dick Harlow, Colgate football coach, that he be released from his contract at that institution was granted today at a meeting of the Alumni Athletic council of the university.

Harlow is reported to have an offer from the University of Western Maryland which he will accept immediately.

GRANGE FAILS TO GAIN MATERIALLY AGAINST THE WASHINGTON STARS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP)—A net gain of six yards while carrying the ball and a goal kick after a touchdown by one of his mates was Red Grange's only contribution to the 19-0 victory of the Chicago Bears over the Washington All-Stars in a professional football game here today.

It remained for another red head, J. Bryan, former University of Chicago player, to provide the only thrill for the several thousand spectators. In the fourth quarter Bryan snatched a Washington pass and raced 75 yards for a touchdown.

Grange, who played in the first and final periods, carried the ball ten times. His gains totalled 16 yards but on several attempts he was thrown behind his own line for losses aggregating 10 yards. The two forward passes he attempted were grounded and he was unable to get near a pass intended for him.

After Hanny of the Bears scored a touchdown with a 23 yard run of an intercepted pass in the final period, Grange kicked successfully for the extra point, but a few minutes later he failed on a second attempt. A low pass from center hindered his kick.

Captain Sternaman started the Bears' scoring in the third period with a touchdown from the four yard line. The All-Stars fought stubbornly throughout, and in the second quarter marched to within ten yards of a touchdown with a volley of long forward passes.

The former Illinois star was not an important factor in his team's defense, seldom making tackles. He played easily throughout his two periods, apparently reserving his strength for the remaining games in which he is to appear this fall.

OLYMPIC GAMES RESULT IN TIE FOR INDIVIDUAL HONORS

The "Olympic Games" which have been in progress in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium during the past few weeks came to a successful close last evening, George Lambert and James Falcone tying for the all round championship cup with a total of 679 points, closely followed by Robert Burke and Demosthenes Angelopolis. Owing to the popularity of the "Olympic Games" this contest has become one of the annual athletic features at the "Y" and the contest this season proved one of real excitement and interest among the 130 athletes who took part in the competition.

Suitable medal awards will be presented to the first three individual high scorers of each division.

WEST ENDS PLAY AT JEWETT CITY TONIGHT

The Jewett City five makes their initial bow before the hometown folks tonight at Bijou hall, taking on the fast West Ends of Willimantic.

The Thread City outfit have an exceptionally fast team this season being led by "Tommy" Pickett, former Emerald star. Their lineup will include: Caillouitt, center; Haggerty and Pickett forwards; Mandell, Rabinowitz and Storrs guards.

Jewett City has signed up "Harry" Mills and "Monday" Normandin, two of the best basketball players in eastern Connecticut, for the season.

The local lineup will be picked from Mills, center; Normandin, Blake, Benjamin, forwards; Barry, Liberty and Faber, guards.

In the preliminary, the Jewett City Speedboys tackle the snappy Taftville Celtics. As there is much rivalry between these two teams this game should be a hummer. Game will be called at 8 o'clock sharp. All roads leads to Bijou hall tonight, "The Home of Action."

McManus Wanted By Yanks

Marty McManus, second baseman of the St. Louis Browns, is said to be wanted by the former champion Yankees in their plans to rebuild the club. Manager Huggins of the Yankees has not committed himself regarding the material the Yankees would send to St. Louis in exchange but is reported to be considering Aaron Ward, second baseman, Wallie Schang, catcher, and a pitcher.

CLAIMS NO SALARY RAISE WAS GIVEN TO TOOLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—The war within the ranks of International League club owners, instead of subsiding with the re-election of John Conway Toole as president yesterday, broke out afresh today when Samuel Robertson Buffalo president, accused Toole of falsely announcing he had been voted an increase of $2,000 in salary for his new five-year term.

Robertson, who cast the only vote against Toole on the final ballot at yesterday's meeting, flatly denied that the president's salary had been raised from $10,000 to $12,000 or that this question was even mentioned. The Buffalo owner was supported in his statement by Charles A. Davis, new head of the Newark club, who switched to Toole's support yesterday after first voting against the league's executive.

Toole, when advised of the statements of Robertson, insisted that his salary for 1926 would be $2,080 larger than this year but declined to say what the total would be or explain how this was provided, saying that it was "nobody's business."

The controversy was heightened when Toole encountered Robertson in a hotel lobby and exchanged heated words.

"President Toole gets $10,000 a year as stipulated in the constitution and no mention of an increase was made when Jack Dunn nominated Toole for re-election," declared Robertson.

"We increased the salary of his secretary, William J. Manley, but Mr. Toole's salary was not increased," he added.

"He probably figures that the increase to Manley relieves him of any obligation to his secretary and therefore constitutes an increase to him but that is a matter for him and Manley to decide."

In commenting on Mr. Robertson's accusation, Mr. Toole said:

"I will get $2,080 more next year than last year, I consider that an increase. Don't you?"

When asked what his annual salary was now he declined to specify, dismissing the question with, "I guess that's nobody's business."

Robertson shed further light on his controversy with Toole by saying that the Buffalo club league assessments totalling approximately $3,500 were unpaid and they would not be paid until a certified audit of the league's books had been made.

Asked if he had any baseball trades in mind Mr. Robertson turned to George Stallings and said:

"I offered to trade John Conway Toole for Joe O'Brien, owner of the Toledo club, but the proposition was turned down."

ATHLETIC RELATIONS BETWEEN NEBRASKA AND NOTRE DAME..

SOUTHBEND, Ind., Dec. 8—(A. P.)—Athletic relations between the University of Notre Dame and Nebraska, were broken off at a conference between officials of the two schools today, it was announced tonight by the Rev. Matthew Walsh, president of the local institution.

A hostile spirit has existed between the universities for several years. It is understood to have been fanned before and after the 1925 game by treatment accorded Notre Dame football players by Lincoln, Nebraska, townspeople.

WILLIS KNOCKS OUT "SHEIK" LEONARD IN FIRST ROUND

PORTLAND, Maine, Dec. 8—(A. P.)—"Cowboy Jack" Willis, of Portland stopped "Sheik" Leonard, of Bridgeport, Conn., nine seconds before the bell in the first round at the arena tonight. It is Willis' fifth knockout in six starts here. Laddie Lee, of Portland, knocked out Battling Therrien of Sanford, in the fourth round of the semi-final.

NATIONAL LEAGUE MOGULS FAVOR USE OF RESIN BY THE PITCHERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—The National League went on record at its annual meeting today as favoring modification in the playing rules to permit the use of rosin by pitchers.

Improvement of the game in general and curtailment in the quantity of balls used throughout the circuit, in particular, were the motives of the magnates, who sat through a session of more than four hours without taking definite action on many problems which were brought to New York from every point of the circuit. They will further discuss the unsettled questions tomorrow at a continuation of the meeting as American League representatives meet the Belmont hotel.

A report from President Heydler showing that 3,847 dozen balls were used in the league last year preceded consideration of the playing rules. Mr. Heydler pointed out that this total was 246 dozen more than were used the season before and 1,520 dozen more than were put into play in 1920.

The league's position with regard to the use of foreign substance on the ball, under ban for several seasons, he declared would be placed before the joint rules committee of the major and minor leagues. Commissioner Landis has been requested to call a meetin of the rules body in February.

"We recommend," Mr. Heydler explained, "that the rosin be used under the direction of the umpire. It will make for better games and cut down the rapidly mounting total of balls we are being required to use. We have come to the conclusion that failure of the pitchers to get a fair grip is the root of our troubles.

Although the league president admitted that the core of the sphere now in use in the major leagues has been "improved" through the use of a better cork and rubber center, he declared there was no justification for the report that a new ball had been put in play to curb excessive home run hitting. He offered to bring with him to tomorrow's meeting the cross-section of a sample sphere to reinforce his statement.

The recommendation of President Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh that games called prior to the fifth inning on account of rain be played out from the point of which they are stopped, received favorable consideration, but no action was taken. Postponed games, under the present rules, require a complete replay, and it is the contention of the Pirates' owner that they permit of "stalling" on the part of players and result in inconvenience to the fans. The meeting suggested that Mr. Dreyfuss lay his plan before the joint rules committee.

On motion of President William Veech of Chicago the league referred to the schedule committee a plan to distribute holiday dates among all the clubs, if it is feasible.

Resolutions of tribute to the late Christy Mathewson, former pitcher of the Giants and later president of the Boston Braves, were adopted. Prior to the resumption of their meeting tomorrow, the officials will pay further honor to Mathewson as well as twelve other prominent figures of the diamond, who died during the last year, at memorial exercises in the Waldorf Astoria hotel.

The season of 1925 set a new high total for attendance, President Heydler announced. Boston led in the increase, with Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Brooklyn following in that order decreases were noted at St. Louis, New York, Chicago and Cincinnati.

TAFTVILLE FIVE LOSES OVERTIME GAME TO HARTFORD CRESCENTS

One of the closest and most spectacular basketball games ever seen in Parish hall Taftville, resulted in the Taftville five losing a five-minute over time game to the Hartford Crescents 30 to 28 last evening. This is the first overtime game that Taftville basketball fans can remember in the history of the court game in Taftville. It was a game in which excellent passwork and defensive play figured largely and the scoring was largely of a spectacular nature the winning basket being a long overhand toss by Silverman of the Crescents.

The game started in a fast scrimmage in the center of the floor and then on it was a battle of two evenly matched teams. The game see-sawed back and forth until with only a few seconds to play a foul was called on Friedman and Gauthier dropped the ball through the hoops just as the whistle blew. The score stood at 26 each and it was agreed to play a five-minute overtime period.

The first few minutes of the overs time period went scoreless and then Friedman broke loose and with a long shot put the Hartford team in the lead by a two point margin. Hartford failed to hold this advantage for more than a minute for Bus Murph, getting clear for a second was given the ball and he caged a pretty basket. Again the score was deadlocked. In the last minute of play both teams threw caution to the winds and Silverman capturing a Taftville pass took a long chance and with a beautiful overhand shot dropped th eball through the hoops for what proved to be the winning basket. The summary:

Taftville.	G.	F.	Pts.
Gauthier, rf, lf	1	2	4
Normandin, lf, rf	2	1	5
E. Murphy, c	1	1	3
T. Coleman, lg	3	0	6
F. Murphy, rg	5	0	10
	12	4	28

Hartford.	G.	F.	Pts.
Silverman, rf	4	2	10
Balfour, lf	1	0	2
Leonard, c	2	2	6
Cronin, lg	1	0	2
Friedman rg	2	0	4
	13	4	30

In the preliminary game the Taftville Celtics ran roughshod over the Nordics and won an easy 37 to 17 victory.

The Taftville team will play the Crescents again on Christmas afternoon at Parish hall.

WESTERLY ORGANIZES AMATEUR BASKETBALL LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 8—A special meeting held Tuesday evening at the State Armory on Dixon street by managers of different basketball teams showed that the following teams and managers would enter the league: Bradford, Ernest Stenhouse; St. Michaels Legion, Anthony Pupillo; Delta, Dominic Turco; Westerly Sanitary corps, Alexander Greig; Majestic A. C., George Winterbottom and Battery E, with manager to be elected later.

The board of directors of the league will be: President, Sergeant Paul Defanti; vice president, Alexander Greig and secretary, Herman Driggs.

All games are to be strictly amateur. Some games may be played out of town if a hall can be secured. The next meeting of the board will be held next Monday at the armory at 7:30 o'clock and it is planned to have the first game in the league be played on a week from Saturday, Battery E on Saturday, Dec. 12 will play basketball with the Tigers, Gordon Spencer, manager.

DARTMOUTH PAPER PICKS ON COLLEGE FOOTBALL

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 8—(A. P.)—The Dartmouth, the college daily, renewed its attack on over-emphasis of football in an editorial today which stressed the benefits of a four-game schedule and condemned the professional coach in a plea for a return to real amateur sportsmanship. Annual elimination contests were frowned on, and it was contended that under the proposed plan opportunity for hero worship, "so deadening on the sport of the game," would be minimized.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MAGNATES AWARD PENNANT TO SENATORS

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—The board of directors of the American league, meeting today with President Ban Johnson as a preliminary to the annual meeting of the organization tomorrow, officially awarded the league's 1925 pennant to the Washington Senators, approved their financial report and discussed business affairs expected to be acted upon in the annual session.

"Y" VOLLEYBALL TEAM PLAYS AT SO. MANCHESTER TONIGHT

The volleyball team representing the business men's gym class at the local Y. M. C. A. is scheduled to meet the fast Cheney Silk Company team at South Manchester this evening. The Manchesterites trimmed the locals on the Norwich floor recently and the Y'ers are anxious to recover their loss in the game tonight. The local's lineup will probably be as follows: E. C. Dunbar, capt., H. E. Robbins, J. Osten, G. B. Fullerton, A. Charnetski, W. Sharples and B. Palmer.

Balduc Gets Decision.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—(A. P.)—George Balduc of Lewiston, Maine, received the judges' decision over Allentown Johnny Leonard here tonight in a ten round bout. Leonard weighed 127 and Balduc 130.

Mayer Cohen of Holyoke, Mass., knocked out Dick Woody of Elizabeth, N. J., in the seventh round of a ten round bout.

Challenge

The Broadway grammar school basketball team which was organized recently is booking games for the season. They extend the challenge to any team in New London, Taftville, and any of the surrounding towns as well as any grammar school team in the city.

For games please write to Coach Ludlow, Y. M. C. A., Norwich, Conn.

Battery B., Defeats Y. M. H. A.

Battery B., defeated the Y. M. H. A. basketball team in a fast game, 41 to 39, at the Y. M. H. A. floor on Tuesday evening. The game was a close battle and it was not until the final whistle had blown that the winner was decided. Berberich and Robertson starred for the Soldiers while Segal and Adnopos were the leaders for the Y. M. H. A. five.

Nutmegs Basketball Practice

The Nutmeg basketball will hold a practice at the Armory Friday evening at 7:30 p. m. sharp to which the following members are requested to come: Burdick, Segal, Kelly, Burnes, Carlin, Murphy, Williams, Tombari, Couture, Villano, Healy and Winters. At Friday's meeting an election for captain will be held and therefore all of the above are requested to report on time.

OBERLANDER SAYS PRO STAR SELLS TEAM'S REPUTATION

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 8—(A. P.)—Andrew J. "Swede" Oberlander, star Dartmouth fullback, took a fling at professional football and at newspaper sports writers in a talk before the Sportsman club here tonight.

Professional football is all the individual playing of one star, Oberlander said, and "the individual star sells the football reputation of the other ten men who support him."

Regarding newspapers writers, the Dartmouth man declared that too much stress was put on the work of a few players and the general cooperation of the team was neglected.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

The Knights of Columbus track games in New York, in which Alan Helffrich of Penn State set a new record for the "Casey 600" last season, have been set for February 16.

The governor's foot guards from Canada, several professional skating acts and a ball at the Biltmore will open Madison Square Garden to hockey next Tuesday night.

Goosens and Debaets, Belgian team which captured the six-day bicycle race in New York last week, received $9,000 for their efforts. Alf Goullet, who was outdistanced, is said to have been guaranteeded $10,000.

Professional football paid in its first attempt in New York, but there was a deficit until Red Grange appeared according to the promoters.

Commissioner John O'Neil and Dan Skilling of the New York State Athletic commission will visit Jack Delaney, Bridgeport light heavyweight, at his training quarters today to determine his condition for his bout with the champion, Paul Berlenbach, in New York, Friday night.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Orpheum Theatre, Danielson

An exceptional treat for music lovers is the recital arranged for the Orpheum theatre, Danielson, Thursday evening, December 10, when Prof. Plamandon and Prof. Paquin, of the Paris Conservatory of Music, will make their appearance.

When these famous vocalists appeared in eastern Connecticut towns, including Danielson, about a year ago, their recitals were hailed with exceptional praise. Danielson feels particularly fortunate over their coming, return engagement and will give them an enthusiastic welcome. The recital is for the benefit of St. James' church. Tickets may be exchanged for reserved seats this (Wednesday) morning at the theatre box office.

LOOKING FOR INCREASED BUS LINE SERVICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 9—A man with an idea suggested Tuesday, both Goodyear and East Killingly being without regular transportation service, that someone might get a franchise to run between these two places, via Dayville, getting enough business out of the pair of short routes connected into one, to make it worth while. He says the Goodyear people could get connections for Danielson and Putnam at Dayville, the East Killingly people connections for Danielson or at North Dayville Four Corners. The proposed run from Goodyear to East Killingly is almost a straight east and west run, or just the opposite if you prefer. Only between Dayville Center and Dayville Four Corners, a distance of about a mile, would it parallel the present coach line of the Connecticut company. East Killingly might not like the idea of a change of busses at Dayville Four Corners, but the plan at least offers transportation facilities, which is better than the present total absence of them for East Killingly people by a common carrier and will give the operator of such a line at least a chance to make a profit on his venture. The proposed route would be from Dayville Four Corners to East Killingly via Killingly Center. There is, of course, in considering this plan the possibility that the Connecticut company might object to a parallel bus service between Dayville and Dayville Four Corners.

Danielson has a vital interest in Goodyear and East Killingly's transportation puzzle. Both communities spend scores of thousands of dollars in Danielson every year. This is business that Danielson can ill-afford to sacrifice. That is why there should be, as Goodyear and East Killingly people see the situation, some real activity in the borough with a view to getting a service established. It was naively suggested here Tuesday afternoon that the Connecticut company, having been so generously treated in the matter of coach service in this territory and having a monopoly on the north and south route and having abandoned its Elmville-East Killingly service, might be induced to furnish the Goodyear-East Killingly service herein proposed, as a feeder to its north and south route.

CHRISTMAS CLUB MONEY IN DANIELSON IS $120,000

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 9—With release of its Christmas club funds completed by the Brooklyn Savings bank all of the nearly $120,000 that made up this year's savings of these funds in Danielson banks are in the hands of the thrifty people who have been getting checks since the first of the month.

A few years ago such a total release from Christmas club funds in Danielson would seem really extraordinary, but Danielson has come to realize during the course of a decade that the Christmas club funds are greater every year and no total now looks as great as would have been the case had teh Christmas club idea here blossomed over night.

Records of the bank show that practically every community within ten miles of Danielson is represented by Christmas club members in one bank or another, so the money that has been released will benefit not only Danielson but many other communities.

Bankers here, basing their views on experience of the past, believe that at least 25 per cent., of the money will be re-deposited in savings accounts.

For the ensuing year Brooklyn grange has elected the following officers: Master, Sidney W. Bard; overseer, Mrs. Mabel Ennis; lecturer, Mrs. Mazie Potter; steward, Leroy P. Pearl; assistant steward, J. Kimball Hargraves; chaplain, Miss Helen H. Palmer; treasurer, Joseph B. Stetson; secretary, Mrs. Addie C. Hyde; gatekeeper, J. Dyer Potter, Jr.; Ceres, Mrs. Louise Potter; Pomona, Miss Arlene Raymond; Flora, Mrs. Jennie House, lady assistant steward, Mrs. Florence Hargraves.

These newly elected officers of Killingly grange are to be installed on January 18: Master, Mrs. Harriet Wood; overseer, Mrs. Flora Kennedy; lecturer, Rev. C. A. Downs; steward, Waldo Wood; assistant steward, Carl Davis; chaplain, Mrs. C. A. Downes; treasurer, Mrs. Annie Cunneen; secretary, Miss Mary Blanchard; gatekeeper, Kenneth Preston; Pomona, Miss Helen Keech; Flora, Miss Sarah Chase; Ceres, Miss Florence Wood; lady assistant steward, Miss Ruth Cunneen.

Reports from he Rhode Island hospital on Tuesday were to the effect that Miss Beatrice Maynard, injured in an automobile accident at Greene, R. I., Sunday, had rested comfortably during the preceding night and was somewhat improved during the day. Her recovery to full health will require considerable time, but now seems fully assured.

The one-way rule in Center street becomes effective this (Wednesday) morning. The ruling is made by the borough officials, and cooperation of the public in observing it universally is requested by the police. Traffic will enter Center street from Main, but not Main from Center.

This (Wednesday) morning it is planned to take Killingly's motor driven road working machine over to South street, in the town of Brooklyn, to make a little demonstration of its capabilities for Brooklyn citizens who are considering buying a similar machine for use on the highways of that neighboring town.

At a session of the town court Tuesday morning Judge W. Fenner Woodward imposed a fine on William Turner, now staying at Elmville, for operating a motor vehicle with a New Jersey registration over a larger period than is allowed out-of-the-state cars in Connecticut.

Those who do not believe that it is advisable to do their Christmas shopping early should inspect the trade volume already developed in Danielson, and note that these shoppers are getting the choice of the full range of possible selections. The holiday buying has really started early this year.

Several hundred parishioners received communion at the four masses at St. James' church Tuesday morning in observance of the Feast of the Immaculate Conception.

Members of the Service battery were at the state armory Tuesday evening for a regular drill period and the diversions that usually follow the drill.

Calendars for 1926 are being distributed this early by some of the business firms in town, but this is not an invitation for the children to pester them with requests for a dozen or more.

A Chandler car owned by a Mr. Gratt, of Worcester, was destroyed by fire on the state highway two miles south of here on the Wauregan road during the very early hours of Tuesday morning. It so happened that friends of Mr. Gratt, coming along in another car and stopping to watch the burning machine recognized members of the Gratt party and took them on to Worcester.

The new no parking regulation for the area fronting the School street school is being fully respected by car owners. The space is now free of parked cars at all times.

Members of the Nazerene church held a cottage prayer meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geroge Miner.

Now drawing near the end of another successful year, the Danielson Building and Loan association will issue a new series of shares immediately after the first of the year.

Mrs. William F. Davis had members of the W. C. T. U. at her home for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Henry C. Morgan, of Springfield, was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Tuesday.

Threats that they would be brought into court and strong talk from officers has caused the air rifle brigade to slow down a bit in their reckless use of the weapons in Danielson.

For the novelty of the experience, numbers of people are taking rides on the new motor coaches of the Connecticut company operating through this territory.

The new bridge over the Assawaga river will have been in place three weeks on Friday and can be opened to traffic as soon as the railings and surfacing have been finished.

SHORT COURSES FOR GENERAL CULTURE

High school students in Santa Barbara, Calif., have the opportunity, through a series of half-hour semi-weekly periods, to take short courses on cultural and general subjects that are not included in their regular courses. These short courses are offered in astronomy, art appreciation, ethics, psychology, logic, history of California, popular science, technique of games, music appreciation, community singing, conversational Spanish, conversational French, current topics, office study, use of the library, the slide rule, and chemistry arithmetic. —School Life.

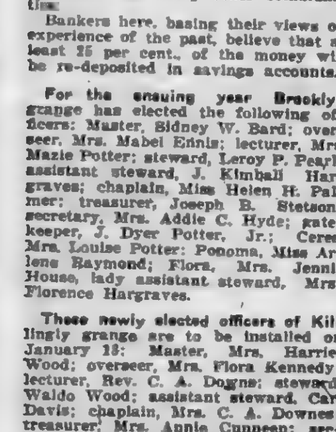
FRENCH CAT, WITH A PRICE ON HIS FUR NEEDS ALL HIS LIVES

PARIS, Dec. 8—(AP)—Cats are becoming so popular with furriers that they now need their proverbial nine lives more than ever.

The only difference between the sleek, well-bred household favorite and the ordinary, low-caste prowler of the neighborhood, is that the former may find himself transformed into a cloak and christened with a high-sounding name, while the other goes into the making of rugs for automobiles.

Healthy Hair

Gleamy, Thick, Wavy —Full of Life



Modern style in hair dress, particularly constant curling and waving, is slowly burning the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; often the hair roots shrink, then the hair falls out fast.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty-tonic acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week! While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

NOANK.

On Monday morning at 6 o'clock a thief was observed stealing two loaves of bread from the doorstep of a local store. He got away from the man who saw him by being a better runner. Not many tramps have been around the village in late years.

Thomas Magown, a well known fisherman from this fishing village, has received an award through the mixed claims committee, for claims against Germany, for damage done during the war. He is listed to receive $174. The awards were announced Monday at Washington. In all of the awards only the principal sum is named, but it is provided that the payment shall include interest at five per cent. a year from the date the claim was filed, until date of payment.

A Germany submarine sank the fishing boat, which Mr. Gagown was on, off the Georgia Banks. The men lost everything and put to sea in dorys, to make shore the best way they could. They rowed for many hours before being picked up by some boat. Magown was a World war soldier stationed in Georgia.

Meister, William Plumstead, Sam Carson, Earl Foster. Two new members were voted upon. After the meeting Steward Foster served a clam chowder which was thoroughly enjoyed.

Insects in the Snow

Even the cold of winter does not stop all insect activity. Among the hardy snow-frequenters may be mentioned those curious little worms—not strictly insects—that gain a mysterious livelihood on glaciers in high mountains, and consequently are known as glacier worms.

Then there are some tiny insects never seen in winter, and so little known that they have no popular name, says Nature Magazine, of Washington. Scientists call them Boreus, and they leap on the snow like miniature black grasshoppers. What they eat and how they live has not yet been discovered.

The crane flies, better known perhaps as "daddy-long-legs," with their narrow wings and dangling awkward legs are strictly summer insects. But they have a small and poor relation without any wings at all and only moderately long legs, which enjoys itself in the very coldest kind of winter weather, and goes awooing across the snow with the thermometer below zero.

By far the largest number of snow insects belong to an insect division familiarly known as "springtails." This name being too plain and easy, the savants call them Collembola.

Some nine hundred different kinds of springtails have been recorded. They are found all over the globe from the Arctic to the Antartic.

They are little soft, wingless creatures mostly from a twenty-fifth to a twelfth of an inch in length, and they live principally under bark and in moss and loose soil. About twenty-five species of them are known to come out on the snow in Europe and America.

Six Year Old Egg Clear

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Dec. 8—(AP)—An egg, buried three and a half feet under the ground for six years, has been uncovered here and declared to be "as clear as if it had been in the ground only six days" by H. G. Smith, manager of the Washington Cooperative Egg and Poultry Association's station.

No one, however, volunteered to eat it.

CORNS AND CALLUSES

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on any aching corn, callus or "hardskin" on bottom of feet. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove very hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

PLAINFIELD

The Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church, of Canterbury, held a Christmas sale Tuesday night in the grange hall. Many Plainfield people were there and the attendance broke all records for Canterbury. Delightful musical selections were played by the Canterbury band, assisted by a few from Plainfield.

Mrs. Nathan Exley and Mrs. Ida Pratt attended a meeting of the W. C. T. U., at Central Village, Tuesday.

On Monday night the O. J. S., held a regular meeting. Beside other business, the election of officers was held. The following were elected: President, Mrs. Harold Lewis; vice president, Miss Mary Baldwin; treasurer, Mrs. Milton Winsor; secretary, Miss Ruth Hall. A vote of thanks was extended to the outgoing officers and Mrs. Moffitt, the retiring president, made a short speech, thanking the members for their hearty cooperation during her term in office. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Susan Dodge and Mrs. Everett Dawley.

A meeting of the F. F. A. society was held at the Community house, on Monday night. Wilfred Richard presided. A discussion relative to presenting a French play took up the greater portion of the meeting. Following the meeting, a social and whist party was held, and prizes were awarded. Men's first went to Wilfred Richard; consolation, Homer Jodoin and E. LaPage. Women's prizes were won by Ovillina Jodoin, Delerosa Bernier and Mariana Jodoin.

A Christmas play and entertainment by the school children is to be held on Dec. 21st., and the programme has been arranged so that all grades will participate. Christmas vacation will commence on Dec. 23rd.

Mrs. Isadore Mercier left Plainfield, recently, for New London, to undergo an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Ovilla Charron recently entertained John A. Ledoux, Theodore La Barr, and Mabel Gerard, of Norwich.

WORLD WHEAT CROP LARGER THAN LAST YEAR'S

Wheat production in 32 countries of the northern hemisphere this year is nearly 300,000,000 bushels more than last year, being 2,953,000,000 bushels compared with 2,634,000,000 bushels in 1924, the United States department of agriculture reports on the basis of estimates received up to November 12. The 1923 crop was 3,022,000,000 bushels.

The outturn in the southern hemisphere is still somewhat uncertain, but conditions to date indicate a crop about the same as last year, the department says. A reduction of 65,000,000 bushels under last year in the Australian crop according to a preliminary estimate may be offset by an increase in the Argentine crop where conditio nsdotaviehea [illegible] conditions to date have been unusually favorable and a record acreage is reported. The crop in the Union of South Africa is forecast at 8,341,000 bushels, which is somewhat above the average production.

The Canadian crop is now placed at 422,000,000 bushels compared with a previous estimate of 392,000,000 bushels. The crop last year was 262,000,000 bushels. There should be available for export and carryover from the Canadian crop this year somewhat more than 300,000,000 bushels, the department says.

Only about 800,000 bushels of Canadian wheat was imported duty paid from July 1 to November 7, the department adds, and the price differential at present is not sufficiently wide to encourage heavy imports from that country. Prices of wheat in world markets fell rapidly early in the season in adjusting from an old to a new crop basis, the low point being reached in October, but there has been some rise since then.

Recent reports indicate that estimates of the Russian crops have been too high and that exports will not be so large as expected. Revised estimates of the Spanish crop during the past week show an increase of 30,000,000 bushels above previous estimates. The Belgian wheat crop is placed at 14,000,000 bushels against 13,000,000 bushels last year.

A preliminary forecast of the Australian wheat crop places production at 99,000,000 bushels compared with 164,000,000 bushels last year, and 125,000,000 bushels in 1922. The final outturn may be changed, depending upon weather conditions the remainder of the season. Domestic wheat requirements in Australia are placed at 45,000,000 bushels, leaving somewhat more than 50,000,000 bushels available for export and carryover. Exports from the large crop of 1924-25 have nearly exhausted the estimated surplus, an indication that the carryover at the beginning of the Australian crop year December 1 will not be above normal.

The Canadian flaxseed crop this year is estimated at 9,354,000 bushels compared with 9,695,000 bushels last year, barley 113,118,000 bushels compared with 88,807,000 bushels; rye 14,434,000 bushels against 13,751,000 bushels, and oats 521,922,000 bushels against 405,976,000 bushels.

The United States circuit court of appeals in Cincinnati, granted the petition of Congressman John W. Langley, of Kentucky, for a stay of the mandate of that court affirming a two year sentence in Atlanta penitentiary, on charges of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

People Want Progress

WHEN a motor car conclusively excels in its price class, and gives buyers measurably far more for their money, buyers want that motor car. That, in essence, is the story of the new 1926 Chandler.

Chandler offers a smarter style of beauty. It gives you a more restful sense of comfort. It delivers more power in the instant of need. And it saves money in first price, in everyday operation, in upkeep.

Look at the new Chandler Twentieth Century Sedan. Here is closed car value which anybody can see is carried to a climax—a very definite development in finer body-building on a chassis of ideal strength and balance—a richer, smarter 4-door Sedan priced less than a 2-door coach!

And it has, of course, the famous Pikes Peak Motor—which broke all records in this year's automobile race to the summit of Pikes Peak, the world's highest motor car climb.

Look at it and you want to drive it. Drive it and you want to own it!

Other new Chandler models are the Metropolitan Sedan De Luxe, now $1795 (reduced $400); the Seven-Passenger Sedan, now $1895 (reduced $400); the Brougham, now $1695 (reduced $350); and open models reduced $100 to $140. Prices f. o. b. Cleveland. Quality now talks price—and sales are passing all past records.

WESTERLY

RAILROAD TO CONSTRUCT ORNAMENTAL BILLBOARD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 8—An eyesore about the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad, which will shortly disappear from the gaze of commuters and even the passengers on trains which make the Westerly station stop, is that of the unsightly gravel bank and fence between the railroad property and Railroad avenue, which will be cut off from view by about 100 feet of ornamental billboard with lattice work and eventually a grass plot and shrubbery will find a place in front of it. Through the efforts of Westerly Station Agent Earl S. Bavier, the advertising poster boards will be taken from the lampposts along the station platform and be placed in panels on the large board being erected by the Roebling company. There will be 15 large posters, and 24 of the small posters when the board is completed. Construction work was begun on Tuesday morning by a force of workmen. For the first 33 feet the board will be erected at an angle to the station platform, beginning at a point where automobiles were formerly parked in great numbers until signs were posted by the railroad reading, "No Parking." The remaining length of the board will more nearly parallel the platform as it extends to the eastward. A considerable of similar kind of work has been done by the Roebling company along the tracks of the Boston and Maine railroad.

Three Westerly Italians left Westerly on Tuesday, to pass a few months visiting relatives and friends in Italy before returning here. They were Giovani Saposita, of Lincoln avenue, Pawcatuck, who goes to the Province of Messina; Antonio Balona, of Liberty street, Pawcatuck, to Messina, and Angelo Fuscaldi, of Westerly, who will visit in the Province of Lombardy. The three are booked for passage on the new Italian fast mail liner de luxe, he S. S. "Conte Biancamano" (White Count) of the Lloyd Sabando line, which sails from Pier 95, North river this (Wednesday) noon bound for Naples, Italy, and touching at Southampton, England. The men are taking the first scheduled sailing of the steamship this season.

The Westerly trial calendar, of the November session, of superior court for Washington county, will be taken up next Monday, at the county court house on Union street. After the empanelling of the jury, the first of the week, Associate Justice Antonio A. Capotosto excused the remainder of the petit jurors to report at 10:30 o'clock in Westerly, on next Monday.

Today (Wednesday) Westerly grand jurors, Joseph A. Dodw, Fayette F. Freeman, H. Russell Burdick, W. Sherman Eaton and Robert Rodn, all of Westerly, together with the other grand jurors, have been called back a second time this session of the Washington county superior court, to consider evidence to be presented by the attorney general's department of Rhode Island.

Deborah chapter, No. 9, O. E. S., of Westerly, Mrs. Eleanor P. Mitchell, worthy matron, held a stated meeting in the Masonic rooms on High street on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. Degree work was followed by the serving of light refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed.

Workmen in the employ of the gas department of the South County Public Service company were engaged in digging up sections of High and Broad streets in the vicinity of Dixon square, Monday and Tuesday, in a fruitless search of a gas leak.

The intersecion of School and Elm streets, where the automobile mushroom beacons were located, under the direction of the police committee of the Westerly town council, in cooperation with the Westerly road commission, has been painted with division lines and the beacons have been removed.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Westerly district Council of Religious Education, consisting of the pastors and school superintendents of the 24 churches in the district, held in the vestry of the First Baptist church on Broad street, at 7:45 o'clock Tuesday night, took favorable action on the recommendation of the executive committee of the Westerly district Sunday School association, held in Ashaway on Nov. 23rd., in the adoption of a course of study and a community training school for religious instruction.

Mrs. Addie G. Stillman, accompanied by her son, Edwin B. Stillman, of Westerly, left Westerly Tuesday for New York city. On Thursday morning at 10 o'clock they will sail on the American line steamship, "Kroonland," which makes its initial sailing for Miami, Fla. This is the largest steamship which sails from Pier 62, North river, to go into the United States coastal service. Mr. Stillman and his mother will pass most of the time in south at Cocoa, Fla.

Former Westerly Constable James W. Burke and wife left Westerly Tuesday afternoon for a visit in Providence.

Mrs. Julia G. Davis, of Natic, Mass., is the guest for a short time of relatives and friends in Westerly and Pawcatuck.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Segar, of Westerly, were visitors in New London, Tuesday.

Mrs. G. H. Cameron, after passing some time in Buzzards Bay, Mass., has now joined her husband in Westrly.

Lewis Tetlow, of Westerly, was a New London business caller on Tuesday.

Stonington Probate Judge Frank H. Hinckley, of Mystic, held a session of the probate court for Pawcatuck, in the probate court rooms, in the Walton block, West Broad street, on Tuesday afternoon.

A number of members of Deborah chapter, No. 9, O. E. S., of Westerly, journeyed to Wakefield Monday evening, where they attended the annual election and installation of officers of the Eastern Star chapter of South Kingston.

Carpenters and plumbers are rushing work in the new Westerly's United theatre on Canal sreet. It is hoped that the theatre will be ready by the middle of next month.

Five churches were represented at the executive meeting of the Westerly district council of Religious education. Plans were made for a ten weeks' course, beginning in January, to be offered at a teachers' training school, on Methods, Bible and Early Church History. A committee was named consisting of President A. L. Davis, Rev. E. E. Morrill, and Rev. Marvin Stocking to arrange for teachers, time and place of meeting.

The third rally of the Westerly district council will be held on next Monday evening, at the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church, Westerly. This will be a booster's rally for the opening of the teachers course.

Scripture reading and prayer for Harmenus Welch Goff, who died Sunday, was held Tuesday morning at nine o'clock at his late home, 17 Moss street. The service was conducted by Rev. A. L. Schoning, pastor of the Broad Street Christian church. A large number of relatives and friends were present and there were many beautiful flowers.

The body was taken to East Hampton, Conn., where the funeral service was held at 2 o'clock at the Congregational church. Burial was in the East Hampton cemetery.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HEARS FINE ADDRESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 8—The Westerly Chamber of Commerce, Lewis Stanton, president, held its regular December meeting at the Colonial club on High street on Tuesday night. After 6:30 o'clock a dinner was served nearly thirty members in the dining room. The menu follows:

Oyster Cocktails
Roast Sirloin of Beef
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Fresh String Beans
Olives Celery
Peach Salad
Rolls Butter
Hot Apple Pie
Demi Tasse

The speaker of the evening was J. Paul Foster, manager New England Affairs bureau, of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, who addressed the members on the subject, Westerly Chamber of Commerce and Why Westerly Should Have One.

In his remarks Mr. Foster spoke of the experiences of the Boston chamber and counseled his listeners to work for the community as a whole and then the best interests of Westerly would be conserved. He urged his hearers to contribute energy, get a definite program, and work for Westerly as a whole and then the reputation of Westerly would be unsullied. He cautioned them to act so that the community would not be spoken of disparagingly The business men of Westerly should put forth their best efforts and they would profit indirectly and the community profit as a whole.

Stewart D. Fisher, superintendent of the Lorraine Manufacturing company, was elected a member of the Westerly Chamber of Commerce.

The matter of naming a Pullman car "Westerly" was reported has having been taken up with the Pullman company and progress noted.

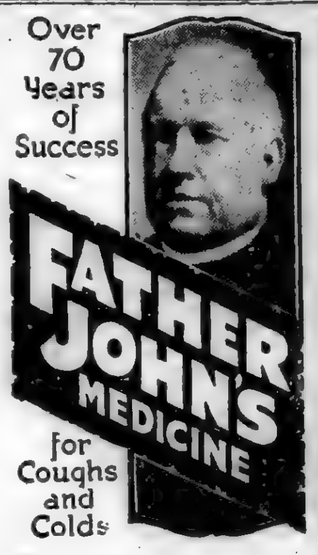
S. E. Cooley, traffic manager of the New Haven railroad, wrote a letter asking for data on Westerly. It was voted to send him a copy of the annual report of the Shore Development association, together with a personal letter of what it has accomplished. A letter of appreciation was received from Mr. Cooley in reply to one sent to the New Haven railroad by the Westerly chamber, expressing the appreciation of the improvements about the Westerly station, and he wrote, "the close co-operation of Westerly with the railroad was greatly appreciated."

From the Western Union Telegraph company concerning the lengthening of Westerly office hours of the telegraph company and in answer to the request for the number of night calls from Westerly and Watch Hill by the New London office, information came from headquarters that during the month of June there was an average of one and one half a night, July, two a night and in August, three a night. The company requested assistance to secure first floor quarters in place of those now occupied on a second floor.

It was voted to lay on the table the request of a student of Connecticut college that Westerly retailers contribute a percentage of some day's receipts toward the raising of the $600,000 quota before January 1, so that the college could obtain an additional $150,000, thatp rofessors' salaries might be given a higher average than the present $3,000 a year.

President Stanton urged that the chamber follow the suggestion of Mr Foster and have a real program and that all should take a personal responsibility by planning for a personal program.

D. Harold Rogers moved the resolution that the Westerly chamber back the proposition, as presented to the Westerly town council, to cut down Union street and to continue it through to Main street near the Orville George Barber property. Mr. Coy had the provision added, "if it was for the best interests for the town as a whole." Harvey Percy, of the Union street committee, on request, stated that the street would be fifty feet wide, of easy grade and the properties recently burned in that vicinity would lessen any claim that might arise from property damage. He added that a canvas had shown the abutting property owners would not claim damages and that practically every department of the town would have its property concerned in the proposed changes. Westerly Highway Engineer A. L. Leon's estimates showed careful consideration. The motion was adopted by acclamation and the meeting adjourned.



STONINGTON

Mrs. Frank Stanton, wife of the postmaster has returned from an extended visit in New York.

Mrs. Irene Collins of Westerly, was a caller here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Jones, of Cross street, Westerly, were callers in Stonington and Norwich Tuesday.

Rev. James E. O'Brien held a special session of St. Mary's church in "Wadewanuk" square Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Todd, of New Haven, spent the week-end with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. August O. Muller, of Elm street.

Sunday afternoon there were as many as fifteen automobiles at Stonington Point at one time. This is the case most every Sunday afternoon when tourists come to the "Point" and park their cars, staying sometimes for an hour or more, watching the breakers and the boats sailing by. It certainly is a sight worth seeing for those who like the water and boats.

Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Thompson attended the meeting of the Thames Valley Ministerial association, held Monday, in Waterford.

The Missionary society of the First Baptist is to meet Friday afternoon with Mrs. Thompson at the parsonage on Church street. Miss Jennie M Rittenhouse, of Denison avenue, will entertain the W. W. G. of the First Baptist churc at her home Thursday evening.

Monday the Ladies' Aid society of the Second Congregational church held a special session in honor of the 80th birthday of Mrs. Harry S. Babcock. Mrs. Babcock is an active and highly esteemed member of the church.

Miss L. Brown was a caller in Providence Sunday.

George Sheffield, of Cutler street, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Sheffield, celebrated his fourteenth birthday Saturday evening, with a group of young friends to help him enjoy the evening

Miss Edith Lathrop rendered the solos at the Second Congregational church Sunday.

The Neptune Co., of the local firemen's delegation to the Nameaug Co's fair, in New London, had the largest delegation. About forty firemen went to New London.

On Sunday, Dec. 13, Dr. Edward Chapman, of New London, will occupy the pulpit of the Second Congregational church. On the following Sunday, Rev D. E. Schooler, of the Yale School of Religion, will preach the morning sermon. Dr. Gallup, the regular pastor, will be absent on those two Sundays owing to a slight operation he is to undergo.

Chester Main, of Stonington, was a caller in Noank recently.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Edgar and son were recent callers in Westerly.

C. A. Bleasdale, of Westerly, was in town on business Tuesday morning.

Jack Winthrop of New Haven, spent the week end here.

School districts in the town of Stonington have shown a total enumeration of 2,448 children of school age. These are the figures compared to 2,44 in 1924. Gains have been made in Pawcatuck, Stonington borough and Mystic. In Old Mystic, Quononcontaug and Tamaque, schools have fallen off in attedance. Following are the figures for 1924-25:

	1924	1925
Pawcatuck	1210	1254
Stonington borough	585	599
Mystic	388	407
Old Mystic	129	111
Rural	92	77
Totals	2404	2448

The Neptune Engine Co., met Monday evening in their quarters on Church street.

MYSTIC

NORWICH MAN'S CAR HITS MAN WALKING ON HIGHWAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

MYSTIC, Dec. 8—Mark E. Porter of 26 Williams avenue was painfully injured about 5:30 o'clock Tuesday morning when he was struck by the automobile driven by Joseph C. Morse, of Norwich, near Williams crossing. Morse was traveling west and claimed to be blinded by the lights of an approaching truck, which caused him to swing off the road. Before he got back onto the road the car struck Mr. Porter, knocking him down and inflicting a deep cut on his face, between the ear and the nose.

Mr. Morse took the injured man to Dr. Charles F. Congdon, who took six stitches to close the wound, after which Mr. Porter was taken to his home.

Morse's car went into the trolley tracks and two wheels were badly damaged. Morse has the contract for leaving the Norwich Bulletin in Westerly, Stonington, Mystic, Noank and other places in this section and had about completed his swing when the accident occurred.

The accident was investigated by two state policemen and Mr. Morse was notified to appear in court next Monday morning. The damaged car was taken to a local garage for repairs.

Mrs. Margaret Susanna Caswell, wife of John Nelson Caswell, of 87 High street, died at the home of her son Harry Mathewson, of Noank, December 6th, where she had been sick for some weeks. She was born in Hope Valley. She leaves beside her husband, a son, by her first husband and two daughters by her last marriage, Miss Jeannette Caswell and Mrs. Florence Hymel; also one brother, Samuel Carter, of Hope Valley. The funeral was held Tuesday and was private, being conducted by Rev. J. Garfield Sallis. Interment was in Hope Valley.

A surprise party was given James Crandall, at his home at Fort Rachel place, in honor of his 20th birthday Piano and violin solos and games were played, after which the large birthday cake, with 20 candles, was cut and served with other refreshments. Guests were present from Noank, Old Mystic and Mystic.

Members of the Young Judean club, of New London were entertained at the home of Miss Sylvia Lapin, on West Main street, Saturday evening. Stories were told and games played, every one participating making the occasion very enjoyable. The guests were from New London and Mystic.

Several from here attended the second in the series of concerts, given under the direction of the Lyceum Concerts company, in the Baptist church, at Noank, Monday evening, entitled, The First World Flight in story and motion pictures. "Smiling" Jack Harding one of the flyers, told the story in a pleasing manner, showing news from colorful scenes of life in far off corners of the world. Leslie Arnold, of New London, was with him on this world flight.

Rev. Dr. Russel H. Conwell, 82, died in Philadelphia, Sunday. He was one of the most widely known Baptist clergymen and founder president of Temple University. He had delivered his famous lecture, Acres of Diamonds, in Westerly and Noank in recent years and many from here went to hear him. He delivered it over 6,000 times and all income from his lectures was given to educate young men.

Mrs. Clarence Rippel and infant son were dismissed from Home Memorial hospital, Monday, and have returned home.

Mrs. Ella E. G. Wheeler of High street, spent Monday in New London.

Odell D. Tompkins returned to Mount Vernon, N. Y., Monday evening, after a few days here, superintending work being done at his summer home on Pequot avenue.

Mrs. Alice Sherburne is caring for Miss Julia Foote, who has a fractured arm.

The regular weekly prayer meeting of the Baptist church is to be held in the vestry tonight (Wednesday).

The singers in the choir of the Old Mystic Baptist church met for a rehearsal Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Ellen Williams and Mrs. Mary Briggs returned to Old Mystic, Monday, from a visit with their brother, Allen Stevensen, in Boston.

The Poison Sumac

Three graceful sisters have a black sheep brother, Poison Sumac, which imitates them in many ways and tempts the unwary to touch it, says Nature Magazine. The next stage is bed and hospital. It is found in swamps and wet lands only and never in the same part of a field as the harmless ones. It grows much like the Smooth, to 20 feet, usually in a clump, with many light, ashy trunks. The leaflets are usually fewer, shining and entire but without the wing-leaf stem. The petioles are a beautiful red in clever contrast to the gray twigs. Bright red petioles say, "Beware!" The flowers are green and hang down in strings like the bloom of a currant, and the white berries look like white garden currants.

Buster Bear Goes to Work

Some folk find pleasure in employing
Their strength and talents in destroying.
—Old Mother Nature.

Buster Bear shuffled along through the Green Forest growling and grumbling to himself. Behind him at a safe distance sneaked Yowler the Bob Cat, and Yowler was grinning. Yes, sir, he was grinning. It was clear that something was pleasing Yowler very much indeed. The more Buster growled the more Yowler grinned.

At length they came to the swamp where Paddy the Beaver and his family were building the new dam. Already there was quite a pond in that swamp. Buster growled more than ever as he came to the water and found he must go around. He hadn't realized before how rapidly that pond was growing. It was very much bigger than it had been the last time he was over there. Yowler was right. Unless something was done and done soon the biggest part of that swamp would be a pond. A pond would be of no use to him, Buster Bear, excepting to take a bath in, and there was Paddy's old pond for that already.

At the time he was growling in a way frightful to hear

At last Buster reached the end of the dam. He looked for Paddy or some of his family, but none was in sight. Buster grinned now. It was his turn to grin, and that grin was a wicked grin. There was mischief in it. That dam was hardly wide enough on top or stout enough for him to walk along it yet. He went below it and walked the whole length of it, looking it over carefully. The water was spurting through it in many places for, you see, it was such a new dam that there hadn't been time to fill all the holes. Buster's feet were wet, but he didn't mind this in the least. He rather likes water. You see, he isn't like Yowler the Bob Cat.

Clear across the length of the dam just below it Buster walked. Then he turned and walked back to a point near the middle of it. He stood up and looked all along it and over it. His little eyes glowed red. Yowler the Bob Cat, watching from a hiding place, saw this and grinned more than ever. And he grinned still more when Buster suddenly growled and began tearing at that dam with his great claws.

Now, Buster is very strong, as you know. How he did make things fly as he tore sticks out of that dam and threw them this way and that way! All the time he was growling in a way quite frightful to hear. You might have thought that dam was an enemy with whom he was fighting. In a few minutes the water began to pour through that hole in a solid stream. It soaked Buster, but he didn't mind at all. He tore and tore at that hole, making it bigger and bigger. The force of the water rushing through helped make it bigger.

Yowler the Bob Cat could see the pond above the dam grow smaller even as he watched. The water's edge became farther and farther away from where he was sitting. Yowler almost laughed right out. He hoped Paddy the Beaver would come and come soon. He wanted him to arrive while Buster Bear was still there, for he knew that Paddy would not dare try to repair that dam while Buster was right there.

Buster moved along and tore another hole in that dam, but he was doing this just for the fun of destroying, for the water was already too low to run out here much. Queer, isn't it, how some folk find pleasure in destroying things? Buster is one of these. Perhaps it is just that he likes to show how strong he is. Anyway, he is apt to tear things to pieces for no reason whatever excepting the fun of doing it.

At last Buster decided that he had done enough. "There," he growled, "I guess this will teach Paddy that he doesn't own this swamp and that he can't turn it into a pond without I say so."

Then Buster shuffled away to look for something to eat, while Yowler fairly hugged himself in glee as he waited for Paddy to appear.

Meanwhile Paddy and his family were enjoying a well earned rest. They were not planning to work that night for they had worked all day and they were very tired.

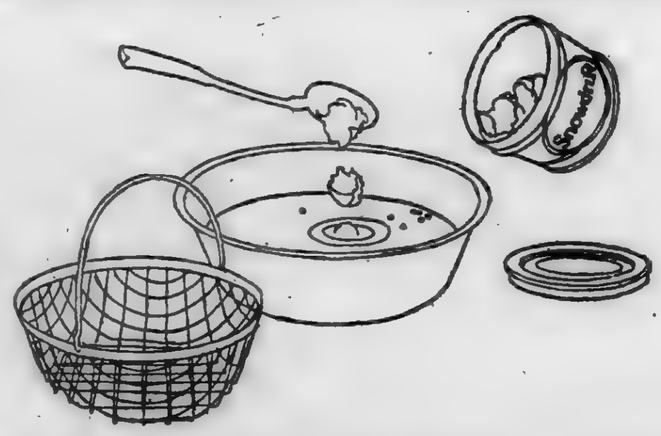
MOOSUP

Children need plenty of sunshine and fresh air. During these late fall days when there is a suggestion of winter in the air, children should not be allowed to remain in the house by the warm fireside. The playing out of doors is conducive to health. Warm sweaters and mittens will help to keep the cold out, and thus children can play with perfect freedom in any weather. Children who are thus allowed to play out in the open each day come in for their meals with glowing cheeks and laughing eyes, and are healthy in the extreme. The little children who are allowed to take their morning or afternoon nap on the porch, are likewise healthier, because they have had plenty of air and sunshine during this time.

Such factors in health are discussed at the Well Child conferences which are held monthly in Moosup. The conference this month will be on Friday afternoon, December 8th., in Franco-American hall, from 2 to 4 o'cock.

Beauty is but skin deep, and therefore on an equal footing with freckles.

White House COFFEE
The Flavor is Roasted In!



With a can of Snowdrift and a deep frying kettle you can make appetizing croquettes with the left-overs—meat, fish, potatoes and other things—that you may have in your ice box.

Here is a recipe for potato croquettes that you may want to try.

WHITE OR SWEET POTATO CROQUETTES

2 Cupfuls Hot, Riced White or Sweet Potatoes
½ Teaspoonful Salt
¼ Teaspoonful Pepper
2 Tablespoonfuls Snowdrift
1 Egg
Few Drops Onion Juice (optional)
1 Teaspoonful Minced Parsley (optional)
Rich Milk to Moisten, if needed

Combine the potato, Snowdrift, seasonings, and the egg yolk, unbeaten, and stir thoroughly. The mixture should be as moist as mashed potatoes; if not, add a little heated milk. Chill and form into balls allowing a generous tablespoonful to each. Then slightly beat the egg white and add a fourth cupful of milk or water. Roll the croquettes in fine dry bread crumbs, then in the egg mixture, and in crumbs again, and fry in deep Snowdrift, hot enough to brown a bit of bread in forty counts. Serve with Cream or White Sauce, or any creamed vegetable, or creamed meat or fish.

PROUD SHE NEVER ENTERED LITERARY FIELD

LONDON, Dec. 8—(AP)—Mrs. Kate Perugini, last surviving daughter of Charles Dickens, who has just celebrated her 86th birthday, takes pride in the fact that she has never made any attempt at literary achievements.

Mrs. Perugini remembers all the great contemporaries of her father—Thackeray, George Eliot and other early Victorians. She resembles her father more than any other member of the family.

TEXT PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Members of the Congress:

In meeting the constitutional requirement of informing the congress upon the state of the union, it is exceedingly gratifying to report that the general condition is one of progress and prosperity. Here and there are comparatively small and apparently temporary difficulties needing adjustment and improved administrative methods, such as are always to be expected, but in the fundamentals of government and business the results demonstrate that we are going in the right direction. The country does not appear to require radical departures from the policies already adopted so much as it needs a further extension of these policies and the improvement of details. The age of perfection is still in the somewhat distant future, but it is more in danger of being retarded by mistaken government activity than it is from lack of legislation. We are by far the most likely to accomplish permanent good if we proceed with moderation.

In our country the people are sovereign and independent, and must accept the resulting responsibilities. It is their duty to support themselves and support the government. That is the business of the nation, whatever the charity of the nation may require. The functions which the congress are to discharge are not those of local government but of national government. The greatest solicitude should be exercised to prevent any encroachment upon the rights of the states or their various political subdivisions. Local self-government is one of our most precious possessions. It is the greatest contributing factor to the stability, strength, liberty, and progress of the nation. It ought not to be infringed by assault or undermined by purchase. It ought not to abdicate its power through weakness or resign its authority through favor. It does not at all follow that because abuses exist it is the concern of the federal government to attempt their reform.

Society is in much more danger from encumbering the national government beyond its wisdom to comprehend, or its ability to administer, than from leaving the local communities to bear their own burdens and remedy their own evils. Our local habit and custom is so strong, our variety of race and creed is so great, the federal authority is so tenuous, that the area within which it can function successfully is very limited. The wiser policy is to leave the localities, so far as we can, possessed of their own sources of revenue and charged with their own obligations.

Government Economy

It is a fundamental principle of our country that the people are sovereign. While they recognize the undeniable authority of the state, they have established as its instrument a government of limited powers. They hold inviolate in their own hands the jurisdiction over their own freedom and the ownership of their own property. Neither of these can be impaired except by due process of law. The wealth of our country is not public wealth, but private wealth. It does not belong to the government. It belongs to the people. The government has no justification in taking private property except for public purpose. It is always necessary to keep these principles in mind in the laying of taxes and in making of appropriations. No right exists to levy on a dollar, or to order the expenditure of a dollar, of the money of the people, except for a necessary public purpose duly authorized by the constitution. The power over the purse is the power over liberty.

That is the legal limitation within which the congress can act. How it will proceed within this limitation is always a question of policy. When the country is prosperous and free from debt, when the rate of taxation is low, opportunity exists for assuming new burdens and undertaking new enterprises. Such a condition now prevails only to a limited extent. All proposals for assuming new obligations ought to be postponed, unless they are reproductive capital investments or are such as are absolutely necessary at this time. We still have an enormous debt of over $20,000,000,000, on which the interest and sinking fund requirements are $1,320,000,000. Our appropriations for the pension office and the veterans' bureau are $600,000,000. The war and navy departments call for $642,000,000. Other requirements, exclusive of the post office, which is virtually self-sustaining, brought the appropriations for the current year up to almost $3,100,000,000. This shows an expenditure of close to $30 for every inhabitant of our country. For the average family of five it means a tax, directly or indirectly paid, of about $150 for national purposes alone. The local tax adds much more. These enormous expenditures ought not to be increased, but through every possible effort they ought to be reduced.

Only one of these great items can be ultimately extinguished. That is the item of our war debt. Already this has been reduced by about $6,000,000,000, which means an annual saving in interest of close to $250,000,000. The present interest charge is about $820,000,000 yearly. It would seem to be obvious that the sooner this debt can be retired the more the taxpayers will save in interest and the easier it will be to secure funds with which to prosecute needed running expenses, constructions, and improvements. This item of $820,000,000 for interest is a heavy charge on all the people of the country, and it seems to me that we might well consider whether it is not greatly worth while to dispense with it as early as possible by retiring the principal debt which it is required to serve.

It has always been our policy to retire our debts. That of the Revolutionary war period, notwithstanding the additions made in 1812, was paid by 1835. And the Civil war debt within 28 years. Of the amount already paid, over $1,000,000,000 is a reduction in cash balances. That source is exhausted. Over one and two-thirds billions of dollars was derived from excess receipts. Tax reduction eliminates that. The sale of surplus war materials has been another element of our income. That is practically finished. With these eliminated, the reduction of the debt has been only about $300,000,000 each year, not an excessive sum on so large a debt.

Proposals have been made to extend the payment over a period of 62 years. If $1,000,000,000 is paid at the end of 20 years, the cost to the taxpayers is that principal and, if the interest is 4½ per cent, a total of $1,850,000,000. If the same sum is paid at the end of 62 years, the cost is $3,635,000,000, or almost double. Here is another consideration: Compared with its purchasing power in 1913, the dollar we borrowed represented but 52 cents. As the value of our dollar increases, due to the falling prices of commodities, the burden of our debt increases. It has now risen to 63 1-2 cents. The taxpayer will be required to produce nearly twice the amount of commodities to pay his debt if the dollar returns to the 1913 value. The more we pay while prices are high, the easier it will be.

Inflation of government after a war period is slower than deflation of business, where curtailment is either prompt and effective or disaster follows. There is room for further economy in the cost of the federal government, but a comparison of current expenditures with pre-war expenditures is not unfavorable to the efficiency with which government business is now being done. The expenditures of 1916, the last pre-war year, were $742,000,000, and in 1925 over $3,500,000,000, or nearly five times as great. If we subtract expenditures for debt retirements and interest, veterans' relief, increase of pensions, and other special outlays, consisting of refunds, trust investments, and like charges, we find that the general expenditures of the government in 1925 were slightly more than twice as large as in 1916.

As prices in 1925 were approximately 40 per cent higher than in 1916, the cost of the same government must also have increased. But the government is not the same. It is more expensive to collect the much greater revenue necessary and to administer our great debt. We have given enlarged and improved services to agriculture and commerce. Above all, America has grown in population and wealth. Government expenditures must always share in this growth. Taking into account the factors I have mentioned, I believe that present federal expenses are not far out of line with pre-war expenses. We have nearly accomplished the deflation.

This does not mean that further economies will not come. As we reduce our debt our interest charges decline. There are many details yet to correct. The real improvement, however, must come not from additional curtailment of expenses, but by a more intelligent, more ordered spending. Our economy must be constructive. While we should avoid as far as possible increases in permanent current expenditures, oftentimes a capital increase in permanent current expenditures, oftentimes a capital outlay like internal improvements will result in actual constructive saving. That is economy in its best sense. It is an avoidance of waste that there may be the means for an outlay today which will bring larger returns tomorrow. We should constantly engage in scientific studies of our future requirements and adopt an orderly program for their service. Economy is the method by which we prepare today to afford the improvement of tomorrow.

Budget

A mere policy of economy without any instrumentalities for putting it into operation would be very ineffective. The congress has wisely set up the bureau of budget to investigate and inform the president what recommendations he ought to make for current appropriations. This gives a centralized authority where a general and comprehensive understanding can be reached of the sources of income and the most equitable distribution of expenditures. How well it has worked is indicated by the fact that the departmental estimates for 1922, before the budget law, were $4,068,000,000 while the budget estimates for 1927 are $3,156,000,000. This latter figure shows the reductions in departmental estimates for the coming year made possible by the operation of the budget system that the congress has provided.

But it is evidently not enough to have care in making appropriations without any restraint upon expenditure. The congress has provided that check by establishing the office of comptroller general.

The purpose of maintaining the budget director and the comptroller general is to secure economy and efficiency in government expenditure. No better method has been devised for the accomplishment of that end. These offices can not be administered in all the various details without making some errors both of fact and of judgment. But the important consideration remains that these are the instrumentalities of the congress and that no other plan has ever been adopted which was so successful in promoting economy and efficiency. The congress has absolute authority over the appropriations and is free to exercise its judgment, as the evidence may warrant, in increasing or decreasing budget recommendations. But it ought to resist every effort to weaken or break down this most beneficial system of supervising appropriations and expenditures. Without it all the claim of economy would be a mere pretense.

Taxation

The purpose of reducing expenditures is to secure a reduction in taxes. That purpose is about to be realized. With commendable promptness the ways and means committee of the house has undertaken in advance of the meeting of the congress to frame a revenue act. As the bill has proceeded through the committee it has taken on a nonpartisan character, and both republicans and democrats have joined in a measure which embodies many sound principles of tax reform. The bill will correct substantially the economic defects infected into the revenue act of 1924, as well as many which have remained as war-time legacies. In its present form it should provide sufficient revenue for the government.

The excessive surtaxes have been reduced, estate tax rates are restored to more reasonable figures, with every prospect of withdrawing from the field when the states have had the opportunity to correct the abuses in their own inheritance tax laws, the gift tax and publicity section are to be repealed, many miscellaneous taxes are lowered or abandoned, and the board of tax appeals and the administrative features of the law are improved and strengthened. I approve of the bill in principle. In so far as income-tax exemptions are concerned, it seems to me the committee has gone as far as it is safe to go and somewhat further than I should have gone. Any further extension along these lines would, in my opinion, impair the integrity of our income-tax system.

I am advised that the bill will be through the house by Christmas. For this prompt action the country can thank the good sense of the ways and means committee in framing an economic measure upon economic considerations. If this attitude continues to be reflected through the congress, the taxpayer will have his relief by the time his March 15th installment of income taxes is due. Nonpartisan effort means certain, quick action. Determination of a revenue law definitely, promptly and solely as a revenue law, is one of the greatest gifts a legislature can bestow upon its constituents. I commend the example of the ways and means committee. If followed, it will place sound legislation upon the books in time to give the taxpayers the full benefit of tax reduction next year. This means that the bill should reach me prior to March 15.

All these economic results are being sought not to benefit the rich, but to benefit the people. They are for the purpose of encouraging industry in order that employment may be plentiful. They seek to make business good in order that wages may be good. They encourage prosperity in order that poverty may be banished from the home. They seek to lay the foundation which, through increased production, may give the people a more bountiful supply of the necessaries of life, afford more leisure for the improvement of the mind, the appreciation of the arts of music and literature, sculpture and painting, and the beneficial enjoyment of outdoor sports and recreation, enlarge the resources which minister to charity, and by all these means attempting to strengthen the spiritual life of the nation.

Foreign Relations

The policy of our foreign relations, casting aside any suggestion of force, rests solely on the foundation of peace, good will, and good works. We have sought, in our intercourse with other nations, better understandings through conference and exchange of views as befits beings endowed with reason. The results have been the gradual elimination of disputes, the settlement of controversies, and the establishment of a firmer friendship between America and the rest of the world than has ever existed at any previous time.

The example of this attitude has not been without its influence upon other countries. Acting upon it, an adjustment was made of the difficult problem of reparations. This was the second step toward peace in Europe. It paved the way for the agreements which were drawn up at the Locarno conference. When ratified, these will represent the third step toward peace. While they do not of themselves provide an economic rehabilitation, which is necessary for the progress of Europe, by strengthening the guaranties of peace they diminish the need for great armaments. If the energy which now goes into military effort is transferred to productive endeavor, it will greatly assist economic progress.

The Locarno agreements were made by the European countries directly interested without any formal intervention of America, although on July 3 I publicly advocated such agreements in an address made in Massachusetts. We have consistently refrained from intervening except when our help has been sought and we have felt it could be effectively given, as in the settlement of reparations and the London conference. These recent Locarno agreements represent the success of this policy which we have been insisting ought to be adopted, of having European countries settle their own political problems without involving this country. This beginning seems to demonstrate that this policy is sound. It is exceedingly gratifying to observe this progress, which both in its method and in its results promises so much that is beneficial to the world.

When these agreements are finally adopted, they will provide guaranties of peace that make the present prime reliance upon force in some parts of Europe very much less necessary. The natural corollary to these treaties should be further international contracts for the limitation of armaments. This work was successfully begun at the Washington conference. Nothing was done at that time concerning land forces because of European objection. Our standing army has been reduced to around 118,000, about the necessary police force for 115,000,000 people. We are not proposing to increase it, nor is it supposable that any foreign country looks with the slightest misapprehension upon our land forces. They do no menace anybody. They are rather a protection to everybody.

The question of disarming upon land is so peculiarly European in its practical aspects that our country would look with particular gratitude upon any action which those countries might take to reduce their own military forces. This is in accordance with our policy of not intervening unless the European powers are unable to agree and make request for our assistance. Whenever they are able to agree of their own accord it is especially gratifying to us, and such agreements may be sure of our sympathetic support.

It seems clear that it is the reduction of armies rather than of navies that is of the first importance to the world at the present time. We shall look with great satisfaction upon that effort and give it our approbation and encouragement. If that can be settled, we may more easily consider further reduction and limitation of naval armaments. For that purpose our country has constantly through its executive, and through repeated acts of congress, indicated its willingness to call such a conference. Under congressional sanction it would seem to be wise to participate in any conference of the great powers for naval limitation of armament proposed upon such conditions that it would hold a fair promise of being effective. The general policy of our country is for disarmament, and it ought not to hesitate to adopt any practical plan that might reasonably be expected to succeed. But it would not care to attend a conference which from its location or constituency would in all probability prove futile.

In the further pursuit of strengthening the bonds of peace and good will we have joined with other nations in an international conference held at Geneva and signed an agreement which will be laid before the senate for ratification providing suitable measures for control and for publicity in international trade in arms, ammunition, and implements of war, and also executed a protocol providing for a prohibition of the use of poison gas in war, in accordance with the principles of Article 5 of the treaty relating thereto signed at the Washington conference. We are supporting the Pan American efforts that are being made toward the codification of international law, and looking with sympathy on the investigations being conducted under philanthropic auspices of the proposal to make agreements outlawing war. In accordance with promises made at the Washington conference, we have urged the calling of and are now represented at the Chinese Customs conference and on the commission on extraterritoriality, where it will be our policy so far as possible to meet the aspirations of China in all ways consistent with the interests of the countries involved.

Court of International Justice

Pending before the senate for nearly three years is the proposal to adhere to the protocol establishing the permanent court of international justice. A well-established line of precedents mark America's effort to effect the establishment of a court of this nature. We took a leading part in laying the foundation on which it rests in the establishment of The Hague court of arbitration. It is that tribunal which nominates the judges who are elected by the council and assembly of the league of nations.

The proposal submitted to the senate was made dependent upon four conditions, the first of which is that by supporting the court we do not assume any obligations under the league; second, that we may participate upon an equality with other states in the election of judges; third, that the congress shall determine what part of the expenses we shall bear; fourth, that the statute creating the court shall not be amended without our consent; and to these I have proposed an additional condition to the effect that we are not to be bound by advisory opinions rendered without our consent.

The court appears to be independent of the league. It is true the judges are elected by the assembly and council, but they are nominated by the court of arbitration, which we assisted to create and of which we are a part. The court was created by a statute, so-called, which is really a treaty made among some 48 different countries, that might properly be called a constitution of the court. This statute provides a method by which the judges are chosen, so that when the court of arbitration nominates them and the assembly and council of the league elect them, they are not acting as instruments of the court of arbitration or instruments of the league, but as instruments of the statute.

This will be even more apparent if our representatives sit with the members of the council and assembly in electing the judges. It is true they are paid through the league though not by the league, but by the countries which are members of the league and by our country if we accept the protocol. The judges are paid by the league only in the same sense that it could be said United States judges are paid by the congress. The court derives all its authority from the statute and is so completely independent of the league that it could go on functioning if the league were disbanded, at least until the terms of the judges expired.

The most careful provisions are made in the statute as to the qualifications of judges. Those who make the nominations are recommended to consult with their highest court of justice, their law schools and academies. The judges must be persons of high moral character, qualified to hold the highest judicial offices in that country, or be jurisconsults of recognized competence in international law. It must be assumed that these requirements will continue to be carefully met, and with America joining the countries already concerned it is difficult to comprehend how human ingenuity could better provide for the establishment of a court which would maintain its independence. It has to be recognized that independence is to a considerable extent a matter of ability, character, and personality. Some effort was made in the early beginnings to interfere with the independence of our supreme court. It did not succeed because of the quality of the men who made up that tribunal.

It does not seem that the authority to give advisory opinions interferes with the independence of the court. Advisory opinions in and of themselves are not harmful, but may be used in such a way as to be very beneficial because they undertake to prevent injury rather than merely afford a remedy after the injury has been done. As a principle that only implies that the court shall function when proper application is made to it. Deciding the question involved upon issues submitted for an advisory opinion does not differ materially from deciding the question involved upon issues submitted by contending parties. Up to the present time the court has given an advisory opinion when it judged it had jurisdiction, and refused to give one when it judged it did not have jurisdiction. Nothing in the work of the court has yet been an indication that this is an impairment of its independence or that its practice differs materially from the giving of like opinions under the authority of the constitutions of several of our states.

No provision of the statute seems to me to give this court any authority to be a political rather than a judicial court. We have brought cases in this country before our courts which, when they have been adjudged to be political, have been thereby dismissed. It is not improbable that political questions will be submitted to this court, but again up to the present time the court has refused to pass on political questions and our support would undoubtedly have a tendency to strengthen it in that refusal.

We are not proposing to subject ourselves to any compulsory jurisdiction. If we support the court, we can never be obliged to submit any case which involves our interests for its decision. Our appearance before it would always be voluntary, for the purpose of presenting a case which we had agreed might be presented. There is no more danger that others might bring cases before the court involving our interests which we did not wish to have brought, after we have adhered, and probably not so much, than there would be of bringing such cases if we do not adhere. I think that we would have the same legal or moral right to disregard such a finding in the one case that we would in the other.

If we are going to support any court, it will not be one that we have set up alone or which reflects only our ideals. Other nations have their customs and other institutions, their thoughts and their methods of life. If a court is going to be international, its composition will have to yield to what is good in all these various elements. Neither will it be possible to support a court which is exactly perfect, or under which we assume absolutely no obligations. If we are seeking that opportunity, we might as well declare that we are opposed to supporting any court. If any agreement is made, it will be because it undertakes to set up a tribunal which can do some of the things that other nations wish to have done. We shall not find ourselves bearing a disproportionate share of the world's burdens by our adherence, and we may as well remember that there is absolutely no escape for our country from bearing its share of the world's burdens in any case. We shall do far better service to ourselves and to others if we admit this and discharge our duties voluntarily, than if we deny it and are forced to meet the same obligations unwillingly.

It is difficult to imagine anything that would be more helpful to the world than stability, tranquility and international justice. We may say that we are contributing to these factors independently, but others less fortunately located do not and can not make a like contribution except through mutual cooperation. The old balance of power, mutual alliances, and great military forces were not brought about by any mutual dislike for independence, but resulted from the domination of circumstances. Ultimately they were forced on us. Like all others engaged in the war whatever we said as a matter of fact we joined an alliance, we became a military power, we impaired our independence. We have more at stake than any one else in avoiding a repetition of that calamity. Wars do not spring into existence. They arise from small incidents and trifling irritations which can be adjusted by an international court. We can contribute greatly to the advancement of our ideals by joining with other nations in maintaining such a tribunal.

Foreign Debts

Gradually, settlements have been made which provide for the liquidation of debts due to our government from foreign governments. Those made with Great Britain, Finland, Hungary, Lithuania, and Poland have already been approved by the congress. Since the adjournment, further agreements have been entered into with Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Latvia, Esthonia, and Italy. The 10 nations, which have already made settlements, represent $6,383,411,669 of the original principal of the loans. The principal sums without interest, still pending, are the debt of France, of $3,340,000,000; Greece, $15,000,000; Yugoslavia, $51,000,000; Rumania, $36,000,000; Liberia, $26,000; Russia, $192,000,000, which those at present in control have undertaken openly to repudiate; Nicaragua, $84,000, which is being paid currently; and Austria, $24,000,000, on which by act of congress a moratorium of 20 years has been granted. The only remaining sum is $12,000,000, due from Armenia, which has now ceased to exist as an independent nation.

In accordance with the settlements made the amount of principal and interest is to be paid to the United States under these agreements aggregates $15,078,181,923.88. It is obvious that the remaining settlements, which will undoubtedly be made, will bring this sum up to an amount which will more than equal the principal due on our present national debt. While these settlements are very large in the aggregate, it has been felt that the terms granted were in all cases very generous. They impose no undue burden and are mutually beneficial in the observance of international faith and the improvement of international credit.

Every reasonable effort will be made to secure agreements for liquidation with the remaining countries, whenever they are in such condition that they can be made. Those which have already been negotiated under the bipartisan commission established by the congress have been made only after the most thoroughgoing and painstaking investigation, continued for a long time before meeting with the representatives of the countries concerned. It is believed that they represent in each instance the best that can be done and the wisest settlement that can be secured. One very important result is the stabilization of foreign currency, making exchange assist rather than embarrass our trade. Wherever sacrifices have been made of money, it will be more than amply returned in better understanding and friendship, while in so far as these adjustments will contribute to the financial stability of the debtor countries, to their good order, prosperity, and progress, they represent hope of improved trade relations and mutual contributions to the civilization of the world.

Alien Property

Negotiations are progressing among the interested parties in relation to the final distribution of the assets in the hands of the alien property custodian. Our government and people are interested as creditors; the German government and people are interested as debtors and owners of the seized property. Pending the outcome of these negotiations, I do not recommend any affirmative legislation. For the present we should continue in possession of this property which we hold as security for the settlement of claims due to our people and our government.

Immigration

While not enough time has elapsed to afford a conclusive demonstration, such results as have been secured indicate that our immigration law is on the whole beneficial. It is undoubtedly a protection to the wage earners of this country. The situation should, however, be carefully surveyed, in order to ascertain whether it is working a needless hardship upon our inhabitants. If it deprives them of the comfort and society of those bound to them by close family ties, such modifications should be adopted as will afford relief, always in accordance with the principle that our government owes its first duty to our own people and that no alien, inhabitant of another country, has any legal rights whatever under our constitution and laws. It is only through treaty, or through residence here, that such rights accrue. But we should not, however, be forgetful of the obligations of a common humanity.

While our country numbers among its best citizens many of those of foreign birth, yet those who now enter in violation of our laws by that very act thereby place themselves in a class of undesirables. If investigation reveals that any considerable number are coming here in defiance of our immigration restrictions, it will undoubtedly create the necessity for the registration of all aliens. We ought to have no prejudice against an alien because he is an alien. The standard which we apply to our inhabitants is that of manhood, not place of birth. Restrictive immigration is to a large degree for economic purposes. It is applied in order that we may not have a larger annual increment of good people within our borders than we can weave into our economic fabric in such a way as to supply their needs without undue injury to ourselves.

National Defense

Never before in time of peace has our country maintained so large and effective a military force as it now has. The army, navy, marine corps, national guard, and organized reserves represent a strength of about 558,400 men. These forces are well trained, well equiped, and high in morale.

A sound selective service act, giving broad authority for the mobilization in time of peril of all the resources of the country, both persons and materials, is needed to perfect our defensive policy in accordance with our ideals of equality. The provision for more suitable housing to be paid for out of funds derived from the sale of excess lands, pending before the last congress, ought to be brought forward and passed. Reasonable replacements ought to be made to maintain a sufficient ammunition reserve.

The navy has the full treaty tonnage of capital ships. Work is going forward in modernizing the older ones, building aircraft carriers, additional fleet submarines, and fast scout cruisers, but we are carefully avoiding anything that might be construed as a competition in armaments with other nations. The joint army and navy maneuvers at Hawaii, followed by the cruise of a full battle fleet to Australia and New Zealand, were successfully carried out. These demonstrations revealed a most satisfactory condition of the ships and the men engaged.

Last year at my suggestion the general board of the navy made an investigation and report on the relation of aircraft to warships. As a result authorizations and appropriations were made for more scout cruisers and fleet submarines and for completing aircraft carriers and equipping them with necessary planes. Additional training in aviation was begun at the military and naval academies. A method of coordination and cooperation of the army and navy and the principal aircraft builders is being perfected. At the suggestion of the secretaries of war and navy I appointed a special board to make a further study of the problem of aircraft.

The report of the air board ought to be reassuring to the country, gratifying to the service and satisfactory to the congress. It is thoroughly complete and represents the mature thought of the best talent in the country. No radical change in organization of the service seems necessary. The departments of war, navy, and commerce should each be provided with an additional assistant secretary, not necessarily with statutory duties but who would be available under the direction of the secretary to give especial attention to air navigation. We must have an air strength worthy of America. Provision should be made for two additional brigadier generals for the army air service. Temporary rank corresponding to their duties should be awarded to active flying officers in both army and navy.

Aviation is of great importance both for national defense and commercial development. We ought to proceed in its improvement by the necessary experiment and investigation. Our country is not behind in this art. It has made records for speed and for the excellence of its planes. It ought to go on maintaining its manufacturing plants capable of rapid production, giving national assistance to the laying out of airways, equipping itself with a moderate number of planes, and keeping an air force trained to the highest efficiency.

While I am a thorough believer in national defense and entirely committed to the policy of adequate preparation, I am just as thoroughly opposed to instigating or participating in a policy of competitive armaments. Nor does preparation mean a policy of militarizing. Our people and industries are solicitous for the cause of our country, and have great respect for the army and navy and for the uniform worn by the men who stand ready at all times for our protection to encounter the dangers and perils necessary to military service, but all of these activities are to be taken not in behalf of aggression but in behalf of peace. They are the instruments by which we undertake to do our part to promote good will and support stability among all peoples.

Veterans

If any one desires to estimate the esteem in which the veterans of America are held by their fellow citizens, it is but necessary to remember that the current budget calls for an expenditure of about $650,000,000 in their behalf. This is nearly the amount of the total cost of the national government, exclusive of the post office, before we entered the last war.

At the two previous sessions of congress legislation affecting veterans' relief was enacted and the law liberalized. This legislation brought into being a number of new provisions tending more nearly to meet the needs of our veterans, as well as afford the necessary authority to perfect the administration of these laws.

Experience with the new legislation so far has clearly demonstrated its constructive nature. It has increased the benefits received by many and has made eligible for benefits many others. Direct disbursements to the veteran or his dependents exceeding $21,000,000 have resulted, which otherwise would not have been made. The degree of utilization of our hospitals has increased through making facilities available to the incapacited veteran regardless of service origin of the disability. This new legislation also has brought about a marked improvement of service to the veteran.

The organizations of ex-service men have proposed additional legislative changes which you will consider, but until the new law and the modifications made at the last session of congress are given a more thorough test further changes in the basic law should be few and made only after careful though sympathetic consideration.

The principal work now before the veterans' bureau is the perfection of its organization and further improvements in service. Some minor legislative changes are deemed necessary to enable the bureau to retain that high grade of professional talent essential in handling the problems of the bureau. Such changes as tend toward the improvement of service and the carrying forward to completion of the hospital construction program are recommended for the consideration of the proper committees of congress.

With the enormous outlay that is now being made in behalf of the veterans and their dependents, with a tremendous war debt still requiring great annual expenditure, with the still high rate of taxation, while every provision should be made for the relief of the disabled and the necessary care of dependents, the congress may well consider whether the financial condition of the government is not such that further bounty through the enlargement of general pensions and other emoluments ought not to be postponed.

Agriculture

No doubt the position of agriculture as a whole has very much improved since the depression of three and four years ago. But there are many localities and many groups of individuals, apparently through no fault of their own, sometimes due to climatic conditions and sometimes to the prevailing price of a certain crop, still in a distressing condition. This is probably temporary, but it is none the less acute. National government agencies, the departments of agriculture and commerce, the farm loan board, the intermediate credit banks, and the federal reserve board, are all cooperating to be of assistance and relief. On the other hand, there are localities and individuals who have had one of their most prosperous years. The general price level is fair, but here again there are exceptions both ways, some items being poor while others are excellent. In spite of a lessened production the farm income for this year will be about the same as last year and much above the three preceding years.

Agriculture is a very complex industry. It does not consist of one problem, but of several. They can not be solved at one stroke. They have to be met in different ways, and small gains are not to be despised.

It has appeared from all the investigations that I have been able to make that the farmers as a whole are determined to maintain the independence of their business. They do not wish to have meddling on the part of the government or to be placed under the inevitable restrictions involved in any system of direct or indirect price-fixing, which would result from permitting the government to operate in the agricultural markets. They are showing a very commendable skill in organizing themselves to transact their own business through cooperative marketing, which will this year turn over about $2,500,000,000, or nearly one-fifth of the total agricultural business. In this they are receiving help from the government. The department of agriculture should be strengthened in this facility, in order to be able to respond when these marketing associations want help. While it ought not to undertake undue regulation, it should be equipped to give prompt information on crop prospects, supply, demand, current receipts, imports, exports and prices.

A bill embodying these principles, which has been drafted under the advice and with the approval of substantially all the leaders and managers in the cooperative movement, will be presented to the congress for its enactment. Legislation should also be considered to provide for leasing the unappropriated public domain for grazing purposes and adopting a uniform policy relative to grazing on the public lands and in the national forests.

A more intimate relation should be established between agriculture and the other business activities of the nation. They are mutually dependent and can each advance their own prosperity most by advancing the prosperity of the other. Meantime the government will continue those activities which have resulted in an unprecedented amount of legislation and the pouring out of great sums of money during the last five years. The work for good roads, better land and water transportation, increased support for agricultural education, extension of credit facilities through the farm loan boards and the intermediate credit banks, the encouragement of orderly marketing and a repression of wasteful speculation, will all be continued.

Following every other depression, after a short period the price of farm produce has taken and maintained the lead in the advance. This advance had reached a climax before the war. Everyone will recall the discussion that went on for four or five years prior to 1914 concerning the high cost of living. This history is apparently beginning to repeat itself. While wholesale prices of other commodities have been declining farm prices have been increasing. There is every reason to suppose that a new era in agricultural prosperity lies just before us, which will probably be unprecedented.

Muscle Shoals

The problem of Muscle Shoals seems to me to have assumed a place all out of proportion with its real importance. It probably does not represent in market value much more than a first-class battleship, yet it has been discussed in the congress over a period of years and for months at a time. It ought to be developed for the production of nitrates primarily, and incidentally for power purpose. This would serve defensive, agricultural, and industrial purposes. I am in favor of disposing of this property to meet these purposes. The findings of the special commission will be transmitted to the congress for their information. I am convinced that the best possible disposition can be made by direct authorization of the congress. As a means of negotiation I recommend the immediate appointment general standing committees of the house and senate to receive bids, which when made should be reported with recommendations as to acceptance, upon which a law should be enacted, effecting a sale to the highest bidder who will agree to carry out these purposes.

If anything were needed to demonstrate the almost utter incapacity of the national government to deal directly with an industrial and commercial problem, it has been porvided by our experience with this property. We have expended vast fortunes, we have taxed everybody, but we are unable to secure results which benefit anybody. This property ought to be transferred to private management under conditions which will dedicate it to the public purpose for which it was conceived.

Reclamation

The national government is committed to a policy of reclamation and irrigation which it desires to establish on a sound basis and continue in the interest of the localities concerned. Exhaustive studies have recently been made of federal reclamation, which have resulted in improving the projects and adjusting many difficulties. About one-third of the projects is in good financial condition, another third can probably be made profitable, while the other third is under unfavorable conditions. The congress has already provided for a survey which will soon be embodied in a report. That ought to suggest a method of relief which will make unnecessary further appeals to the congress. Unless this can be done, federal reclamation will be considerably retarded. With the greatly increased cost of construction and operation, it has become necessary to plan in advance, by community organization and selective agriculture, methods sufficient to repay these increasing outlays.

The human and economic interests of the farmer citizens suggest that the states should be required to exert some effort and assume some responsibility, especially in the intimate, detailed, and difficult work of securing settlers and developing farms which directly profit them, but only indirectly and remotely can reimburse the nation. It is believed that the federal government should continue to be the agency for planning and constructing the great undertakings needed to regulate and bring into use the rivers of the west, many of which are interstate in character, but the detailed work of creating agricultural communities and a rural civilization on the land made ready for reclamation ought to be either transferred to the state in its entirety or made a cooperative effort of the state and federal government.

Shipping

The maintenance of a merchant marine is of the utmost importance for national defense and the service of our commerce. We have a large number of ships engaged in that service. We also have a surplus supply, costly to care for, which ought to be sold. All the investigations that have been made under my direction and those which have been prosecuted independently, have reached the conclusion that the fleet should be under the direct control of a single executive head, while the shipping board should exercise its judicial and regulatory functions in accordance with its original conception. The report of Henry G. Dalton a business man of broad experience with a knowledge of shipping, made to me after careful investigation, will be transmitted for the information of the congress, the studies pursued under the direction of the United States Chamber of Commerce will also be accessible, and added to these will be the report of the special committee of the house.

I do not advocate the elimination of regional considerations, but if has become apparent that without centralized executive action the management of this great business, like the management of any other great business, will flounder in incapacity and languish under a division of council. A plain and unmistakable reassertion of this principle of unified control, which I have always been advised was the intention of the congress to apply, is necessary to increase the efficiency of our merchant fleet.

Coal

The perennial conflict in the coal industry is still going on to the great detriment of the wage earners, the owners, and especially to the public. With deposits of coal in this country capable of supplying its needs for hundreds of years, inability to manage and control this great resource for the benefit of all concerned is very close to a national economic failure. It has been the subject of repeated investigation and reiterated recommendation. Yet the industry seems never to have accepted modern methods of adjusting differences between employers and employees. The industry could serve the public much better and become subject to a much more effective method of control if regional consolidations and more freedom in the formation of marketing associations, under the supervision of the department of commerce, were permitted.

At the present time the national government has little or no authority to deal with this vital necessity of the life of the country. It has permitted itself to remain so powerless that its only attitude must be humble supplication. Authority should be lodged with the president and the departments of commerce and labor, giving them power to deal with an emergency. They should be able to appoint temporary boards with authority to call for witnesses and documents, conciliate difference, encourage arbitration, and in case of threatened scarcity exercise control over distribution. Making the facts public under these circumstances through a statement from an authoritative source would be of great public benefit. The report of the last coal commission should be acted upon.

Prohibition

Under the orderly processes of our fundamental institutions the constitu-

tution was lately amended providing for national prohibition. The congress passed an act for its enforcement, and similar acts have been provided by most of the states. It is the law of the land. It is the duty of all who come under its jurisdiction to observe the spirit of that law, and it is the duty of the department of justice and the treasury department to enforce it. Action to prevent smuggling, illegal transportation in interstate commerce, abuse in the use of permits, and existence of sources of supply for illegal traffic is almost entirely imposed upon the federal government.

Through treaties with foreign governments and increased activities of the coast guard, revenue agents, district attorneys, and enforcement agents effort is being made to prevent these violations. But the constitution also puts a concurrent duty on the states. We need their active and energetic cooperation, the vigilant action of their police, and the jurisdiction of their courts to assist in enforcement. I request of the people observance, of the public officers continuing efforts for enforcement, and of the congress favorable action on the budget recommendation for the prosecution of this work.

Waterway Development

For many years our country has been employed in plans and operations for the development of our intracoastal and inland waterways. This work along our coast is an important adjunct to our commerce. It will be carried on, together with the further opening up of our harbors, as our resources permit. The government made an agreement during the war to take over the Cape Cod canal, under which the owners made valuable concessions. This pledged faith of the government ought to be redeemed.

Two other main fields are under consideration. One is the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence, including the Erie canal. This includes stabilizing the lake level, and is both a waterway and power project. A joint commission of the United States and Canada is working on plans and surveys which will not be completed until next April. No final determination can be made, apparently, except under treaty as to the participation of both countries. The other is the Mississippi river system. This is almost entirely devoted to navigation. Work on the Ohio river will be completed in about three years. A modern channel connecting Chicago, New Orleans, Kansas City, and Pittsburgh should be laid out and work on the tributaries prosecuted. Some work is being done of a preparatory nature along the Missouri, and large expenditures are being made yearly in the lower reaches of the Mississippi and its tributaries which contribute both to flood control and navigation. Preliminary measures are being taken on the Colorado river project, which is exceedingly important for flood control, irrigation, power development, and water supply to the area concerned. It would seem to be very doubtful, however, whether it is practical to secure affirmative action of the congress, except under a joint agreement of the several states.

The government has already expended large sums upon scientific research and engineering investigation in promotion of this Colorado river project. The actual progress has been retarded for many years by differences among the seven states in the basin over their relative water rights and among different groups as to methods. In an attempt to settle the primary difficulty of the water rights, congress authorized the Colorado river commission which agreed on November 24, 1922, upon an interstate compact to settle these rights, subject to the ratification of the state legislatures and congress. All seven states except Arizona at one time ratified, the Arizona legislature making certain reservations which failed to meet the approval of the governor. Subsequently an attempt was made to establish the compact upon a six-state basis, but in this case California imposed reservations. There appears to be no division of opinion upon the major principles of the compact, but difficulty in separating contentions as to methods of development from the discussion of it. It is imperative that flood control be undertaken for California and Arizona, preparation made for irrigation, for power, and for domestic water.

Some or all of these questions are combined in every proposed development. The federal government is interested in some of these phases, state governments and municipalities and irrigation districts in others, and private corporations in still others. Because of all this difference of view it is most desirable that congress should consider the creation of some agency that will be able to determine methods of improvement solely upon economic and engineering facts, that would be authorized to negotiate and settle, subject to the approval of congress, the participation, rights, and obligations of each group in any particular works. Only by some such method can early construction be secured.

Water Power

Along with the development of navigation should go every possible encouragement for the development of our water power. While steam still plays a dominant part, this is more and more becoming an era of electricity. Once installed, the cost is moderate, has not tended greatly to increase, and is entirely free from the unavoidable dirt and disagreeable feature attendant upon the burning of coal. Every facility should be extended for the connection of the various units into a superpower plant, capable at all times of a current increasing uniformity over the entire system.

Railroads

The railroads throughout the country are in a fair state of prosperity. Their service is good and their supply of cars is abundant. Their condition would be improved and the public better served by a system of consolidations under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission, with power to approve or disapprove when proposed parts are excluded or new parts added. I am informed that the railroad managers and their employees have reached a substantial agreement as to what legislation is necessary to regulate and improve their relationship. Whenever they bring forward such proposals, they should be enacted into law.

It is gratifying to report that both the railroad managers and railroad employees are providing boards for the mutual adjustment of differences in harmony with the principles of conference, conciliation, and arbitration. The solution of their problems ought to be an example to all other industries. Those who ask the protections of civilization should be ready to use the methods of civilization.

A strike in modern industry has many of the aspects of war in the modern world. It injures labor and it injures capital. If the industry involved is a basic one, it reduces the necessary economic surplus and, increasing the cost of living, it injures the economic welfare and general comfort of the whole people. It also involves a deeper cost. It tends to embitter and divide the community into warring classes and thus weakens the unity and power of our national life.

Labor can make no permanent gains at the cost of the general welfare. All the victories won by organized labor in the past generation have been won through the support of public opinion. The manifest inclination of the managers and employees of the railroads to adopt a policy of action in harmony with these principles marks a new epoch in our industrial life.

Outlying Possessions

The time has come for careful investigation of the expenditures and success of the laws by which we have undertaken to administer our outlying possessions. A very large amount of money is being expended for administration in Alaska. It appears so far out of proportion to the number of inhabitants and the amount of production as to indicate cause for thorough investigation. Likewise consideration should be given to the experience under the law which governs the Philippines. From such reports as reach me there are indications that more authority should be given to the governor general, so that he will not be so dependent upon the local legislative body to render effective our efforts to set an example of the sound administration and good government, which is so necessary for the preparation of the Philippine people for self-government under ultimate independence. If they are to be trained in these arts, it is our duty to provide for them the best that there is.

Retirement of Judges

The act of March 3, 1911, ought to be amended so that the term of years of service of judges of any court of the United States requisite for retirement with pay shall be computed to include not only continuous but aggregate service.

Mothers' Aid

The government ought always to be alert on the side of the humanities. It ought to encourage provisions for economic justice for the defenseless. It ought to extend its relief through its national and local agencies, as may be appropriate in each case, to the suffering and the needy. It ought to be charitable.

Although more than 40 of our states have enacted measures in aid of motherhood, the District of Columbia is still without such a law. A carefully considered bill will be presented, which ought to have most thoughtful consideration in order that the congress may adopt a measure which will be hereafter a model for all parts of the union.

Civil Service

In 1883 the congress passed the civil service act, which from a modest beginning of 14,000 employees has grown until there are now 426,000 in the classified service. This has removed the clerical force of the nation from the wasteful effects of the spoils system and made it more stable and efficient. The time has come to consider classifying all postmasters, collectors of customs, collectors of internal revenue, and prohibition agents, by an act covering in those at present in office, except when otherwise provided by executive order.

The necessary statistics are now being gathered to form the basis of a valuation of the civil service retirement fund based on current conditions of the service. It is confidently expected that this valuation will be completed in time to be made available to the congress during the present session. It will afford definite knowledge of existing and future liabilities under the present law and determination of liabilities under any proposed change in the present law. We should have this information before creating further obligations for retirement annuities which will become liabilities to be met in the future from the money of the taxpayer.

The classification act of 1923, with the subsequent legislative action providing for adjustment of the compensation of field service positions, has operated materially to improve employment conditions in the federal service. The administration of the act is in the hands of an impartial board, functioning without the necessity of a direct appropriation. It would be inadvisable at this time to place in other hands the administration of this act.

Federal Trade Commission

The proper function of the federal trade commission is to supervise and correct those practices in commerce which are detrimental to fair competition. In this it performs a useful function and should be continued and supported. It was designed also to be a help to honest business. In my message to the sixty-eighth congress I recommended that changes in the procedure then existing be made. Since then the commission by its own action has reformed its rules, giving greater speed and economy in the disposal of its cases and full opportunity for those accused to be heard. These changes are improvements and, if necessary, provision should be made for their permanency.

Reorganization

No final action has yet been taken on the measure providing for the reorganization of the various departments. I therefore suggest that this measure, which will be of great benefit to the efficient and economical administration of the business of the government, be brought forward and passed.

The Negro

Nearly one-tenth of our population consists of the Negro race. The progress which they have made in all the arts of civilization in the last 60 years is almost beyond belief. Our country has no more loyal citizens. But they do still need sympathy, kindness, and helpfulness. They need reassurance that the requirements of the government and society to deal out to them even-handed justice will be met. They should be protected from all violence and supported in the peaceable enjoyment of the fruits of their labor. Those who do violence to them should be punished for their crimes. No other course of action is worthy of the American people.

Our country has many elements in its population, many different modes of thinking and living, all of which are striving in their own way to be loyal to the high ideals worthy of the crown of American citizenship. It is fundamental of our institutions that they seek to guarantee to all our inhabitants the right to live their own lives under the protection of the public law. This does not include any license to injure others materially, physically, morally, to incite revolution, or to violate the established customs which have long had the sanction of enlightened society.

But it does mean the full right to liberty and equality before the law without distinction of race or creed. This condition can not be granted to others, or enjoyed by ourselves, except by the application of the principle of broadest tolerance. Bigotry is only another name for slavery. It reduces to serfdom not only those against whom it is directed, but also those who seek to apply it. An enlarged freedom can only be secured by the application of the golden rule. No other utterance ever presented such a practical rule of life.

Conclusion

It is apparent that we are reaching into an era of great general prosperity. It will continue only so long as we shall use it properly. After all, there is but a fixed quantity of wealth in this country at any fixed time. The only way that we can all secure more of it is to create more. The element of time enters into production. If the people have sufficient moderation and contentment to be willing to improve their condition by the process of enlarging production, eliminating waste, and distributing equitably, a prosperity almost without limit lies before us. If the people are to be dominated by selfishness, seeking immediate riches by nonproductive speculation and by wasteful quarreling over the returns from industry, they will be confronted by the inevitable results of depression and privation. If they will continue industrious and thrifty, contented with fair wages and moderate profits, and the returns which accrue from the development of our natural resources, our prosperity will extend itself indefinitely.

In all your deliberations you should remember that the purpose of legislation is to translate principles into action. It is an effort to have our country be better by doing better. Because the thoughts and ways of people are firmly fixed and not easily changed, the field within which immediate improvement can be secured is very narrow. Legislation can provide opportunity. Whether it is taken advantage of or not depends upon the people themselves. The government of the United States has been created by the people. It is solely responsible to them. It will be most successful if it is conducted solely for their benefit. All its efforts would be of little avail unless they brought more justice, more enlightment, more happiness and prosperity into the home. This means an opportunity to observe religion, secure education, and earn a living under a reign of law and order. It is the growth and improvement of the material and spiritual life of the nation. We shall not be able to gain these ends merely by our own action. If they come at all, it will be because we have been willing to work in harmony with the abiding purpose of a Divince Providence.

COLCHESTER

The following pupils have had a perfect attendance for the month of November: Grade 2, John Bass, Bernard Bitel, Stephen Domonick, Michael Dzugon, Arthur Falk, Anthony Fedus, Leonard Kaplan, Benjamin Liverant, John Parowski, Leon Rutka, Israel Slopak, Stephen Smith, Annie Alpert, Celia Dinnerstein, Annie Domonick, Frances Ewafove, Rose Gitlin, Thelma Goldberg, Sophie Klemark, Molly Kmick, Olga Koptorak, Rose Kubert, Lois McCoid, Rosalind Weinstein, Josephine Wlienski; grade 3, Max Aren, Lawrence Barry, George Briggs, Alex Deitch, Stanley Gadkowski, Hyman Goldstein, Josephine Kubert, Ezra Liverant, Albert Mazur, Joseph Oximek, Alexander Polskevich, John Skutt, Henry Zagary, Rubin Levy Annie Burba, Mildred Chemerinski, Helen Duke, Theresa Dzugan, Helen Gillette, Goldie Glaubinger, Evelyn Green, Mary Kmick, Majorie Stein, Sophia Chotkowska and Evelyn King.

Camp No. 3, Woodmen of the World, held its regular monthly meeting Sunday afternoon. It was voted that a drive for new members be made during this month, in honor of the 35th anniversary of the society. Members have pledged themselves to bring in one or more applications.

Mrs. Hattie Reynolds, of Norwich, was the guest of her sister, Miss Belle Strong, on Hayward avenue, over Sunday.

Tax Collector Timothy F. Kelly is confined to his home, on Pleasant street, with blood poisoning in his hand. He was reported as being better Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lazinsk have returned from a few days' visit with Mrs. Lazinsk's parents, in New Haven.

Edward Gregory, of Hartford, was at his home, on Hammonds court, Sunday.

Joseph Gilbert, of Providence, was on his way home from New Haven and was traveling at a good speed when he was stopped by State Policeman Morin, of the Hartford barracks. Inquiry was made by the officer as to what he had in his car, which was a Buick coupe. Gilbert replied that he had a load of alcohol. Officer Morin arrested him and brought him to the village. He was tried before Justice Baker, who fined him $200 and costs amounting to about $40, which was paid. The alcohol was destroyed by the officer in the presence of the justice. Mr. Gilbert thought it would have been better if he had not been driving fast enough for an officer to warn him. He departed a wiser and sadder man.

SOMERS

Ordination services of Edwin Thomas Jones were held at the Somers Congregational church, last Wednesday afternoon and evening. The evening program was as follows: Organ prelude, hymn, invocation, by Rev. Frederick A. Balcom, retired, Somers; report of the council, by the scribe; scripture reading, Rev. David L. Kelbe, Somersville; ordination sermon, Rev. Edward S. Worcester, D. D., Prof. of Systematic Theology, New Brunswick, N. J.; ordination prayer, Rev. John S. Curtis, Enfield, Mass.; hymn, Charge to the People, Rev. Earl H. Thayer, Springfield, Mass.; anthem, Somers choral society; charge to the candidates, Rev. Leir Rees, Stafford Springs; Right Hand of Fellowship, Rev. John T. Nichols, Ellington; hymn; benediction, Rev. Edwin T. Jones. Welegates were served supper between the afternoon and evening meetings.

Mrs. Clarabel Irishman, local music teacher in the schools and Lawrence Lusk, of Rockville, were married last week.

Miss Elsie Thayer, of Hartford, visited her father, R. Louis Thayer, of Main street, over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Leigh Herr's small daughter, Marjorie, who has been ill, is improving.

Mrs. Mary E. Evans was in Springfield last week.

The Woman's club met with Miss Clara and Elsie Russell last Thursday. Mrs. F. W. H. Bill and Mrs. Fred Field were assistant hostesses.

The program was "Feed the Family" Mrs. F. H. Buell readings, Mrs. W. Colton Bliss, Mrs. Geo. Slater; "Recreation in the Home," Mrs. John Comstock.

Farm New Industry

Siskiyou is to have a new industry within several months if the preliminary surveys of the great fossil bed eight miles north of Montague bear out the original promise.

The mined fossils are of the cretaceous age, and are of shell formation. C. B. Kay, driller has taken several blocks and polished tiles cut from them, resulting in an effort of mother-of-pearl inlay and ideal for bank counters and similar decorative objects. The beds, it is said by geologists, are practically inexhaustible. Kay is planning to purchase special cutting and polishing machinery and he will soon attempt to make a commercial product.

Wise is the man who knows that he doesn't know it all.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

POULTRY IDEAS TESTED

To determine the soundness of various ideas held by commercial poultrymen, the United States department of agriculture has conducted experiments leading to rather conclusive results. From a practical standpoint it is highly desirable for poultrymen to improve, if possible, the hatchability of eggs, to distinguish pullets from roosters at an early age and to obtain other similar information commercially important but baffling. There has been considerable divergence of opinion on most of the questions.

Hatchability says the department, probably is best improved by testing breeding birds for bacillary, white diarrhea, and eliminating affected birds.

The size of eggs has no significant effect on their hatchability.

There is no significant correlation between either shape or weight of egg and the sex of the chicken hatched from it. Therefore, from a practical standpoint, poultrymen can not expect to influence the sex of chicks hatched by selecting eggs according to either shape or size.

While there is a fairly definite relation between the weight of eggs and that of the chicks hatched from them, there is no significant difference in the weight of either sex, and it is highly improbable that purebred chicks can be separated according to sex at hatching time.

Male chicks grow faster than the females, and as early as two weeks of age there is a significant difference in the rate of growth between the sexes.

The addition of skim milk to the ration induces much faster growth, the difference being observable as early as at the end of the second week. This points to the value of skim milk in growing-chick rations.

"BEWARE OF BARGAIN SEEDS"

"Beware of bargain seeds" warns the New York experiment station. The Empire state experts give an example to show what the farmer may run into if he is beguiled by glowing language in "bargain" advertisements. The farmer is advised to buy only of seed houses he knows to be reputable.

The example quoted by the experiment station in its catalogue showered the following adjectives "wonderful, splendid, rich, special, unexcelled, popular, exceptional, bargain bonanza mixture." It also represented that the seed had been thoroughly cleaned and was free from noxious weeds.

Analysis by the scientists of a 3-gram sample enabled them to identify 91 different species of weed seeds and of these 91 kinds there were large numbers of seeds of 16 of our noxious weeds, including dodders, mustards, thistles, and quack grass. "There were present," says the report, "weed seeds which, according to best information, were typical of the flora of all seed producing sections of the United States, including rather conclusively that this material was mainly seed screenings, low grade seed and tailings from various sources bulked or mixed together.

"Fortunately there is a speedy remedy for this particular kind of seed business and that is for every farmer seed buyer to put a stop to the practice of sending away for some 'special cheap, wonderful, amazing' bargain lot of seed to infest his own land and that of his neighborhood with weeds.

"If the farmer finds it absolutely impossible to secure seeds from the local seedsman, who must label his goods according to law, and must send away for his seed, experience demonstrates that he should do so wisely. There are mail order seedsmen who are selling goods at honest prices, and the farmer can find out, if he will, who they are. The nearest telephone or the mail box and the farm bureau agent are as far as any purchaser need go for authentic facts. No farmer need go at seed buying in a slapdash haphazard manner."

TESTED SEED CORN A NECESSITY

The necessity of the highest grade tested seed corn has been brought home to the agricultural population of the country very emphatically by the failure of the crop over large sections last year owing to unusually early frosts and cold wet weather all season and the falling off in production due to severe drought this summer. The essential factor, also, of selecting seed corn from types adapted to the section where it is to be grown is also recognized and emphasized by the seed trade.

While low yields may be attributed to adverse growing weather in many cases, in others low fertility, poor cultivation, bad drainage and insect attacks cut considerable figure. However, it has been discovered in the last year that some seed corn is infected with various types of fungus which severely injure its germinating quality. Seed houses and state experiment stations have conducted elaborate germination tests and have found that these are necessary to protect the buyer of seed corn.

The experts of the seed house laboratories and of the experiment stations agree that corn which fails to show high germinating quality and strong rapid growth should not be used for seed. The seed trade has destroyed considerable fine looking seed corn stock because its test showed that germination was not all that it should be.

There are four important fungi against which the seed trade is guarding as zealously as it is able. The first is a common parasite of corn and small grains widely distributed over the corn belt. It is responsible for the root rot of the ears. A third variety causes pink rot of corn kernels and the fourth also affects the substance of the kernels.

It is necessary to disinfect the seed corn to kill the spores of these fungi following which germination tests are necessary in the special incubators used to test the viability of seeds.

The Illinois experiment station after conducting a long series of experiments issued a bulletin on these corn diseases last year and this summer the University of Louisiana issued a similar study. The recommendation of Louisiana where the corn yield has been unusually low says, "It has been generally assumed that a germination test is a reliable index of the vitality and productiveness of corn and consequently it is usually recommended that germination tests be made with all seed corn and all ears discarded that do not come up to a standard. If only a small percentage of the kernels of an ear germinate, of if the growth of the young plants immediately following germination is weak, that ear should not be used for seed."

It is upon the principle of this recommendation that the big seed houses have been carefully testing and grading their seed corn.

ONIONS AND GOATS FAVORED BY ZUNI BOYS AND GIRLS

Inspired by the success of boys' and girls' club work, carried on by the extension service of the United States department of agricultural colleges, the Indian Service of the department of the Interior invited cooperation of the department of agriculture in instituting similar work among the Indian boys and girls at the government schools. Four clubs were formed about two years ago, with about 50 members. This year, 1925, organized work was conducted on 53 reservations, with an enrollment of more than 1,800 boys and girls, chiefly Indian, and not including the Five Civilized Tribes of Oklahoma, which have 2,500 members.

The lines of work that interest these boys and girls include sheep, pig, poultry, calf, corn, potato, garden, bread, canning, and sewing clubs. Very recent are rope, chili, onion and goat clubs. The two latter are especially popular among the Zunis of New Mexico. Each member of the onion club has planted 1,000 onions. The success of the goat clubs will mean much to the Indians as it will help them to start the raising of milk goats and provide milk for use in the homes.

Among the Navajos a girls' sheep club has been formed. More than 100 Indian boys and girls are enrolled in clubs in Arizona. On one reservation in that state the garden clubs have furnished 250 pounds of lettuce, 100 pounds of spinach, and 50 pounds of turnips to the day school for use at the noon day meals. The sewing club on the same reservation won the first prize for the best club exhibit in the state, and the sweepstakes at the state fair. Poultry, pig, and calf clubs have large enrollment.

The club leaders, under whose supervision the clubs are carried on, include superintendents of the government schools, Indian Service farmers, public school teachers, field matrons, neighboring white farmers, and Indian men and women who have met with success in the work. County and state fairs have proved especially successful in stimulating interest in the club work.

VITAMINS IN MEAT DEPEND ON FEED GIVEN ANIMAL

Meat studies conducted by the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, during the last fiscal year have produced much new information concerning the food value and vitamin content of meat products. The proteins in several meat tissues were found to have nutritive values practically the same as that obtained for the total protein in milk.

The concentration of vitamin A in the livers and of vitamin B in the livers and muscle tissues of pigs proved to be influenced greatly by the vitamin content of the diet. This was especially true when the same ration had been fed to the mother of the pigs for some time before and during gestation and lactation. Though it is generally considered that animals can not store any appreciable quantity of vitamin B, the results of the department's experiments indicate that the hog, at any rate, possesses this ability to a marked degree.

Studies of the flesh and fat of chickens, ducks, geese, turkeys, and guinea fowl revealed a wide variation in amount of vitamin A present, both in the various species and in different lots of flesh and fat from the same species. The investigators attribute the differences to corresponding variations in the vitamin A content of the diet of the birds.

A group of experiments was conducted to determine the physiological effect of rancid fats. Without being actually toxic themselves such fats appear to destroy the vitamin A in rations to which rancid fats are added.

INCREASING PREVALENCE OF SEVERAL INSECT PESTS

Reports on insect pest conditions are received by the bureau of entomology of the United States department of agriculture from all parts of the United States and from Canada. Certain insects appear to be more than usually troublesome in some parts of the country recently. Grasshoppers seem to be much more prevalent than usual throughout the New England and Middle Atlantic states, extending westward into the Ohio River Valley to Missouri. The chinch bug is reported as increasing in threatening numbers in the northeastern part of Indiana. This insect is also threatening a considerable area in Illinois, Missouri, and Nebraska. The corn earworm is again prevalent in the southern New England states, middle Atlantic states, and the upper Mississippi valley. Heavy flights of the moths were observed in late September in Connecticut and about the middle of September in Indiana and Illinois.

The apple maggot is reported as abundant in Massachusetts and eastern New York. The San Jose scale is serious in Virginia, Georgia and Illinois. The beet webworm is doing damage in districts as widely separated as Virginia, Kansas, Nebraska, Utah, and Idaho. Other serious pests are bean thrips on cotton, in Southern California, spanworm on larch in Wisconsin and Michigan, and fleas in Kansas, Missouri, and Ohio.

ONLY TWO CASES OF FOWL PEST SINCE LAST SPRING

Fear of recurrence of European fowl pest, which appeared in the United States for the first time about a year ago, has caused many poultrymen in the central west to feel alarmed at any sign of sickness among their birds. Numerous investigations have been made by representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture during the past two months at the request of poultrymen in these states. In all instances the findings have been that the losses, which in a few shipments have been quite heavy, have been caused by some of the common ailments, such as roup, or by dietetic disturbances, apparently the result of hardships attending the transportation of the birds, aggrevated by improper feeding and confinement in insanitary quarters.

Only two outbreaks of fowl pest have occurred since last spring one in New York and the other in Delaware. In the former state the disease made its appearance about July 1 in a flock of 900 chickens near East Hampton, on Long Island. In the latter state about 200 chickens on a farm near Dover were involved early in August. The usual slaughter and disinfection methods were employed in combating these outbreaks and there has been no subsequent spread.

While the department does not wish to minimize the importance of watchfulness for fowl pest by the poultry raiser, it is desirous of impressing on those engaged in concentrating and distributing poultry the importance of maintaining their plants and equipment in a sanitary condition and improving their feeding practices. Some progress has been made, says the department, but much remains to be done. Many of these common ailments which have worried the poultrymen might largely be avoided by exercising greater care to create sanitary conditions and to adopt approved methods of feeding.

Veterinary inspectors employed at the department's substations maintained for animal disease and meat inspection work in each of the chicken-raising states are keeping in close touch with the producers distributers and slaughterers of poultry. When any unusual losses are reported to the Bureau of Animal Industry of the department, employees experienced in poultry disease work are detailed to investigate. The bureau is prepared to act quickly in the event there should be a recurrence of either fowl pest or infectious bronchitis.

INCREASED IMPORTS DURING THIS YEAR

The demands of American manufacturers for the classes of material produced in other parts of the world seem likely, says the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, to bring the 1925 import total to a point higher than in any year, except 1920. Figures for the nine months ending with September suggest that the total value of merchandise imported in the calendar year 1925 will exceed $4,000,000,000 or more than in any calendar year, except 1920, when the total stood at $5,278,000,000.

An examination of the details of the imports in the nine months ending with September shows that most of this increase occurs in manufacturing materials. The importations of the great group "crude materials for use in manufacturing" total $1,288,000,000 in the nine months ending with September 1925, against $896,894,000 in the same months of last year, an increase of 37 per cent when comparing the nine months of the current year with the corresponding months of 1924. The group of manufactures for further use in manufacturing totals $559,785,000 in the nine months of the current year against $476,859,000 in the same months of last year, an increase of 17 per cent, while foodstuffs imported in the same period show a slight decline, and finished manufactures, an increase of less than 5 per cent.

What are the principal articles which our manufactures are bringing from abroad in such rapidly increasing quantities as to show an increase of 37 per cent in value in a single year? Rubber, silk, jute, tin, sisal and manila hemp, none of which, of course, are produced in the United States. Of raw silk, which we draw chiefly from the other side of the globe, China and Japan, and limited quantities also from Italy, the value of the imports in the eight months ending with August was $234,000,000, against $194,000,000 in the same months of last year, an increase of over 20 per cent in value, while the quantity, high as the prices are, actually increased over 32 per cent. There is rubber too, of which the price advance has been a matter of much publicity; we produce none of it and must draw all of our supplies from abroad, yet with this advance in price, the quantity imported in the eight months ending with August 1925 is 578,000,000 pounds, against 455,000,000 pounds in the same months of last year, and in the single month of August, in which the advance in foreign prices was most distinctly felt, the quantity imported was 75,000,000 pounds, against only 48,000,000 pounds in August 1924. Of "fibres" which term includes jute, sisal, flax and manila hemp, the stated value of the imports in the eight months ending with August 1925 shows a marked increase. Jute, unmanufactured, shows a total for the eight months ending with August of $7,192,000, against $4,617,000 in the same months of last year; manila hemp, $12,986,000, against $9,814,000; sisal, $15,291,000, against $10,017,000; and rayon (artificial silk) $6,848,000, against $3,186,000 in the corresponding period of last year.

Never hit a man when he's got you down.

Making a City Safe

Of the 1,500 municipalities in the United States having populations in excess of 5,000, 800 either have no building codes or have ordinances so deficient in their requirements that they are of very little value in promoting structural safety or restricting the spread of fire.

These facts were brought to the attention of the National Fire Waste council at its last meeting. They will be brought in greater detail to the attention of chambers of commerce and commercial organizations by the insurance department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in order that concerted local effort may be made to improve conditions in this respect.

There are cities of 12,000 to 15,000 with excellent building codes, according to the report made to the Fire Waste Council. There are, too, cities with populations of 40,000, 50,000 and 80,000 without building codes.

"Every city which has developed without proper regulatory building laws," says the report, "has created danger spots which it will take generations to eliminate and which are always a source of potential hazard to its well-being and a cause of heavy taxation. The most common characteristics of such lawless construction are the massing of wooden buildings, sometimes three to five stories high, with little or no separation, and frequently adorned with all their attendant structural defects, all favorable to easy ignition and rapid fire destruction."

After Sickness Get Strong Quick

New Pleasant Way to Take Cod Liver Oil—Puts On Weight.

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines in Cod Liver Oil to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

But nobody wants to take the ill-smelling, horrible tasting, stomach upsetting oil itself, so nowadays, up to date medical men are ordering a tablet of Cod Liver Oil and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped of their natural strength after a severe illness and especially after the Grippe or a stubborn cough or cold.

Ask Lee & Osgood or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. They cost but little, are sugar coated and as pleasant to take as candy.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy solid flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on 5 pounds or more in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist is authorized to return your money if you don't take on 5 pounds in 30 days.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 Tablets — 60 cents.

Uses Brand, Catches Thief

Antonia Grassie, a Cohasset, Mass., lobster fisherman, branded all his lobsters recently, says the Boston Herald, in an effort to catch the person who had been stealing them from his traps. He used a conductor's ticket punch, and when he had finished, 106 lobsters had holes in their tails.

Monday all the lobsters were gone, as he had hoped. He reported the matter to Chief McArthur of the Boston police, and investigation disclosed that 41 lobsters bearing the Cassie brand were among those bought by Francis J. Cain of North Weymouth from another fisherman in Cohasset.

Radio Worth a Billion

Although radio as a popular science and amusement is only four years old, there is more than a billion dollars tied up in the business already. There are 300 government radio stations, 600 stations sending out daily programs and five million homes by estimate are equipped with radio receiving sets. There are 2,500 radio manufacturers and 2,000 jobbers. Radio exports amount to $600,000 a month.

Big Bridge of Mahogany

As most everyone knows, mahogany is among the most costly woods in existence. The tropical material is seldom used in the construction of buildings of any kind. Its principal use is for high-grade furniture. There is, however, one bridge in the world made of this wood. The structure is located in the department of Palenque, State of Chiapas, Mexico, a district in the extreme southern boundary of Guatemala. Pathfinder.

Artificial Silk

The manufacture of artificial silk, which he calls "Spun Logs" is the subject of an article in the December number of The Scientific Monthly, by Dr. Edwin E. Slosson, in which he describes how, in the process of manufacture, spruce-logs are floated in at one end of the factory while at the other end skeins of glossy yarn are being shipped out. The wood pulp costs about five cents a pound and the synthetic silk sells for two dollars a pound, and more than that when you buy it in the form of neckties, shirts, sweaters and stockings. The four processes now used in the making of synthetic silk were first developed in Europe, but the United States now leads the world in its production, and consumption. In the field of science, according to Dr. Slosson, we Americans do not distinguish ourselves on the Kick-off but we beat the world in keeping the ball going when once it is put in play. The world's output of these artificial cellulose products for the present year is estimated at about 185,000,000 pounds, and American manufacturers made nearly a third of the total. We may reasonably expect that next year the United States will turn out 74,000,000 pounds, which will mean a 600 per cent increase in the last five years.

Protect Beautiful Birds

Birds of paradise are found in New Guinea, Molucca Islands and a few other neighboring islands; also in northeastern Australia. Egrets range from the United States; south to Southern South America; from central Europe south to southern Africa, and from north central Asia south to Australia.

Egrets are afforded protection under the treaty between the United States and Great Britain for the protection of birds migrating between the United States and Canada and may not be killed, sold or possessed except for scientific purposes.

The importation of both kinds of paradise and egrets for their plumage is prohibited by the tariff act of 1922.

Retarded River Builds Farm

Charles Wingrove, a farmer of Clay Center, Kans., has added quite a few acres to his farm by building retards in the Republican river such as the French used at New Orleans to build up the delta at the mouth of the Mississippi many years ago. Mr. Wingrove's method was crude but effective. He started in by throwing brush along the banks of the river where it was eating away his land. The result was the silt built up gradually and trees that once were in the bed of the river are now 50 feet back on land.

POETRY

Sings Like That

Here is the road beside the brook,
And here the byway that we took,
And here the log on which we sat
And talked of love and things like that.

Not ours; ah, no. Two students wise,
Not love we talked, but analyzed—
The latest gossip in the frat,
Engagements, weddings, things like that.

The Tri-Delt girls, their Psi U beaus—
We talked of love, but loves like those;
Yes, there beside the lake we sat
And talked of rings and things like that.

For you were young, and I was poor—
Might even flunk; I wasn't sure—
And so I dared not come out flat
And talk of love and things like that.

Yet even when I spoke of Bess,
I thought of some one, more or less,
Who even then beside me sat
And thought of me—and things like that.

Well, you are back in your home town;
I flunked; but now I've knuckled down—
You'd be surprised the way I bat;
In Greek and math and things like that.

But now and then I take a book
And find the byway that we took,
And sit the very place we sat
And think of eyes and things like that.

In other words, I'm doing fine;
And so I thought I'd drop a line
To ask—wherever you are at—
That you would write—and things like that.

For I'll be out of here in June,
And I'll be making money soon,
And then I'm coming right out flat
And talk of love and things like that.

—Douglas Malloch, in Lumber Trade Journal.

Fate

Two shall be born and whole wide world apart;
And speak in different tongues, and have no thought
Each of other's being, and no heed;
And these o'er unknown seas to unknown lands
Shall cross, escaping wreck, defying death,
And all unconsciously shape every act
And bend each wandering step to this one end,—
That, one day, out of darkness, they shall meet
And read life's meaning in each other's eyes.

And two shall walk some narrow way of life
So nearly side by side, that should one turn
Ever so little space to left or right
They needs must stand acknowledged face to face.
And yet, with wistful eyes that never meet,
With groping hands that never clasp, and lips
Calling in vain to ears that never hear,
They seek each other all their weary days
And die unsatisfiedand this Fate!

—Susan Spalding.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The Statue of Liberty is formed of bronze plates bolted together.

The sulphur consumed in the United States every year would form a pile as big as the capitol building at Washington.

Remnants of London's first water mains, which were of hollowed oak, were unearthed in Red Lion square recently. Experts estimated the wood was laid approximately 300 years ago by one of the first utility companies in that country.

Sixteen years ago Mrs. Alvah Little, of St. Albans, Vt., planted an apple seed in a flower pot. It grew and for two winters was kept in the house. Now it is a large tree and has borne for four years, this year having four and one-half bushels of handsome looking and extra fine tasting apples.

Among women who have made good in local politics may be mentioned Mrs. Grace Schiska, of Eugene, Ore. Miss Schiska made her political debut as a candidate for city recorder and was elected. Later she became a police judge and now she has been appointed to the office of county treasurer.

The number of automobiles in Sweden, government statistics show, increased from 8,506, or one for each 705 inhabitants in 1919, to 63,820, or one for each ninety-five inhabitants at the end of 1924. The cars are mostly American made. The government's income from motor business last year included $1,423,314 taxes on automobiles; $774,048 on tires and $1,347,046 on gasoline.

The present methods of agriculture are blamed for the introduction of hookworm into the Holy Land. Dr. A. Felix, of the Rothschild hospital, in Palestine, who found that about one out of every twelve workmen in the orange groves is affected by the disease, attributes it to the increased use of irrigation in the land. "It is very difficult to trace the source of the infection," said Dr. Felix, "but Egypt, where the hookworm disease is known to exist, is the most likely source because of the large number of Egyptian soldiers who worked here during the war."

The Alaska Agricultural college and school of Mines in Fairbanks, located 100 miles from the Arctic Circle, opened its fourth year recently with an enrollment of fifty-four. More than 100 students are expected by February. Last year sixty-nine attended. The Fairbanks college was founded September 18, 1922. A faculty of fourteen was required this season, compared to half that number the first year. Charles Ernest Bunnell, former federal judge, is president of the college. Courses include agriculture, civil engineering, mathematics, mining, metallurgy, geology, mineralogy, English, French and business administration. Gymnastic training was offered this year.

DRIVER RUNS DOWN BELTON A. COPP, PRESIDENT OF NEW LONDON BANK

NEW LONDON, Dec. 8.—Belton A. Copp, 56 Thames street, Groton, president of the National Whaling bank, this city, was painfully injured this morning when struck by an automobile owned and operated by W. H. Bryanes, 14 Centre street, Cambridge, Mass.

Mr. Copp, following his daily practice of walking to and from the banking institution, was proceeding across the Thames river highway bridge when an automobile owned and driven by Joseph Robitaille, of Groton, came along, headed for this city. Mr. Copp was invited to continue his journey to this city in the Robitaille auto and he started to go to the machine, the automobile operated by Byranes and headed towards Groton was about to pass the Robitaille machine. Before Byranes could stop his car, Mr. Copp was struck and knocked down. Robitaille assisted Mr. Copp to the former's automobile and brought him to the bank, where he was attended by a physician, after which he returned to his home. Byranes later appeared at the police station and made a report of the accident.

State Policeman Albright was a witness against one of the bus drivers who operate public service vehicles in this city, when the operator was given a hearing in the police court this morning. The cause of the complaint was the alleged recklessness of James Hathaway, in running his car out of a line of half a dozen vehicles that were traversing the Thames river bridge on the afternoon of November 29th. Albright represented that he was the fourth car in the line and that Hathaway pulled out with more than a score of passengers in the bus and crowded Albright from the road. Albright pursued the bus driver and ordered him into court. Mr. Albright declared that had a trolley car been approaching at that time a collision could not have been averted. Hathaway replied that he was not guilty of any recklessness. He said he was operating his machine at a speed of 15 miles an hour and took only that part of the road to which he was entitled. He said he had operated busses in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont during 19 years and had never before had complaint of any sort made against him. Judge Prince suspended judgment.

Eddie Ferris drove his car up to the curbing on Bank street near the Capitol theatre yesterday afternoon and allowed it to stay there a couple of hours notwithstanding yellow signs are set at frequent intervals cautioning against that practice. Ferris claimed that he didn't see any sign except one that forbade the turning of automobiles on Park street. Judge Prince inquired as to Eddie's sight and then fined him $5.

William A. McDowell was prosecuted for intoxication. The accused had quite an experience in this city after his arrival from Pittsfield, Mass. He fell in State street and when he was picked up he was taken to a physician. He there complained of pains in his body and was sent to the hospital where Dr. Labensky pronounced him a "jag carrier." Hathaway told the police court that he was a carpenter and was on his way to the seaplane manufacturing establishment in search of work. He was turned over to the probation officer.

John Penders, 11 Mountain avenue, husband of Mrs. Ellen Penders, who complained to the police last evening that three men, who accompanied her husband home Sunday afternoon and stole two gold watches and chains, rosary beads, three brooches and a flashlight, appeared at the police station this afternoon and declared that the trio, who were his company at his home, are sailors attached to the United States Coast Guard service, state pier. Penders, who is a mason, was partially intoxicated when he made his report today and was insistent that the police accompany him to the state pier for the purpose of enabling him to establish identification of the crooks. The police would have nothing to do with Penders and so informed him, at the same time advising him to present himself at the station house in a sober condition tomorrow, if he wanted the assistance of the authorities in locating and recovering the plunder.

Master George Swanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Swanson, 231 Vauxhall street, who suffered laceration of his right hand Sunday, when that member was crushed in the cogs of a derrick, was able to return to his home from Lawrence hospital today. Another patient who was dismissed was Archie Doorman, employed at the golf grounds, Fishers Island, who suffered a fractured skull several weeks ago when he was run down on Bank street by an automobile owned and operated by Irving M. Snitkin, 14 Cugler street. Other patients dismissed during the day were Mrs. Dorset Aldous, 17 Masonic street; Master William Gale, 133 Crystal avenue, and Mrs. Katherine Rollins, of Niantic.

The police last night received a telephone message that a fight was in progress, corner of Connecticut avenue and Broad street. When the police automobile with Patrolmen Ernest Opperman and Michael Dorsey arrived at the alleged location of the brawl, the fighters had disappeared.

The funeral of Alonzo Beebe, of Waterford, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. Services were conducted by Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of Jordan Baptist church. Relatives and friends acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Funeral services for Charles E. Blackmar were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 62 Washington street, Rev. Horatio J. Chase, pastor of Montauk avenue Baptist church, officiating. Former associate workers of Mr. Blackmar and employes of the Chappell Co., acted as bearers. Burial was in the Civil War veterans' plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

It is not believed that James Burns, former Mystic and Niantic resident, found hanging from a rafter in a shack at Black Point last Sunday, leaves any relatives for every effort to locate kin of the man has failed. If relatives are not found within the next day or two Burns' body will be buried in Jordan cemetery.

Three more deeds transferring realty in the former C. S. Guthrie tract, Lower Boulevard, Pequot avenue and Parkway, from the Pequot Realty company to new owners, were received for record at the office of the city clerk today. The new owners of building lots are Norman and Nettie M. Ruddy. Walter S. Garde and Frank M. Lanphere.

Clyde Ingram, of Waterford, administrator of the estate of Manuel and Anna Perry, has sold a dwelling on Denison avenue to William Silva.

Frank McGarrett, special agent in the employ of the Central Vermont railroad, sustained slight injuries yesterday afternoon, but the injuries will not prevent McGarrett from pursuing his regular duties. McGarrett was riding in the caboose of a south-bound freight train and when the train came to a sudden stop, McGarrett was thrown against the side of the caboose, sustaining numerous bruises.

For the third time within a week, the three story and a half structure, 362-370 Main street, was threatened with destruction by fire this morning. Shortly before 5 o'clock occupants of the second story of the building detected the odor of smoke. The blaze was located in a closet that was filled with wood and other inflammable material. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman and the Nameaug Engine company responded. With the arrival of the firemen and indications that the blaze would become a serious one, an alarm was rung in from Box 25, corner of Main and Federal streets. As soon as the flames were attacked they were found to be burning briskly between the partitions and a quantity of chemical quickly subdued them, before serious damage had been occasioned. It is believed that the blaze originated from the fire that attacked the structure last Sunday night. At that time the blaze was located between the partitions and it is believed that smouldering embers from Sunday night's fire continued to burn throughout the night and Monday, until they finally burst into flames that resulted in the third call being made for the services of the firemen.

It became known tonight that the building is resorted to as a place of sleeping quarters by the traveling category known as "bums," together with soldiers and sailors, who loiter about the city and rather than pay room rent, find a place to sleep for the night. It is the opinion of the deputy fire chief that two of the fires, Sunday night and early this morning, originated from the careless smoking of the itinerant lodgers. Deputy Shipman stated that he had already reported to the police of the place being a rendezvous of the uniformed men, but it such is the case, there has never been any record of the complaint entered at the police station.

POLICE SEEK PASSER OF WORTHLESS CHECK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 8.—Fred A. Wilson, a member of the United States Coast Guard Academy, stationed at local section base, No. 4, state pier, is a much sought man, for he is accused of passing a series of worthless checks.

Tonight Morris Mallove, proprietor of the jewelry establishment, 111 Bank street, reported to the authorities that last week he cashed a check for $55 drawn on the New London City National bank and issued by Wilson. Mallove deposited the check Monday and today the check was returned to Mallove with the information that Wilson did not have sufficient funds at the institution to liquidate the check.

Later the police ascertained that a certain automobile dealer cashed a like check for Wilson except for the amount and in this case the amount was $700, and with the negotiation of the check Wilson purchased an Overland car. Still later a public service operator was found who negotiated Wilson's check for $50 and like the check of the Bank street jeweler, it was returned to the public service operator as being worthless.

Wilson is still a member of the coast guard although it was at first believed that he had served his time and had been paid off. Inquiry at the local sectional base revealed that Wilson is still in the service, but he has been transferred so frequently that his present whereabouts are unknown.

Tony Arionchuk, who has a long police record, was arrested this evening by Patrolman Clarence Wells, charged with breach of the peace by his common-law wife, Agnes Arionchuk. The accused could not procure a surety on his bond of $100 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning, so he was held to wait the convening of court.

Arionchuk went to his home, 362 Main street, early this evening, and was in an ugly mood when he reached his domicile, so much so that he engaged in a quarrel with the woman he resides with and who admits that she is not his lawful wedded wife. The woman declares that a marriage ceremony was never performed and that she has lived with Arionchuk as his wife for seven years and that several children were born to them. At the police station, when the woman lodged her complaint, she declared that the accused was so abusive and demonstrative in his conduct that she could not longer remain in the house.

Mrs. Lillian W. Spear, wife of Lawrence Y. Spear, the latter president of the New London Ship & Engine company, and residing at 115 Gardner avenue, complained to the police late this afternoon that she had been the victim of a thief while she was shopping in a State street store. Mrs. Spear declared that in the performance of her shopping tour she placed her underarm bag on a counter while she inspected prospective purchases and while her attention was attracted, the thief purloined the bag, which contained a sum of money and other valuables.

The continued case of James Hathaway, 1125 Tremont street, Roxbury, Mass., charged with reckless driving is scheduled to be heard in the police court tomorrow morning. Hathaway was arrested Dec. 1 by State Police Officer Henry Albright, Groton barracks, but the case was continued until Wednesday.

Patrolman George Perkins, Norwood avenue, who has been ill several days, is still unable to report for duty. The same is the case of Patrolman Edward Daniels, who has been confined to his home on Howard street several days. Patrolman Daniels will resume duty, it is believed, the latter part of the week.

CHAMPION MEAN THIEF STEALS PURSES IN CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 8.—The police are making a strenuous effort to ascertain the identity of the meanest kind of a thief, one who seeks to apply his or her talents to the theft of purses of parishioners at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. Although the thievery has been in progress a fortnight, the police have been unable to obtain a clue that would lead to the apprehension of the thief. Two young men have been quizzed at the police station, but the crime could not be fastened upon them.

It has been the practice of the thief to go to the church daily and await the appearance of women to engage in devotions. After the women would leave their pews to say prayers at the several stations the thief would go to the pew that had been occupied by the parishioner and almost invariably a purse would be found. The purse and its contents would then be taken by the thief, who would slip from the church. Later when the parishioners returned to their pews the theft was discovered, but the thief had disappeared. The police are inclined to the theory that the culprit is a woman and not a man.

HENRY R. BOND RESIGNS AT SHIP & ENGINE COMPANY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 8.—Henry R. Bond today resigned as secretary and treasurer of the New London Ship and Engine Company, an office he has filled since the inception of the corporation. Mr. Bond was instrumental in interesting capital in the corporation and made personal solicitations with that end in view.

He would give no reason today for his course except to say that there had been a change in the policy of the corporation and he had decided to retire. He has been popular with the employes of the concern and all regret that he has concluded to end special connection with it.

A conference of all tax collectors in the state will be held at the capitol, Hartford, Monday, December 28, at 10 a. m., it was announced following a meeting of the special advisory committee, to Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

HOLY CROSS CLUB GIVING FIRST INVITATION DANCE

The Norwich Undergraduate club of Holy Cross college, is planning its first semi-formal invitation dance, to be held in the ballroom of the Wauregan hotel, John P. Murphy, 124 Broadway, chairman, was in Norwich from Worcester, Tuesday, and had a very attractive list of patrons and patronesses for the first social event undertaken by the club. Among others who have accepted are Secretary of State Francis A. Pallotti, of Hartford; also Edward J. Kelley, executive secretary to His Excellency, Governor John H. Trumbull; both are Holy Cross men. Alumni from Hartford, New London and other cities will join the local young men in making the evening pleasant for their guests. Prominent clergymen throughout eastern Connecticut are in the list of patrons, a number being Holy Cross alumni. The boys have arranged some clever novelties in the way of seasonable decorations and are to have an orchestra from Hartford for the evening.

Real Estate Sale.

Real Estate Broker John A. Moran has negotiated the sale for the heirs of the estate of Elizabeth Donahue the modern three-apartment house located on Huntington street at the corner of Hempstead street, New London. The new owners make their purchase as an investment.

Breed Theatre.

A cycle of events that lead to complicated matrimonial triangles occurring in succeeding generations of father and son is the basis for "The Circle," which comes to the Breed theatre today and Thursday.

The production was directed by Frank Borzage for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by Kenneth Clarke, and was adapted for the screen by Kenneth Clarke from W. Somerset Maugham's successful play of the same name. The picture is filled with humorous situations.

A noted cast includes Eleanor Boardman, Malcolm McGregor, George Fawcett, Alec B. Francis, Euelalie Jensen, Creighton Hale, Eugenie Besserer and Otto Hoffman.

Broadway Theatre.

The main feature B. F. Keith act that opens at the Broadway theatre tomorrow is really the act beautiful.

Ned Nestor's Darlings is a colorful revue of seven southern sweeties. There are seven distinct types of feminine loveliness. They compose a singing and dancing band. Each girl is versed in three arts. She is a musician, a vocalist and a dancer. An exceedingly clever and pretty programme has been arranged for the exploitation of these talents.

The other four acts making up the remander of the programme will also be worth your while.

The photoplay, "Dollar Down," with a good cast will round out an exceptional show for the week end.

Palace Theatre.

This afternoon and evening the Richard Mansfield Players will play a return engagement in Norwich, following their great success here a month ago in "The Goose Hangs High," when they will offer a play new to their repertory, "Why Marry?" by Jesse Lynch Williams, at the Palace theatre.

"Why Marry?" is described as a brilliant social satire, clever in its plot and light in dialogue. It was the sensation when it was produced in New York a few years ago, and was discussed at length from the pulpit, the lecture room, and the tea table, for in it the author says some startlingly true things about marriage and divorce.

Toward the end of the season when it was first presented, "Why Marry?" was awarded the enviable Pulitzer Prize, given each year to the best play by an American playwright to be presented in New York. This award was made after the play had withstood comparisons with all other plays given that year on Broadway, and after its long and profitable run.

When the author, before the New York opening of the play, was asked what his play is about, he remarked that it "tells the truth about marriage!" At that, a charming lady at a fashionable tea remarked, "But why write unpleasant plays?" and the author insisted that his play is not unpleasant.

"Then it can't be true!" sighed the lady with finality.

Nothing further need be said about this entertaining and brilliant play, except that the cast will include Harold Moulton, a new member of the Players, Betty Pratt, Frank Poole, Haroldine Humphries, Charles Freeman, Edwin R. Wolfe, Charlotte Read, Theodore St. John, and Theron Lucas.

The production has been staged by Edwin R. Wolfe, the not 1 stage director for the Richard Mansfield Players, and a beautiful setting has been especially designed by Louis Bromberg, the scenic director, and built under his supervision in New York.

Treat a dog kindly and he'll not desert you when your money is gone.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Well Child Conference.

Children need plenty of sunshine and fresh air. Children who are allowed to play out in the open each day come in for their meals with glowing cheeks and laughing eyes, and are healthy in the extreme. The little children who are allowed to take their morning and afternoon nap on the porch, are likewise healthier, because they have had plenty of air and sunshine during this time. Such factors in health are discussed at the Well Child conferences which are held monthly in South Coventry. The conference this month will be on Monday afternoon, December 14th, in the Public library, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

Concert By Blind Entertainers.

An unusual event in the entertainment line will be afforded at Odd Fellows' hall tonight when John and Mary McCay, brother and sister, and both blind, will give a concert that combines humorous recitations and impersonations with the musical numbers. Mr. McCay has a fine baritone voice and his sister is a soprano and they appear in solo and duet numbers, conducting the entire programme by themselves as they play the accompaniments for each other and Mr. McCay renders piano solos. It will be an evening of enjoyment for their audience.

Coming to the Breed.

"Never the Twain Shall Meet," the new Cosmopolitan production based upon Peter B. Kyne's romance of California and the South Seas, comes to the Breed theatre on Sunday. The cast includes Anita Stewart, Bert Lytell, Huntley Gordon, Justine Johnstone, George Siegmann, Lionel Belmore, Emily Fitzroy, William Norris, Florence Turner and Princess de Bourbon. The picture was directed by Maurice Tourneur and was screened in Tahiti. The company spent four months in this South Sea island and the camera is said to have recorded scenes of glowing tropical beauty. The picture is released by Metro-Goldwyn.

TRAINLOAD SHIPMENT OF TRUCKS TO FLORIDA

Every truck in a solid trainload shipment which recently left Graham Brothers factory bound for Florida was delivered at retail within ten days of the time the train reached Jacksonville, official records show.

This train consisted of 34 railroad cars containing 91 trucks consigned to seven dealers. The allotment to the Miami Dealer alone was 31 trucks of 1 ton and 1 1-2 ton capacity.

"These and hundreds of other Graham Brothers trucks," according to Mr Jordan, the local [illegible] Brothers dealer, "are playing an important part in relieving the transportation situation which has resulted from inadequate capacity of Florida's railroads to supply the needs of her unprecedented numbers of winter tourists and homeseekers.

"Vast amounts of merchandise, subject to the freight embargoes recently placed on certain classes of goods in order to reduce delay in moving necessities, have been moved South from Jacksonville and inland from Atlantic and Gulf ports by Graham Brothers trucks.

"Further evidence of the growth in demand for Graham Brothers trucks is found in reports of retail sales. Total deliveries in the State of Florida for the month of September 1925 equalled those for the entire year of 1923.

"October deliveries were 70 per cent ahead of the total for 1923 and equal to the total for 1924.

"Deliveries in Florida for the three months of August, September and October 1925 exceeded the combined totals for 1923 and 1924 by over 15 per cent.

"The rapidly increasing sale of these sturdy 1 ton and 1 1-2 ton trucks everywhere is the natural consequence of their power, dependability and low operating cost."

HOLLYWOOD'S INSIGNIFICANCE BROUGHT GROWTH AND FAME

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8—(AP)—Because of its insignificance not so many years ago, Hollywood became one of the goals of the world's movie-struck.

During the first ten years after 1900, when the motion picture industry was beginning to come into being, Hollywood stubbornly refused to show any marked growth. Its founder, H. H. Wilcox, a real estate man formerly of Ohio and Kansas, had laid out the district attractively, establishing it as desirable residential property. But it was too far from the then small city of Los Angeles.

Most of the motion picture studios were in the east; but a few were located in and around Los Angeles. None was in Hollywood.

There was no lighting equipment then such as is used now, and pictures made in California where there was plenty of sunshine, showed results that were difficult to obtain in sections more frequently visited by rain.

Back in New York, the Nestor Company of David Horsely was experiencing unending trouble. With a large payroll to meet, rain or shine, bad weather was eating up the profits. Horsely and his associates decided to go to California.

The heads of the Nestor Company had heard of Hollywood. It was a pretty place. But the best feature was that a location for a studio probably could be obtained there for little or nothing. And so, because of Hollywood's very insignificance, the motion picture "magnates," upon arriving in Los Angeles with about $50 between them, went immediately to the western suburb and rented an old tavern and its barn for a studio.

Although today the industry is looked upon by every citizen as the community's greatest asset, its entry into the town was not sought, and it was several years before the people awoke to the fact that the movies were making Hollywood, and the business became persona grata.

For years after their arrival, that is, until the drawing power of the industry became obvious, the people of filmdom were subjected to all manner of insults. And in the board of trade there arose many heated debates over the movies, but the business men favoring them finally won out.

With the rise of filmdom to power, the fame of Hollywood, which became a part of Los Angeles in 1910, but which never lost its name, spread. At the coming of the first studio in 1911 the population of the place was about 7,000. Today it is estimated at 125,000. There are 24 studios and 50 producing companies, employing 35,000 persons. The business represents an investment of $1,125,000,000.

SLURKING COYOTE REPLACES LION AS MENACE IN MONTANA

MISCSOULA, Mont., Dec. 8—(AP)—The mountain lion was yielded to the slurking coyote as the greatest menace to wild life in Montana.

To save himself and his stock, the buckskin-coated pioneer of the 80's fought the lion. In modern days the state posted a bounty of $20 for each of the animals killed.

This warfare has progressed so the stage where only one deer, a favorite prey, has been killed by the mountain king this year. The coyote, however, has claimed several victims.

REACTION IN MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—(By the A. P.)—Marked irregularity characterized the price movements in today's stock market, which reacted sharply at the close after an early period of strength. Encouraged by President Coolidge's prediction of continued prosperity, operators early in the day bid up prices to a point where heavy realizing sales and renewed short selling were attracted. At the close net gains of 1 to 12 points contrasted with an equal number of losses ranging from 1 to 13 1-2 points.

The president's message to congress was well received in Wall street which found particular cause for satisfaction in his recommendation for early tax reduction and his approval of methods to expedite railroad consolidations. The immediate response of the stock market was favorable but the message apparently had been fairly well discounted and stocks offered little resistance to selling pressure when bear traders launched a late attack.

A flood of increased dividends failed to arouse much bullish enthusiasm, although they included such important changes as the establishment of Western Union on an $8 annual basis, Virginia Railway on a $6 annual basis and Marland Oil on a $4 rate. None of these issues responded to the favorable news. Marland reacting a point in advance of the announcement which did not come until after the close of the market. American Brake Shoe and Foundry, however, jumped four points on the announcement of a larger disbursement to stockholders.

Motor shares, after several days of advancing prices, were engulfed by a wave of selling. Chrysler, which gained 18 points yesterday and extended its rise into today's early dealings, broke 13 1-2 points to 210. General Motors, Hudson, Mack Trucks and Nash Motors crumbled 1 to 8 points.

Price movements of standard industrial shares were mixed. American Smelting displayed impressive strength mounting more than 3 points to a new high record above 128, while American Can rallied to 254 and closed 2 3-4 points net higher at 252. U. S. Steel, however, fell back from 137 3-8 to 135 1-8 and losses of 2 1-2 to 6 points were registered by Sloss-Sheffield, DuPont, General Electric and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe.

Despite a large budget of favorable news, railroad shares were unable to overcome recurrent periods of profit-taking. Norfolk and Western, Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, and New Orleans, Texas and Mexico were in demand but New York Central, Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio, and Missouri Pacific issues lost ground. Union Pacific also was heavy in the face of a favorable court decision on the valuation case of the Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad, which it controls.

Public utilities gave the best exhibition of group strength. The buying movement embraced the Market Street Railway issues, Electric Power and Light, Consolidated Gas, Montana Power, Brooklyn Edison and West Penn shares, in which gains ran from 1 to 7 points. West Penn certificates soared 12 points.

Calling of $25,000,000 in bank loans caused an advance in the call money rate to 5 1-2 per cent., after renewals had been quoted at 5 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates remained unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were mildly reactionary. Sterling failed to hold its recent gain and the demand rate fell back to around $4.84 5-8. French francs reacted almost 10 points to around 3.75 cents. Trading in other European currencies was quiet.

NORWICH TOWN

The Christmas sale of the First Methodist Episcopal parish, in conjunction with the Young People's Christian Endeavor society, held Tuesday afternoon and evening, in the chapel of the First Congregational church, was largely attended, proving very successful. The sale which began at 2:30, was in charge of Mrs. William Weaver, chairman of the sales of both fancy and useful articles. She was assisted by Mrs. Arthur Fulton. Mrs Richard Carter, chairman of the grab-bag committee, was assisted by Mrs. Lewis Irish; while Miss Grace Mitchell and Miss Effie Ladd, dispensed home-made candy. A tempting supper of baked beans, potato salad, rolls, pickles, cake and coffee was served at 5:30. Activities in the kitchen were under the direction of Mrs. Wellington Miner, who had as her assistants, Mrs. Everett Rogers and Mrs. Fremont Vergason. Miss Theodore Brown, president of the C. E. society, presided in the dining room, with the aid of the young women of the church, as waitresses.

A free entertainment was given at 7:30, in charge of the entertainment Brown, chairman of the entertainment committee. Following is the program: Piano selections, Miss Augusta Miller; recitation, Christmas Trials, Miss Doris Rose; recitation, Easily Satisfied, Wesley Gifford; piano solo, Miss Beulah Rogers; vocal solo, Lewis Aldrich; reading, Mrs. George Manning; recitation, The Christmas Story, Miss Isabel Gembel; piano solo, Mark Aldrich; reading, The Christmas Gift, Miss Edna Judson; reading, Mrs. Manning; piano solo, Miss Mildred Carter; one act play, "The Train to Mauro," Miss Florence M. Brown and Lewis Aldrich; vocal solo, Mr. Aldrich, and in closing, piano solo by Miss Doris Estelle Rose.

Miss Jessie E. Hyde, of Washington street, left Tuesday morning for Hartford, to attend the Christian Endeavor State Executives' meeting, in session there this week. During her stay, Miss Hyde will be the guest of her cousins.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. House, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Kinney and William Kinney, of Town street, motored to Providence, Sunday, and were guests of Mrs. Kinney's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Kinney.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb had as supper guests Sunday, Dr. Lamb's relatives from Mystic, including his sister, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainerd and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jull Gremley, who motored to Norwich Town.

SMASHED HYDRANT AND PLATE GLASS WINDOW

About 9 o'clock Tuesday evening a machine owned and driven by Peter Marino, of No. 126 West Main street, skidded on West Main street when a wheel caught in the car track and shot to the curb breaking a city hydrant. The machine then shot across the sidewalk and smashed a plate glass window at the store of John Jordan, at 83 West Main street. The only damage to the machine was a broken headlight. It is said the accident was unavoidable as the wheel caught in the car track which caused the skid.

OPENING ENLARGED PLAUT-CADDEN STORE WITH RECEPTION TONIGHT

The culminating event of over fifty-three years of steady business progress will take place today (Wednesday) when The Plaut-Cadden Co. formally opens its greatly enlarged and extensively remodeled store for public inspection. Due to the vision and determined efforts of the officers of The Plaut-Cadden Co., Norwich and Eastern Connecticut may now boast of one of the largest and finest structures in the New England states devoted to the display and distribution of home furnishings, pianos, victrolas, musical merchandise and jewelry. It is in every sense a metropolitan store that will do credit to the city and one of which the public may well be proud.

R. C. PLAUT
President

The story of the progress and success of The Plaut-Cadden Co., is a business romance of interest to everyone interested in Norwich. It is a record of growth remarkable for its consistency. It is a story of great accomplishments toward the realization of an ideal, of the building of a business that makes it easily possible for everyone to possess the finer things of life. It is a story of faith in Norwich, faith in the future and faith in the principles of the organization, the soundness of which has developed the modest little store of yesterday to the great establishment of today. The simple faith which has made this expansion possible is as unshaken today as it was fifty-three years ago and the achievements of the past are but milestones on the road to greater expension in the future.

Aside from the creative power of faith there are also other big outstanding reasons for the store's success. Its policy of liberality in extending credit has been of inestimable value throughout Eastern Connecticut. Southern Massachusetts and Western Rhode Island, where its ideals of fair dealing and efficient service are household words. Its stocks and assortments are as extensive as will be found in the large stores in the big metropolitan centers, with its prices consistently lower for merchandise of like quality on sale in the larger cities. It is the knowledge of this fact, too, that has helped the firm to win and hold the patronage of the people within this large territory, which covers an area of 65 miles in all directions from Norwich.

The foundation of the business was laid by the late Abraham Plaut at 157 Main street in this city in 1873. The first store was a modest little establishment but the founder was a man of vision and a shrewd merchant and his business principles were of the kind that made friends, built confidence, and were conducive to success. Consequently it was but a few years later when he had to move to larger quarters in a better location at what is now 290 Main street. Shortly after this his brother-in-law, Julius W. Cadden, now secretary and treasurer of The Plaut-Cadden Co., came from Hartford and became associated with him and by hard work and overcoming many seemingly insurmountable obstacles these two formed the nucleus of the great firm of today. The business grew so rapidly that it was necessary again to move to still larger quarters on Shetucket street, where the Majestic building now stands. Two years later the business was removed to the Shields building at 35 Broadway, where the firm added a full line of Victor and Columbia talking machines to their business. Incidentally, this concern enjoys the distinction of being the first in New England to handle the celebrated Victor talking machine, as well as being pioneers in the credit business in this territory.

The year following the death of Abraham Plaut in 1893, The Plaut-Cadden Co., a consolidation of the firms of A. Plaut and The Cadden Cycle Co., moved to the store now occupied by Utley & Jones, the druggists, where they occupied two floors. During this year Rutherford C. Plaut, the only son of Abraham, became associated with the company as president.

Aided by the extensive business training and experience of Mr. Plaut, the concern grew steadily to become the largest and most progressive piano house in Connecticut. It still enjoys the distinction of being, not only the largest but the oldest piano and music house in the state, as well as being the only exclusively Victrola dealers in Eastern Connecticut.

Shortly after Mr. Plaut's association with the firm, Adelard Morin, the vice president, and Herman Sears, the assistant secretary, became connected with it. Augmented by the new personnel the business continued its growth, which was so remarkable that the company was obliged to erect their own building, a handsome five story structure at 145 and 147 Main street, to which was added the Johnson building. It was thought at the time that this building would be large enough to take care of their business for a great many years but their constantly growing number of customers decreed otherwise, they having favored the firm with such a great volume of business that it was not long before the company was compelled to take over the Quinebaug building. When this move was accomplished it was thought that th elimit of development had been reached, but the business continued to expand to such an extent that the members of the company decided to purchase the Quinebaug building facing on Main street and running through to Water street and the Bill block on Shetucket street.

The purchase of this extensive and valuable property was made in January of this year and work was immediately started in the development and enlargement of the property. A new four story annex building was erected to connect the Quinebaug building with the Bill block. This new building together with the enlargements and extensive alterations which have been made provide many thousands of square feet of additional floor space. Vast changes have been made, new departments have been added and those departments which have not been greatly enlarged have been rearranged so that better service can be rendered.

A visit through this greater Plaut-Cadden organization is well worth while. The store is now a model of efficiency and has no equal anywhere in a community of this size. One of the many remarkable features to be found in the store now is the splendid new lighting system to which special thought has been given so that the merchandise will be shown to the best possible advantage. Another is the automatic oil heating system which is recognized by authorities as the finest automatic heating plant of its kind on the market today. In fact, every possible endeavor has been made to make the store beautiful, highly efficient and practical and to provide it with an atmosphere of comfort and hospitality.

J. W. CADDEN
Secretary and Treasurer

Having accomplished so much and having experienced the realization of a dream of a truly great store for Norwich it is with justifiable pride that The Plaut-Cadden Co., formally opens the doors of its greater establishment so that the public may see what has been done that they may be better and more easily served.

It is expected that thousands of people will avail themselves of the opportunity to visit the store today and this evening to see what a wonderful institution they have in their midst, to enjoy the interesting programme which has been arranged and to get an opportunity, without any obligation whatever, to share in the distribution of $2,200 worth of the company's merchandise. This sensational feature of the opening day is an innovation that alone will interest many thousands of people. No such opportunity was ever given by any store on an opening day and it illustrates the progressive business spirit of this company and proves why it has been favored with such generous patronage.

The opening hours will be from 8 a. m. until 10 o'clock p. m. The evening programme will be augmented by a special concert from 7 to 9 by Richard Benvenuti's Roseland orchestra of 8 pieces. Invitations have been sent to many out of town friends and from all indications it will be a memorable occasion in the history of The Plaut-Cadden Co.

STORRS PRIZE BULL IS SOLD TO PROVIDENCE MAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Dec. 8—The sale of Flinstone Model, famous milking shorthorn bull of the Connecticut Agricultural college, was announced here today by Professor Harry L. Garrigus, head of the animal husbandry department at Storrs.

Webster Knight, of Providence, R. I., is the purchaser of the animal. Professor Garrigus, on the request of Mr. Knight, would not disclose the purchase price, but in view of the excellence of Flinstone Model and his remarkable show winnings, it is felt here that the amount must have been a large one.

Flinstone Model was presented to the animal husbandry department of the Connecticut Agricultural college, by the late Frederick G Crane, of Dalton, Mass., a man who took a keen interest in the college through its activity in this department. He gave the college second choice of a large number of bull calves in his famous herd of milking shorthorns. Massachusetts Agricultural college had first choice, selecting a son of Waterloo Clay.

Professor Garrigus made the selection for Connecticut Agricultural college, and to the surprise of many he picked the son of a discarded sire in the Flinstone herd. His selection was fully justified, however, as was fully proved by subsequent events. In the show ring, the bull has never been beaten in class except once at the Eastern States exposition at Springfield, and at the International Livestock show at Chicago.

SCHOOL BOARD ANNOUNCES ELKS' ESSAY PRIZE

With President Walter F. Lester presiding the town school board held its December business meeting Tuesday evening in the school superintendent's office at the court house. The minutes of the previous meeting were heard and accepted and bills were ordered paid. The board received and accepted the resignation of Miss Harriet G. Adams as teacher of the fourth grade at Broadway grammar school. Miss Blanche Peterson was appointed principal of the East Great Plain school as successor to Maud G. Lathrop, who resigned a month ago and has since been married.

The board announced that Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. E., has offered a prize of $10, to be known as the Sigmund Segal prize, for the best essay on Heroism, the contestants being limited to the eighth grade pupils on the West Side. It was also announced that Mrs. Leila Troland Gardner has offered an annual prize of $5 to be known as the Leila Troland Music prize, to the Broadway school pupil showing the most progress in singing. Following the hearing of the usual routine reports, the board adjourned about 9:15 o'clock.

POSTMASTER NOMINATIONS IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 8—In the long list of presidential nominations for postmasters filed in the senate today were the following: Middlefield, Edna M. Junkins; Noank, Claude M. Chester; Yantic, S. Howard Bishop; Sound View, Dexter S. Case; South Coventry, Louis M. Phillips; Sterling, Benjamin Parkhurst; Versailles, Lewis D. Beand; Wauregan, Gertrude M. Tracy; Westbrook, Edward F. Smidt.

Senator Bingham today introduced his bill for promotion of commercial aviation and expects it will soon be before that body for consideration.

Senator Bingham, as well as the others of the Connecticut delegation, were enthusiastic over the president's message especially as it related to states' rights, Bingham remarking that the state of Connecticut was an especially notable example in standing for states' rights.

SAYS NEW RULE OPENS WAY TO INVADE PRIVATE CELLARS

Just how far reaching will be the effect of the cancelling of filing of notices to manufacture non-intoxicating fruit juices other than cider, announced officially Monday by Col. Robert O. Eaton, collector of internal revenue at Hartford, officials were not prepared to say. A dispatch from Washington quoted Frank Dow, assistant to General Andrews, dry chief, as saying that the revocation of this right to file notice "bared the teeth of the prohibition law in that it would make clearer the rights of dry officials to raid cellars where cacheing of wines and intoxicants is suspected."

He is quoted as saying that under the new regulation federal prohibition agents can invade private cellars if they have conclusive proof intoxicants are stored there.

"With good proof given in other ways that high voltage brew or wine is cached in private cellars, confiscation is entirely proper," he declared.

Colonel Eaton's order is as follows: "To all whom it may concern: On Nov. 21, 1925, the commissioner of internal revenue revoked that part of Section 615 of Regulations 60 which authorized the filing of notice, form 1541, by heads of families for the manufacture of not more than 200 gallons of fruit juice other than cider, for use in the home. This revocation does not impair the rights conferred by Section 29 of the National Prohibition Act as to the making of non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices for use in the home. It is unlawful, however, to manufacture, possess or remove wine for beverage purposes in the home or elsewhere." The order does not specify that the beverages mentioned may not be made. It affects in no way the rulings of the prohibition law except that officials cited the probability that conviction for possessions of intoxicants would be made easier through the elimination of the filing of notices giving right to manufacture the beverages, exempt from tax.

APPEAL IS TAKEN IN RUBY PARKER CASE

An appeal to the supreme court has been taken in the case of the state against Ruby Parker of Flanders, notice of appeal having been filed Tuesday by Attorney Arthur T. Keefe with the clerk of the superior court.

Parker, who was recently convicted in East Lyme on two counts of the liquor law, which case has been appealed to the court of common pleas, is now in jail serving a 30 days' sentence imposed about eight months ago on a previous charge. Recently Attorney Keefe in a special sitting of the superior court at New London, was denied a writ of habeas corpus by Judge Christopher L. Avery.

BUILDING HALL MEMORIAL LABORATORY AT WESLEYAN

Wesleyan university, which for nearly a century has been one of the "brownstone-colleges" of New England, has come to the parting of the ways as regards the use of that almost historic building material for its future use. The Hall laboratory of chemistry, on which construction has begun, will be of Colonial red brick and white trimming and have accomodations for about 350 students, assistants and faculty.

A bronze memorial tablet in the main entrance vestibule will link permanently with the building the names of the three members of the Hall family, Gardiner Hall, Jr., William Henry Hall, '92, and Holman Henry Hall, '36, in honor of whom the edifice is to be erected.

The building is the gift of the late Col. William Henry Hall of Willington, a summer resident at Neptune Park, Ocean Beach.

FRESHMAN PIG ROAST FEATURE AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Dec. 8—Pigs in themselves are ordinarily peaceful subjects, but one pig, plus the sophomore and freshman classes at Connecticut Agricultural college will mean a free-for-all fight of no small proportions.

At least that is the hope of those who planned the annual pig-roast at the state college, which is scheduled to be held in the twenty-four hour period beginning tomorrow at noon, and extending to Thursday at noon.

Between these hours, the freshman class must roast a pig weighing at least fifty pounds over an open wood fire within a two mile radius of the main building. One half the male members of the freshman class must be present for the feast, including the class president. If by any unfortunate circumstance the class president is unable to attend, then seventy-five per cent. of the freshman class must be present. Provided the yearlings can meet either of the foregoing conditions, they will be adjudged winners of the pig roast by the student senate. Victory for the freshmen carries the condition that they may discard their "monkey caps" for all time; defeat carries the condition that in addition to retaining their caps, they must also wear a tin can, attached to their clothes by a three foot string, for a period of three days.

FISCAL BUDGET ESTIMATED BY PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Fiscal Expenditures of Federal Government Placed at $3,896,207,921, an Increase of $160,083,326 Over Outlay For Current Year—Navy Department Calls For an Increase of $8,007,052—Increases Also Are Proposed For Aviation, Treasury, Postoffice and Justice Departments—Decreases For War and Interior Departments.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—The expenditures of the federal government for the coming fiscal year were estimated today by President Coolidge at $3,896,207,921, an increase of $160,083,326 over the outlay for the current year.

The bulk of the increase goes to the postal service, which is operating under a new schedule of wages and rates, and to the Veterans Bureau, to meet increasing requirements of the soldier bonus. The Post Office department alone is alloted $102,808,148 more than during thep resent year. The Veterans' Bureau gets an increase of $53,266,000.

Allotments for other agencies of the government show a number of lesser increases, balanced by about an equal number of decreases.

Maintenance of the army and navy at their present enlisted strength is contemplated under the estimates, but the aviation services are allotted somewhat larger funds for purchases of equipment. The Shipping Board's expenditures show sharply the shrinkage of that agency through sale of lines, while expansion of the government aid policy in building post roads accounts for additional money requirements for the department of agriculture. An estimate of $21,940,529 for enforcement of prohibition is contained in the treasury allotment.

The navy's appeal for general replenishment which included recruiting to its full authorized strength of 86,000 men together with slightly larger purchases of aircraft was responsible for a proposed increase of $8,007,052 in that service's appropriation. Three million dollars would be added for navy day, and $4,110,000 for aviation. The estimates contemplate continuation of all present work, active operation of present yards and stations and the laying down of three of the previously authorized eight scout cruisers. No material change was proposed for the Marine corps.

War department expenditures show a cut of $4,124,406, much of which is taken up through curtailment in the estimates for rivers and harbors. That item amounts to $56,037,600 compared with $59,277,990 for thep resent twelve months, the new estimate carrying $10,000,000 for floor control on the Mississippi river. For the army air service the estimate is $18,050,000—an increase of $3,000,00 over 1926—designed to maintain the present status of heavier-than-air craft and assist in purchase of modern planes.

The treasury department is given an increase of $3,855,309, due chiefly to the cost of prohibition enforcement. The CoastGuard's increase was from $20,597,885 to $24,343,140.

The interior department suffers a greater cut than any other single agency. Estimates of its needs for next year are $11,288,001 below its present appropriations. Estimates for reclamation projects are reduced by about $1,300,000.

Veterans' bureau requirements under the bonus law are increased from $50,000,000 in the current year to $140,000,000 and for compensation under death or disability provision from $127,000,000 to $140,800,000. Conditions point to the need of an additional $106,000,000 for the bonus before the year 1927 is over.

Although the department of justice has $161,25 added to its estimated needs as compared with last year, the itemized statement discloses a reduction from $2,177,500 to $2,000,000 for "detection and prosecution of crime" and from $228,000 to $135,000 or enforcement of anti-trust laws. The appropriation of $1,000,000 available this year for prosecution of war frauds is entirely omitted for 1927.

As transmitted to congress in the annual budget, the president's estimates for the fiscal year 1927, beginning July 1, next, as compared with the amounts appropriated for the same purposes for the present twelve months, follow:

MOTOR ACCIDENT DEATH RATE FOR U. S. IN 1924

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The 1924 motor accident death rate for the United States was placed by the commerce department today at 15.7 per 100,000 of population, compared with 14.9 in 1923, 12.5 in 1923 and 11.5 in 1921.

The figures were compiled from all points included in the death registration area, which embraces 58.4 per cent. of the population of the nation. The deaths numbered 15,528 while in 1923 the toal was 14,411 in the same territory, and in 1923 it was 11,666. The total did not include deaths from collisions between trains and motor vehicles which added 1,532 to the total in the same aera in 1924.

California's death rate from motor accidents was the highest in the list of states for 1924 being 32 per 100,000 though the actual number of deaths there, 1,354, was smaller than those in New York or Pennsylvania. Wyoming's rate 27.3 per 100,000 was the next highest, followed by Florida with 22.6; New Jersey 21.7; Michigan, 21.2; Delaware, 19.8; Connecticut, 18.4; Washington, 18.2; New York, 18.1; Rhode Island, 17.9; Oregon, 17.3; Massachusetts, 16.8; Pennsylvania and Utah, 16.7 each; Ohio, 16.5, and Maryland, 16.2.

North Dakota's death rate was the lowest reported, 6.6 per 100,000 of population.

Among cities, Paterson, N. J., was given the highest motor accident death rate, 34.8 per 100,000 population, with 49 deaths reported. Pittsburgh, with a rate of 29.7 was placed close to it.

BELIEVE MISS ALICE M. CORBETT IS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Returning from Northampton, Mass., today, Captain Ayres of the missing persons bureau announced that police are convinced Alice M. Corbett, Smith College student who disappeared from the campus Nov 13, is in New York. A renewed search for the girl was ordered, particularly in Greenwich Village.

Captain Ayres learned in Northampton that the girl had boarded a train which would have taken her to New York.

WEALTH AND PLEASURE CAUSE OF CRIME WAVE

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Dec. 9—(AP)—The pursuit of wealth and pleasure have awakened the good influences of the home, and have much to do with the crime wave of today, Gov. Allan T Fuller told the members of the Massachusetts State grange at their convention here.

"We have what is called today a crime wave," the governor said. "The terrible crimes you read about in the newspapers are largely committed by young men. Students of conditions will tell you the cause of this is sociological whatever that is. But it is my conviction that the reason why young men are going astray is that there is not the religious influence in the home that there was when you and I were boys.

"There is not the parental responsibility now that there was then. Interests outside the home, the pursuit of wealth and pleasure-seeking have tended to erase the old front line trenches of protection that were held firm by the parents of old."

SAVED $25,000 BY USING THE AIR MAIL SERVICE

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—W. Irving Clover, assistant postmaster general, in an address at a meeting today at the Advertising club, related how a Chicago banker had saved $25,000 in interest alone by using the air mail service. A real estate dealer, Mr. Clover added, had saved $50,000 by getting a deed to property to its destination in time.

Fatal accidents in the air mail service, he said, numbered only 29 as against a total mileage of 10,526,532.

WESTERLY YOUTH HELD FOR ALLEGED EXTORTION

WEST KINGSTON, R. I., Dec. 9—(AP)—An indictment charging extortion was returned by the Washington county grand jury at West Kingston today against James P. Confoni, Westerly youth, alleged to have sent a threatening letter to Otto Seidner, prominent Westerly food manufacturer, demanding money.

French Financial Policy Vote Today

Opponents in Chamber Believe Bill Will Pass By a Slim Majority.

PARIS, Dec. 9—(AP)—M. Loucheur's financial plans, which will come up for discussion in the chamber of deputies tomorrow, are certain to cause tremendous opposition and an extremely acrimonious debate. But even the opponents of the plans profess to believe that they will be voted by the chamber by a slim majority.

The finance minister's bills have to do with increased taxation with the object of raising 7,000,000,000 francs additional next year to balance the budget and establish a debt sinking fund. Premier Briand, it is understood, will not make the vote a question of confidence and state the government's fate upon the passing of the measures, but will let M. Loucheur "go it alone."

Close friends of M. Briand, however, say it is unlike the premier to abandon one of his ministers, and that should M. Loucheur go down with his plans the entire cabinet will resign. Thus the entire political situation is in an extremely precarious condition.

SUING HER HUSBAND FOR MALICIOUS PERSECUTION

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Max D. Steuer, counsel for Mrs. Jean R. Melville, who is suing her husband, William Randolph Melville, a director of the Miner-Edgar Chemical corporation, for $170,000 for alleged malicious prosecution, asserted at the opening of the trial in supreme court today that through her own initiative Mrs. Melville had accumulated the family fortune during the war. Her husband then attempted to gain control of the money by having her declared incompetent, the lawyer charged.

Mrs. Melville, in the complaint on which the present action is based, alleged that up to the time of the war, her husband was a failure, but that when their fortune improved, his attitude toward her changed. The cause of the trouble, Steuer said today, was "too much money."

Early in 1923 Mrs. Melville brought three damage actions against her husband and two alienists for an alleged attempt to have her declared insane. She also started suit for separation at that time.

NO CHANGE IN THE HARD COAL STRIKE SITUATION

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Outwardly there was nothing tonight to indicate the slightest change in the hard coal strike situation, but there appeared to be a feeling among close observers that the various interests at work to bring about peace had met with some success.

Members of the business men's committee from the hard coal belt, who yesterday conferred in Harrisburg with Governor Pinchot and late last night met leaders of both the operators and miners in this city, continued their efforts today to break the deadlock. After their early morning conference with Major W. W. Inglis, chairman of the operators' wage negotiating committee, and other leading mine owners, the businessmen announced that the conferences had resulted in no "definite conclusions."

RAISE IN PRICE OF AUTO TIRES IN GREAT BRITAIN

LONDON, Dec. 9.—(AP) — Rubber shares, which have been booming, reacted on British automobile owners and the public today, when the announcement was made that because of the continued high prices of the product tires will cost twenty per cent. more beginning tomorrow. The increase ewill be general throughout the country.

The spot price of rubber closed at 4 shillings 7-12 pence yesterday. Rubber companies are springing up overnight. Rubber advertisements are spread through the newspapers, and the banks open their doors early to accommodate the crowds of applicants for new issues, despite warnings that "rubbish, as well as rubber, is being put on the market."

VEGETABLE GROWER FEARS EXPANSION OF ACREAGE

HARTFORD, Dec. 9—Reiterating statements made today that the vegetable growers of the county feared the competition of tobacco growers who are considering turning their land over to the raising of vegetables next year, C. J. Cannon, a vegetable grower, of Burnside, made the assertion today at the eleventh annual convention of the Hartford Farm bureau, that the addition of fifty acres to the present acreage devoted to vegetables in Connecticut would demoralize the business and probably overstock the market.

Mr. Cannon, speaking at the afternoon session following an address of "our competitive farming industry," by John C. Willard of Amherst, Mass., director of extension service at Massachusetts Agricultural college, said that the vegetable growers have been in difficulty for five years and their business would not stand the pressure of additional acreage.

"Vegetable growers do not expect any 'war' with tobacco growers," Mr. Cannon stated. "We are out to cooperate with every farmer's organization in the state, including the tobacco organizations. But for the past five years, during which time the vegetable market has been over-crowded, we have been up against it."

AIRPLANE TO SEARCH FOR MISSING BARGE

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 9.—(AP)—An airplane piloted by John Green of St. Petersburg, will start out early tomorrow in search of the 17 or more men on board the barge Altahmaha, drifting aimlessly in the Gulf of Mexico, since last Friday night it was announced here tonight.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A gang of masked men after binding and gagging his roommate at 2 o'clock this morning kidnapped Frederick B. Wiener, an actor and debater at Brown university, took him to a machine to Reboboth, about eight miles from here, and then dumped him beside the road slightly clad. No reason is known for the act and all efforts to ascertain the identity of the men have failed. Weiner is a junior in college. His home is in New Rochelle, N. Y.

Chileans Decided to Appeal to Coolidge

Plebiscitary Commission Has Approved Gen. Pershing's Motion For Fixing Dates.

ARICA, Chile, Dec. 9—(AP)—The Tacna-Arica plebiscitary commission today approved General Pershing's motion for fixing the dates for a plebiscite. The commission rejected the Chilean motion, and the Chileans will appeal to the arbitrator, President Coolidge.

General Pershing's motion named January 15 as the date for the presentation of the election law; February 15 for the beginning of registration; March 15 for the ending of registration; three weeks more for all appeals, and the vote to be taken April 15.

The motion includes a paragraph in which Chile is required to answer definitely whether in the future she will carry out faithfully all the demands of the commission and whether she will fulfill those already issued, which as yet have not been fulfilled, and, finally, whether Chile in general, will faithfully cooperate in holding the plebiscite.

General Pershing's motion begins with a long preamble in which it is charged that Chile has not fulfilled the requirements of a free plebiscite, has unlawfully administered the territory violated the award by refusing to carry out the rulings of the commission, and otherwise rendered the holding of a free referendum impossible.

FUEL ADDED TO PROHIBITION BATTLE IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—More fuel was placed beneath the capital's boiling prohibition pot today when the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church assembled in the Methodist building for its annual two day gathering.

The meeting, attended by prominent ministers and laymen from all parts of the country, was told by the board's secretary, the Rev. Dr. Clarence True Wilson, that he personally wished "we had let the democrats nominate Al Smith on a wet platform" in the 1924 campaign because John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan, who made up the ticket, were "too good to waste on the situation." It would have been better, he said, to have had "Smith, the wet Tammany heeler" defeated by about 12,000,000 votes, as this would have "toned up moral sentiment and been a pronounced discussion for enforcement.

Deets Pickett, research secretary, said in his report that "as an economic measure, prohibition has been the wonder worker of the present century."

ULSTER APPROVES IRISH BOUNDARY AGREEMENT

BELFAST, Ireland, Dec. 9—(AP)—The Ulster parliament today approved the Irish boundary agreement, after which Sir James Craig declared that he confidentially believed a new era had begun, not only in Ulster and the Free State, but in the whole world, so far as Irish affairs were concerned.

The premier also announced that at the London negotiations the vexing problem of Ulster's political prisoners had been settled. The British prime minister, Mr. Baldwin, asked him if it would be possible as an act of grace to deal leniently with the Free Staters held there. The Ulster premier agreed that the cases of prisoners convicted in the north for offenses during the period of the disturbances would be reviewed by the British government, whose decision in each case would be accepted by the Ulster government.

Sir James paid tribute to President Cosgrave and other Free State Leaders—they had shown a new feeling and view toward Irish problems, different from that they had shown a few years ago.

THREE HARTFORD POLICEMEN SUSPENDED FROM DUTY

HARTFORD, Dec. 9—(AP)—Policemen George Murphy, Sullivan and Keene, of the West Hartford police department, were this morning suspended from duty by the police board of that town pending a full investigation into charges involving their conduct at the Thanksgiving eve dance of the Bachelors at the Hartford Golf club.

Action against the men, taken by the full board at its meeting on Tuesday night, came as the result of reports that the three had partaken of intoxicating liquor at this dance, one of the principal events of the Hartford social season.

Osborne, former secretary and vice president of the Woodlawn Trust company today was sentenced by Judge Frank Reader to serve from 15 to 30 years at hard labor in the western penitentiary.

Osborne was arrested Nov. 19, last on information made by state bank examiners, who found a shortage of $232,000 in his accounts. Accepting to company officials, Osborne and his wife transferred their personal property to the trust company reducing the shortage to approximately $74,000. This sum is being made up by stock holders.

OBITUARY

Charles O. Clark

EAST HAMPTON, DeDc. 9—(AP)—Relatives here have received word of the death today of Charles O. Clark, well known Montreal business man. Mr. Clark, a former resident of this town, died in Edmondton, Alberta, while returning to Montreal from a business trip. Pneumonia was the cause of death.

Mr. Clark, who was 67 years old, was born in East Hampton. A bell maker by trade, he took up that business in Montreal and with his brother, William Clark, organized the firm known as Charles O. Clark and Brother.

He was a director of several hospitals and two banks in Montreal, a member of the Engineers' club and a yachtsman and golfer.

Mr. Clark had returned to his home in East Hampton once each year.

The body will be brought here for burial.

HOUSE DEVOTED HOURS TO DEBATE OF TAX REVISION

Representative Rainley, Democratic Member of the Committee, Declared He Would Not Support the Measure Unless Materially Changed—Passage of the Bill Before the End of the Week is Practically Assured—Senate Was Clearing Up Final Details of Its Organization.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The house plunged forward today with its work on the tax reduction bill while the senate marked time with a day's recess to permit clearing up of final details of organization.

An atmosphere of mid-season activity prevailed in the house, which worked until dark. Before resuming debate on the revenue measure, it received the budget message of President Coolidge recommending an increase in the next fiscal year's appropriations of $160,000,000 over the year.

While bills continue to pour into the hopper, many proposing to carry out proposals urged by the president in his message read to congress yesterday, some of the house committees were already at work whipping the measures into shape. Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee, promised two supply bills by next week, which leaders said would be taken up immediately upon passage of the tax bill.

A large representation of members listened attentively today to four hours of debate on taxes in the house, which included the first assaults on the non-partisan bill drafted by the ways and means committee to slash the federal tax burden by $335,000,000 next year.

Representative Rainley, of Illinois, a democratic member of the committee, declared he would not support the measure "unless materially changed". Representative Hull of Tennessee, another democratic member of the committee, urged a lesser reduction in the surtax rates and elimination of the provision to increase the personal exemptions from $2,500 to $3,500 for married persons and from $1,000 to $1,500 for single persons. Instead, they would repeal all of the war excise taxes and special levies on various forms of business which they declared were "purely war taxes."

Other members of the committee, including representatives Hawley, Oregon, and Mills, New York, republicans, and Dickinson, democrat, Missouri, came to the defense of the measure.

Each admitted he was not in accord with every provision of the bill, but they endorsed it "in its entity."

With passage of the measure, almost without change, practically assured by the end of next week because of the bi-partisan support, Chairman Smoot announced today he would call the senate finance committee together January 3 to begin work on it. A report of the measure to the senate by January 15 was set as the goal for his committee by Mr. Smoot, who said this would give every opportunity to the senate to act on it and permit it to become law by March 1, in accordance with the desire of President Coolidge.

Enactment of the bill by that time will permit income tax payers to take advantage of the proposed cuts in these schedules when first installments fall due March 15.

INTIMATE REMARKS MADE BY MARY GARDEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Mary Garden, of the Chicago Civic Opera company, returned on the White Star liner Homeric today talking of the radio, Russian noblemen, Paris fashions fur coats, lingerie, and marriage.

"The radio gives me more emotion than any man I ever met in my life," she said. "I adore it. I have a perfect radio voice and broadcasting has convinced me of it. Only a man or woman with personality can broadcast. I have a radio set in my Monte Carlo villa, I have one in my Chicago apartment, I will have one when I go to sea on ships."

The costumes for appearance in a new opera, "Resurrection," by Alphaeo, based on Tolstoi's novel, were all made and designed by Russian noblemen exiled in Paris, she said, and one of the coats was created by Prince Felix Youssoupoff, who recently lost his suit against Joseph E. Widener for the return of two portraits by Rembrandt.

Miss Garden said singers always wear thin clothing and heavy furs. "I never change my lingerie all the year around," she said. I mean the weight; but I often change the weight of my furs."

"When I retire I hope it will not be through marriage," she said when asked the usual question. "Rather I will hie myself to a nunnery; or perhaps have an apotheosis such as ends Faust."

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE OF $10,000 PEARL NECKLACE

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Police were faced with a new society gem mystery today as they sought to solve the disappearance of $10,000 pearl necklace, the property of Mrs. Charles William Clark, divorced wife of the son of the copper king and former United States senator. The necklace was lost at a tea given in the home of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, junior on November 21, but the theft was only made public today.

Mrs. Clark declined to discuss the loss "since it did not occur in my own home."

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., through one of her secretaries declined to say anything about the loss.

You know Mr. Vandebilt dislikes publicity. I can't help you a bit, reporters were told when an assistant to Mrs. Vanderbilt's secretary was called. The necklace consisted of 75 pearls.

Mrs. Clark was divorced from Charles William Clark in Paris in August. She charged non-support. She was Miss Cecelia Tobin of San Francisco and was married to Clark in August, 1904, several months after the death of his first wife.

Mrs. Clark is a sister of Richard M. Tobin, American minister to the Netherlands. She referred all newspaper inquiries to her attorney, Frank L. Polk, former secretary of state. Mr. Polk was indisposed and his office declined to give out any information.

ALCOHOL ON FISHING BOAT THAT CAUGHT FIRE

ORLEANS, Mass., Dec. 9—(AP)—Two men were arrested and 17 cases of alcohol were seized today after a 50-foot fishing boat, the Julian III, equipped with auxiliary engines, came ashore at Nauset Beach and caught fire. Coast guards men, arrested Thomas Appleton of Boston and Frank Connors of Cambridge as they came from the burning vessel on the beach. They said that a backfire of their engine had started the fire. Two hundred and fifty cases of alcohol were destroyed according to the coast guardsmen, who took the men to the Barnstable jail.

FIRE CAPTAIN STRICKEN AT WHEEL OF ENGINE TRUCK

NASHUA, N. H., Dec. 9—(AP)—Fire Captain Buell Elkins collapsed at the steering wheel of his engine truck while returning from a fire and died before his comrades could bring him to a hospital. Members of the company succeeded in stopping the truck, and with another fireman in the driver's seat sped to the hospital.

Captain Elkins was 57 years old, had been in the department thirty years and had been treasurer of the New Hampshire Firemen's Relief association for twenty years.

CHARGE OF TAMPERING WITH RHINELANDER JURY

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. Dec. 9—(AP)—Interest in the Rhinelander marriage annulment case, which had subsided following the jury's verdict last week favorable to Leonard Kip Rhinelander's mulatto wife, was revived today when Supreme Court Justice Morschauser ordered a grand jury investigation of alleged tampering with the jury.

The investigation was ordered after Frederick G. Sanford, one of the jurors who heard the case, had reported that he had been approached by three citizens of Yonkers during the progress of the trial. One of these citizens whom he named to Justice Morschauser as having discussed the case with him, was Dr. James C. Bennett, an eye specialist of Yonkers.

Both Dr. Bennett and Sanford were subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury tomorrow, when it is to begin its investigation.

Justice Morschauser in ordering the investigation, said, "I want to do something to deter others from following this man's example if it is true he really did this."

Sanford said that none of the persons who talked with him about the case had spoken in favor of Rhinelander or his wife, nor was he urged to vote either way. He said he could not recall the names of the other two persons whom he represented as having discussed the case with him.

Judge Isaac Mills, attorney for Rhinelander said today that he would submit a brief, 20 pages in length, to the court Friday. The brief will embody his argument to have the verdict of the jury in the annulment suit set aside on the ground that it was contrary to the weight of evidence.

GERMAN PRESS COMMENT ON PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

BERLIN, Dec. 9—(AP)—President Coolidge's message to congress has been received with comparatively little comment by the German press as a whole.

The Diplomatische Korrespondenz, which reflects the views of the foreign office, characterizes it as an expression of a liberal and far sighted political policy.

The Boersen Zeitung, representing financial interests, expresses the belief that the message puts the solution of the disarmament problem up to a discussion of the military powers rather than the league of nations, and urges England, France and Japan to take notice, "It is easily understood why the head of the isolated United States talks disarmament," this journal says. "It is also easy to understand how Europe links security with disarmament."

The Nationalist Kreuz Zeitung says that the president's unwillingness to return German property prior to the settlement of claims against Germany was a disappointment. It had been hoped that the United States, like South Africa, would set an impressive example in this respect.

VOTE OF STOCKHOLDERS OF INTERNATIONAL SILVER CO.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Stockholders of the International Silver company have approved a plan for readjustment of the company. Calling for the inauguration of six per cent dividends on common stock. The termination of all legal controversies between the company and the stockholders' committee, an increase in the working capital of the company by more than $2,100,000 and repayment of the present 7 per cent dividend accumulations on preferred stockholders $1,445 common shares now held in the treasury at $75 a share, on a basis of 5 1-3 shares for each share now outstanding.

ARRESTS FOR PICKETING OF AMERICAN THREAD CO.

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 9—(AP)—Picketing at the gates of the American Thread company's plant here, was resumed today after labor agitators had revived the interest of the workers still out on strike. Two arrests were made when the police were called to end disturbances tonight.

Timothy McCruhan and Charles Buckingham will be given a hearing in police court tomorrow morning, charged with breach of the peace and assault. McCruhan is alleged to have pushed William T. Turner and Mrs. John Ogden off the sidewalk into the street.

WINDHAM CENTER CHURCH TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 9—The 225th anniversary of the establishment of the Windham Center Congregational church will be observed with a program of speaking this (Thursday) evening at 7:30 o'clock and at the regular worship next Sunday morning. This Thursday, Rev. Sherrod Soule, of Hartford, will deliver an address in conjunction with a picture portrayal of The Line and Lineage of the Windham church. Rev. Gurdon E. Bailey, of Norwich Town, will deliver the anniversary address Sunday morning. Rev. Bailey is pastor of the mother church from which the Windham Center church was an offspring. On the occasion Rev. James G. Graham, the present pastor, will be host to several of the former ministers, who are expected to attend, or be represented. Among them is expected Rev. Harry Grimes, of Braintree, Mass., a former pastor. Miss Vandalia Burgy, of the Park church, Norwich, will sing and Mrs. John F. Woods of Windham Center will will be heard Sunday. An invitation has been sent to the member churches of the Windham County Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers.

The Congregational church of Windham Center, known as the "mother church" because five other churches sprung from it and established in neighboring communities, has a remarkable historical record which has been well preserved through generations in printed form. The five offsprings of the Windham church are: in 1710, at the Ponde Place, now Mansfield Center; in 1723, Canada Place, now Hampton; in 1735, Scotland; in 1788, South Chaplin and 1828, Willimantic. Thirteen members were dismissed from the Windham church to form with others the present First Congregational church in Willimantic.

The Windham parish occupied five houses of worship during the years, the first being erected in 1697, the second in 1716, the third in 1755, the fourth in 1849 and the fifth and present church which was dedicated in June 18, 1887. The fourth church was destroyed by fire on May 5, 1886.

Rev. James Fitch of Norwich Town conducted services under a tree at a place called "Hither Place," now Windham Center in 1690. In 1692 when Windham was given town privileges. Samuel Whiting was invited to become the first regular pastor of the church. He preached his initial sermon on January 1, 1693, taking the text from the first verse and first chapter of the Bible. By an act of the general assembly in 1700 the church was officially organized. One of the early deacons of the parish was Ralph Wheelock who went to Lebanon and established a school which later became known as Dartmouth college. The South Windham branch of the church was organized in October 1886 by some of the members and separate services and independent officers were inducted. With but three of the pastors of the Windham church to be called being young men the average term of a pastorate was ten years.

The following is a list of the pastors from the date of organization, with their periods of service: Samuel Whiting, 1700-1725; Thomas Clapp, 1726-1739; Stephen White 1740-1793; Elijah Waterman 1794-1805; William Andrews 1808-1813; Cornelius Bradford Everest, 1815-1827; Richard Fally Cleveland 1829-1832; John Ellery Tyler 1837-1851; George Ingersoll Stearns 1852-1862; Samuel Hopley 1864-1866; Hiram Day 1868-1869; Adelbert Franklin Keith 1870-1874; Frank Thompson 1875-1880; William Sylvester Kelsey 1885-1890; Fred Maynard Wiswall 1890-1892; Frederick Howard Means 1893 1903; Charles B. McDuffee 1903-1908; Harry Grimes 1908-1912; M. Raymond Plumb 1912-1919; Arthur W. Clifford 1919-1924; and Rev. James G. Graham.

Rev. Richard Fally Cleveland, who was pastor of this church from 1829-1832, was the father of Stephen Grover Cleveland who became governor of New York state from 1884-'85 and president of the United States from 1885-'89 and 1893-'97. Rev. Mr. Cleveland came to Windham as a young man, it being his first pastorate. Shortly after he was installed he rode on horseback to Philadelphia where he claimed his fiancee in marriage. A reception long to be remembered was accorded he and his bride upon their return to Windham and the legends of Windham say that one sturdy horse carried them both on the arduous journey.

EXPECT TO COMPLETE FOUNDATION THIS MONTH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 9—Unless incessant stormy weather sets in it is expected that the foundation of the new Community hotel, being built here, will be completed this month after which the work on the building proper will be started and rushed to a finish. Figuring on bids already received for the construction the amount for the entire cost will remain within the cost of the project as estimated by the building committee. The moderate cost arrived at without lessening in any way the quality of the work and this accomplishment comes as a source of satisfaction to the committee as well as to the stockholders and the entire community. As contemplated in the original plan a bond issue is about to be floated in the amount of $100,000 in addition to the stock subscriptions, the installment payments on which are being received regularly and on which the whole amount will be substantially paid. Directors and holders will meet at the Chamber of Commerce rooms this Thursday evening to act on the bond issue, according to notices given by the secretary, John F. Ahern. The new building will have a one-hundred foot frontage on Main street with a capacity of sixty-eight rooms, including baths, and six stores on the ground floor. Wholly fireproof material will be used in construction and will be fitted in every way to meet the requirements of the American Hotel corporation, a branch of the United Hotel corporation, which will operate the building.

D. D. Cavanaugh, manager of the first annual poultry, pigeon, dog, cat and pet stock show which will be staged at the state armory on Pleasant street under the auspices of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association, and in conjunction with Company C, 169th Infantry, C. N. G., has had little difficulty in disposing of exhibition space to local business houses and it is indicated that the displays will be educational and interesting. Demonstrations will be given by the poultry department of the Connecticut Agricultural college.

Within a matter of weeks the new Capitol theatre building on which the finishing touches are now being placed will be thrown open to the public, it was stated, Wednesday by the contractors. Decorations in the theatre are nearly completed and are of a design fit to grace any theatre in any city. With the flooring laid the seats will be installed upon their arrival here, presumably within a few days. The wiring of the building and installation of fixtures is being rushed. One of the next steps is to erect a beautiful marque over the entrance of the theatre vestibule. This canopy will extend to the curbing.

The Norwich Bulletin Social Corner club, No. 2, held its regular meeting at the Chamber of Commerce rooms Wednesday. There was a fine attendance of members coming for the most part from the Norwich and New London districts. Following an excellent luncheon at noon a program of readings and music was carried out. The annual donation day for the Christmas work of the local Welfare bureau was observed with gratifying results.

Miss Leona Farrell, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Farrell, returned to her home from St. Joseph's hospital, in a slightly improved condition Thursday, suffering from an infection which set in when she lacerated her foot by striking it against a sharp piece of tin on the running board of an automobile which she was entering. The foot was cut above the instep, the tin having pierced the shoe. Several days later infection set in and gradually traveled to the hip. Miss Farrell was a student at the Windham High school at the time of the accident which was several months ago.

George Hicks, a yard worker at the Quidnick-Windham Manufacturing company has been a patient at St. Joseph's hospital for some ten days recovering from an injury to his back sustained in the mill yard when a heavy piece of timber which he was assisting a fellow employe to carry slipped from his shoulder and pinned him to the ground.

Mrs. Carrie Larrabee was hostess at the regular meeting of Anne Wood Elderkin chapter, D. A. R., held Tuesday afternoon in the form of a Christmas party. All of the members donated practical gifts which are to be sent to Ellis Island and distributed among the emigrants being detained there. Mrs. Lottie R. Graves was at the piano for the singing and Miss Faith Webster, violin obligato. The program was in charge of the committee of which Mrs. Larrabee is chairman. Mrs. Edith Lincoln read a Christmas poem and Mrs. Adele Howie recited an interesting Christmas story. Assisting the hostess in serving a buffet luncheon were Mrs. Adele Howie, Mrs. Philip Dean, Mrs. Edith Lincoln, Mrs. Ruth Potter and Miss Faith Webster.

Postmaster Frank M. Smith, retiring treasurer and manager of the Wilson Drug company was tendered a farewell party by officials and employees of the company at his home Tuesday evening. A beautiful chime clock was presented the retiring manager by Mrs. Lucy Bvles Wilson, of Hartford, president of the company on behalf of the members. Among those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred A. Gagnon, Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hawley Foote, Joseph Fitzgerald and Mrs. Lucy B. Wilson.

The Windham Teachers' club will hold its first meeting and social of the year at the Windham High school this (Thursday) evening, opening with a supper at six o'clock. During the business session the officers for the year will be elected. This will be followed by cards, radio music and dancing. The executive committee in charge of the affair is composed of: R. L. Hahn, chairman; Miss M. E. Sanderson, Mrs A. J. Ontes, Mrs. H. D. Pollard, Miss Lucy Reddish, Miss Catherine H. Wheeler and Miss E. F. Wulff.

Mayor-elect John C. Tracy and the incoming board of aldermen will take office and perfect organization at their initial gathering of the two-year term next Monday evening. Appointments of committees or heads of departments will be deferred until the January meeting by Mayor-elect Tracy who plans to carefully consider every application received before making selections.

Mrs. Carl W. Tripp and Mrs. George M. Noble entertained at five tables of whist at the former's home Tuesday afternoon. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Willard N. Bowen, first, and Mrs Mary Russ, second. The affair was a benefit for the Woman's Relief corps fund. Mrs. Gladys Magnes assisted the hostess in serving luncheon.

The operator's license held by John Hurley of 2 Oak street, this city, has been suspended from December 5, until further notice, according to a communication received by Chief of Police Allan McArthur Wednesday from the state motor vehicle department.

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Steits, of Warehouse Point, are moving their household goods to 249 Church street, to make it their future home.

Mrs. Sarah Fox is the guest of Mrs Joseph Avery for this month after which she will make her residence at the Card home on Pleasant street.

Mrs. Herman Kopke and daughter Doris of Mansfield avenue, have returned from a four weeks' visit in Plymouth and Fall River, Mass.

Wilfred J. Lavaude has been called to Claremont, N. H., by the death of an uncle, Louise Lavaude.

Miss Ethel Glandon, superintendent of the Deaconess home in Providence, R. I., has been visiting her friend, Miss Cora M. Kinney, at the home of Mrs. Daniel A. Wrench.

G. Raymond Young, of Norwich, and Miss Ruth Russ, of this city, were Hartford visitors Wednesday.

NORTH LYME

Miss Emily Stark and Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Strong attended the Farm Bureau meeting in Norwich Friday.

Truman Ives and family were in Willimantic Saturday.

Mrs. Cora Rogers, Miss Kathleen Conway, Leslie Rogers and family, of Old Lyme, were recent guests of G. H. Strong.

Billie Ives has been ill with a cold this week.

Dominick Dagostino, of New Haven, was arrested in Darien, when 100 gallons of alcohol were found in his touring car. He was held in default of $500 bonds.

MANY ATTEND SERVICE FOR FRED D. JORDAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 9—Hundreds of relatives, business associates and social acquaintances attended the funeral services for Fred D. Jordan held at the family home, 90 North street, at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Out of respect to the late business head the mercantile establishments in the city were closed for one hour during the services. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock and Rev. William S. Beard, fomer pastor of the First Congregational church here and now of Boston, Mass., officiated, at the simple but impressive service. A eulogy of the deceased was read. Burial was in the new Willimantic cemetery. The bearers were Louis A. Kingsbury, George S. Elliott E. Frank Bughee, William P. Jordan, Dwight E. Abel and George E. Hinman. Among some of the business organizations represented were: The Jordan Hardware company, the Jordan Auto company, the Jordan Buick company the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company, the Willimantic Trust company and the Windham Silk company. Organizations represented included, St. John Commandery No. 11, Knights Templar, the Masonic bodies, the Young Men's Christian Association, the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce, the Business Men's association, and the Willimantic Rotary club. Mayor-elect John C. Tracy and a group of the newly-elected and present officials represented the city. Avery and VanZandt had charge of the arrangements.

WINDHAM

The Congregational church is observing its 225th anniversary this week with services today (Thursday) which is the anniversary date, and Sunday. At the morning service Sunday at 11:15, the anniversary sermon will be preached by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the Mother church, at Norwich Town. There will be special music which will include a soprano solo by Mrs. John F. Woods. The oldest member of the church is Mrs. Julia M. Arnold, now in her 93rd year, who is the only one living who attended the 175th. anniversary in 1850.

Mrs. Charles R. Utley went to Brooklyn, N. Y., Wednesday, to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Chester Ule.

There was a large attendance Saturday evening to witness the 3 one-act plays given by the Andover players of the Eastern Connecticut Drama league. The plays "3 Pills in a Bottle"; "Indian Summer," and "Dead Dry," were well presented. Music between the plays was provided by Andover talent and Miss Dorothy Brown.

Those from Windham who attended the Schuman-Heink concert in Hartford were: Rev. William Brown, Miss Dorothy Brown, Miss Elizabeth Anderson and Mrs. E. K. Leffingwell.

There were about 30 present at the December meeting and the Parent Teachers' association, held Monday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Harry Moseley, in charge. There is about $30 in the general fund and $24 in the play ground equipment fund. A toboggan slide has recently been added to the equipment. It was voted to give $5 to the Near East Relief. The speaker for the afternoon was Miss Lisbeth Macdonald, R. N., of the Storrs College Extension service. She gave an interesting and instructive talk on Hygiene in Middle Life. Tea and cake were served by Mrs. John Webster, Mrs. Daniel Trigger, Mrs. Weyland Jacobs, Mrs. Homer Wood and Miss Louise Adams.

DANIELSON

URGES PEOPLE TO MAIL EARLY FOR CHRISTMAS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 9—Early mailing of Christmas packages is urged by Edwin H. Keach, who also gives out the following information:

Packages intended for delivery anywhere in Connecticut should be mailed not later than noon, Monday, Dec. 21.

Despite the annual "Mail Early" plea of the postmasters throughout the United States, thousands of persons persist in mailing packages on Dec. 23, and 24, with the expectation that deliveries will be made in time for Christmas.

The result of late mailing is proven each year, when thousands of bundles intended for delivery on Christmas Eve., do not reach the destinations until several days after Christmas.

Persons are urged to buy their supply of Christmas stamps within the next 10 days and to remember that two-cent stamps must be placed on all Christmas and New Year cards, as the postal rate on this class of mail was raised from one cent to two cents on April 15.

Senders are urged to place the names and addresses for the persons to whom they are sending Christmas packages, and also their own names, both on the outside and inside of each package, so that in the event packages cannot be delivered they can be returned to senders.

Christmas seals should be placed on the back sides of all letters and parcel mail.

Early mailing of Christmas cards and Christmas letters is just as important as the early mailing of parcels, as the passing of hundreds of millions of cards through the various postoffices of the country so ties up other work that the clerks cannot devote much time to other duties. No postcard for delivery by Christmas anywhere in Connecticut should be mailed after noon, Dec. 21.

Many postcards mailed and received in Connecticut last Christmas were not delivered until several days after Christmas because persons disregarded the plea of the postal officials to do their mailing early.

Early mailing is not only urged to facilitate delivery in time for Christmas, but to equalize the burden that is placed upon the postal service.

In wrapping of parcels the postmaster recommends the use of heavy paper and strong twine.

Articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation and delivery will not be accepted for mailing during the Christmas rush.

Special delivery of Christmas packages is possible. This is intended for speed and not safety.

Christmas day a holiday and on that day there will be no delivery of mail by carriers or at the postoffice.

In the ancient churchyard of Old Trinity church on Church street, Brooklyn, Wednesday, the body of Anson Rix, who died at Lawrence, was laid at rest. The committal service was conducted by Rev. Leonard Richards, rector of St. Alban's church. Relatives acted as bearers. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements. Burials in the old churchyard, where rest all that is mortal of numbers of notable people who lived in this Manner of Kingswood, have been rare for a generation past.

The death of Earl Walter Lyons, 38, occurred during Tuesday night at the home of his sister, Mrs. Napoleon Allen, resident near the Killingly town farm. Mr. Lyons was a native of Woodstock, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lyons, both of whom are dead.

One of the improvements contemplated by the S. N. E. Telephone company in Danielson is the running of a new and larger cable through Academy street. Poles for this new cable have been set for some time.

The first basketball game by Killingly High school this season is scheduled for Friday evening of next week, when the Boys' club team of Mechanicsville will appear.

Richard Barrett is president, Lyman Lyon, vice president, Richard Tillinghast, secretary, and John Crosby, treasurer of the Hi-Y club through a recent election of officers.

McGregor corps, W. R. C., has its Christmas party planned for next Wednesday evening and members of McGregor post, G. A. R., will be guests. The corps will follow its established custom of sending a gift to the crippled children at the Newington home.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church met with Mrs. M. V. Woodworth on Hawkins street, Wednesday afternoon.

Choirs of the various churches in Danielson are engaged with their rehearsals of Christmas music and the churches are also preparing their Christmas concert and Christmas tree programs.

Nathan D. Prince, president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company and president of the Windham County National bank of Danielson is erecting a new home on Elizabeth street, in Hartford. Mr. Prince is retaining his home on North Main street, in Danielson.

Many nice things are being said by observers, of the careful manner in which operators handling the new motor coaches of the Connecticut company get them over the highways. These coaches come to a complete stop before crossing a railroad, as is necessary in Danielson, Central Village, French's and Bishop's crossings in Plainfield and in Jewett City.

One hears talk about town of plans to organize an excursion to Montreal for the New Year's season. Such things are being done in various parts of New England.

In the near future 1,200 feet of film showing the Armistic day parade and other features of the day in Putnam will be shown here. Many Danielson people are to be seen in the film—members of the American legion, the Service battery, members of Putnam lodg of Elks from this town, members of St. James' band and various individuals who were caught in the camera's range.

The Cloud Digger continues to go along very well with his forecast for December, that was made in September. To date the prediction is excellent. It was not quite as mild Wednesday as the forecast called for, but the stage seemed all set for the very cold and clear period predicted for December 10, to 15.

Sherwood B. Potter, on Monday elected treasurer of the Berlin Savings bank of Kensington, Conn., took up the duties of his position on Wednesday. It is anticipated that Mr. Potter will remove his family from Brooklyn to Kensington at a later time.

Complaints against ruts on country highways coming in from various sections of eastern Connecticut are also common to this territory. Now that cold weather is at hand, it is not unlikely that some of these deep ruts will remain for a long time, hampering travel for many.

This town may get a new summer hotel during 1926. There is a project for the construction of such a building outside of Danielson, but within the limits of the town, but the details are not ready for publication as yet.

PUTNAM

MASONS MAY TAKE OVER ARCANUM CLUB PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 9—Members of the Masonic order of this city are engaged in trying to organize a social club to take over the property of the Arcanum club on South Main street and to continue its use as a club house. They have almost enough members to guarantee the success of the project and it is believed that within a few days they will have secured enough additional members to justify them in leasing the property.

At a meeting of the Arcanum Club association held last evening, Judge M. H. Geissler outlined the proposition and offered a motion which was passed by a unanimous vote, authorizing and directing the trustees of the Arcanum association to lease the clubhouse to a Masonic club, if one should be formed, on the same terms that the Arcanum club had occupied it. At the end of two weeks, he said, it would be known definitely whether the plans for the proposed new organization would be successful and at his suggestion another meeting of the Arcanum association will be held Monday evening, Dec. 1, at which time the leasing plans can be consummated if the project works out, as it is hoped and believed that it will.

Nearly all the members of the Arcanum Club association were at the meeting last night and all of them were very much in favor of the disposition of thep roperty as presented by Judge Geissler. A majority of the stock is held by members of the Masonic fraternity and it was stated at the meeting that several shares had changed hands during the day. The price paid for these shares is believed to be a fair one both to the seller and the buyer.

W. E. Moss and R. E. Thurston were elected trustees of the Arcanum Club association to fill the vacancies on the board. The other members are George L. Padgett, George P. Miner and R. S. Bradford. It was decided to keep the club house open and heated and lighted until after the meeting on Dec. 21.

The members of the Masonic committee are working hard to put this new enterprise across. Like other fraternal organizations the Masons in all the large cities and many of the smaller ones have club features in connection with their lodges. The custom is growing more popular.

FUNERAL SERVICE HELD FOR MRS. MARTHA A. LAKE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 9—The burial of Mrs. Martha A. Lake, mother of Everett J. Lake, former governor of the state, took place this afternoon in the family plot at Woodstock Hill. The services were conducted by Rev. David P. Hatch, pastor of the Woodstock Congregational church and were attended by relatives and friends.

Mrs. Lake died very suddenly, Monday, at her home in Brookline, Mass., where she lives with her daughter, Miss Sarah Lake. She had been in ill health but the end came so suddenly that Ex-governor Lake was not able to reach there before she died. She was in her 80th year. Her husband was Thomas A. Lake who died in 1912. Prior to thirty years ago they lived in Putnam for a short time, but for many years the family resided in Woodstock where Everett Lake was born and where he passed his youth. He attended Woodstock Academy, then took the course at Worcester Tech. and afterwards went to Harvard Law school.

The students of the elementary schools of the town gave an entertainment at High school hall Tuesday evening, which the officers of the Parent-Teachers association, which sponsored it, declare was the most enjoyable and successful school entertainment ever given by pupils of the grade schools.

The first number on the program was a short sketch presented by Putnam Heights school, which is taught by Mrs. Arthur C. Davison, followed by a humorous sketch by the pupils of the East Putnam school, Mrs. Ralph Gibson teacher. A group of songs given by the children of the Sawyer district was greatly enjoyed. And to these teachers also is due much of the credit for the successful performance—Miss Fox, Miss Wilbur and Mrs. Packard.

Israel Putnam school made a decided hit with their musical program, the feature of which were the numbers given by the Ross twins.

They are only little tots, the children of Mr. and Mrs. George Ross, but they are accomplished musicians and were heartily encored by the audience. The band of the Israel Putnam school, under the leadership of Principal Merrill, was another feature that was appreciated.

To Miss Annie Ash, supervisor of music in the schools, is also entitled to credit for the very successful program. The evening ended with dancing to music by Miss Edmaer Guy and Miss Bessie Obletz.

The funeral of Louis Cloutier was held from St. Mary's church Tuesday morning and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Mr. Clouthier was born in St. Denine, Canada but had lived in Putnam for more than fifty years, and served for several terms as an alderman. Three sons, George of Brooklyn, N. Y., Alphonse and Arthur of Putnam and three daughters, Mrs. Fred Mathews of Hartford, Mrs. Alfred Gouthier and Mrs. Louis Chapdelaine Jr. of Putnam survive him. Mrs. Cloutier died about three years ago.

Miss Cecelia St. Jean has returned to her home after a three weeks visit with relatives in Worcester.

Mrs. Agnes Noe, who has been in Putnam for some time visiting Mrs. St. Jean has gone to Worcester to make her home.

Mrs. George L. Padgett and Miss Alice Stevens spent Wednesday in Boston.

Mrs. Marietta Halstead, of Bridgeport, has been visiting her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Halstead of South Woodstock.

Miss Minnie Wells of South Woodstock was the guest, on Tuesday, of friends in Putnam.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilman Graves and little son, Hobart, and Quinten Sanger, of Worcester, have been the recent guests of Mrs. Graves parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Sange, of South Woodstock.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Linde, of Bridgeport, have been the guests of Mrs. Linde's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Carlson, at South Woodstock.

Miss Nellie Bloxham, superintendent of the Day Kimball hospital, has returned to her duties after a month's vacation spent in New York and New Jersey.

Miss Evelyn Calhoon has been the guest of her parents on Woodstock avenue.

Robert T. Varnum, of Pomfret, is the guest of relatives at Newport.

Mrs. Grenville Brown and Miss Rosita Rhodes have returned to Providence after a stay of several months in Pomfret.

George F. Miles has returned to his home in Pomfret after a business trip of several weeks duration spent mostly in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Purdy have left Pomfret for New York for the winter.

Misses Helen and Elsa McKeever have gone to New York but will return later in the month for a short visit to Pomfret before sailing for Europe shortly after the first of January.

Mrs. Eleanor Hoppin left Pomfret a few days ago for New York where she will open her apartment for the winter.

Mrs. William Wyland has returned to her home in New York after a visit with her mother, Mrs. Lowell, and her sister, Miss Alice Lowell. Mrs. Wyland was one of the out of town guests whose belongings were swept away in the fire that destroyed Miss Mathewson's house on Thanksgiving day.

EAST WOODSTOCK

Miss Eleanor Lindeman, accompanied by a friend from Willimantic, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Lindeman.

Charles H. Potter, Sydney Stillings, George Potter and J. D. Sangey motored to Middletown and Hartford Monday. While in Middletown they called on Rev. and Mrs. Frank Potter.

Henry B. Cornings, a life long resident here, died last Friday morning at the Norwich sanitorium. He had been in poor health for several years.

Mr. Cornings was the only son of Samuel and Ann Lyon Cornings and was born June 22, 1860. For 40 years he resided near Woodstock Hill, coming here about 25 years ago. He was an expert janitor and paper hanger and for many years was employed by the Intervale Mills Co., of Quinebaug. He had done no active work for nearly foug years.

Mr. Cornings was a member of the Congregational church and for many years sang in the choir, both here and at the First Congregational church at Woodstock Hill. The funeral was held Saturday from undertaking parlors in Putnam and burial was in the family lot at Woodstock Hill. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Rollo Kilton, two nieces, Mrs. Faith Jenicks and Miss Constance Kilton, of Holyoke, Mass., and several cousins in Woodstock and Southbridge. Mrs. Cornings died Feb. 9, 1923.

A very enjoyable concert was given in the Congregational church last Friday evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society. About 175 attended.

The soloists were Miss Louise Lawton, soprano, and Miss Esther Rouse, violinist, the latter being the supervisor of music in the schools of the town. The W. A. Glee club also assisted. The accompanists were Alan Upham, Miss Constance Grigg and Fred Lawton. The committee in charge comprised Miss Ethel Upham, Mrs. H. D. Baker and Mrs. Daniel Dodge. Nearly $25 was added to the treasury of the society.

ROAD SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Seth N. Williams celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary, Saturday, by spending the day in Norwich.

The funeral of Mrs. Billings Wheeler was held from her late home on Saturday. Burial was in Evergreen cemetery.

Mrs. William Billings entertained dinner guests on Sunday.

Samuel Morgan has returned to Edmund Burdick's after a visit in Norwich.

Mrs. George Pendleton and Mrs. Clifford Stewart spent Monday with Mrs. Pendleton's daughter, Mrs. Charles Noyes Jr., of Westerly.

Mrs. Dwight Thompson is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Charles Hilliard, in North Stonington.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Wheeler, Sr., attended the Baptist church service inN oank Sunday evening.

Mrs. Longnecker and friends have returned to their home in New York after spending Thanksgiving at her summer home here.

William Burdick has returned to his home in Norwich after spending a few days with his brother, Edmund G. Burdick.

Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Williams, Mrs. Elliott Peabody and Miss Grace D. Wheeler were dinner guests of Mrs. Francis Noyes and daughter, Louise, on Sunday.

The children are practising for Christmas exercises, in church and in their school work.

An ideal woodland section is mentioned as the location.

At the request of owners of woodland property, attention is called at this time to a law prohibiting the cutting of Christmas trees without permission of the owner of the property. For several years past, since the motor car came into such general use, the raids on woodlands where Christmas trees are to be had have been heavy and represent a material loss to owners of the property, through the destruction of prospectively good timber.

Danielson members of Sphinx Temple, Mystic Shrine, will be at Hartford Friday evening to witness the initiation of a class of 100 candidates and to enjoy various special features arranged for the occasion.

Continued improvement in the condition of Miss Beatrice Maynard, injured in an automobile accident at Greene, R. I., Sunday, was noted Wednesday. Miss Maynard, whose life for a time was despaired of, is now able to take and retain nourishment.

Snappy weather during Wednesday raised the hopes of the icemen for a cold season that will give them an opportunity for harvesting.

A canvass of merchants to interest them in the American legion plan to develop an arrangement for an artistic decoration of Main street for stated occasions is progressing here this week.

Members of the Danielson Girls' club had a splendid time at a Christmas tree party at their rooms Tuesday evening, with an exchange of gifts, diversions and refreshments. The club has arranged for the distribution of gifts to needy families in Danielson at Christmas time, through an agency that has this matter in charge.

Attorney Louis A. Woisard is at East Killingly today, collecting personal taxes.

M. H. Berthiaume was in Boston on a business trip Wednesday.

For violation of a parking rule with which he is alleged to have been familiar, Francis Perkins, of Worcester, was fined $3 and actual costs, a total of $5.64, at a session of the town court Wednesday morning, Judge W. Fenner Woodward presiding.

The body of W. Frank Chapman, for many years a resident of Brooklyn, and who died at Hyde Park, Mass., was brought to Brooklyn, for burial.

A banner that has been awarded the Danielson Chautauqua organization for 1926, is to be put on display here. Danielson was one of the few towns in New England to be awarded a banner.

Henri C. Levertin, of Fall River, is spending a few days with friends in Danielson.

C. A. Hamilton, who has been ill, is now very much improved in health and attending to his usual duties.

The Gratt car, destroyed by fire during the early hours of Tuesday morning, on the state road leading to Wauregan, was towed here Wednesday. It is a complete wreck.

THE BUDGET MESSAGE

In his message to congress transmitting the budget for the year beginning with next July, President Coolidge shows that both the estimated receipts and expenditures are less than for the fiscal year that is now underway and that if the estimates are correct there should be a surplus for the year of more than $320,000,000. That sum may be larger and it may be smaller. There are the uncertainties quite the same as it has been necessary to revise the estimates for the year which began last July. Estimates at best are subject to change, and the change may be in either direction as is shown by the fact that the receipts for the current year as now indicated will be over $200,000,000 more than estimated while the expenditures will show an increase of more than $351,000,000, through the fiscal year will show a surplus of something like $262,000,000.

But it can be appreciated when the president says that "the outlook for the coming fiscal year, 1927, is most favorable, inasmuch as it indicates a surplus of just under a third of a billion with a slight decrease in both receipts, because of the anticipated change in the revenue act, and expenditures.

In the financial statements for the five years there is to be discerned the fruit of the economy which has been put into operation through the efforts of the administration, and the president again calls for the adoption of the ways and means committee report on tax reduction, at the same time reminding congress that it represents the product of efforts in debt reduction, tax reduction and economy. The president commits himself for the future when he says, "The effort for economy, however, must continue. So far as it lies within the power of the chief executive it will continue."

In a comprehensive manner the president sets forth the accomplishments and explains the budget for next year. He likewise calls for the viewing of the federal building programme in a sane manner with regard for efficiency and economy and recommends that proper housing for government departments be made at an expenditure of not over $10,000,000 a year. It is not a new recommendation but one which has been more and more recognized as needed during the past year.

It is an enlightening statement that is made concerning the reduction of the public debt, and its meaning cannot be mistaken when it is shown that the reduction has amounted to more than six billion dollars at an annual saving in interest of more than a quarter of a billion dollars. No better demonstration of the effectiveness of the policies of the administration and the soundness of the budget policy could be asked than is set forth in the budget message.

TURKEY AND MOSUL

Turkey, through its representative at the meeting of the council of the league of nations, has declared that it intends to do as it pleases, that it is not going to be guided or bound by the action of the league council, and that if it cannot have its own way in regard to Mosul it is going to resist and get out of the league.

Whether that is accepted as a threat or a promise it discloses the attitude of Turkey and its disposition concerning league authority. It doesn't know that the league is going to place Mosul under the Irak mandate which is being administered by Great Britain. It, however, thinks so, and it apparently hopes by its remonstrances to get certain members of the league to accept its view of the matter.

The league council has not as yet decided what it is going to do in regard to Mosul but it is fully conscious of the fact that the question has been referred to it and that it is duty bound to act. It has decided to accept the advice of the world court that it can with such authority as is vested in it, decide the issue. Turkey has done its best to frighten it out of such a course, but it is one of the times when the league is being put to an acid test and it cannot falter without seriously damaging its prestige. In the acceptance of the world court's decision, over the protest and threat by Turkey, progress is made. This preliminary decides nothing in regard to Mosul, but it paves the way for getting down to a consideration of the facts in the case and if Turkey has data that will influence a decision in its favor it should trot it out and make the best of the situation. If it sits back, insisting that there can be no such thing as a decision against its wishes, it may find, that it is seriously standing in its own light and prejudicing the matter in favor of the British.

Turkey as a member of the league and council has no privileges in excess of the others and it cannot be expected that an exception can be made for that country to the exclusion of the others. It indicates that it doesn't trust the council.

ANTHACITE AND SUBSTITUTES

There are those who are putting forth the claim that there is enough hard coal in the ground in Pennsylvania to supply the demands of those who need it for more than a century and a half. That being the case they are asking that they should be allowed to have it, and not be called upon to use bituminous and other substitutes.

It is well enough that such pleas should be made, and it is entirely possible that such persons are prepared to pay an increasing cost each year for their anthracite, or they may be prepared to pay emergency prices and not emit a groan, but they are in the decided minority. The common demand is for a reduction in the price of anthracite, a getting back nearer to normalcy. The coal consumer is not ready to shell out just because the miners are asking for more money but that is what those who are demanding their anthracite without substitutes for a short time are urging.

When it comes to dealing with coal there is the side of the public as well as the side of the miners that needs to come in for some consideration. The public has felt the burden of increased prices for years. It has felt it when it has been insisted that an increase in wages would not mean an increase in price. As long as there is a disposition to depend upon anthracite the public can expect to continue to bear that burden. When they show a disposition to resent such treatment and display a willingness to use something else, which in some instances is just as good if not better, they may expect to come in for some consideration. Anthracite will be available again but for the same reason that there are many who have entirely abandoned the use of it there will be more who will take a similar stand. For their own interests the public has a chance these days to do something for itself instead of standing meekly by and be forever bled for the other fellow, who, too often, is less deserving than many of the coal consuming public

CRROSSING PROTECTION

Following grade crossing accidents it is invariably the case that there is a demand for immediate action looking to the elimination of the particular crossing where the accident occurred. Concerning what is called the Brookland grossing in the District of Columbia the Washington Star says, in comment on a letter seeking its removal, that "The only present protection at this point is the usual crossing gate and bell" and it marvels that as the result of a ten hour test, when a count of traffic was taken, that no accident occurred.

When a crossing is protected by gates, operated by one stationed at such a point it is generally conceded that the highway users are pretty well protected, but when in addition there is a bell, or a light signal, there seems to be a double safeguard for the public.

But that is not all. The mere existence of a railroad crossing calls for the exercise of some care on the part of the highway user. There is nothing to marvel about that no fatalities occurred at that crossing when a test was being made, or in fact at any other time. If those who use it have any regard for themselves and give any consideration to the prevention of accidents they are going to give some heed to "safety first". If it is a bad crossing, it calls all the more for the exercise of care. We are yielding more and more to speed in the highways but the time hasn't come when there can be a sanctioning of an utter disregard for obstructions and obvious dangers any more than there can be for the rights of others.

The idea that all kinds of extravagant expenditures should be urged and advocated for the purpose of relieving the users of the highways of such care as they ought reasonably to assume cannot get endorsement. There are crossings which are much more dangerous than others, there are those which have no protection at all and there are eliminations which can, should and will be made, but that doesn't justify the claim that such responsibility as rests upon the shoulders of the individual to protect himself, or to respect the protection that is already provided for him, should be removed.

THE RIGHT MAN.

"Well," began the bachelor uncle who had not seen his pretty niece for some time, "have you put these young men out of their misery yet? Which did you pick out? I hope it is that dark, good looking young fellow who always inquired so feelingly about the state of my health as though he expected to see me totter into oblivion any second at my advanced age—I liked his eye!"

"Oh, you mean Davy," said the pretty niece obligingly. "No I couldn't possibly marry Davy—he hasn't enough money!"

"Well, I'll be jiggered!" gasped the bachelor uncle in great astonishment. "You cold-blooded little thing! Right out slap like that without any mincing of words or floral embroidery! Don't you know the proper procedure in a case like this? 'Davy?' you should say with a touch of sadness and then sigh and change the subject hastily, very hastily, as though you simply could not bear to discuss a topic tearing your very heartstrings. This would create the impression that in spite of your devotion to Davy life was simply too big for the two of you."

"But listen!" insisted the pretty niece a trifle hotly. "He gets just a ridiculous salary and after he paid the rent and food for fifteen days there would be nothing to do until the first of the month except chew shoestrings and gaze out hopefully over the polar waste for the rescue ship! I don't—"

"Oh, then you and Davy have really been talking it over!" the bachelor uncle remarked in a pleased fashion. "He's the best of the lot that are trailing around after you. Rents are cheaper on side streets and everybody eats too much, anyhow."

"I do believe," the pretty niece said in amazement, "that you think it would be all right for Davy and me to set up housekeeping! That's just like a man! What's the use of an expensive finishing school that teaches you how to be chummy with kings and ambassadors if you don't do anything with it except scrub the kitchen floor? And all our friends would drop us—can you see me driving up in a flivver to a lunch party in one of those gold-plated apartment houses all the girls I know live in? 'Come on,' one of them would say when I met her downtown, 'I'm going to meet Agatha for lunch at the Billionaire cafe and then we're going to the Follies matinee'—and I with 56 cents left in my purse after buying our frugal round steak and cabbage for dinner!"

"You'd be amazed," the bachelor uncle told her, "to know how many thousand girls right in this town have bought round steak instead of beef filet, made their own frocks and worn a hat two seasons and survived! Some of them with their husbands are now touring Europe or endowing universities and when their families come home to holiday dinners the footman opens the front door and a butler serves the turkey—"

"Huh," the pretty niece said, "you've been reading story books—I guess when Davy needed a new suit and couldn't get it he'd look at me thoughtfully and wonder if I really were worth it! I'd rather he unhanny right now and get it over with than drag it out and end in the divorce court later! I'm not going to have any man fall out of love with me because I'm too expensive and bills drive him crazy!"

"Of course, if you aren't very much in love with Davy it doesn't matter," said the bachelor uncle. "And I don't think you are from the logical way in which you have figured this out. Nobody in love is logical—they always are perfectly sure something is going to happen which will make things come out all right and that two and two really will make five if added correctly! The funny thing is that usually it does. If two persons really care for each other and are willing to do without a lot of the quite useless fripperies with which we surround ourselves, why extraordinary things happen, like salary raises and bargain dress sales and a dislike for hothouse fruits and orchids—and presidents of companies saying, hey, there's a young man to keep my eye on—but seeing you don't actually love him—say, are you crying?"

"You make me so mad!" the pretty niece sniffled. "I'm crazy about Davy and so's he—and it seems so impossible—do you really think we'd be wild to try it on what he gets now?"

"Well, I'm delighted to find out that you are engaged to him," the bachelor uncle said, without any more fuss. "It's great, and I know where you can rent a three-room flat real cheap—I own the building—say, don't choke me to death!" Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

John Paul Jones, the Great Sea Fighter

Day after day the little boy had played watching his father, the gardener, take care of the hedges and the flowers in the rich man's grounds. It was a pleasant occupation, chasing butterflies, smelling of roses and watching the buds unfold; a quiet, serene life without event—a very different life from the wild adventures, the roar of cannon and the shedding of blood that lay before the lad in the years to come. John Paul, the boy of the garden, grew into John Paul Jones, the great American sea captain who made the American Navy both respected and feared and who established a glowing example of reckless courage and patriotism.

When the lad was 13 his father took him to a merchant and made him an apprentice. Jean Macduff, his Highland Scotch mother, cried when her lad went away from the garden—but her name was Macduff, which is the name of one of Shakespeare's heroes, so she made herself brave and looked forward to seeing him come home. When he was 17 years old the boy, now strong and hardy, went to sea as second mate—and from then on he belonged to the world and not to his mother.

From that time his life was one of such adventure as the old-fashioned novels used to relate. He sailed to Africa on a ship that brought back slaves; his superior officers on one voyage died and the boy took command and steered to port; he wandered about America in poverty and thanked a rich man who helped him by taking the man's name "Jones."

Then came the American Revolution and his sailor blood took fire. He volunteered his services to the struggling colonies and on various ships destroyed much British shipping and made his name feared. At Whitehaven, where he had been an apprentice, he captured the forts. Then he defeated the British war vessel Drake and became "Commodore Jones," commanding several ships. With the Bon Homme Richard he took possession of the British Serapis after a great naval fight against superior odds. King Louis of France gave him a golden sword and high honors and Congress voted him a gold medal. America has made him one of her immortal heroes. He was buried in Paris and his grave, almost forgotten until 1905, when his body was brought to America and buried in Annapolis, where his tomb is an inspiration to every naval cadet.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Famous Crossroads of the World

One of the most important men in the United States is the traffic policeman at Washington and Meridian streets, Indianapolis. With one blast on his whistle he can send automobiles to Miami, Florida, or Seattle, Washington. At will he can turn his back on Florida and Seattle and route cars to New York or Los Angeles.

The Washington and Meridian streets intersection in Indianapolis is the crossroads of the main transcontinental highways of the United States.

"Mankind has many remarkable crossroads," said a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"There are crossroads of the sea at Singapore, Panama Canal, Hawaii, St. Paul Island and Colombo; crossroads of cable lines at Guam and the Azores; crossroads of history in Palestine; crossroads of intercourse between Europe and Asia at Constantinople. And now appear the crossroads of the air at Prague.

"Practically every great city has to be a geographic crossroads before it can be a great city. History counts Chicago only a fledgling crossroads but the Windy city lays claim to two records in fusing streams of men and metal; its 'train a minute' advertisement is a hint to its position as the world's greatest rail center, its feverish trade gives to the intersection of State and Madison streets the title of the 'busiest corner in the world.' Fifth avenue and 42nd street, New York, may make more people bump shoulders, but for thronging pedestrians and vehicles Chicago's most crowded crossroads stands alone.

"The spot where Braddock met defeat, where the extending avenues of British and French colonial progress collided, is today one of the most remarkable of the United States' crossroads. The town of Braddock, eight miles out of Pittsburgh, on the Monongahela river, is supposed to be the tonnage center of railway traffic. Iron ore comes in from the north and coal from West Virginia to feed the hungry blast furnaces. Six of the heavy freight-carrying railroads pass Braddock's front door.

"London questions the American claims to street traffic records, pointing to the Bank of England corner. Under this frowning, austere facade, vehicles and pedestrians in unending streams debouch from Cheapside, Theardneedle, Cornhill, Lombard, King William, Queen Victoria and Princess streets.

"So strictly immutable are the laws of geography that London's traffic whirlpool today is the same crossroads of England that Caesar's captains established two thousand years ago. The Romans entered England by the Thames and by the Kent coast. The old Kent road sought the most satisfactory crossing of the Thames which would be still within reach of the sea. 'Londinium' became the crossroads to the fertile midland. London is not only the crossroads of England today but also the intersection of many world streams of trade. Before the World war no important banking transaction took place on earth without the guardians of the financal crossroads of the world in London taking their toll. New York now pockets the poll tax for money's highroads.

"Probably the best investment in crossroads real estate is Paris. Geographers say Paris is the natural headquarters of mankind. That it is the inevitable crossroads of France is plain, for it commands the best route to England, Belgium, Germany, the Mediterranean and to the Loire. When all parts of the world have been developed to their natural capacity Paris they say, will hold sway. She has easy access to the Mediterranean and Africa through the break between the Alps and the Pyrenees. She is more convenient to the Atlantic than Germany and Italy. Vast Eurasia can come to her better than to England, Spain or Italy. She has better access to America than Japan or China. Paris' international atmosphere today is evidence that 'all roads lead to Paris,' not Rome.

"A good question for a geography final examination is: Where is the world's Zero Zero? Answer: The intersection of the equator, zero longitude which runs through Greenwich, England, is the arbitrary map crossroads of the world. This point lies in the gulf of Guinea, 400 miles off Acra, on the Gold Coast of Africa.

"When the Turk became traffic policeman and turned the 'stop' sign against Europe in Palestine, he produced one of the few traffic jams for which the world can give thanks. Vasco da Gamma went off on a detour and discovered the way around Africa and around Palestine, the most important crossroads of ancient history. And what was still worse for the Turk, Columbus started off in the opposite direction. Columbus' discovery of America broke the Ottoman monopoly. The busy isthmus between the Red Sea and the end of the Mediterranean has been the parade ground of conquerors—Cambyses, Alexander the Great, Pompey, Saladin, Richard the Lion Hearted, Allenby and many many others. No real empire could do without it. But the tonnage of the Panama Canal last year passed the Suez. The crossroads Columbus discovered has eclipsed that of history."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

George H. Tinkham, who is to introduce at the present session of congress a resolution urging President Coolige to take the initiative in calling a third Hague conference for the establishment of a permanent international court of justice, is credited with having fired the first American gun against the Austrians in the late war, he being with the Italy army at the time. Mr. Tinkham represents the 11th Massachusetts district in the house, and has done so since 1915. Previous to going to congress he had established a creditable record in local politics in Boston. Among his colleagues in the house he is known as a member prone to identify himself with minorities, struggling causes and ostracized elements of society. He does not run with the crowd, or let other persons do his thinking. Harvard educated him, both culturally and professionally.

Lucky Beggar!

"I'm hungry!" said the man at his elbow, and the banker gave him a coin with a sigh. For he was hungry, too, but feared to eat much more than crackers with a bowl of milk. Indigestion is a very real misfortune to those who haven't learned the simple means of avoiding it!

Dyspepsia! Indigestion! Sour stomach! These ailments are not caused by what you eat. Give your digestive system a chance, and it will function with almost any kind of food. Yes, doughnuts; baked beans; dishes cooked with onions. Stuart's dyspepsia tablets give your stomach the alkaline it needs—and that's all there is to it! Eat your fill, and don't fear acidity, gas, or distress in any form! Pleasant, harmless, and they do the work.

Full Box FREE!

Every druggist has Stuart's tablets, 25c and 60c. Or, a full box free if you write the F. A. Stuart Company, Dept. E, Marshall, Mich. Get a metal box of Stuart's for the pocket—and keep it filled! A new stomach for twenty-five cents.

Stories That Recall Others

A Close Shave

Dad is a Phi Beta Kappa man, so when Dick wanted to get into athletics he was given permission provided he kept up in his studies. They decided between them that 90 was the mark at which he must keep his work.

One day the young man came home crestfallen and said he guessed he would have to give up football. His father asked him why. He answered that he was slipping and that he had fallen below 90 in one subject. When his father learned that he had made 89 he said he guessed his son might stay with the team.

A Matter of Names

One cold night the doctor had reached home about midnight from his practice and immediately retired. He had been losing sleep lately on account of sickness in his own family and his need for sleep was imperative. At 1:30 the telephone bell rang. The call was urgent and despite the plea for the doctor's need of sleep it was pleaded that Jane was bad—she might die before the doctor got there.

After all a doctor is but human. This one came up with the groan of a martyr, swallowed a cup of hot coffee, jumped into his roadster and stepped on the gas. About six miles out he came to a farm house. He was cordially invited into a fire of logs but no move was made to take him to the room of the sick woman.

"Where is the patient?" he inquired.

The farmer didn't answer but took a lantern from the floor, threw his quid of tobacco into the fire and made for the door, saying:

"She's out here at the barn—"

"Who's at the barn?" asked the doctor.

"Jane is, and she's a mighty sick old mare, doc."

"Old mare! I'm no horse doctor, man."

"Aren't you Dr.——the veterinarian?"

"No, my name is——and I'm a real for sure doctor. Good night!"

STRESSES FISHERIES CONSERVATION NEEDS

Fish conservation is the keynote of the annual report of the commissioner of fisheries, Henry O'Malley, submitted to Secretary Hoover. An outstanding feature of the department's activities in this field was the fisheries conservation conference called by the secretary of commerce last May. This conference, which was attended by representatives of the fish commissions of the Atlantic and gulf states, laid the groundwork for a concerted effort to rehabilitate the fisheries of the Atlantic coast.

The public is at last coming to see the need of conservation, according to Commissioner O'Malley, who ascribes this public awakening to a realization of the serious depletion of some of the most important of our fisheries.

"The sturgeon have all but disappeared from both coastal and inland waters," says Mr. O'Malley. "The salmon of the Atlantic coast have been entirely exterminated in many streams, and in others only a small remnant of the former runs remains. In certain streams on the Pacific coast the salmon are much reduced. The halibut on both coasts have been distinctly reduced in numbers unquestionably as a result of overfishing. The shad and mullet of the east coast and the whitefishes and related forms of the great lakes have been effected. The production of oysters is much reduced."

Our fishery resources may be drawn upon freely so long as we do not endanger the future supply, the report declares. In order to make use of our fisheries and yet achieve their conservation, the angler should refrain from taking more fish than he can use; the commercial fishermen should minimize the destruction of immature, undersized, or unsalable fish; the manufacturer and distributor should guard against losses through careless practices; and all should unite to do everything possible to prevent the pollution by noxious materials of the waters which sustain our fisheries.

KINDERGARTENS IMPORTANT IN AMERICANIZATION

Need for kindergarten training in public schools is especially great in districts where families with children live in two or three rooms. In the kindergarten the children acquire habits of application, obedience, self-control, and cleanliness, and are prepared for the greater restrictions of the grade school, states David B. Corson, superintendent of public schools of Newark, N. J., in his annual report. Nor is its value only disciplinary and social. The children learn to work with their hands, they get a knowledge of form and color, memory and imagination are developed, their powers of observation and initiative trained, and their best and highest ambitions aroused. To the children of the foreign born the kindergarten is particularly beneficial. The reaction on the home is marked, and it is an important factor in Americanization.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

VERDICT FOR $2,000 FOR GROTON GIRL IN SUPERIOR COURT HERE

Five minutes more than four hours were occupied by the jury in the superior court here Wednesday afternoon before they brought in a verdict for the plaintiff to recover $3,000 damages in the suit brought against Leo Garrison, a traveling salesman of Boston, for injuries received by Nellie Cafaro, 7, of Poquonoc road, Groton, when she was struck by the automobile driven by Garrison on July 3, 1925. Suit was brought for $10,000 damages.

The injuries sustained by the little girl, it was shown in the suit, consisted largely of scalding from the hot water of the radiator which was broken when the Garrison car hit a truck after striking the girl.

The case went to the jury at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, after the morning hours of court had been occupied with the arguments before Judge C. L. Avery and the jury. Attorney G. C. Morgan opened the argument for the plaintiff and was followed by Attorneys C. V. James and A. M. Brown for the defendant. Attorney Morgan made the closing argument for the plaintiff, which was followed by Judge Avery's charge to the jury, which he concluded at 1 o'clock.

After lunch the jurymen retired to their room and were not heard from again in the court room until 6:05, although it was reported at the time that they could be heard in vigorous and heated discussion in the jury room. When their verdict was finally returned it was accepted by the court. Those on the jury were Wellington A. Miner, S. Clinton Rogers, Henry Gebrath, John Stoddard, Norwich; Frank R. Ayer, Preston; Frank C. Whiting, Griswold; Edward H. McCall, Jr., Lebanon; Jabez L. Bailey, Jerome Taylor, Bozrah; George W. Cole, Sprague; Birdsey G. Palmer and George W. Hatch, Voluntown.

EAST SIDE EAGER FOR CHRISTMAS PARTY

With Christmas drawing nearer each day, every one on the East Side is eagerly looking forward to the big Community Christmas party to be given by the Duwell club and the teachers of the Bishop school on the night of December 22.

When it was announced last week that this party was being arranged it was expected that the spirit of the East Side would no doubt make it a huge success, but no one, not even the strongest boosters of the party expected the enthusiasm that is being shown there since the first details of the party were made public. The committees have been approached from all sides by people, all eager to do something to make this affair one to be long remembered, some offering donations, while others have promised to give presents, some promising as high as half a dozen.

One enthusiastic East Sider has guaranteed to furnish the tree while a local electrical contractor has promised to furnish any necessary electrical decorations.

Arrangements are being made to entertain over 350 children, in addition to all the older folks who will all receive invitations during the coming week.

As was stated before no admission or any fees will be charged, the only thing asked of the people is that they donate at least one present apiece which may be left at one of the collecting stations which will be named next week. These presents will be collected and the teachers will sort them over and prepare them to be distributed by Santa Claus. In addition to these presents which the East Siders are asked to donate the Duwell club will furnish each child with a present, fruit and candy.

An elaborate programme which includes music by a well known orchestra, several vaudeville acts, singing of Christmas carols and recitations by some of the children is being arranged so that there will be no dull moments from the time the party starts until Santa Claus has departed.

The following comprises the committees: General committee: James Peduce, chairman, Leon Dix, secretary, Robert Woodmansee, treasurer, Miss Lillian Brewster, Miss Geraldine Enos, Miss Mary Tracy, Miss Ida Lillibridge, William E. Shanley and Frank Greene. Entertainment committee, Miss Lillian Brewster, Miss May Shields, Miss Mary Tracy, William Shanley, Leon Dix and Frank Greene. Decorating committee, Miss Lillian Brewster, Miss May Shields, Miss Mary Tracy, Miss Geraldine Enos, Miss Ida Lillibridge, Miss Foley, Miss Taft, Miss Gallup, Miss Hyman and Miss Ogden.

TELLS HEALTH ESSENTIALS IN KEEP FIT SERIES

A group of young men, assembled in the gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening, heard an instructive talk on health by Dr. Millard Knowlton, M. D., of Hartford, a member of the state board of health, after which they were shown a moving picture, entitled How Life Begins. The evening's programme opened at 8 o'clock with a moving picture reel entitled Swimming. This showed the various strokes and how to use them in swimming. The lecture was the second in a series of three on "Keeping Fit".

Following the picture Dr. Knowlton addressed the young men on health. We don't always appreciate health and what it means, said Dr Knowlton. Good health means prolonged life. According to statistics, a young man of today may expect to live seven years more than his father and 13 years more than his grandfather. The physical basis of health is the body we live in. Even with insufficient strength in childhood we may grow to strong and rugged manhood with proper care.

We need a good stomach, plenty of sleep and plenty of sunshine. We are just finding out what sunshine means in our lives. We have found out that all we need to cure rickets in babies is to get them out into the sunshine. We need the proper kinds of food, we need exercise of course and we need good air conditions.

We in this day are apt to get lazy. We are apt to house ourselves too closely and to coddle ourselves. The picture I am going to show you tonight is How Life Begins. The picture was then thrown on the screen and the group of young men were very much interested in this highly instructive film. It showed in detail the beginning and reproduction of life in plants and animals, from the lowest form of life to mammals.

EASTERN STAR CHAPTER ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

The annual meeting of Sachem Chapter, No. 57, O. E. S., was held Wednesday evening at 7:45 o'clock in Masonic Temple, when the election of officers for the ensuing year took place and the members were treated to a fine entertainment by four girls. Mrs. Ella Barber, retiring worthy matron, was in charge of the session. Mrs. Mollie G. Tracy was chosen worthy matron to serve for the ensuing year. Other officers elected were:

Worthy patron, John A. Ferguson; assistant matron, Mrs. Florence Maynard; secretary, Miss Lottie E. Williams; treasurer, Mrs. Sarah Wilson; conductress, Mrs. Minnie Bussey; assistant conductress, Mrs. Catherine Chappel. The appointive officers will be named at the special meeting to be held, Monday, Dec. 28, at the time the officers chosen Wednesday evening will be installed.

Following the election of officers the members adjourned to the banquet hall, where they were royally entertained by the Ballet Surprise Girls with tap and military dancing. The dances were executed in fine style by four girls, who have been playing at the Grotto Freak city. Refreshments of coffee and sandwiches were served.

DESCRIBES VARIED DUTIES OF THE PROBATE COURT

The Probate Court and its Functions was the topic of a most interesting and instructive talk by Judge of Probate Nelson J. Ayling at the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club, held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Judge Ayling in a brief space of time told the members of the Rotary club some of the complicated duties of that office dealing largely with the inheritance tax.

The probate court, said Judge Ayling, has many duties to perform in the settling of an estate. The court has jurisdiction over the insane, it appoints guardians and trustees and has many other duties to perform but the chief among these is the settling of an estate where many of the securities of the deceased are railroad securities and those of corporations operating in more than one state. The inheritance tax, a tax that few people thoroughly understand, is something that makes a problem for all probate courts.

The tax problem is one of the greatest that the court has to contend with in the settling of an estate. Twelve to fifteen years ago there was no inheritance tax imposed by the federal government and there were only a few of the states that imposed one. The inheritance tax is an old institution dating back to the days of the Roman empire. Pennsylvania was the first state to pass the inheritance tax law and then was followed by other states until Florida and the District of Columbia are the only two places where there is no inheritance tax. Perhaps this is one reason why so many people are taking up their residence in Florida and investing in Florida property. The federal inheritance tax was passed during the war as an emergency law but it has not been repealed.

In my opinion the inheritance tax is a pernicious tax and I don't think the government or state should resort to taking money that is left to widows and children. There is no great credit in it as far as I can see. The government does not take an inheritance tax from estates under $50,000 but the tax on estates over that amount varies according to a sliding scale until on some estates as much as 30 per cent of the estate is taken in taxes by the federal government and state. I know of one case where it amounted to 40 per cent.

Various states interpret the law in different ways until it becomes a very complicated matter to settle estates, especially if the decedent leaves railroad securities. With railroad securities every state through which that particular railroad passes through can levy a tax on the estate and the states are very avaricious in taxing the estates. Each state is trying to grab as big a slice of the estate as possible. Then there is the matter of transferring the stock to the heirs. This entails no small amount of work before it can be accomplished. The transfer agencies send out questionnaires that cover practically every conceivable angle and it is months before the data can be furnished and the transfer made.

There is absolutely no uniformity of taxation although 18 of the states have agreed upon reciprocity but the other states have refused to come in to the agreement. To come down to facts the inheritance tax has never been proved constitutional. The laws are made with little thought and they go through so that everyone is paying taxes directly or indirectly whether they think so or not. The tax gathering problem is one of the biggest problems that the government has to deal with today. They are continually checking up the probate courts the same as the banks to see that things are as they should be.

Judge Ayling's talk was received with interested attention and proved entertaining as well as instructive.

Another speaker at the luncheon was Lewis M. Carpenter, of the Ashland Cotton Co., of Jewett City, who spoke on the manufacture of the wood pulp artificial silk called rayon. Mr. Carpenter said:

There is one contribution which the present generation has made to the textile industry. It is possibly one of the most noteworthy events of all times because it marks an addition to the hitherto select group of textile materials. More important still, the new fibre is the first successful man-made fibre. Following out the methods of the silk worm in far away China, who eats the mulberry leaves and expels the gluttonous mass in the form of a thread, which is automatically wound into a cocoon, man has by ingenuity and chemical study manufactured an artificial silk using the basis of the silk worm as his example. Artificial silk or rayon dates back to the original Chardoonet patent in 1884 but its commercial utilization has taken place within the last quarter of a century. It is most significant to note that its major development has been concentrated within the past three to five years. Rayon is conceded by textile manufacturers and the general public as a fibre that is here to stay. It will not replace cotton, wool or silk but will strengthen its position as one of the major textile fibres; it will always be more valuable as an auxiliary material than as a self-fibre. It is unfair to regard it as a competitor. It has been and will prove still more to be so as times goes on an important adjunct. It has done more during the recent textile depression in this country to boost sale of textiles than any other single factor. It has enabled the production of attractive novelties at a price within the reach of the average pocketbook. It could have made no greater or more timely contribution than this to the industry.

The United States during the year 1924 manufactured out of 141,164,400 lbs. world wide production, 38,750,000 lbs., leading all countries in the manufacture of this fibre. Rayon or artificial silk is a lustrous, continuous thread formed by dissolving cellulose, either as cotton linters or wood pulp in a suitable solution, passing this through a spinning machine, cellidifying the product in a fixed bath, combining and twisting the resulting filaments into a thread. This thread depending upon the size of denier thread one may require. In 75 denier the filaments will be very much less than in the 100 denier and in the 150 denier the filaments would be practically twice as many as in the 75 denier. This is finally transferred into the type package that is to be delivered, practically all rayon plants preferring to deliver in skein form.

Most of the experimental work in mills to my knowledge has been confined to the coarser deniers, namely 150 and 300; the larger part of this production being filling combinations on both plain and fancy looms. Bedspreads in this connection were one of the most successful constructions woven. The market has become so flooded with Rayon filling weaves that competition has really become as keen on these constructions as the cotton mills experience on their regular line of cotton fabrics.

Our own experiments at the Ashland Cotton Co., have not been confined entirely to filling constructions. We have gone one step further than any other cotton mill we know of, in weaving this fibre in the warp of very fine denier; one of our constructions being made from 75 denier which is equal to 82s count cotton yarn, containing 148 of these fine 75 denier threads to an inch of cloth. It is our opinion that a much more satisfactory fabric will in time be developed by the use of this material in the warp.

In conclusion the wearing qualities of Rayon made garments has been demonstrated to be of better wearing quality than silk; will wash practically as well as cotton. It is within the reach of every person's means and satisfies that something in woman that the word rayon means, namely sun or a shining ray.

Mr. Carpenter showed various samples of the goods that are manufactured by the Ashland Cotton Co., at Jewett City.

President J. Nelson Weymouth presided at the meeting and Dr. Hugh B Campbell acted as song leader. There were several guests at the meeting and there were the usual musical numbers. Matters of routine were considered by the meeting which closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

GRANGE SHOWS EFFECTS OF TOO MUCH FOOTBALL IN GAME WITH STEAMROLLERS

BOSTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Harold "Red" Grange and his Chicago Bears were crushed by the superior Providence Steamrollers, 9 to 6, today in Boston's first professional football game, which drew a crowd that did not exceed 15,000.

Grange appeared tired and listless and when he retired from the game, after playing exactly 44 minutes, he was booed by a few hundred of spectators. The now wealthy Wheaton ice man played safety first football during his stay in the game.

He carried the ball but five times, all on end runs, for a total yardage of 13. He ran the single punt he caught back eight yards, attempted three forward passes, one of which was intercepted, and made two unimpressive tackles. This action did not take more than four minutes of his time. During the remaining forty minutes of his stay in the game, Grange stood back beside the defensive quarterback, far from the scrimmage line.

Grange's team mates were outplayed, outfought and out-thought by the powerful Steamrollers, a team composed of former eastern college stars, with the exceptions of Miller and Crowley, two of Notre Dame's "four horsemen" of 1924. "Cy" Wentworth, former New Hampshire university halfback who played left halfback for the Steamrollers was the most impressive performer on the field.

The Providence professionals scored early in the first period when Maloney, a Steamroller end, fell on a blocked Chicago punt which rolled over the goal line, the referee ruling it a safety. Just before the half ended, Garvey recovered a bad pass on the Bears' 20 yard line and raced through the entire Chicago team, behind exceptional interference for a touchdown. Maloney kicked the ninth point for the Steamrollers.

The lone Chicago score came in the final period when Bryon who replaced Grange at the end of the third quarter, caught a forward thrown by Britton and raced 20 yards to cross the Steamroller's goal line. Sternaman failed to kick the extra point.

After the game Grange and his team mates hustled into their street clothes and raced to the Back Bay station to board the 5:05 p. m. train for Pittsburgh where the Bears are booked to play tomorrow.

The defeat was the first suffered by the Bears since Grange joined the professionals in Chicago on Thanksgiving day. Since then Grange and the Bears have played in St. Louis, Philadelphia, New York and Washington.

NATIONAL LEAGUE UNABLE TO AGREE ON SCHEDULE

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Failure of the National league to agree today on a tentative schedule which would assure closing the season prior to Oct. 3, one week later than the date in the American, contributed a new problem for discussion at the joint meeting of the two circuits tomorrow.

Although President John A. Heydler held out hope that the schedule committee might find it possible to complete the campaign on Sept. 29, he indicated that geographical and anti-Sunday baseball conditions faced by the older circuit pointed strongly to an October closing date.

President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club and Mr. Heydler constitute the schedule committee, into whose hands the problem was committed. The former presented strong arguments today against shortening the season purely with the aim of avoiding unsettled weather in the world series. He offered a report showing that under October closing dates, postponements due to rain had been necessary in only three post season series in 23 years. The delays were experinced in 1909, 1911 and 1925.

"As far as th encroachment of football on the baseball season is concerned," said Mr. Heydler, "we feel that few if any major gridiron contests are played during the world series. Furthermore, the meeting could see no reason why so old established a game as major league ball should step aside for football."

Delay of players in reporting to training camps, discussed at length yesterday, came in for another generous inning this afternoon. Reduction in salary is the league's plan for curbing the practice, recommendation of which will be presented at tomorrow's joint meeting, Mr. Heydler said.

The magnates examined the core of the new ball, which Mr. Heydler asserted had been brought forth by manufacturers without authorization of the league. This sphere differs from the old one only in that the rubber coating of the cork center has been applied in two sections instead of one. That it was not responsible for any reduction in home run hitting during the last half of the season is indicated, Mr. Heydler maintained, by the large number of circuit blows made in the world series games in Pittsburgh.

Prior to its use there, the ball was in play in other cities only during the last two weeks of the season, he said. The league looked upon the new product as an improvement, since the double layer of rubber prevented the cork from slipping out of the center, and there was no hint, Mr. Heydler said, that the clubs would not accept the ball next season.

Prior to its meeting, the league conducted a memorial service at which tributes were paid to the memories of 18 prominent baseball figures who died during the last year, including Charles H. Ebbets and E. J. McKeever Brooklyn president and vice president, and Christy Mathewson.

Speakers also eulogized Julius Fleischman, a director of the Cincinnati club, John B. Day and John M. Ward, former New York officials, Marvin Goodwin, former St. Louis and Cincinnati pitcher, and Sam Crane, of New York, and William Phelon, of Cincinnati, baseball writers.

BOGOLJUBOW WINS TITLE IN INTERNATIONAL CHESS

MOSCOW, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The international chess tournament ended today, with E. Bogoljubow, of Russia, in first place. Dr. Emanuel Lasker, Germany, took second, J. R. Capablanca, Cuba, third, and F. J. Marshall, United States, fourth.

Two adjourned games from yesterday's final round were played and decided the standing of the men. Gruenfeld, Austria, drew with Saemisch, Germany, and Yates, England, defeated Subarew, Russia.

Columbia Wrestling Schedule

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Seven dual meets, in addition to the intercollegiate championships in March, have been arranged for Columbia's wrestling team this winter.

The schedule follows: Dec. 12, Columbia at Brooklyn Poly; Jan 12, Pennsylvania; 16, Harvard; Feb. 13, Williams; 20, Syracuse; 27, Cornell at Ithaca; March 6, Army at West Point; March 13 and 20, Intercollegiates at Penn State.

CRUSADE AGAINST ATHLETES IN MOVIES IS STARTED

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 9—(AP)—A national crusade against the signing of athletes for dramatic roles in motion pictures was begun here today by R. E. Woodhull, Dover, N. J., president of the Motion Picture Owners of America, when a resolution backed by him was adopted by the Ohio members of the association.

The resolution contained a recommendation to Will H. Hayes, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., that both he and his organization cooperate with us in this endeavor to purge the motion picture industry of such conditions which are wholly detrimental to producers and distributors as well as to theatre owners."

Mr. Woodhull cited the signing of Red Grange for motion picture roles and the appearance of Jack Dempsey on the screen.

"There is only one chance in a thousand of an athlete making good in drama," Woodhull said.

He claimed the motion picture public does not support productions featuring athletes and that it is the exhibitor who suffers financially.

FINNEGAN IS REINSTATED BY N. Y. COMMISSION

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Dick (Honeyboy) Finnegan, Boston featherweight, was reinstated by the state athletic commission today upon the recommendation of the Pennsylvania boxing commission so he can fulfill an engagement Dec. 18. Finnegan satisfied the Pennsylvania officials that his contract for a fight on that date was signed prior to his suspension and the ban was lifted for that one day only.

Sid Terris, New York lightweight, filed a challenge to fight Rocky Kansas of Buffalo, new lightweight champion, but the commission refused to accept it until Kansas has been given six months to defend his title. If, in that time, Kansas has not risked his crown, the commission intimated it would accept the challenge and instruct Kansas to open negotiations with Terris.

John Pesek, Chicago wrestler, was reinstated. Pesek failed to appear at a wrestling show in this city after he had signed a contract to work and his suspension followed. Reinstatements also were given to Frank Dane of Washington, a manager and Patsy Amato, a boxer.

PARIS TAKES GRANGE AS IDEAL AMERICAN ATHLETE

PARIS, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Harold ("Red") Grange is replacing Babe Ruth as the average Frenchman's idea of American premier athlete, owing to the extraordinary publicity given to Grange's football fortunes and great earnings as a professional in the Paris newspapers.

Le Matin tomorrow will print on the front page a sketch of Grange's football career, illustrated by a large figure wearing in a football head gear supposed to represent the Illinois star in the flesh. The article contains this comment:

"Red" Grange is dimming Babe Ruth's star as America's best paid athlete. He has beaten the Bambino's record both in the importance of his fame and in the rapidity in which he achieved it."

OVER 100 CANDIDATES OUT FOR YALE TRACK TEAM

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 9—(AP)—More than 100 Yale track candidates attended a meeting in Osborne hall tonight, opening the winter track season at the university. The men were addressed by John T. Blossom, graduate director of athletics at Yale Coach George Connors and Captain Bayes Norton.

Declaring that the "mediocre showing" of the Yale football team this fall was due to a spirit of overconfidence Mr. Blossom called attention to the fact that Princeton was rising in athletic prominence and that Yale "will have to fight hard to make an even break in the major sports championships this year, the Tigers already having put football in the bag."

The Orange and Black have excellent prospects for baseball, Mr. Blossom said, and have a strong nucleus back in college from the track team which defeated the Elis last year.

MECHANICSVILLE FIVE HAS EXTENSIVE BASKETBALL SLATE

The Mechanicsville Athletic association has completed its organization of a basketball team and will play their first game with Killingly High at Danielson, December 18. Other games already booked include Plainfield High, on December 22.; Woodstock Academy, on December 30, and Headquarters' company team of Putnam, on January 5. Other games are wanted by this High school Alumni team and managers of teams interested should address Manager Leonard Johnson, Mechanicsville.

The lineup includes besides Manager Johnson, Captain Sidney King, Charles Murphy, Walter Knight, Perry Barber, Henry Bugbee, Elbert Woodis, William Johnson and William McCoy.

The team plays only amateur basketball rules.

LAJOIE BECOMES COMMISSIONER IN O. AND P. LEAGUE

CLEVELAND, Dec. 9—(AP)—Napoleon Lajoie, former manager and second baseman of the Cleveland Americans, tonight accepted the position of commissioner of the Ohio and Pennsylvania baseball league, effective immediately. Lajoie will function in the same capacity as Commissioner Landis in the big leagues.

PICTURE PRODUCER REVEALS GRANGE'S CONTRACT

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Prompted by intimations that he did not have a genuine contract with Red Grange calling for the football star to receive $200,000 for his first motion picture, E. W. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Pictures corporation, today issued a statement detailing the agreement he drew up with Grange and the latter's manager, C. C. Pyle.

"I have signed contracts with Grange and Pyle under which they will receive a percentage for Grange's first picture. The minimum amount of which is guaranteed to be not less than $300,000," said Mr. Shallenberger.

"Pending completion of the first picture, however, a check for $300,000, made out to Grange, is to be held in escrow, together with the original signed contracts, in a Chicago bank. As a guarantee of our good faith. Grange has been paid $10,000 in advance but he will not get the entire amount until the contract is fulfilled."

COVELESKIE MOST VALUABLE PITCHER IN AM. LEAGUE

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Stanley Coveleskie of the Washington Senators and not Herb Pennock of the Yankees was the most effective pitcher in the American league in the 1925 season, it was announced tonight at league headquarters.

Official averages recently published gave the New York southpaw the honor, but a re-checking showed that Coveleskie is credited with the lowest percentage of earned runs, the margin being by one one hundredth of an earned run per game.

Corrected figures give Pennock an earned run per game percentage of 2.85 plus, while the Washington star allowed but 2.84 earned runs per game.

JEWETT CITY PLAYS AT BALTIC FRIDAY NIGHT

Local fandom will witness a brilliant match when Jewett City and Baltic clash in a basketball game on the new Baltic court in St. Jean's hall, Baltic on Friday evening. Jewett City will be represented by such men as Joe Faber, Prevost, Mills, Jim Murphy, Blake, Barry, Benjamin and the famous Emerald flash, Mondi Normandin.

Baltic will also put a fast aggregation on the floor. The guard positions will be held down by Captain R. Robertaille and Swanson. Red Charron will hold down the center of the stage as usual, the forward berths will be capably filled by Coady, W. Robertaille and Provencher. The fans are promised plenty of sensational basketball when these well known stars perform tomorrow night. The spare moments will be filled by a fast preliminary between the Baltic Bantams and the Y. M. C. A. five of Norwich.

HASKELL INDIANS TO PLAY IN LOS ANGELES, DEC. 19TH

LAWRENCE, Kansas, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Coach Dick Hanley of Haskell Institute announced today that the Haskell authorities had signed a contract to play the Los Angeles Athletic club eleven, Saturday, December 19, at Los Angeles, Cal. The Indian football team had partly disbanded for the year, but Coach Hanley said he would hold two work outs daily until the day of the game. The redskins will depart for the west December 14.

BUCKY HARRIS TO PILOT TEAM FOR CORAL GABLES

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Stanley (Bucky) Harris, manager of the Washington club, American League champions, announced today he had signed a contract for $7,000 to manage a team in the Florida winter league representing Coral Gables.

JEWETT CITY TAKES MEASURE OF WILLIMANTIC WEST ENDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 9—After five years of inactivity the borough was treated to its first basketball game tonight when before a crowd of 500 the Jewett City five swamped the Willimantic West Ends 56 to 34. The game was fast and the baskets were many, Harry Mills and Bud Benjamin led the attack for the home team with 11 and 9 baskets respectively. The summary:

KREUZ IS RULED TO BE INELIGIBLE TO PLAY AT PENN

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The athletic council of the University of Pennsylvania today decided that Al S. Kreuz, star fullback will be ineligible to play on the football team next year because of the three year resident rule.

Kreuz played football one year at Kalamazoo college in Michigan. He will be able to play on the Penn baseball team next spring as his three years' residence expires next June. He will be graduated in 1927. Kreuz was a candidate for football captain next year until his eligibility status came up.

DUNN ASKS $150,000 FOR EARNSHAW, A PITCHING ACE

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Joe McCarthy, new manager of William Wrigley's Chicago Cubs, struck a snag today in his first attempt to obtain material to bolster his team.

Backed by Wrigley's "million-dollar" check book, McCarthy started his player hunt by button-holding Jack Dunn, Baltimore pilot.

"How much do you want for George Earnshaw?"

"One hundred and fifty thousand dollars and war tax," shouted Dunn.

McCarthy did not pursue the subject when he had recovered from the shock.

FLAHERTY-M'CULLUN BOUT AT NEW LONDON POSTPONED

Owing to the illness of Martin Flaherty who was to meet Sailor McCullun in the main bout of the boxing show at the Lyceum theatre in New London Wednesday evening, the bout was postponed until next Wednesday night. Flaherty was taken ill Tuesday but expected to go on but his physicians advised against saying that he was in no condition to fight.

FRANKIE BUSCH TO FIGHT AT BOSTON THIS EVENING

Frankie Busch local heavyweight will meet Jack Elliott of England tonight in the preliminary bout to the Tiger Flowers-Moody fight at Boston. Busch is in exceptionally fine condition and is up against one of the best boys he has ever met in Elliott and a victory is a long step forward in his pugilistic career.

BAN JOHNSON GIVEN $10,000 SALARY RAISE AND EXTENSION OF CONTRACT

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Ban Johnson, who a year ago was stripped of much of his powers and threatened with being deposed from the presidency of the American league for attacking the rule of Commissioner Landis, has staged a modern "return from Elba."

This seemed apparent to baseball observers tonight after the same American league club owners who a year ago disciplined their chief had voted to add five years to Johnon's term of office, extending his contract from 1930 to 1935, and giving him an increase of $10,000 in salary which boosts his annual figure to $40,000.

Johnson's old contract, under which he received $30,000 a year, was torn up by the magnates, who approved by unanimous vote a new one embodying the additional term in office and increased salary. A year ago at Chicago, representatives of seven of the eight league clubs voted to discipline their president, only Philip D. Ball of St. Louis, supporting him.

While there was no indication that this unexpected expression of confidence in Johnson itself marked a return to a belligerent condition of major league affairs, fuel for controversy was provided when the American league owners took issue today with the use of resin by pitchers and favoring the playing of intersectional games on holidays.

American leaguers frowned on both ideas, opposing any modification of the present pitchers' rules and expressing their opinion that the present plan of sectional opponents meeting on holiday dates is satisfactory.

Both issues are expected to come before the joint major league session tomorrow with Commissioner Landis. At the same session it is predicted that the majors will move to extend the present optional player limit from eight to fifteen in spite of apparent minor league opposition to this plan including a threat by the three big "AA" leagues—Pacific coast, American association and International—that they would withdraw from the National Minor League association rather than accept an increased limit on the number of players that the majors may "farm out."

The American league took another important step when it voted to close its 1926 season on September 26, a week earlier than this year, to enable an earlier start for the world's series. The opening is slated for April 13 and the schedule details will be mapped out at a meeting in Washington, D. C., in February.

Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit club, who replaced Johnson as the American league's representative on the advisory council last year, was re-elected vice president of the league. The 1926 board of directors is composed of Philip D. Ball, St. Louis; E. S. Barnard, Cleveland; Jacob Ruppert, New York, and Robert Quinn, Boston.

Yale Soccer Captain Elected

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 9—(AP)—William F. Preston, of Granville Center Mass., was elected captain of Yale's soccer team for next fall tonight. He prepared for Yale at Worcester academy, played fullback on the freshman football team and has been a varsity fullback for two years.

Daniel N. Brown, of New York city, was announced as the winner of the sophomore competition for the soccer managership, and after managing the freshman soccer team next year, will manage the varsity team in his senior year. William E. Boardman, of Schenectady, N. Y., will manage the varsity team next year.

Taftville All-Stars Challenge

Red Burelle's All Stars of Taftville would like to book games with any fast teams in Eastern Conn. especially the Service Battery of Danielson, North Grosvenordale, Baltic, Jewett City and Stonington. The All Stars have been strengthened by the addition of Jimmy Murphy, with Peltier and St. Germain as his running mates, Gordon, Brown, and Eccleston as guards, Ludlow and Flynn, centers. Any teams wishing games write to Red Burelle, Taftville, Ct. Box 12.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

The Detroit management is said to have under consideration several deals calculated to make the Tigers a much more ferocious lot than last season.

No fewer than 50 major league players and managers are reported to be spending the "winter of our discontent" in playing the real estate game in Florida.

Providence fans in their time have had a taste of nearly every class of professional baseball, from a National League team down to a minor outfit of the second class rating.

Away back in 1884 Charlie Sweeney of the Providence National League team struck out 19 of the Boston team in a 9-inning game, a feat which still stands as a record in the major league.

In the early days of professional baseball there was no uniformity in the size or shape of the bats. Some of the players used sticks 50 inches long and only two inches in diameter.

If present plans go through, Fred Brainard, who played second base for the Baltimore International League champions last year, will pilot the Wichita Falls club in the Texas League next season.

New York baseball fans will not be able to recognize the Giants when they line up for the opening next spring, if Manager McGraw carries out his rumored intention to make a thorough overhauling of his once invincible team.

Only three players of last year's team are said to be sure of their berths with the New York Giants next season. One of these is the veteran George Kelly, who has done nearly everything but pitch and catch, for John McGraw during the past two seasons.

According to gossip around the American association circuit the Louisville team is among the baseball outfits likely to receive a shake-up before the birds begin their chirping in the spring. Although the Colonels won the pennant in their league, Owner Knebelkamp is said to have been very much chagrined over their showing in the post - season series with the Baltimore Orioles and the San Francisco Seals. Hence the prospective housecleaning.

When it's Christmas Eve—and the glistening tree is ready and trimmed with gifts and toys—when the peace and good cheer of Christmas are almost here

—have a Camel!

WHEN the happy work of Christmas Eve is done. And the clock calls the approach of midnight. When the gifts and toys are in their place on the children's tree—have a Camel!

For to those who think of others there is no other gift like Camel. Camel makes every great day greater, increases the gladness in giving, makes life's anticipations brighter. Before Camel, no cigarette ever was so good. Camels are made of such choice tobaccos, are so skilfully blended, that they never tire the taste, or leave a cigaretty after-taste. Into the making of this one cigarette goes all of the skill of the largest tobacco organization in the world.

So on this Christmas Eve, when your work for others is done—when you're too glad for sleep with thoughts of tomorrow's happiness, oh, then—taste the smoke that every day brings contentment to so many millions. Know the mellowest mildness, the most rich and fragrant taste that ever was put into a cigarette.

Have a Camel!

Camels represent the utmost in cigarette quality. The choicest of Turkish and domestic tobaccos are blended into Camels by master blenders and the finest of French cigarette paper is made especially for them. Our highest wish, if you do not yet know Camel quality, is that you try them. We invite you to compare Camels with any cigarette made at any price.

It is well to remember your few closest friends with a supply of Camels for Christmas Day and the days to come. Get your Camel cartons now and then they will be ready!

ZONING COMMISSIONERS ISSUE BUILDING PERMITS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 9.—Twenty-four building permits have been issued to the Pawcatuck residents of the town of Stonington by Pawcatuck Zoning Commissioners George R. McKenna, John F. Gallagher and William S. Crandall, covering the period from September when zoning became operative up to the first of December. The permits have averaged eight a month, but by far the greater activity in construction work has been at the latter end of the three months' period.

By action of the last session of the Connecticut legislature authority was granted the Pawcatuck Fire district to enact such legislation and to vote its adoption as would tend to decrease the fire hazards of the Pawcatuck Fire district and promote and maintain valuations in the various sections of the restricted areas for residential, business and manufacturing areas. Garages lead all others in construction permits granted, there being a total of eight granted for that purpose, alterations to present buildings came next and entirely new construction last.

The Pawcatuck zoning commissioners have held sessions in the engineers' rooms of the P. S. Barber Hose house on Liberty street and building permits for Pawcatuck at the present time are filed there. The following is a complete list of the permits granted:

October 14. Fred V. Burdick, 5 Noyes avenue, erect a grape arbor, 12 feet by 9 feet at 5 Noyes avenue.

November 4. Mrs. A. Bouvin, Pawcatuck avenue, wooden one-car garage, 10 feet by 14 feet on Pawcatuck avenue.

September 30. Ralph B. Catlin, 6 Mechanic street, erect an electric baseball scoreboard 7 feet by 7 feet at 6 Mechanic street, for world series baseball 1925.

November 4. George P. Cella, 79 Liberty street, erect dwelling at 79 Liberty street. William S. Crandall, 34 Stanton street, wooden shed or one story building 20 feet by 40 feet at 34 Stanton street.

October 14, Frank Furness, West Broad street, addition to wooden building, "Elm Tree Inn," and portion devoted to garage purposes to be constructed of fireproof material. Peter a garage at 49 Moss street. Lafayette L. Nardone, contractor.

18. John Fishwick, 49 Moss street, Foster, 40 Mechanic street, wood shed, 6 feet by 8 feet at 40 Mechanic street.

September 30. Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Harvey, 52 William street, two-cat garage, 20 feet by 18 feet at 52 William street, wooden frame, fireproof shingles.

Nov. 25. Robert Hughes, 47 Liberty street, wooden garage, 10 feet by 16 feet at 47 Liberty street.

September 30. Charles R. Johnson, 177 West Broad street, alter dwelling house at 177 West Broad street, raise one story addition, 8 feet by 10 feet for bathroom.

October 14. Mr. and Mrs. James Jordan, 44 Liberty street, two-story addition, 25 feet by 14 feet to wooden frame building at 44 Liberty street, tin roof. James O. Lynch, contractor. Mary LaPresto, 55 Mechanic street, addition to wooden frame building at 55 Mechanic street. Charles Langworthy, Mechanic street, R. F. D., No. 2, addition, 10 feet by 18 feet to garage and an addition to barn on Mechanic street.

October 28. Frank LoPresto, 31 Liberty street, two-car garage, 20 feet by 20 feet, wooden construction at 31 Liberty street.

November 25. Abram Lewis, 41 Palmer street, erect a two-story wooden family house, 24 feet by 30 feet, at 24 William street, and two-car garage, 20 feet by 18 feet.

November 18. Mrs. Mary E. Martin, 40 William street, one-car wooden garage, 8 feet by 13 feet by 13 feet at 40 William street. Aniello Haterese, 98 Pleasant street, Westerly, addition to store, 18 feet by 27 feet at 47 Liberty street.

October 7. Frederick S. Opie, 39 Summer street, Westerly, a chimney at rear of store, 25 West Broad street.

November 18. Edward Parker, Prospect street, alter building at corner of Prospect and Palmer streets.

October 7. Jeremiah A. Shea, 50 Garden street, alter wooden frame building at 50 Garden street, by addition 12 feet by 13 feet, one story. George A. Surber, Huntington avenue, one-story wooden frame building, 20 feet by 20 feet on Huntington avenue.

September 16. Henry P. Walton, 34 Morgan street, dwelling at 34 Morgan street.

October 28. Henry P. Walton, 34 Morgan street, addition to Walton block at 32 and 32 West Broad street.

Enrico Pinardi of 14 Hobart street, and Mrs. Marie Catto, widow of Jacob Catto, who has made her home with her daughters, Mrs. Arthur Fraquelli, and Mrs. Angelo Parnigoni, in Westerly, are listed among Westerly people to return to Italy. They left Westerly, Wednesday, for New York city, from which city the Italian Line steamship "Duilio," sails on Saturday, for Naples and Genoa.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly Town Clerk appears the following transfers:

Dec. 8. The Seventh-day Baptist Missionary Society to Willard F. Hall a certain lot or parcel of land with buildings and improvements, near Dunn's Corners and on the north side of the Boston Post road.

9. John L. Breen and Thomas L. Breen to Clarence H. Hebb of Watch Hill a certain lot or parcel of land at Watch Hill on the east side of Pasadena avenue.

Kenneth Hoxie, son of George Hoxie of Watch Hill, who was injured several days ago at a Pawcatuck garage when a flying piece of iron struck his glasses and the glass cut his eye, continues to recover slowly at the Westerly Hospital where he was taken for treatment. Rosie Sanataro, struck by a piece of steel while working for the New Haven railroad, on Wednesday morning, was taken to the Westerly Hospital for treatment.

The Westerly Cycle club members, with rooms in the Briggs block, on Main street, are making preparations for the observance of their annual ladies' night which will probably be held some time next month. Members of the committee of arrangements are Bernard J. Christie, Byron A. Hartson, James McGarvie, John Shiller, Frank Collins and Charles Bowe.

The iron rails which were formerly used by the Ashaway-Westerly electric car line on Railroad avenue, before the service was discontinued, and which were torn up when sewer main drains were installed on Railroad avenue and left ni the gutter at the side of the highway, were cut in two by an acetylene torch on Monday and are now being carted away for junk.

Dr. Michael H. Scanlon and Charles P. Eccleston were Westerly visitors in Boston Wednesday.

L. W. Kravetz, of Atlantic, Mass., is a Westerly visitor from Boston. He has charge of the erection of large billboard construction at the Westerly station of the New Haven road.

Judge Herbert W. Rathbun was a Westerly business caller in Boston on Wednesday morning.

Dr. Thurman P. Maine, of North Stonington, was a Westerly business caller on Wednesday afternoon.

Hugh A. Dunning left Westerly, Wednesday morning, for Boston, where with others of the New England Hardware Dealers' association, a conference was held with the secretary of the organization for the annual exhibition which will be held in Mechanics hall, Boston, next February.

Workmen in the employ of the New Haven road were engaged in filling the holes which have appeared in the surface of the driveways about the railroad station and caused by the heavy rainfall of passed days and automobile traffic.

Since the Westerly chamber of commerce meeting on Tuesday night the Pullman company has been heard from, in answer to a request that a Pullman car be named "Westerly." On Wednesday the reply received stated that a car named "Westerly" had been in the company's service since 1907.

Attorney John J. Hunn of Westerly was a Norwich visitor on Wednesday afternoon.

MYSTIC

The annual meeting of the altar chapter of St. Mark's Episcopal church was held Monday evening at the home of Miss Lucy B. Kellogg on Willow street. Reports for the year were read and accepted and routine business transacted. Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: Directress, Miss Lucy B. Kellogg; secretary, Miss M. Josephine Dickinson; treasurer, Miss Annie M. Packer.

Charles Stafford, of Hartford, is in town this week having been called here by the serious illness of his father, who is at the home of his son, George W. Stafford of Broadway extension. Mr. Stafford is 87 years of age and has been a resident here for many years.

Repairs are being made to the house of Judge Frank H. Hinckley, on Broadway. The house is being shingled and the chimney has been rebuilt.

A car load of brick arrived at the freight station Tuesday for the Cottrell Lumber Co. Two car loads of coal are there for a local dealer.

The wood trimming of the new post office received a coat of paint this week.

Leon Richmond has been at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mattie Richmond, for a few days. He will leave soon for Daytona, Fla., to spend the winter.

Mrs. Fannie Kent has been ill with a severe grip cold for more than a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth N. Williams, Miss Grace D. Wheeler, and Mrs. Elliott Peabody of the Road district, were recent dinner guests of Mrs. Frances Noyes and daughter.

Raymond Perry is visiting his sister, Mrs. Archie Holmes in Providence.

Miss Annie Rathbun is visiting her brother, Judge Herbert W. Rathbun, in Westerly.

Mrs. Stephen Jennings of Quiambaug, gave a birthday party for Brother Albert Dibble on Saturday. Relatives and friends were present and the evening was one of pleasure for all.

Some one watching a freight train passing through here Tuesday counted 20 carloads of coal and later saw five carloads on another train, thus proving that some coal is passing through this section of the country.

Henry Chesbro, Elwood Lathrop and William Noyes have been working on a house for Daniel Larkin, at Quonochontaug, this week.

Several from here attended the variety supper, given in the conference room, of the Old Mystic church, Wednesday evening.

Members of Mystic Grange are giving their services in erecting a platform, in the main hall, to be used Saturday evening, when Groton grange will visit the grange and entertain them with a play.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hobart have moved from Mystic to Noank.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church meet with Mrs. Schmidt this (Thursday) afternoon.

Wednesday evening members of A. C. Latham camp, Sons of Veterans, motored to Clinton and attended a district meeting.

AUTOMOTIVE TECHNICAL ... COLLEGE AT WOLVERHAMPTON

To supply trained engineers, especially for the automobile, motor cycle and bicycle industries, a technical college will be established at Wolverhampton, England. The total cost of construction will be about $600,000, of which one-third is to be paid by the county of Stafford and the remaining two-thirds by the city of Wolverhampton. The buildings will be divided into five sections: (1) General and administrative, (2) biology, (3) commercial, (4) domestic, and (5) technical, comprising engineering production with workshops and drawing offices, material section, including chemistry, metallurgy, and general science subjects, mechanical and electrical engineering, and building construction. It is intended to make provision for evening as well as day students.—Oscar F. Brown, American vice consul.

Dr. and Mrs. Young of Springfield, were callers at Groton Long Point recently.

Alden Brocky was a caller in Westerly.

George Moore is visiting in Ledyard for a few days.

Frank Fulton has returned from New Haven.

About seven new cottages will be built at Groton Long Point this winter. Many new docks will have to be built at the Point on account of the storms.

A child residing on Elm street had an unexpected and undesirable experience Tuesday, while he was playing in the yard. He fell into a cesspool and was nearly submerged, when a neighbor seeing his predicament, came to his rescue and probably saved his life.

Billy Fitch, little grandson of Capt. and Mrs. Frank Fitch, is confined to his home because of illness.

The Chatter club basketball team defeated the Groton Whirlwinds by a score of 31 to 23, at Liberty Hall, on Tuesday night, before a large crowd. Noank played a nice passing game and had the ball most of the time in the first half. The score in the first half was Groton 7 and Noank 19.

In the last half Groton came back strong and outplayed Noank. Ebbett played a fine game getting 10 baskets. Jordan caged 7 baskets for Groton. The lineups: Noank, Ebbett rf, Willis lf, Adams c, Bogue rg, Pray lg. Groton, Jordan lf, Grant rf, Rock c, Burns lg, Moore lg.

Miss Anna Robertson has returned to New London after a visit at her home here.

Girl Still Missing

James H. Corbett, Utica, N. Y., manufacturer, refuses to believe that his daughter, Alice M. Corbett, 20, is dead, despite the fact that she has been missing from Northampton, Mass., where she was a student in Smith College, since Nov. 13. He is appealing to the newspapers to help him in his search. Miss Corbett is 5 feet, 7 inches tall, weighs 113 pounds, has dark bobbed hair, grey eyes. When she disappeared she is thought to have been wearing a yellow slicker, brown hat and henna colored dress. Mr. Corbett's address is 714 Rutger Street, Utica, N. Y., where any information may be sent. He has offered a reward of $1,000 for information leading to her discovery.

STONINGTON

Mrs. Phillip Olmviller, Mrs. Joseph F. Joseph and Miss Lena Chesebro were visitors in New London Monday.

Mrs. Anne M. Daboll entertained the Monday evening whist club at her home on Main street.

S. E. Stewart and Samuel Helm were in Westerly Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Styles Jordan, of Providence, were callers here Wednesday.

Frank Francis of Stonington, who recently was granted a chiropracter's certificate, is now practicing in Pawtucket, R. I.

The Stonington ambulance fee is due and payable in December of this year. Cards to this effect will soon be issued. Last year the townspeople gave freely to this worthy cause and it is expected they will do the same this season. During the year the corps has answered many calls.

Paul Schepis has been under a doctor's care since his unfortunate accident in his car at Westerly Sunday afternoon.

Harry S. Babcock, who has been visiting his mother, returned to New York Tuesday.

Clarence H. ...rton, a New Haven attorney, and one who recently had charge of one side of the Olympia Macri-Bagnano case, in that city, died there Sunday. Attorney Barton was always a summer resident at Groton Long Point and Lord's Point.

Miss Kathleen Nolan, of New London, was a caller here Wednesday.

The Altna M. Jagger, east bound was in the harbor Tuesday.

The Workers' conference of the Congregational church school was held Wednesday afternoon, in the chapel.

A non-payment of taxes case, which was to have been tried, Monday, in the town court, was postponed until Monday, Dec. 14th.

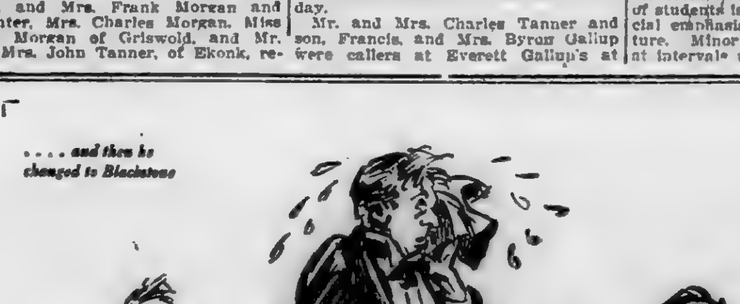
The Y. P. S. of the Congregational church will hold a "Watch Night" New Year's Eve, with appropriate games and music.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Frank Sfreddo, age 34, died at his home on Furnace avenue early Wednesday morning. During the night he complained of not feeling well and about four o'clock in the morning asked his wife to get him a drink of water. She went to the kitchen for the water and when she returned he was dead. He kept a meat market and slaughter house and it is thought he injured himself while lifting a heavy hog a few days ago. Besides his wife, Mrs. Victoria Sfreddo, he leaves seven small children. He is also survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sfreddo of Stafford Springs.

The play "Old Acre Folk" given by the senior class of the Stafford high school, at Warren Memorial hall on Wednesday evening proved to be a fine drawing card. Almost every seat in the house was taken when the curtain was raised for the first act. The play was well cast and the young people showed a good deal of dramatic ability. The proceeds will go to swell the Washington trip fund.

The cast of characters was as follows: The Deacon, Maurice Murray; the deacon's wife, Agnes Denniston; the deacon's daughter, Josephine Fraser; the deacon's son, Wilfred Haight; the squire, Bartholomew Tripoli; the squire's housekeeper, Marion Segg; the country boy, Peter Checkovich; the stranger, Mark Quinn; the constable, George Senechal.



Perhaps no woman ever said this to a man—aloud. But thousands have wished they could.

"If you men were as particular about your own appearance—"

"You don't admire a woman with an unhealthy skin. It's no more becoming to a man. And no more excusable.

"A smooth, healthy skin is important to everyone. Not just because it's attractive, but because it's the surest sign of a healthy body.

"Every woman knows that the worst enemy of her complexion is faulty elimination—constipation. Poisons form in sluggish intestines, are picked up by the blood and are carried to the great covering of the body—the skin. They poison the skin cells, causing facial blemishes, muddy skin and sallowness. These poisons are the most common cause of personal unattractiveness."

Nujol Corrects Constipation in Nature's Way

No one needs to have a sallow, muddy skin. The cause is simple; the remedy is in your own hands. Proper diet, exercise, surface cleanliness and—above all—internal cleanliness. Nujol prevents the formation of intestinal poisons that ruin your health and good looks.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. Nujol simply makes up for a deficiency—temporary or chronic—in the supply of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular elimination, without overtaxing the intestinal muscles.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. To insure internal cleanliness it should be taken regularly in accordance with the directions on each bottle. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

Start taking Nujol today. Very soon you will notice an improvement in your looks. And you can look forward to the health and attractiveness that are the natural right of everybody.

GUARDS HEALTH OF TEACHERS IN TRAINING

To assure strong and healthy teachers in public schools of Connecticut all applicants for admission to normal schools are required to the state board of education to pass a physical examination, and normal schools are authorized to exclude from attendance those who do not measure up to the required standard. In addition, at the New Britain State Normal school, each student shortly after entering is given a thorough orthopedic and physical examination. This is primarily for corrective work, and the condition of students is constantly watched special emphasis being placed upon posture. Minor defects are checked up at intervals until remedied.

. . . . and then he changed to Blackstone

Words fail us

(But facts don't)

There are grand old words which have been used to describe cigars so often that all the meaning has been squeezed out of them. Such words as: "fragrant"—"mellow"—"aromatic"—"delightful"—"mild"—"exactly right." So we say this:

You can't get choicer 100% Havana filler than that in a Blackstone Londres—taste it! You can't get more perfectly-made cigars—note particularly the free draft, the even burning, the long, firm ash. And Blackstone's fast sales assure fresh cigars wherever you go. Nearly half of all Blackstones are bought 5 or 10 at a time in the sealed pocket packs. That's how dependably good our smoking friends find their Blackstones.

Blackstone was a fine cigar 52 years ago. It was even finer 10 years ago. It is at its very best today!

She Could Never Have Done It With Piles!

Bless the American girl who has glorified all the sports! She makes a pretty picture in the water, and is a plucky swimmer, too. Piles are unthinkable for active women. If you have them, you ought to know this simple thing to do!

At any hour or moment that you have the least distress or discomfort from piles, use a simple Pyramid pile suppository—and go happily on your way! The worst hemorrhoids, even bleeding and badly protruding piles respond at once to the soothing suppository applied in perfect privacy. But bear the name in mind; Pyramid is the one every druggist has, usually the only one he will sell his patrons. Pyramid is marvelous. Why suffer another single half-hour with painful piles?

Sixty cents the box, the world around. But for proof, a free box plainly wrapped will be sent those who write Pyramid Drug Co., 200 Pyramid Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

JEWETT CITY

STILL HOLDING ANTIQUE GLASS RUM FLAGON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 9.—At the recent auction held at the one time home of the late Dr. J. Byron Sweet, there were among the large number of attendants, many buyers and appraisers of antique, and old time furniture. Ancient pieces of queer house furnishings, books which went to press in another age, with various models of crude mechanical and agricultural tools, went to make up a collection, to be found only in the old country farmhouses where many generations have lived and passed on.

Among the articles not offered for public sale, and still held by the administrator, is a great glass rum flagon. The capacity is something over 5 gallons, and in its manufacture there is to be seen the suggestion that the artisan who blew this great flask, must have heard his bellows roar, away back in the early years of the 18th century. The late William Lord, remembered this ancient jug, as lying, dust covered, back under the cob-webbed rafters of the unfinished attic, long before his grandfather died.

During the early evening, the coal man and the weather dispenser hooked up together with the result that the mercury took a quick start for the cypher. Pinched pedestrians hurried home to open the furnace drafts and prod the kitchen range.

The A. and P. managers of this district held a grand "Back Room" meeting at the A. & P main street store, in the Maynard block, Wednesday evening. George Rochelleu one of the local managers was host, with Louis Cyr, the Soule street man, a close second. There were 17 present, including the managers from Norwich, Moosup, Danielson, Baltic, Taftville and Jewett City. High priced cigars were a part of the program, which served to enliven the general conversation, relative to the best interests of the business.

Everybody remembers "Hec" LeClaire as Jerry in "Am I Intruding," last year's show by the Quinebaug Camps association. This year he is cast as Salamander, the colored chauffeur in "The Path Across the Hill." This play by the Quinebaug Camps Association bids fair to rival if not surpass last year's success.

The cast includes the following players: Helena Griffin, Valeda Boule, Verna Raille, Ethelle Parkhurst, Mrs. Prentice Chase, John Le Claire, Hector Le Claire, Tyler Gilbert, William Marshall and Herbert Thompson. The play is under the direction of Norman E. Parkhurst.

A Popular Immigrant

Thousands of square miles of America are devoid of native game such as quail, ruffed grouse, prairie chicken, wild turkey and woodcock, and always will be because farming and other "civilizing" influences have destroyed natural food and cover.

The native game is best where it can come back but in many places it is hopeless because requisite conditions can not be restored. Here is where some foreign species come in to stop the gap and furnish shooting where no shooting would be.

One of the principal subjects to be considered at the coming conference of the American Game Protective association, will be the importation of European partridge into the United States. One of the speakers, J. Carlton Hunting of Prestwood, Great Missenden, Bucks, England, will describe the methods of trapping wild partridges in Czecho-Slovakia, the handling of the birds in transport, and proper methods of stocking and preserving.

Tom Nash, head of the game propagation work in Ohio, experienced for many years game keeper for Hungarian noblemen, and on English estates will discuss methods by which the European partridge may be successfully bred and reared on game farms.

The successful introduction and establishment of this foreign game bird in Oregon will be reported on by William L. Finley, prominent naturalist and member of the Oregon State Game commission.

Game breeders, commissioners and sportsmen of the country are deeply interested in learning everything possible about this new game bird, commonly called the Hungarian partridge, which promises to fill an important place in the future game supply of America.

His last resort quick cure way to treat exposure colds

ACHING BACK AND LEGS GIVEN QUICK RELIEF

Policeman tells how to get rid of aches after exposure to wet and cold

A policeman, who has been a member of the Philadelphia police department for twenty-six years, writes that he has found a way to get rid quickly of the ache and stiffness caused by over-exercise and exposure.

"I do a lot of walking and am exposed to all kinds of weather," he says. "When all other remedies fail, Sloan's Liniment gives me relief for pains in the back and legs." (Name and address of writer on request.)

Sloan's gets results because it doesn't just deaden the pain—it gets at the cause.

Just pat it on gently, without rubbing. Right to the place that hurts, it sends a healing tide of fresh, new blood. Stiff muscles limber up, the aching stops, and you are as fit as ever in no time. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35c.

OUR FOREIGN BORN POPULATION

Only one-half of the languages available in the United States were requisitioned when the Police Department of New York faced a volley of questions fired in an unknown tongue at the head of an officer in charge of one of the New York police stations of that city. French, Spanish, Italian, Turkish, Greek, Russian, Polish and a limited number of the Oriental languages were "tried out" but officers of the force or such aides as they were able to pick up among the people of the neighborhood, much to the amusement of the American woman whose questions had thus set the American tower of Babel buzzing, for the dozen languages utilized in trying to answer her questions are less than one-half of those represented by the 14 million foreign born population of the United States.

Just how many representives of the principal languages of the world are to be found among these 14 million persons of foreign birth now residing in the United States is difficult to say, says the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, since the new quinquennial census of population recently authorized by Congress has not given us a record as to population conditions in 1925. The latest detailed information upon this subject of birthplace and language of the 14 million foreign born population of the United States is presented by the census of 1920. It shows the number of persons of foreign birth by principal countries among those living in the United States in 1920 as follows: Germany 1,686,000; Italy 1,610,000; Russia, 1,400,000; Canada 1,196,000; Poland 1,140,000; Ireland 1,037,000; England 813,000; Scotland 256,000. The Scandinavian States as a group are represented by slightly more than 1,000,000 persons, Sweden, having more than one-half of this total. The number of natives of France, Netherlands, Belgium and Switzerland is comparatively small, those of France being but 153,000, exclusive of Alsace-Lorraine, Netherlands 132,000, and Belgium 82,000.

Most of the foreign born population is found in the northern half of the United States, the number seeking homes in the south forming an extremely small percentage of the total of the 14,000,000 persons of foreign birth living in the United States in 1920, the number in the entire south being less than 1,000,000. The bulk of the remaining 13,000,000 are found in New England, the Middle Atlantic states, the Upper Mississippi Valley, and the Pacific coast. In the Middle Atlantic states, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, the number is approximately 5,000,000; in the upper Mississippi valley another 6,000,000; in New England 2,000,000 and in the Mountain states and Pacific frontage about one-half million. A census statement showing the "mother tongue" of the 13,712,000 foreign born population of the United States in 1920 puts the number in the "Germanic" group at 2,499,000; Scandinavian, 1,195,000; Latin and Greek, 2,991,000; Slavic and Lettic, 2,460,000; English and Celtic, 3,008,000.

Continent Drift

Are America and Europe drifting farther apart? This question, asked in a geological and not in a political sense, was set before the meeting of the British association by Prof. J. W. Gregory, who proposed to answer it by the use of wireless time signals for the determination of variations in longitude. Kept up for a few years, he said, these would afford a conclusive test of the theory recently advanced by Wegener, that the Atlantic Ocean was produced by the drifting apart of the American on one side and Europe on the other.

The reality of a drifting motion of whole continents is now seriously accepted by many geologists. Recent investigations have shown that beneath the uppermost 60 miles or so of rocky crust, there is a semi-molten layer of magma or lava overlying the earth's solid central core, and on this viscid mass the continental blocks find blocks more or less uncertain footing. The idea of a drift also receives support from the rather suggestive reciprocity of the projections and indentations of the Atlantic shores of America, and the Euro-African coastline.

Prof. Gregory was not inclined, however, to admit the rapidity of drift postulated by the Wegener theory, and it is to get a critical test of this disputed question that he proposed the use of radio time signals.

How Thirsty Is a Tree?

The inventor of galvanized iron ash cans probably never would have thought to offer his product to the United States department of agriculture as equipment for a forest laboratory. Yet at the field station on Mount Manitou, operated by the Rocky mountain forest experiment station, a battery of some 40 or 50 of these cans has been installed this year.

The cans, says C. G. Bates, director of the station, are the principal equipment in an important transpiration test, or, in other words, a study of the relative thirstiness of different tree species in various soils. Four soils are used, in which are planted, 10 or 12 to a can, the greater part of 700 one-year-old seedling. The size of the test made ash cans the most economical sort of flower pot to use.

The measure of amount of moisture the little trees require, the cans are sealed in around the seedlings, leaving only a small covered opening where water in measured quantities can be poured in. The dampness or dryness of the soil in the cans may be estimated at any time by weight. No water can escape except by transpiration through the leaves. Seedings will be pulled up, weighed, and photographed, from time to time during the next four years. About 40 plants of each species are expected to be "in at the finish" in 1929.

WEARY OF MOROCCO, SPAIN MUST KEEP ON

Senor Cambo, Catalan leader recently addressed a letter to Gen. Primo de Rivera, calling upon him to seize the opportunity of the Spanish victory at Ajdir to retire from Morocco. The principal reason Senor Cambo advances is that Spain is dead tired of the burden in Morocco and that until it is removed the economic development of Spain must be retarded. The prestige of both the state and the army is now satisfied, urges Senor Cambo, and it is time to think of the people.

Gen. Primo de Rivera in reply admits that the burden in Morocco is grievous and that the nation would be well rid of it. He asserts that he has done all he could in that direction, but Spain's signature attached to treaties binds her. He sees no other solution than to bear the burden while striving to lessen it in every way. In 1917, Primo de Rivera, then military governor of Cadiz made a sensational speech, which was summed up in the phrase: "Ceuta for Gibraltar and to hell with the rest of Morocco." Now Primo de Rivera, dictator, finds it impossible to practice what he then preached.

"I shall recommend Dare's Mentha Pepsin wherever I go. It was a great drawback to me in my profession when I suffered with attacks of indigestion which I did for seven years. I felt greatly relieved after taking the first bottle and by the time I had finished the third I can gladly say that I was cured of my old enemy."—Mary E. Burton (Professional Nurse), Bridgeton, N. J.

The great popularity of Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a pleasant to take elixir, is due to the fact that no matter how long you have had gastritis or dyspepsia or indigestion or whatever you call your stubborn stomach agony, that it will start to help you the very first tablespoonful you take.

"For twenty years I have been a constant sufferer with indigestion and severe attacks of gas.

"Recently I suffered from an unusually severe attack and was in bed for ten days. I tried Dare's Mentha Pepsin and in two days I was up and around, the misery and pain vanished and I shall ever thank the day when my husband read of this wonderful remedy.

"I am better than I have been for years." Yours, Mrs. Ada Weast, McGaheysville, Va.

WORKERS APPROVE NEW SAFETY BRAKE

George Hannauer, one of the vice presidents of the New York Central system, has given to transportation what is known in modern railroading as the Hannauer car retarder.

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen didn't think much of the Hannauer car retarder at first. Its adoption meant the laying off of a lot of members who had been riding freight cars.

At least, that was the way it was taken, though it didn't mean that at all, since every man who wished it found other railroad employment fully as remunerative and far safer.

But the brotherhood asked the Interstate commerce commission to look into the matter, and more than once. Finally one of the higher officials of the commission came out to Gibson, saw and was conquered by the car retarder.

"You fellows are wrong," he said to the brotherhood men. "Hannauer isn't cutting out jobs—he's cutting out danger—he's saving lives!"

And since then the brotherhood has passed resolutions of approval of the Hannauer retarder and feels kindly toward the railroad which put its members into the towers to operate the device.—J. Olin Howe in Success Magazine.

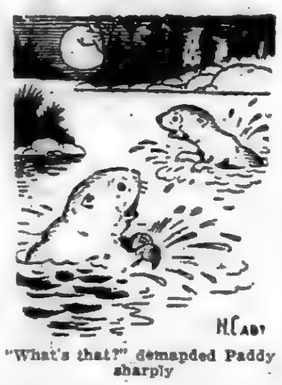
Billy Mink Brings News

Some folk delight in news that's bad,
But as for me it makes me sad.
—Mother West Wind.

Paddy the Beaver was very well satisfied with the way things were going. It was a great task, a very great task, to build that new dam to make the new pond up there in the swamp, but when the work was finished it would be worth all it had cost. Already that pond was becoming of some size, and it was with real regret that Paddy had left it with the others to come down to their home that evening. But they had worked hard all day and Paddy knew that without rest they could not continue to work.

Despite his satisfaction with the way the work had progressed, Paddy had an uneasy feeling that night. He didn't know just what it meant. He knew of no reason for feeling uneasy. Just the same he did, and he couldn't sleep as soundly as Mrs. Beaver and their two children did. He kept waking up. Finally, quite late in the night, he went out of the house for a swim in the moonlight. Almost at once he saw a small, dark head moving swiftly where the moonlight lay across the pond. "Hello, Billy Mink!" said he.

The brown head turned toward him.



"What's that?" demanded Paddy sharply

"Hello, Paddy," said he. "For goodness sake, what are you doing here, while your new pond is running away?"

"What's that?" demanded Paddy sharply. "What do you mean by saying that my new pond is running away?"

"Just what I say," retorted Billy. "Your new pond is running away, and soon there won't be any pond at all. I've just come from there and there wasn't much pond when I life. There are two great holes in your new dam."

Paddy's eyes glowed with anger. "One hole might be from an accident, but two holes means that they were made by some one. Who was it, Billy Mink?"

"Don't ask me," replied Billy. "There was no one about when I was there. At least, I didn't see any one, and there is nothing the matter with my eyes that I know of."

"Did you see any tracks of these two-legged creatures called men?" demanded Paddy.

"No," replied Billy. "I didn't see any track of them and I didn't smell the horried man scent. I don't believe one has been about up there."

"Did you come straight down from there?" demanded Paddy.

Billy nodded. "As straight as I could and follow the Laughing Brook," said he.

Without another word Paddy turned and headed for his new home. "Where are you bound?" asked Billy Mink. "I should think you would go up there and fix those holes," he added.

Paddy said nothing, but dived and disappeared. Billy knew that that dive took Paddy right down to the entrance to his house, the entrance far down under water. Billy waited. But he didn't have to wait long. Presently Paddy appeared. Then Mrs. Paddy appeared. Then one of the nearly-grown children appeared. Then another appeared. Paddy led the way and with the others swimming behind him went straight to where the Laughing Brook enters that pond. Without stopping an instant they started up the Laughing Brook and they were in a hurry. Yes, sir, they were in a hurry. Any one could have seen that.

Billy Mink grinned. "Paddy might have at least thanked me for bringing him the news," thought he. "But I suppose he was so upset he quite forgot to be polite. Oh, well, it doesn't matter. I wonder if Paddy suesses who did tear those holes in that dam? It was the work of Buster Bear or I don't know signs when I see them. Rather rough on Paddy and his family. But then, making that pond out of that swamp will be rough on some folks. It does seem as if what is good for one in this world is bound to be bad for some one else. It does so. I wonder if Buster Bear will tear that dam open again if Paddy fixes it. And I wonder who put him up to it? I don't believe he would have thought of such a thing all by himself. Still, you never can tell what Buster Bear will do."

STORRS HENS SLACKEN IN THEIR FIFTH WEEK

Production in the Storrs Egg Laying contest for the fifth week showed a slight reduction over last week's lay, with the 1,400 pullets shelling out a total of 3,449 eggs, or slightly over thirty-five per cent. While this is thirty-five eggs less than the total production for the fourth week, it represents a gain of 186 eggs over the corresponding week a year ago.

During the fifth week, White Leghorns dropped in production from nearly forty-seven per cent. to approximately forty-three per cent. All other breeds increased in production for the same period. With the Leghorns representing close to one-half the 1,400 birds entered in the laying trial, however, their slump was more than enough to offset the gain made by all other breeds, and the reduction already mentioned for the week was the result. Apparently the damp and disagreeable weather of the past few days slowed production in the Leghorns, though all other breeds showed an increase in spite of it.

Rhode Island Reds and White Leghorns monopolized the four positions on this week's honor roll, with a pen of Reds owned by John Z. LaBelle from Ballouville, Conn., first with a production of fifty-seven eggs. A pen of White Leghorns owned by Mount Hope Farm from Williamstown, Mass. was second best for the week with a lay of fifty-four eggs. A Vermont pen of Rhode Island Reds, entered by R. D. Sergant of East Ryegate, was third with a production of fifty-two eggs. A pen of White Leghorns entered by R. W. Coleman from Medina, N. Y., followed closely behind with a lay of fifty-one eggs.

There were several changes among the leading pens. In the White Wyandotte class, the entry of Thomas H Matteson from Davisville, R. I., went up into first place, displacing the Winlay White Wyandottes from Mystic, Conn. In the Rhode Island Red class, the entry of R. D. Sargent from East Ryegate, Vt., went into fourth position, displacing the pen owned by Fred H Sampson of Springfield Mass In the White Leghorn class, the entry of R. W. Coleman from Medina, N. Y went into third position, displacing the birds owned by W. E. Atkinson from Wallingford, Conn. In the same class, Ruehle's Sunnyside Farm Leghorns from Pleasant View, N. DAUGHTER, SPOUSE, MOTHER, HONORED AT ST. PATRICK'S

Joining the millions of Roman Catholics throughout the world, three large congregations at St. Patrick's church Tuesday, commemorated the Feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary. All the ceremonials accentuated the belief in the singular priviliege by which, through the merits of Christ, the Mother of Christ was preserved from the taint of original sin from the very moment she was conceived. All altar hangings and vestments were purest white, with gold, the altar flowers being white. All the services impressed veneration of the Blessed Virgin, as model daughter, spouse and mother.

Low mass at 5 o'clock, for the accommodation of those obliged to be at their work early, was read by Rev. Myles P. Galvin. At 7, the regular week-day parish mass was read by Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May.

At 8, there was a high mass, sung by Rev. John J. Reilly. The introit was Isaias 61, the Lesson Proverbs 8, 22-35, the gradual Judith 13, while the gospel, Luke 1, 26-38 narrated the annunciation of the Angel Gabriel and the salutation to the Virgin, "Hail, full of grace, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women."

The singing was by Mrs. Bernard M. Coyle, Roderick F. Sullivan and Arthur J. McNamara. Especially effective was the singing in Sanctus and Agnus Dei. Mr. Sullivan's voice being heard to fine advantage. One of the interludes by Henry J. LaFontaine, the organist, was Lemaire's beautiful Christmas offertory, introducing the ancient hymn of the church, "Adeste, Fideles." The number of communicants at each mass was very large, as there was special hearing of confessions Monday afternoon and evening.

The parish school was dismissed for the day, after the pupils had attended mass, under supervision of their teachers, the Sisters of Mercy.

SPORTSMEN TO STUDY WHAT ARE VERMIN

When a sportsman speaks of vermin he does not refer to insects. Vermin in the vernacular of the hunter includes those four-footed, winged and crawling creatures which prey upon the game. Certain hawks, owls and some other birds of prey, certain predatory animals such as the fox, weasel and coyote, and some reptiles are generally regarded as vermin, have no legal protection and often are subject of bounties, but no generally accepted list of such species is recognised by law or general consent.

A survey being made throughout the country by the Farm Journal, a leading agricultural publication, will throw much light on this mooted question and a report on this survey is to be made at the coming Twelfth National conference of the American Game Protective association to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York city, December 7 and 8. It is desirable that there be a general agreement among sportsmen, game administrators and scientists as to what species are actually more injurious than beneficial and the coming conference is expected to aid in clarifying the matter. Reports on actual experience with predatory species at game farms covering long periods of years will be submitted at this conference from Minnesota and other states where accurate records have been kept. There is an abundance of evidence as to the destructiveness of certain species but others are in dispute.

YALE GRADUATE SCHOOL HAS 538 GRADUATE STUDENTS

The 538 students enrolled in the Yale Graduate School this year hold degrees from 237 institutions, according to figures made available Sunday.

Yale degrees are held by 139 students, the largest number from any single institution. Columbia follows with 23 representatives, Harvard with 20, Mount Holyoke with 17, and Princeton with 13.

The institutions whose graduates are at Yale, for further study, are widely distributed. In the list are the American University at Beirut, the College of Yale-in-China, Hamburg University, the Imperial University of Hokaido, Japan, the Japanese Naval War College, the Liceo de Costa Rica, the National University of the Philippines, the South Australian Baptist college, the University of Cape Town, the University of London, the University of Odessa, and the University of Palermo.

The students come from every state in the Union except Alabama, and from twelve foreign countries. The largest delegation is from Connecticut, with 184 representatives, followed by Pennsylvania with 37, Massachusetts with 36, Ohio with 28 and New York with 25.

Great Britain leads the foreign countries represented with seventeen from Canada, four from England, two from South Africa, one from Scotland and one from India.

PAPER MONEY, RAGGED, SOILED MORE VALUABLE THAN WORN

Since the United States Treasury redeems paper money at its face value, but gold at its weight, a frayed and dirty bill may be worth more than a shiny coin of the same denomination in precious metal, says "Popular Mechanics." Because gold wears away, the government has established what is known as the "legal limit of tolerance," beyond which the owner must stand a loss if he wishes to exchange his gold for other money.

For instance, the standard weight of a new 20-dollar gold piece is 516 grains. The "tolerance limit" is reached when abrasion has reduced the coin to 513.43 grains which is the least weight at which the piece will be accepted for its stamped value. The wearing allowance provided for in tables at the mint is .086 grains a year on a double eagle. Silver nickel and copper coins pass for their face value as long as recognizable, but the tendency of gold pieces to decrease has cost banks and individuals many hundreds of dollars.

Definite announcement by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, of Texas, that she will not call a special session of the legislature, as requested by Speaker Lee Satterwhite and a number of representatives, puts the next move squarely up to the speaker.

FORD BROUGHT 39 FIDDLERS TO DETROIT

DETROIT, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Mellie Dunham, Norway, Maine, fiddler who arrived late yesterday to play for Henry Ford, is the champion fiddler of the state of Maine, but at Dearborn, the Detroit suburb, where the headquarters of the Ford organization is located, he is just "another fiddler."

Mellie is the thirty-ninth fiddler who has been brought to Dearborn by Henry Ford within recent months, the Ford organization let it be known today. The other thirty-eight came without ostentation and departed as they came.

For that reason Ford officials wondered why such a crowd appeared today when Fiddler Dunham represented himself at the Ford laboratories, after spending the night at the Dearborn Country club. With the fiddler and his wife, there were eight newspapermen, including four from Boston and one from Portland, Maine; four photographers; three motion picture camera men, and one official representative of the state of Maine.

Ford representatives were quick to assert nothing unusual was going to happen as a result of the invitation to the Dunhams. They said Mr. Ford had brought fiddlers to Detroit from many parts of the country since Jep Bigbee, the old Michigan fiddler, first intrigued Henry Ford with his dance tunes and caused the motor manufacturer to take an interest in the revival of the old dances.

It was also pointed out that Mr. Ford had never heard Fiddler Dunham, and did not know whether he could contribute any new tunes to the America of old-time dance tunes being compiled for Mr. Ford in connection with his rejuvenation of the old-time dances. If, he knows any tunes that are not already in the Ford compilation, they will be added.

The Maine fiddler will play Friday night for an old-time dance at Dearborn, but it will be the regular weekly dancing club that has been organized and running under Mr. Ford's direction for some time. A few personal friends may be invited to hear the fiddler at this time, but there will be no public exhibition of Dunham's ability as far as the Ford organization is concerned.

Meanwhile, Mellie and "Gram" as his wife is called even by the newspapermen who accompanied them to Detroit, will continue to enjoy luxuries far beyond the vision of Norway, Maine, at the Dearborn Country club as guests of Mr. Ford. They also will be shown about the plants of the Ford organization where enough men are employed in a single building to make several towns the size of Norway.

Both have expressed astonishment and delight at the "big city" and its sights but, while they are glad of the opportunity given them to see more of the country in which they live, both are ready to return to their home in Maine.

DEMOCRATIC CONTESTS IN NEW HAVEN TODAY

HARTFORD, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. George Troup Glynn, of New Haven was agreed upon today as the organization candidate for member of the democratic national committee to succeed Miss Caroline Ruuts-Reese, of Greenwich. She is the daughter of the late Alexander Troup, of New Haven, who was the lone Connecticut member of the democratic national committee for years up to 1900, when he was unexpectedly defeated by Homer S. Cummings of Stamford.

The introduction of Mrs. Glynn's candidacy means a certain fight at New Haven tomorrow over that office as well as over three other major positions in the party. She will be opposed to Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, of Columbia, who has resigned as state vice chairman and become the receptive candidate of the anti-organization group for the place of national committee woman.

Mrs. Glynn will run on a ticket headed by Thomas J. Spellacy, of this city, for national committeeman to succeed Cummings, resigned; and James J. Walsh, of Meriden, for chairman of the democratic state central committee, to succeed Edward M. Yeomans, of Andover.

Either of two Waterbury women will be asked to accept the vice chairmanship of the state committee in the event the previous votes in the state committee meeting tomorrow show the organization to be in control. Notwithstanding the fact that Town Clerk Dora Egan and State Central Committeewoman Mrs. Alice Mooney, of that city, are active supporters of Controller Peter FitzHenry, of Waterbury for the state chairmanship, one or the other of them will be requested to take the vice chairmanship, on the ground that Waterbury is unquestionably the democratic stronghold of Connecticut, and therefore entitled to representation in one of the major positions of th eparty organization. Town Clerk Miss Egan is a member of the committee from the Fifteenth district and Mrs. Mooney, from the Sixteenth district.

Opposed to Walsh for state chairmanship, will be FitzHenry, a pronounced anti-organization democrat. The woman who becomes the candidate of the organization faction, otherwise known as the machine, for vice chairman, will be opposed by Mrs. James A. Curry, of Hartford, according to the insurgents' plans tonight.

Spellacy, the machine candidate for national committeeman, will be opposed by former Civil Service Commissioner Thomes Hewes, of Farmington.

Both sides tonight claimed a safe majority of the votes in the state committee meeting. Dr. Edward G. Dolan, of South Manchester, pioneer in the movement to break th machine's control of the democratic party, adhered to his prediction that the re-organization would have a majority of four votes in the committee. This would mean a total of thirty-nine votes, with all seventy seats in the committee occupied.

The machine, on the other hand, claimed forty-eight of the seventy votes, leaving only twenty-two to the insurgents. The meeting will begin with a luncheon at one o'clock, at the Taft hotel.

Before the organization leaders asked Mrs. Glynn to be their candidate for national committeewoman, Mr. Spellacy telephoned to Mrs. Hiram Percy Maxim, asking her to stand for election to that office. She declined to run. Mr. Spellacy said afterwards that he regretted her decision, as he felt certain that she would make a strong member of the committee. Her father was once governor of Maryland and she had a wide acquaintance in politics.

Ran Into Bus

A Providence bus that stopped suddenly as it was about to round the corner from Franklin square into Bath street was struck in the rear by Tony Longo about 10:45 Wednesday night. Both vehicles sustained minor damage.

TO CUT DOWN QUANTITY OF SACRAMENTAL WINE FOR JEWS

HARTFORD, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Beginning with the New Year, the 12,000 gallons of sacramental wine now used annually by Jewish congregations in Connecticut, will be reduced to half that amount, under a new federal ruling embodied in treasury decision number 3,729, received today by Deputy Prohibition Administrator Frank T. Putney.

Under the new ruling, there will be a maximum allowance for each adult member of a family living together, of one gallon of wine a year, and the amount allowed for any one family during one year is not to exceed five gallons.

The federal provisions governing the distribution of sacramental wine, now in effect, and which terminate on December 31, have allowed two gallons to each adult member of a family and made the maximum to any one family in a year, ten gallons.

Statistics obtained at the prohibition enforcement office show that 23 Jewish congregations in the state, through their respective rabbis were furnished sacramental wine last year and that the average withdrawal for each congregation, was 400 gallons.

Regulations prescribe that the rabbi of each congregation before obtaining a withdrawal order must file with the prohibition office a list of the number of families to receive wine through him and a list of the members in each family. Some rabbis during the year, have withdrawn the full allotment allowed to them according to the lists, while others have not taken all that could have been issued to them, records show.

The amount of sacramental wine used by the Catholic and Episcopalian churches in the state, was said to be of small quantity, averaging together less than 1,000 gallons. In the hierarchal churches the wine is withdrawn by the bishop or other head of the diocese. In addition, there are about 30 other churches of different denominations in the state which use sacramental wine, but only in a negligible quantity, it was said at the prohibition office.

Although withdrawals of sacramental wine by Jewish congregations occur throughout the year, the bulk of it is used during the Jewish festivals. Rabbis or ministers receiving wine are required to provide a safe storage place for it, are held personally responsible for its safe-keeping, and are obliged to see that it is used only for sacramental purposes.

REPORTS NO SHORTAGE OF FUEL IN CONNECTICUT

HARTFORD, Dec. 9.—(AP)—There need be no suffering in Connecticut this winter because of a shortage of fuel. There is plenty of fuel on hand in Hartford today to meet all requirements until Febr.l, if not, another pound is received in the city, and in the state at large among the 300 dealers there is available a supply sufficient to care for demands that may be made, for periods averaging from six weeks to the months.

This is the gist of the information supplied to Mayor Norman C. Stevens by twenty four Hartford coal dealers at a conference held this morning and compiled for Governor John H Trumbull for his information in response to a questionnaire sent through the state. Of twenty two dealers reporting to the governor today, seventeen had sufficient fuel on hand to last three months. The majority of the fuel in the city and state is of "run of mine" bituminous, screened sizes and coke.

The mayor was told there is no shortage of fuel, but rather a shortage of business, as the open winter thus far has made it unnecessary for the consumers to purchase fuel of any kind.

The data states that 50,000 tons of fuel a week from this date to April 1 is all hte State of Connecticut possibly can use, the information was also given that on the railroad tracks in Hartford and other cities of the state are hundreds of cars of coke and coal which cannot be unloaded because there has been no demand for fuel.

PLAUT-CADDEN STORE THRONGED BY VISITORS

A throng of visitors passed through the remodeled Plaut-Cadden Co., store on Main street all day Wednesday, estimated at from 8,000 to 9,000 people who visited all parts and departments of the extensive business establishment and expressed unbounded admiration for the facilities that have been provided by this progressive firm to meet the needs of their customers in every particular that could be thought of. The members of the firm and their staff of clerks extended every courtesy to their visitors and in the evening a fine concert programme of about two hours in length was rendered by the Benvenuti orchestra. Among the visitors were a number from New London, where the firm also has a large business establishment.

One of the interesting events of the day for R. C. Plaut, president of the company, was to have shown him by Frank V. Smith of 30 Ward street a watch which Mr. Smith bought in 1872 from Abraham Plaut, founder of the business, which has grown to such magnificent proportions here. The watch is still in fine running order and will be placed on display in one of the store windows.

TURKEY SUPPER WITH SINGING OF CAROLS

Over 300 people attended the turkey supper served at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Community house, Church street, under the auspices of the building committee of the United Congregational church. The menu was as follows:

Grape Fruit Cocktail
Roast Turkey Dressing
Mashed Potatoes Mashed Turnips
Onions Cranberry Sauce
Rolls Plum Pudding
Coffee

During the menu there was community singing of Christmas carols during which all the lights were extinguished with the exception of the candle lights on the tables and a large Christmas star on the wall was illuminated with red lights.

The dining tables were prettily decorated with miniature Christmas trees and lighted candles. The supper was served under the direction of Mrs. William P. Wade, chairman of the building committee. The proceeds of the supper are to be used for the purpose of redecorating the Sunday school room of the United church.

EAGLES' LADIES' NIGHT WAS GREATLY ENJOYED

The whist and pinochle party conducted Wednesday evening for Ladies' night at the Eagles' home was largely attended.

Prizes in pinochle were awarded as follows: Ladies, Mrs. J. Kirby, 6,670; Mrs. R. A. Krohn, 6,270; Mrs. D. Halsey, 4,905; gentlemen, James Dwyer, 6,480; J. Kirby, 6,115; William Farrell, 5,300.

In whist the prizes were awarded as follows: Ladies, Mrs. Miller, 36; Mrs. Yates, 31; Miss O'Connell, 19. gentlemen, J. Manning, 35; A. Woodmansee, 32; Miss Jennie More, 18.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served by the committee and dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

Announcement was made that the home was to be remodeled and that everything would be in readiness for the next ladies' night which would be held Tuesday, Jan. 10.

The committee in charge consisted of W. R. Hastedt, R. A. Krohn and E. J. Mullins, who were ably assisted by the members in general to make the affair a great success.

HOURIGAN POST ELECTS LEO JACQUES COMMANDER

At the regular meting Tuesday evening of Richard Hourigan post, No 594, V. F. W., at the post rooms on Main street, Leo Jacques was elected commander of the post for the year 1926. Other officers elected are as follow: Senior vice commander, Harry M. Richmond; junior vice commander, Earl A. Maynard; quartermaster, Arthus H. Fitzgerald; quartermaster sergeant, Ord Leseman; adjutant, James Kane; sergeant-major, John Powelee; chaplain, Edward Sheldon; officer of the day, Edwin Street; trustee, Charles B Greene; bugler, Andrew Marshall.

The relief committee reported considerable activity along relief lines and attention was called to the whist party and social to be held at the post rooms this week.

Fined in Franklin

Babe Burke, of Franklin was fined $100 and costs when presented before Justice of the Peace J. Armstrong of Franklin, as a result of being arrested last Saturday for violating the liquor law. He paid and was released. State Policemen Bernard Kenneron, George Sisson and Fred Caron made the arrest in a raid at Burke's gas station at that place.

MANSFIELD PLAYERS SEEN IN CLEVER PLAY HERE

At a matinee before an audience of about 300 and more than double that number in the evening, the Richard Mansfield Players were seen at the Palace theatre Wednesday in "Why Marry?" the play written by Jesse Lynch Williams, which was awarded the Pulitzer prize in the season in which it was presented in New York.

The lines and the plot discuss some of the modern attitudes toward marriage and divorce, and the outstanding characterizations were given by two members of the cast, the man playing the part of the judge, who has a wife in Reno seeking a divorce after twenty years of life with an uncongenial husband, and the woman playing the girl assistant to the scientist with whom she is in love but cannot see how she can marry because she would hamper his work, since his salary is so small. Not having printed programmes, the audience was unable to assign their appreciation to these players by name, but the cast comprised Harold Moulton, Betty Pratt, Frank Poole, Haroldine Humphries, Charles Freeman, Edwin R. Wolfe, Charlotte Read, Theodore St. John and Theron Lucas.

Curtain calls after each of the three acts were given for the pleasing work of the cast and the light dialogue and satirical play upon marriage and divorce had the audiences in gales of laughter many times throughout the performance.

PETTIS RETAINS LEAD IN WEST SIDE PINOCHLE

H. H. Pettis maintained his lead in the West Side Pinochle club standing Wednesday night and C. S. Peckham maintained second place. High score for the evening was 7,550 and was made by Dr. J. T. Boynton. The scores Wednesday night: Dr. J. T. Boynton, 7,550; A. Jordan, 7,540; E. C. Underwood, 7,090; C. S. Peckham, 6,895; J Jordan, 6,780; H. H. Pettis, 6,740; C Schuler, 6,705; Dr. N. B. Lewis, 6,625; A. J. Bailey, 6,430; J. A. Parker, 6,255; C V. Pendleton, 6,230; E. Peckham, 6,230.

The standing to date: H. H. Pett's, 21,500; C. S. Peckham, 21,400; E. C Underwood, 21,020; Dr. J. T. Boynton, 20,820; Dr. N. B. Lewis, 20,405; A. J Bailey, 19,260; C. V. Pendleton, 19,600; A. Jordan, 19,525; E. Peckham, 19,430; C. Schuler, 19,260; J. Jordan, 19,095; J. A. Parker, 18,960.

GROTTO CIRCUS DRAWS ANOTHER BIG CROWD

Another big crowd filled the state armory Wednesday night for the second night of the indoor circus and freak city held under the auspices of Nemrod Grotto. All the freaks and side show attractions were declared by those who saw them to be the equal of anything that they had ever seen in the best circusses on the road and genuine curiosities that were actual worth-while exhibits.

Tonight (Thursday) is the closing night for the big event.

SEASIDE SANITARIUM CHILDREN TO HAVE PARTY

Arrangements have been made by the Crowley club, of New London, for a Christmas party and entertainment to be given at Seaside sanitarium, Crescent Beach, Dec. 20. The members will meet at the club rooms in Jay street, Dec. 16, to wrap packages. There will be individual gifts for each of the children, as well as candy and the members are planning to provide a program of music, entertainment and stories.

There are rumors that soon John McGraw of the Giants will announce the purchase of Charles Leo ("Gabby") Hartnett, home-run hitting catcher of the Chicago Cubs McGraw wants a catcher who can hit.

CLOSE OF THE NORTHERN BAPTIST CONVENTION

YONKERS, N. Y., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Saying disagreements over irrelevant subjects hindered its efficiency and were "fast becoming intolerable" the Northern Baptist convention closed a two-day conference today with a declaration of its intention in the future to consider only subjects related to three phases of church work, missionary, educational and philanthropic.

"Unwarranted criticism directed at some of our denominational leaders and organizations have undermined their effectiveness and diminished the contributions of some of these churches," a statement issued by the convention said. The convention was composed of 58 ministers and laymen from various parts of the country.

"It was the unanimous opinion of this group," the statement said, "that for some years the Northern Baptist convention has failed to function thoroughly for the main purpose for which it was organized. The conference felt that the controversies constantly and intensely increasing in the convention has blurred the denomination's vision, marred its sense of unity and crowded from the programme the major interests for which the convention has been assembled, namely the discussion and promotion of missionary, educational and philanthropic work of the denominations."

All other questions, the statement continued, should be left to local churches themselves, the various church associations, or the state conventions.

REFUSED $630; ALLOWED $500 FOR HER PROPERTY

HARTFORD, Dec. 9.—(AP)—After declining an offer from the state of $630 for a piece of property bordering on the Boston Post road in Westport, which was needed for highway improvements, Mrs. George H. Post, of that town, has been allowed damages of $500 as a result of condemnation proceedings brought by the state. This was the finding reached by Ex-Governor Marcus H. Holcomb as a state referee, appointed by the superior court in Fairfield county to adjudge the damages in the case.

The property in question is located at Nash's corner in Westport on the route of the new thirty-six foot highway from New Haven to the New York state line. It has a frontage on the highway of 235 feet and covers six and one-hundredths of an acre.

TEACHERS ARE TO MEET IN WASHINGTON IN FEBRUARY

HARTFORD, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Miss Dorothy M. Shanley, secretary of the state teachers' retirement board, and secretary and treasurer of the National Council of Teachers' Retirement systems, announced today that it has been decided to hold the annual meeting of the council in conjunction with the mid-winter meeting of the National Educational association, at Washington, D. C., the latter part of February.

Robert O. Clarida, secretary of the teachers' retirement system in Illinois, is president of the council and Edward B. Duncan, secretary of the retirement system in Indiana, is vice president.

As a bull was passing down a street in Frederick, Md., with a herd of cattle, he loped up on the sidewalk and suddenly became aware of another bull gazing at him from a plate glass window in an automobile sales room. He leaped at the apparition of himself while startled salesmen inside the building fled in haste. After thoroughly wrecking the glass and finding no bull the animal returned to his herd.

POETRY

There's a Reason

You never saw a boy so changed as little Johnny Bright.
The other boys now call him names and draw no sign of fight.
He uses soap upon his neck and scrubs behind his ears,
And takes a "no" on cake or pie without a sign of tears.

He seems to want to bring up coal and run down to the store.
Just yesterday he volunteered to scrub the kitchen floor.
He won't play hookey from his school or whisper in the class,
The while his teacher marvels how such wonders come to pass.

He seems to like to go to church and stay for Sunday School.
His every act seems based upon the well known Golden Rule.
He gave his sister half a stick of candy that he'd bought.
Before this to her "Give me some?" he'd answer "I guess not!"

Instead of rushing off to play with all the other boys
He seems to like to sit and talk of Santa Claus and toys.
And every night when I go up to tuck him into bed
He always says to my "Good night—"Ge, mom, I'd like a sled!"

—By A Linde Fowler.

Forgetfulness

We said goodby within the thoroughfare
Where taxis whirled and newsboys called aloud,
Where we were jostled by the bustling crowd,
And high, sharp voices smote the noisy air.

We stood awhile, before we turned away,
And it seemed strange that I should hear your voice
Above the tumult of the city's noise
And see your sudden smile-triumphant, gay!

But O, when we had parted, you and I,
I knew your voice would come on every breeze,
That you would throng the street with memories
Where once we paused a moment for goodby.

I knew the ghosts of dreams would haunt me there;
And yet—today I pass along that street
And only hear the hurrying of swift feet—
The noises of a busy thoroughfare.

—Frances Ruth Beal, in The Poet's Scroll.

Hemp is being grown in the United States in larger quantities than ever before according to a report on the hemp industry by the department of agriculture. Production will reach about 2,600 tons this year. About 1,000 tons of hemp was grown in the United States in 1924 and the 1923 crop approximated only 500 tons. About 90 per cent of all American hemp is grown in Wisconsin. However the American uses approximately 10,000 tons of hemp annually. Most of this hemp is imported from Italy.

Sails were introduced as an aid to plowing in a soil tillers' match near Brightlingsea, England, a little seaside resort, many of the residents of which are yachtsmen as well as farmers. The wind at times aided the horses in dragging the plow along but at other times puffs blew the implement to one side and spoiled a straight furrow which hindered the contestant's chance of winning first prize. Men as well as women participated in the contest, which the judges decided was a great success but they thought there was little possibility of sails ever putting horses or motors out of business when it came to plowing.

SECTION OF WINTHROP STREET MADE ONE-WAY BY NEW LONDON CITY MANAGER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 9—City Manager William A. Holt today caused another highway, or at least a portion of it to be made a one way street. The street where restricted traffic is ordered is Winthrop street. City Manager Holt has decreed that that part of Winthrop street from Crystal avenue to the approach to the Thames river highway bridge has been made one way with traffic moving in a northerly direction, only. The edict, it is understood, was made for the purpose of endeavoring to minimize the existing danger to autoists and pedestrians at that point.

Ira J. Noyes, 14 Willow street of Mystic, one of the veteran employes of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, has been pensioned. Mr. Noyes entered the service of the railroad in July 1880, and at the time of his retirement he was assistant head clerk in the office of the auditor of passenger receipts at New Haven. Mr. Noyes has a record of 45 years of continuous service with the railroad.

Mrs. Benjamin Walker and infant son, 15 Waldo street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were dismissed today.

Van R. Wheeler, 83, a former resident of New London, died yesterday at his home in Providence, following a lingering illness brought on by infirmities of his advanced years. He is survived by a son, Edward M. Wheeler, Providence.

Harold H. Starr, 297 William street, now located temporarily in Miami, Fla., has returned to New London and will remain here several weeks before returning to the southern resort.

W. E. Caulkins, 62 Cutler street, is a patient at a local hospital, where he will undergo an operation this week.

Mrs. Louis Schartz, Perry street, is spending a few days with relatives in Hartford.

Mrs. C. E. Flaherty, 11 Colver street, is entertaining Mrs. Carl Viets and daughters, Mildred and Carolyn, of Hope Valley, R. I.

A team, owned by the Armour company and driven by Thomas Reagan, created considerable excitement on State street this forenoon when the horse became unmanageable and dashed two blocks through the street, narrowly escaping hitting automobiles and while the driver tugged vigorously at the reins in an effort to bring the maddened animals under control. After passing Bank street the team descended the grade leading to the union station and as Railroad avenue was reached, Reagan, succeeded in diverting the course of the horse, which was headed for the railroad tracks, into Railroad avenue. As the heavy outfit swung into the avenue the team collided with a parked yellow cab, ripping away one of the mudguards. The horse continued through the avenue and only came to a stop when it could not proceed further because of a mass of buildings and railroad construction work.

An automobile owned and operated by J. D. McCarthy, chief petty officer, stationed to the U. S. destroyer Burrows, and an automobile truck owned by the New Haven Dairy, Howard street, and driven by A. J. Bailey, of Groton, were in collision early this evening on Howard street at the corner of Hamilton street. The pleasure vehicle sustained the greater part of the damage and McCarthy placed the responsibility for the crash upon the driver of the ice cream truck.

An automobile owned by W. J. White, 862 Ocean avenue, became disabled early this morning on Montauk avenue, corner of Glenwood avenue, and when the machine could not be operated the owner was compelled to leave it where it had stalled, which was on the tracks of the Connecticut company. When the first of the cars started on their runs the automobile was found to be obstructing the tracks. The trolley crew was compelled to push the stalled vehicle from the tracks in order to allow the trolley cars to make their scheduled trip.

Capt. Andrew F. McCarthy, Groton police department, is confined to his residence, 69 Meridian street, Groton by illness, not however, believed to be of a serious nature. Capt. McCarthy, who had been in a complaining mood several days, reported for duty as usual this morning, but he showed a high fever and he was ordered to his home by his physician.

Charles B. Willard, 84, of 109 Allen street, Groton, is confined to his home as a result of injuries he sustained last night by being struck by an automobile, owned and driven by Kenneth Howard, this city. Willard, who has operated a bicycle almost daily for 35 years, was riding northerly on Thames street, Groton when he was overtaken by Howard's automobile. As the auto was about to pass the cyclist, a collision occurred, resulting in Willard being thrown from the cycle and with such force as to produce a bruised shoulder and hip and two lacerations of the scalp.

Miss Constance Blake Meadnis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harry Meadnis, 217 Pequot avenue, and a student at Mt. Holyoke college, where she is a sophomore, was recenly elected a member of the dramatic club of the college and last Saturday she portrayed the role of Bayliss in the college play, "Two Virtues". Miss Meadnis was further honored recently by being elected a member of the college press club.

Tony Arionchuk and Agatha, his common law wife, have been struggling along a good many years. Sometimes they were very happy and at others they did not seem to pull in double matrimonial harness without chafing under the conditions it brought. But they have managed to secure a couple of houses, in one of which they reside, on Hill street. Tony is a hot-tempered fellow and the police say he is as thick as a man well can be, so he, of course, gets into trouble. Yesterday he took it into his head to wallop Agatha. She is a little woman, but she has the grit to resist that sort of treatment. She complained to the police and Tony went into the lockup for a while. The couple had interviewed the prosecutor before the arrest was made and some good advice was given the pair. Tony represented in court today that he had been drinking booze and that fact led to his acts as complained of. But the prosecutor raised up his voice and contradicted Tony point blank, denying that he was in any degree under the influence of liquor. Tony admitted that he was lying. Judge Prince sentenced him to jail for thirty days, but when Tony and Agatha reached an understanding that they would live in peace hereafter, execution of the judgment was suspended. Tony held up his right hand and made oath that he would keep his promise to the prosecutor. Agatha represented that she had been a hard worker and had tried successfully to save enough so that they could get along all right. She had two children when she began to consort with Tony and she has borne one child by him. She was willing to part company with him now, rather than to be the victim of his abuse. She said she rented rooms and kept boarders, and that she did washing and when she could not get employment in that way she did sewing. Her case aroused sympathy, so Tony was kept out of jail.

Joseph King was charged with intoxication. He was in a barber shop on Atlantic street yesterday and became so offensive that his arrest was asked for. Joe is a good-natured fellow and he had never been in the police court before so he was given the chance to cut out drink and walk the straight and narrow path.

Bolton A. Copp, president of the National Whaling bank, sustained a severe jolt Tuesday when he was run down by a pleasure automobile on the Thames river bridge, as he was on his way to New London, from his home in Groton. He was thrown and sustained bruises that have kept him in bed since, but it is believed he escaped broken bones. Mr. Copp has reached an age where such a shaking up as he experienced is to be feared in its consequences, but his well-preserved physical condition is expected to enable him to recover so as to return to business in a few days.

The trial of the action in the common pleas court in which Waterman & Wolf of this city are seeking to recover on notes which Mrs. Mary J. Rogers endorsed, revives recollections of the presence here of Gordon Foster, who represented a Boston bond house and who did considerable business. It was by the bond transactions that the note juggling occurred. Mrs. Rogers is an aged woman but she had a passion for securing big interest on her financial transactions and Foster is said to have led her into the endorsement, on promises of a big return. Foster is said now to be in Chicago where he has a prosperous business. Mrs. Rogers did not make a good witness in the case on trial, for the reason that her mind is not acute and she could not recall transactions and was not certain of the details of them when she did remember them.

The savings banks are distributing the savings of those who deposited during the year money that was to be paid at Christmas time. The funds are large and they are being given out now. Some of the money will go back into the banks as permanent deposits, while much more of it will find its way into the stores of this city.

Doris Sirop, a girl about 22, residing in New Bedford, Mass., where she is married to a taxicab driver, but with whom she does not reside, was taken into custody this morning by Sergeant Nelson Smith charged with lewd and lascivious carriage. The girl is now an occupant of a cell at the police station awaiting a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

The girl was taken into custody at the union station, where she apparently was loitering. In a statement she made to the authorities she declared that she was married in New Bedford and that one child born to the couple died. She declared that she came to New London last Monday with Jack Lyon, a resident of New Bedford, and that they obtained accommodations at the Hotel Belleview, State street. The couple remained there but one night and obtained lodgings at another hotel last night. She declared that Lyon returned to New Bedford earlier in the day and that it was her intention to leave for New Bedford Saturday next.

Nazarine Facchino, of Maple avenue, left for New York tonight and on Saturday he will take passage on a steamer for Italy where he will remain several weeks visiting his mother, whom he has not seen in about 20 years.

Charles Prentis is critically ill at his home, 287 Williams street and it is not believed he can survive long. He is suffering of senility and recently his condition became such as to cause the members of his family much concern. Mr. Prentis was for many years employed as agent of the New London line steamers, with headquarters in this city and for a number of years was charity commissioner.

Dr. and Mrs. Tracy Farnam, of Pequot avenue, are spending a few days in New York, being registered at the Ambassador hotel.

Mrs. James Robinson and infant son, of 128 Monument street, Groton. Mrs. William Manice, wife of Patrolman Manice, and Francis Emerson, United States Coast Guard, local section base, No. 4, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Adeline S. Dart, 87, a former resident of New London, widow of Alvin A. Dart and mother of the late Frank S. Dart, died late yesterday at the resident of her sister, Mrs. Bronson in West Haven. Mrs. Dart formerly resided at the corner of Vauxhall street and Connecticut avenue and a short time after the death of her son, about two years ago, moved to West Haven.

Owen McPartland, 69, died last night at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Edward H. Paradise, 26 Montauk avenue. He had been ill but a few weeks. Besides his daughter, Mr. McPartland is survived by another daughter, who is a resident of Florida, and by a brother, Hugh McPartland of Ocean avenue. Mr. McPartland was born in Liverpool, England, but had resided in this country practically all his life and had been a resident of this city many years. He was a plumber but of late years he had been employed as watchman at the plant of the Hawthorne Sash & Door company.

Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky today issued a warrant for the arrest of Fred A. Wilson, United States coast guard, stationed aboard patrol boat, 280, of the fleet of rum-chasers, attached to local section base, No. 4, state pier, who is a much-wanted man because of a series of fraudulent check transactions in which he engaged this week. At this section base it was stated this afternoon that Wilson is on leave of absence and is not supposed to report for duty until Friday next. It is known that Wilson has been a resident at Atlantic City, New York and Philadelphia, and when he enlisted in the service, he gave his residence as Philadelphia.

It was revealed today that besides passing a fraudulent check for $65 on Morris Mallove, jeweler, 111 Bank street, he obtained goods of the value of $25 from Mallove, for which he did not pay. Wilson also tendered a check for $700 to Charles Maloof, propiretor of the Star garage in part payment for an Overland sedan, also negotiated a check for $50 with Abraham Davidson, public taxicab operator.

Mary C. Waite has sold a house and lot on Cutler street to Bessie Cohen.

A deed transferring two building lots on Guthrie place, fro mthe Pequot Realty company, to Thornton N. M. Lothrop, was received for record at the office of the city clerk today.

William M. Redden, Annie O'Connor, Ellen Connell and Fred Redder, have sold a building lot on Colman street to Anna S. Briggs.

James P. O'Donnell and Johanna M. O'Donnell have sold a house and lot on Huntington street to Joseph Ricotta.

Byron E. Wilkinson has sold a house and lot, corner of Darrow street, to Nasar E., and Frieda B. Nahass.

The New London police have been requested by the authorities of Westerly to be on the lookout for Mary Wilkinson, a Westerly girl, who ran away from her home yesterday. The girl, who is known to have purchased a railroad ticket for New London, is described as being 17, having bobbed hair, wearing a long yellow coat and no hat.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Physical courage is so much more tangible and spectacular than a mental scrimmage, and somehow arouses onlookers to such heights of vociferous enthusiasm, that it has been the accepted standard of heroism from time immemorial.

Brute strength and endurance have frequently been confused with the more subtle attributes of genuine heroes, and consequently the ladye faire has oft times said "my hero" in a melting voice just because he won the battle.

It took more than physical prowess for Peter Graham, who is interpreted by Monte Blue in the latest Warner title of "heroism." He loved Julie, and in the first madness of his love tasted the bitter sweet intoxication of deceit. Then his manhood asserted itself and in his struggle to be true to himself, he endures illimitable physical and spiritual anguish, while Marie Prevost, playing the role of Julie, faces the problem of life in all its different hues with equal fortitude.

Warner Bros. has translated "Recompense," the sensational novel by Robert Keable, to the screen for the reason that it embraced all the fundamental emotions that constitute living. It gives free rein to the drama of love, renunciation, salvation and sincere manhood.

John Patrick, John Roche, George Siegman, Virginia Brown Faire, Wm. C. Davidson, Etta Lee and Katherine Lewis support Marie Prevost and Monte Blue in their interpretation of Robert Keable's story, which will be shown at the Palace Theatre today. A remarkable vaudeville bill completes the program. Merchants' Night Thursday. Don't buy all your Christmas gifts until you attend Merchants' Night.

BRAINARD MASONIC LODGE HAS 827 MEMBERSHIP

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 9—Brainard Masonic lodge is entering upon a new year with the largest membership it has ever had, 827 members being enrolled. The lodge held its annual meeting last evening when the following officers were chosen: Worshipful master, Charles F. Potter; senior warden, Richard W. Johns; junior warden, Ellery W. Edwards; treasurer, Malcolm M. Scott; treasurer, George A. Sturdy; senior deacon, John Masterton; junior deacon, Roger N. Daboll; senior steward, J. James Flood; junior steward, Raymond B. C. Jencks; chaplain, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth; marshal Bertram F. Bruce; tyler, David Connor. A turkey dinner was served by the members of Brainard circle after the meeting.

HONEST ADVERTISING BY MOVING PICTURE HOUSE

SHENANDOAH, Iowa, Dec. 8—(AP)—If a moving picture house owner thinks a picture is no good he should tell his patrons so they can stay away. Such is the attitude of C. J. Latta, owner of a local theatre, which he outlined today after he had warned customers against seeing a picture booked at his play house for two days.

He not only advertised in the newspaper his dislike to the film, but posted a bulletin in front of the theatre advising patrons his picture was "one of the weakest," he had seen.

Mr. Latta said he took his action as a policy of honest advertising and that he would do it again in the future if the occasion demanded.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The house debated the tax bill.

President Coolidge praised the work of the Red Cross.

The authorship of parts of Colonel Mitchell's "winged defense" again was questioned by the prosecution in his court martial.

President Coolidge transmitted to congress the budget, estimated government expenditures of $3,696,807,921 for the coming fiscal year.

LEGAL NOTICE

HERMAN JOHN GREINER VS. JESSIE Elizabeth Rogers Greiner, Supplemental Order of Notice.

State of Connecticut, County of New London, ss. December 8, 1925.

Upon the complaint of the said Herman John Greiner, claiming for the reasons therein set forth a divorce and the custody of a minor child, now pending before this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of October, 1925.

It appearing to and being found by this Court that Jessie Elizabeth Rogers Greiner, the said defendant, is absent from this State and gone to parts unknown and that notice of the pendency of the complaint was given as required by order of notice heretofore issued, and how the plaintiff asks for a further order of notice in the premises.

Therefore ordered, that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given by publishing this order in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper printed in Norwich, Connecticut, once a week for two weeks successively, commencing on or before the 26th day of December, 1925.

By order of Court.
JOHN H. WALKER,
Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court for New London County.

MARKET WAS QUIET.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(By The A. P.)—Stock prices turned mildly reactionary in today's quiet trading. Alternate rallies and reactions took place throughout the day with selling pressure gradually overcoming attempts to maintain constructive operations.

The market's unsettlement came in the face of many favorable developments including another series of larger dividends and the presentation to congress of the smallest national budget since the war. These constructive developments, however, appeared to have been discounted fully and Wall street followed the advice of leading commission houses to take profits.

Although various groups enjoyed brief periods of speculative favor, few were able to retain their popularity. An unsuccessful attempt was made to bolster up the market by binding up the prices of steel shares in the face of rather cautious weekly trade reviews. Republic Steel managed to hold a 1 1-2 point gain, but other issues including U. S. Steel, Crucible, Gulf States and Sloss Sheffield were driven back. U. S. Steel closed 1 3-8 points lower at 133 3-4 while Sloss-Sheffield broke more than four points to 134 1-4.

Other representative industrial shares were forced downward after occasional spurts of strength. DuPont broke more than 7 points and losses of 2 to 5 3-8 points were sustained by General Electric, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Corn Products, Pan-American Petroleum, Baldwin Locomotive, American Woolen and American Tobacco.

Motor shares fluctuated erratically with net losses predominating at the end of the day. Chrysler ranged between 208 1-2 and 213, closing unchanged at 210. General Motors, Hudson, Mack Trucks, Chandler, Jordan, White and Willys-Overland preferred declined 1 to 3 points after giving sporadic exhibitions of strength.

Railroad shares drifted irregularly lower. Failure of the New York Central to change its dividend caused a one point recession in this stock despite the fact that the road will receive several million dollars through increased and extra payments from its subsidiaries. Early buying of Baltimore and Ohio in anticipation of a larger dividend was abandoned when the directors' meeting was postponed until tomorrow and this issue closed more than a point lower. Atlantic Coast Line, which reached a new high record at 247 3-4, was the only carrier stock to show sustained strength.

Buying of several public utility and specialty issues in response to favorable trade and dividend developments, was carried on throughout the day. U. S. Realty moved up 5 points on the declaration of a stock dividend by one of its subsidiaries and other gains of 1 to 5 points were recorded by Beechnut Packing, Barnet Leather, Adams Express, American Express, Lacledе Gas, United Fruit, May Department Stores and Fleischmann.

The money situation remained firm with the rate on call loans holding at 3 per cent. all day. The familiar rumors regarding a possible change in the official federal reserve bank rate tomorrow were abroad in the afternoon but apparently had little effect on trading. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Trading in foreign exchanges was light, with the principal European currencies holding firm. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.84 1-2 and French francs around 3.76 cents.

TAFTVILLE

Louis L'Hereux, 69, one of the old time residents of the village, died on Monday at his home on South C street, after a long illness of heart trouble. He had been employed as a weaver at the plant of the Ponemah Mills for over 50 years, and was well and favorably known to most of the villagers. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Delia L'Hereux and three sons.

The report of the election of officers of Council Gagnon, No. 208, Union St. Jean Baptiste in Tuesday's Bulletin should have read that Rev. U. O. Bellerose was elected chiplain and Rev. Henri F. Chagnon, assistant chaplain.

Local radio fans listened Saturday to a concert broadcasted from Providence, R. I., by an orchestra of which two local young men, James and Edward Brennan are members.

Special masses were celebrated at Sacred Heart church Tuesday in observance of the feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary, a holy day of obligation. There was a large attendance at all the services.

John N. Rankin of North A street has moved to Norwich, where he is residing on Penobscot street.

It has been announced that the special collection taken Sunday for the Near East Relief fund, at the Taftville Congregational church, will not be sent to the central committee until the first of next week. Those who wish to contributions to the fund can still do so by handing their money to Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis.

Herstine Junkins is ill at his home on Providence street.

Miss Delvena Lavigne has resigned her position with the carding department of the Ponemah company.

Miss Lillian Laramie is confined to her home on North B street with a severe attack of tonsilitis.

The usual meeting of the A-o-wa-ki-ya Camp Fire Girls was held last week with Miss Betsy Newton of North A street. One new member was voted into the camp.

At all the masses at the Sacred Heart church Tuesday, a collection was taken for the Near East Relief fund.

The Thimble club met Tuesday evening with Mrs. Earle M. Wood at her home on North Third avenue.

At the Workers' Conference held on Monday evening at the Taftville Congregational church, committees were appointed to take charge of the annual service of the church school, which is held usually in Christmas week. There will also be special decorations. After the meeting refreshments were served by the young ladies of Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis' class in the church school.

The regular monthly meeting of the Taftville Social & Football club was held Monday evening in their clubrooms at the Ponemah house. Vice-President Thomas Addison presided in the absence of President Allan Bogie.

Mrs. Edward Burdick who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Kendall of Lisbon, has returned to her home in New Bedford, Mass.

"Who's Mrs. Hilda Stone?" was the popular question on the village streets Wednesday, following a report in the Bulletin of the arrest of Mrs. Stone, the "queen of the border rum runners" in Newport, Vermont, and who gave her brithplace as Taftville, Conn. No one seemed to be able to identify Mrs. Stone under that name, and many will follow the case with interest to learn whether or not she is a Taftvillite.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Malone, Mrs. William Nolan and her daughters, Miss Mary Nolan and Miss Susie Nolan of Providence street motored to Worcester, Sunday and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Doyle.

The funeral of Louis L'Hereux was held Wednesday morning from his late home, 17 South C rtreet at 8.30, with a solemn high mass of requiem sung at Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock. At the mass the sacred ministers were Rev. U. O. Bellerose, celebrant; Rev. Henri F. Chagnon, deacon and Rev. John Miley, sub deacon. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service. The bearers were Louis Gregory, John Benoit, Joseph Benoit, Paul Prievey, Roderick St. Marie and Adelard Belisle. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike, where the committal service was read by Rev. Father Bellerose.

Undertaker George G. Grant was in charged of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. William J. Malone, county president of the Ladies Auxiliary, A. O. H., was in New London recently installing the officers of Division 26 of New London.

Philip Lavasseur of South A street is a patient at St. Joseph's Hospital in Willimantic.

CHELSEA BANK CHRISTMAS CLUB IS DISTRIBUTING $50,000 TO MEMBERS

Over 1,300 members of the Chelsea Christmas club of 1925 will today (Thursday) receive the rewards of their savings during the past year. Previous to closing the club the bank sent all members a notice in which the member was requested to designate how payment was desired, whether to place all or a part to a regular savings bank account, to use a part to start membership in a new Christmas club of 1926 or to take all in a check. Payments have been made in accordance with instructions from each member. The requests were varied and were happily complied with. About 18 %was requested to be deposited to regular savings bank accounts and the bulk of the remainder was sent out in check form. The members were notified by letters of advice where deposits were made and Christmas club books for 1926 sent when part payment so desired. The Christmas club checks are of attractive design and can be cashed anywhere.

The money represents the weekly savings of club members at the rate of 25c, 50c, $1.00, $2.00, and $5.00, and when completed payments for 50 weeks have been made the amounts received are $13.75, $25.50, $51, $102, and $255, in the respective classes, the interest being the gain of an additional week. The Christmas club has proved an incentive to thrift, a means whereby its members, otherwise unprepared, can meet the demands of the holiday season and make their Christmas shopping most cheerful. Merchants have commented upon the stimulus given trade by the receipt of the Christmas club checks and they share with the members the appreciation of this community service. One member quite fittingly said: "It is a splendid service. It's the little sums you never miss that count. It is so easy you never know you saved. It becomes a habit, and when you receive your check it is just like finding the money."

The Chelsea Savings bank has the largest and oldest Christmas club in Norwich and the club of 1925 was an increase of 25% over the previous year, and the largest in its history. The total was about $50,000. The Christmas club has been under the personal supervision of Miss May L. Bushnell since the plan was put in by the bank. The club for 1926 will formally open on December 15 and the officials of the bank will make every effort to make this the banner year and will at all times be glad to explain its merits.

FORESTRY INTERESTS IN NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCE

For the second time within five years, all the forestry interests in New England are conferring together. The forestry congress opens at Springfield today (Thursday). From a forestry point of view, New England is a unit. The forested condition of the White Mountains is as much a matter of interest to Connecticut as it is to New Hampshire, for the streams which flow from them furnish waterpower, navigation and municipal supplies to the people of Massachusetts and Connecticut. The proper development of the pulp resources of Maine means cheaper newspapers for all New England, and a flourishing condition of the woodlots of southern New England means greater buying power for the farmers, for all New England products. New England is a natural timber production unit. At present its forests are much depleted, but they are capable, under proper management, of meeting all the timber needs of the region without extension as to their area, and thus saving us from the enormous freight tax now paid on southern and western lumber.

The congress will consider all these matters. It will probably take action on the bills now in congress for extension of the National Forests, being naturally particularly interested in those in the White Mountains and northern New England generally.

The sessions of the congress are to be held at the Springfield Memorial hall, excepting the evening sessions, which will be at the Central High school, and the banquet at the Hotel Kimball. All sessions are open to the public.

Among the official delegates from Connecticut organizations are: P. L. Butterick, Connecticut Forestry association; H. H. Chapman, Yale Forest school; A. F. Hawes, state forestry department; W. O. Filley, Agricultural Experiment Station; J. W. Titcomb, State Game commissioner; O. F. King, and Elliott Bronson, State Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Curtis Veeder and Mrs. P. L. Butterick, State League of Women Voters; Mrs. F. W. Gerard, State Federation of Women's clubs.

Mrs. Gerard of New Haven is the only woman officially invited to address the congress.

WITTER BYNNER PRIZE WON BY A COLORED STUDENT

A former Norwich resident, Witter Bynner, writer-an traveler, is thus referred to in the New York papers:

Countee P. Cullen, New York university '25, negro poet, has won the Witter Bynner undergraduate poetry prize for 1925. It was announced this week. The contest was open to all college students in the country. This year's winner had won second honors in the Witter Bynner contests for 1923 and 1924.

Poems were submitted from students of the University of Chicago, Cornell university, Mount Holyoke college, University of Michigan, Harvard university and many other institutions. The judges were Witter Bynner, donor of the prize; George Sterling and Sarah Teasdale.

Mr. Cullen has just published his first volume of poems entitled "Color." He is a student in the English department of the Graduate School of Harvard university.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY GIFTS ARE BEING RECEIVED

Guy B. Dolbeare is receiving the gifts made on Golden Rule Sunday for the Near East orphanage support.

As the Norwich committee reminded local citizens Wednesday: "We must continue to give because it is unthinkable that we should send children back into the refugee camps to face death by slow starvation, or a life of beggary, or worse.

"We have rescued: now is our opportunity to preserve. We have saved life: to maintain it is our privilege. Dollars mean life—and dollars mean education. Dollars mean training for self-support."

ED CROWELL HOLDS LEAD IN COLONIAL PINOCHLE

In the second night's play of The Colonial Club's December pinochle tournament Ed Crowell continued his stellar playing and still remains in first place. It had been rumored Percy Harwood was planning on turning professional with the idea of making a cleanup but due to the setback he received in the evening's play must remain content as an amateur. The standings to date are as follows:

Ed Crowell 16425, Burlingham 16395, Drake 15615, Huntington 15405, Higgins 15325, Harwood 15205, Griffith 15165, Lillibridge 14950, Thompson 14905, McNaught 14600, Allen 14575, Cochran 14555, Gee 14440, Washburn 13485, Gifford 13485, Young Crowell 12055.

Golf Pro. Sailed Wednesday

When the Cunarder Berengaria sailed from New York, for Southampton, at noon Wednesday, one of her passengers was George Falconer, who will remain until spring visiting relatives in Scotland. Falconer, who is professional at the Norwich Golf club, of which C. Royce Boss is president, received a generous honorarium from the club which made it possible for him to cross on the big steamer, for this winter among his kin. The young man was in the air service during the war.

CONFERENCE OVER CUTTING DOWN TOBACCO CROP

A conference to study the problem of curtailing the Connecticut Valley tobacco crop next year and to devise solutions to the problem was called Wednesday by the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce.

The conference will be held on January 4 in the assembly hall of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company in Hartford. It will consist of an all-day session. In the morning, various speakers will outline the difficulties faced by the Connecticut Valley tobacco growers in curtailing their 1926 crop and in the afternoon different speakers will offer practical suggestions as to the best course to be followed.

The state chamber's invitation to attend the conference is being sent to the various chambers of commerce located in the region directly affected by the over-supply of tobacco on hand.

The invitation is also being sent to the mayors of each of the larger cities included in the territory.

Representatives of the Connecticut Valley Tobacco Growers' association, of the banking interests concerned with the tobacco industry, of the market gardeners, of the Connecticut Agricultural college, the Massachusetts State Agricultural college and the members of the State Chamber's committee on agriculture will also be invited to attend the conference.

LICENSES SUSPENDED FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

The weekly list of Connecticut operators whose licenses have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are thirty-four names on the list. The cases of three have been appealed. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspend 1 drivers operating motor vehicles. The following is the list:

FAMOUS ALASKA DOCTOR WAS VISITOR IN CITY

Dr. and Mrs. Curtis Welch of Nome, Alaska, and Mrs. Louis Betcher of New Haven were visitors Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hurlbutt at 48 Williams street. Dr. Welch was the lone doctor who had charge of the epidemic of diphtheria in Alaska a few months ago.

It was he who administered the antitoxin to the afflicted people, which was despatched from a distant station by a courier with dog-sleds. The epidemic was checked with but few cases that proved fatal. The government was so appreciative of his services that it granted him a leave of absence of a year.

Dr. Welch and Mrs. Betcher are cousins of Mrs. Hurlbut.

BLIND SINGERS GAVE ENJOYABLE ENTERTAINMENT

A large audience showed great appreciation of the musical talents of John and Mary McCay, the blind entertainers, who appeared Wednesday evening at Odd Fellows hall in their varied programme that included solos and duets, with humorous recitations by Mr. McCay.

Miss McCay's sweet, soprano and her brother's clear baritone made their solo numbers most satisfactory and their voices blended finely in the duets. All their singing was marked with sympathetic feeling and their numbers were applauded with enthusiasm.

The programme was given as follows:

Piano duet, "Norma" (Bayer), Bellini; vocal duet, "How Beautiful is Night," Richards, Mr. and Miss McCay; soprano solo, "Killarney," Balfe, Miss McCay; humorous song, "A Jolly Good Laugh"; Thomas, Mr. McCay; piano solo, "Amoroso," Eghart, Miss McCay; baritone solo, "The Bells of St. Mary's," Rodney, Mr. McCay; duet, (humorous), "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," a domestic quarrel, Mr. and Miss McCay; comic character song, selected, Mr. McCay; piano solo, "The Last Hope," Gottschalk, Mr. McCay; vocal duets (a) "Has Sorrow Thy Young Days Shaded," Moore, (b) "The Minstrel Boy," Moore, (Arranged by Mr. and Miss McCay); baritone solo, "Off to Philadelphia," B. Haynes, (Adapted from an old Irish melody) Mr. McCay; specimens of "Irish Wit and Humor," Mr. McCay; soprano solo, selected, Miss McCay; piano duet, "Radieuse," Gottschalk, Mr. and Miss McCay; impersonations, "The Aristocrat Who Lisps, Stammers and Blunders," "The Schoolboy's First Attempt to Recite a Poem," etc., Mr. McCay; vocal duet, "See the Pale Moon," Campani, Mr. and Miss McCay.

DENIES TWO MOTIONS IN SUIT OVER NOTES

The second day of the trial of the suit of Waterman & Wolfe, Inc. against Mary J. Rogers of New London, in which the plaintiff seeks to recover damages of $650 on two notes in the common pleas court at New London Wednesday by two motions, made by Attorney C. Hadlai Hull, counsel for the defendant, one for non-suit and one for striking out from the evidence the two notes, which he claimed were in his opinion materially altered. Both motions were denied by Judge Arthur PJ Libby, but not until lengthy arguments had been given by the attorneys, while the jury was excluded.

Attorney Hull and Attorney Philip Z. Hankey, counsel for the plaintiff, tilted all morning. The former, in his motion for non-suit, argued that Owens C. Wolfe, in assuming and paying the notes personally, thereby made a situation whereby the corporation had received its money for the notes and could not sue the defendant. He also argued that it was apparent that the notes, one for $200 and one for $300, had been materially altered and were therefore incompetent. When the judge denied the motion for non-suit following; Attorney Hankey's arguments, Attorney Hull then moved that the notes be stricken out of the evidence on theg rounds that no evidence had been introduced to show when why and by what authority alterations had been made on the notes. This motion was also denied.

Among the witnesses in court were H. Elsworth Rowland, accountant for Waterman & Wolfe, George B. Brest, vice president of the National Bank of Commerce, and the defendant.

The jury hearing the case consists of the following: Austin Sackett, New London; William E. Bracewell, Thomas W. Avery, Groton; Charles R. Johnson, George L. Babcock, John S. Chappell, Stonington; Frank Calvert, Montville; Joseph Hardwick, Bertis A. Brooks, Waterford; Fred H. Smith, Herman Smith, East Lyme and Claude DeWolf, Old Lyme.

Encouraging Holiday Trade

Although the rainy days of last week put a severe crimp in holiday business, the rush of trade during Saturday gave local merchants wonderful encouragement, in one section of a department store the manager got the surprise of his life, finding when he came to check up the day's profits that he was nearly $50 ahead of the same Saturday last year—and that was a pleasant day.

Money appears plenty, people are proving good spenders, high or low prices, goods are moving rapidly, so that there is a spirit of hope and confidence almost duplicating that of the Yuletide season of 1919, at the close of the war. Shopping early, too, is being done with very little urging needed.

Return From Near East

Having been engaged in Near East Relief work for nearly four years, Dr. and Mrs. John H. Evans, have returned from abroad, and at present are visiting Dr. Evans' mother, Mrs. Genie Evans of Court street.

NORWICH TOWN

Funeral services for Harry L. Sherman, Jr., were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Sherman of Harland Road, with a large attendance of relatives and friends.

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church conducted the service, assisted by Rev. Charles K. Tracy.

Mrs. Henry Church sang Safe in the Arms of Jesus and Some Time We'll Understand.

The room was banked with a profusion of beautiful floral pieces. Four uncles acted as bearers, John H. Sherman, Arthur L. Peale, Charles Twist, and Rev. Charles K. Tracy.

Burial took place in Maplewood cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Ricketts read the committal service. Undertaker C. A. Gager was in charge of the arrangements.

The net proceeds from the Christmas sale and supper, held under the auspices of the First Methodist Episcopal parish, and the Young People's Christian Endeavor society, Tuesday afternoon and evening, in the First Congregational chapel, amounted to $51.

The annual meeting of the Foreign Missionary society, of the First Congregational church, was held Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock in the chapel.

Reports were submitted and approved and the election of officers, some of whom were re-elected, was as follows: President, Miss Susan C. Hyde; vice president, Mrs. Dwight W. Avery; secretary and treasurer, Miss Jennie M. Case; secretary for the Missionary Herald, Miss Louise Hyde; secretary for the Home League, Mrs. Charles E. Reeves; junior lookout, Miss Jessie C. Hyde. The cradle roll leader, is to be chosen later.

Several items of interest concerning missionary work, were brought before the meeting.

Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey gave a very interesting report of her experiences while in Washington, D. C., during October, when attending the National Council of Congregational churches to which Rev. Mr. Bailey was one of the three official delegates from the New London association of Congregational Churches and Ministers.

Callers Wednesday afternoon at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb of Town street, included Dr. and Mrs. John H. Evans, who returned recently from nearly four years commission in Near East relief work, also Harry Hall of New Jersey, who likewise has been engaged in this work as superintendent of agriculture, during the same period. Mr. Hall, who for the past eighteen months was located in the same house with Dr. and Mrs. Evans returned to America with them, thence to Norwich, and is their guest at the home of Dr. Evans mother, Mrs. Genie Evans of Court street.

Rev. J. Eldred Brown, pastor of Trinity Episcopal church, Norwich, and that church choir, will have charge of the Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms.

When the mock trial, "The Abduction of Daisy White," was presented before a very large audience on a recent evening in the Norwich Town chapel, under the auspices of the Men's forum of the First Congregational church it met with such approval by the public that this company of amateur players has been requested by the people of Versailles, to put the production on there, at some future date.

The men who will help in the singing at the Community Christmas tree at the Norwich Town green, Christmas Eve, have been requested to meet for a brief rehearsal at the chapel of the First Congregational church at Norwich Town, Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Thomas Moore and Charles Costules, of Norwich Town, were business callers in New London, Monday afternoon.

"ORGANIZATION" FACTION WINS DEMOCRATIC CONTEST

Thomas J. Spellacy Was Elected National Committeeman by Vote of 46 to 22—James J. Walsh Chosen Chairman of State Central Committee 38 to 29—The Elections of Vice Chairman and Member to Succeed Miss Caroline Ruutz-Rees Were Defrarred Until the Next Meeting—The Elections Were Held in Executive Session.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 10—(AP)—Thomas J. Spellacy, of Hartford, and James J. Walsh, of Meriden, candidates of the "organization" faction, were elected national committeeman and chairman of the central committee, respectively, at the meeting of the state democratic central committee here today.

The election of a member of the democratic national committee to succeed Miss Caroline Ruutz-Rees, of Greenwich, whose resignation is effective on December 31, and of the state vice-chairman to succeed Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, of Columbia, were deferred until the next meeting of the committee which will probably be held in January. The resignation of Edward M. Yeomans, of Andover, as state chairman, was accepted and Mrs. Welch presided until Walsh was elected.

Spellacy, a former assistant United States attorney general, who was opposed by former Civil Service Commissioner Thomas Hewes, of Farmington, candidate of the "anti-organizationists," succeeds Homer S. Cummings, of Stamford, resigned. He received 46 votes to his opponents' 22, two of the seventy votes authorized not being cast.

In the fight for state chairman, the vote of the "organizationists" dropped eight, Walsh receiving 38 to 29 cast for Comptroller Peter FitzHenry, of Waterbury. One vote was cast for Charles Morris, of New Haven.

The elections were held in executive session, only members of the committee or their proxies being admitted. A luncheon preceded the business session.

The advance predictions that the "organization" forces would poll 33 votes in the elections exceeded by two the number this faction polled for the election of Spellacy and by ten the number forecast for the state chairman. The 22 "left the inaugurals" was correct in the balloting for national committeeman, but was short by seven in the number for state chairman.

Thomas McKone, of Hartford, nominated Spellacy, another fellow-townsman. John Kennedy, seconded the nomination and Michael Connors also of Oxford, spoke at length in behalf of the "organization" candidate.

Hewes was nominated by Dr. Edward G. Bolan, of South Manchester and seconded by John Cornell, of Bridgeport.

Mayor David FitzGerald, of New Haven and John McDonough, of Naugatuck, engaged in a verbal tilt during the election of the state chairman At the conclusion of a stirring speech for Walsh in which Mayor FitzGerald had alluded to a meeting of a subcommittee which could not agree on candidates for the state chairmanship McDonough arose with an objection that the veracity of a member of the committee had been questioned by the New Haven mayor.

Mayor FitzGerald explained to McDonough that the latter had been mistaken in his interpretation of the mayor's words. The matter was concluded with the statement by McDonough that his "veracity had been questioned before, but never successfully."

William R. Palmer, of Oxford and Frank Malone, of Meriden, also spoke in behalf of Walsh. The former dwelt upon the high spots in Walsh's life, telling how he became a "printer as did Benjamin Franklin," and then a newspaper reporter and later entered politics. He pointed out how he had been a friend of the late Tom Riley and had been back of Riley in all of his campaigns, being responsible for Riley's election as high sheriff.

Saying that the head of the state committee should be a man who had a well trained and well ordered mind, he asserted that Walsh is "that man" While Walsh was internal revenue collector for Rhode Island, and Connecticut, $111,000,000 in income taxes was collected, he said.

McDonough took the floor in behalf of FitzHenry, saying that he was not allied to any faction. Asserting that there was a great sentiment among democrats in the state for a change in the governorship of the party," he said that the man needed at its head "is one in whom the party has confidence and one not too closely related to the old regime." The place to look for such a man is in a democratic stronghold such as Waterbury, he claimed.

"The democrats of Connecticut will be satisfied with the election of Spellacy," he said, continuing that if the committee wished to keep the democrats satisfied and "have them climb on the band wagon we must give them a change" in the state leadership."

"Under different conditions," he continued, "I would vote for Walsh, but now it would be a fatal error to put him in."

Malone took up the plea for the support of Walsh, and reviewed the latter's success in Meriden campaigns He summed up his faction's candidate as a "worker, a tireless worker" and one who could "give all the time needed to the office."

The nomination of FitzHenry was seconded and Mrs. Hayden, of Waterbury, spoke in behalf of the Waterbury man.

Then Mayor FitzGerald began his address.

"I have no quarrel with Waterbury," he said. "You ought not to have," a grey-haired democrat who had been put out of the meeting with several others including newspapermen when the committee members decided to make "it an executive session," remarked as the mayor's voice reached those outside the door.

The mayor, who had not heard this, continued with a strong plea for party loyalty and a united party.

"I stand for the democrats of Connecticut," he said. "I have given the party the best in me and I hold my head high when told my party is not ahead of any man." He said that he had no objection to Spellacy and again appealed for party harmony.

While McDonough and Mayor FitzGerald were engaged in their disagreement over "the veracity of a committee member," someone within the room asked that the door leading to the hall be closed. It was and for a short time the "exchanges within" were muffled.

The election of Walsh soon followed, and the new chairman was ushered in to place with an ovation. After the meeting again got under way, a motion was made that the meeting continue "in executive session" and "those not belonging" left the room.

The resignation of Mrs. Welch as vice chairman was accepted. The resignation of Miss Ruutz-Rees was read, but action on its acceptance was deferred until the next meeting of the committee.

John H. Crary, of Waterbury reported that the Waterbury delegation had no candidate to offer for vice chairman, and the filling of this office was postponed. After the election of Walsh, it had been proposed that the Waterbury committeemen put forth a candidate for the vice-chairmanship.

Mrs. Alice Mooney, who with Town Clerk Dora Egan, had been mentioned as a possible "organization" candidate for this office, said after the meeting that it had been offered to her indirectly. She said that she would give her staunchest support to Spellacy.

CRITICISM UP METHODS OF INTERNAL REVENUE BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Sharp criticism of the methods of the internal revenue bureau in handling the tax cases of the Gulf Oil corporation, the Standard Oil company of California, and the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation was made in testimony before a senate investigating committee made public today with its presentation to the senate.

Counsel and engineers employed by the committee charged that:

The government lost a total of $4,-90,356 in taxes from the Gulf Oil corporation from 1916 to 1919 at the time Secretary Mellon held a large interest in it.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair and the solicitor of the bureau had been defied by division chiefs in the efforts to settle the Standard Oil of California case, involving $3,378,000 in taxes directly and $25,000,000 indirectly.

The Sinclair Oil corporation had been able to obtain delay after delay in the settlement of its tax cases with a result that as yet it was not closed for the year 1916.

Charges also were made that the tax cases of S. G. Kennedy and T. A. Springer, who made a profit of $6.-000,000 on the sale of Oklahoma oil lands in 1916, was "kicked around from pillar to post until the statute of limitations ran and no tax was assessed against that profit."

Before Chairman Couzens submitted the testimony, his committee met and decided to send its complete findings to the treasury for criticism and comment before filing them with the senate, probably some time next month. With the submission of that report, the senate inquiry into the internal revenue bureau began more than a years ago will be finally closed.

OPPOSED TO ANY FORM OF FEDERAL INHERITANCE TAX

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—President Coolidge and congress were petitioned today to abandon immediately any form of federal inheritance tax and to "find a way to return to the 48 states dominion over their own affairs."

The petition, drawn by unofficial representatives of the legislatures of ten states, declared that freedom of action of state governments "is being gradually but vitally limited by and through certain legislative policies of congress." It was addressed, in addition to the president and congress, to the people of the states, who were urged to join in the appeal.

The provision in the new tax bill now before congress allowing up to 80 per cent. credit in computing federal inheritance taxes on account of similar levies actually paid to any state was attacked in the resolution adopted by the conference as the most far-reaching piece of legislation ever proposed "to take from the states the real ear marks of sovereignty—their rights to levy and collect taxes for the support and maintenance of their own departments."

DARROW AND LENROOT TO DEBATE WORLD COURT TONIGHT

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Clarence Darrow, Chicago lawyer, is to take the negative side in a debate tomorrow night on the question of entrance of the United States into the world court, it was announced today by Lewis Fox, hairman of the committee on arrangements at Princeton university. His opponent will be Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin.

The debate is being held on the opening night of the world court students' conference at Princeton. Mr. Darrow takes the place of Senator Brookhart who reported today that he would be unable to appear because of an appointment with the secretary of state at Washington.

HONEST MOVIE ADVERTISER LOST 400 OF HIS CUSTOMERS

SHENANDOAH, Iowa, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Check-up on attendance of a moving picture theatre here after its owner, C. J. Latta, advertised a warning to patrons that the feature picture was "one of the weakest" he had seen revealed that at least 400 customers stayed away.

Ordinarily 500 attended each night, but despite Mr. Latta's warning that he did "not want to obtain money under false pretenses" as the picture was not so good as the advance notices had indicated, 100 persons were present. He did this as a policy of honest advertising, he said, expressing the belief that his plan would pay in the long run.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Condition of Kipling Unchanged.

BURWASH, England, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The condition of Rudyard Kipling was announced tonight again as unchanged. He is now in the twelfth day of the disease, broncho pneumonia, and his strength is understood to have been fairly well maintained.

Report on Italian Debt

ROME, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The report of Professor De Stefani, former finance minister, in behalf of the committee which has been examining the bill to ratify the debt agreement between Italy and the United States, was distributed in the chamber tonight. The chamber was urged to ratify the agreement, which was pronounced by Professor De Stefani as satisfactory, as the actual capacity of Italy to pay had been equitably considered and the economic situation of the country had been taken into account.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS NON-PARTISAN ASSOCIATION

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 10—(AP)—A severe arraignment of the backwardness of the United States in world peace cooperation, was made here tonight by Mrs. Frank Day Tuttle, of New York, speaking before the annual conference dinner of the Connecticut branch of the League of Nations Non-Partison association, at the Stratfield. Mrs. Tuttle, an internationally known speaker, who is chairman of the executive committee of the Greater New York branch of the association, declared at the start of her address that a person returning from Geneva was immediately struck with the depths of ignorance in this country concerning foreign affairs.

The dinner was held at the hotel following a business session, and was presided over by George J. Bassell, of New Haven, who had just been reelected president of the state branch.

George J. Bassell, of New Haven, was reelected president of the branch at the business meeting in the Stratfield this afternoon. Sanford Stoddard, of Bridgeport, was selected first vice president; Chase Kimball, of New Haven, secretary, and John M. Hincks of Bridgeport, reelected treasurer.

The board of directors appointed by recommendation of the nomination committee headed by Mrs. Ansell G Cook, of Hartford includes members in all parts of the state as follows: Bridgeport, John S. Pullman, Mrs. James T. Rourke; Mrs. Andrew R. Smith, Sanford Stoddard, Robert G. DeForest, A. W. Burritt and Dr. A. A. Paine; Columbia, Mrs. Fannie D. Welsh; Greenwich, Mrs. Emerson Newell, Caroline Ruutz-Rees, Rogers S Baldwin, Henry H. Adams, Archer Brown, and Clarkson A. Collins, Jr. Hartford, Mary Taylor Blakeslee, Willis R. Butler, Mrs. George P. Chandler and Mrs. Angell G. Cook, Harrison B. Freeman, Mrs. Frank G. Summer Mrs. Hiram Percy Maxim, R. B. Riggs Mrs. Paul P. Sweet, Mrs. Ralph Barrow, and Mrs. H. E. DeForest, Henry W. Farnum, Irving Fisher, George Herbert Gray, Leonard S. Horner, Mrs. Florence L. C. Kitchell, Walter Perry, T. Lawson Riggs, Leslie H. Thompson, Isaac N. Ullman Mrs. Josepha Whitney, C. E. Wilson, Wilson H. Lee, Eliot Watrous and Sidney S. Tedesche; Norwich, Archibald Mitchell.

WETHERSFIELD PRISONER STABS ANOTHER INMATE

HARTFORD, Dec. 9—(AP)—Agostino Tinti, a lifer at the state's prison at Wethersfield, stabbed Thomas Quigley, of New Haven, another prisoner, with an improvised knife while marching in line from the cell house to the work shop this afternoon. While Quigley's wound is serious it was reported tonight it is not expected to result fatally.

The act is the second attack by Tinti on a fellow prisoner since his sentence to the prison in 1917 from New Haven for second degree murder. He attacked a fellow prisoner in a similar manner in 1921 and at that time was transferred to the insane ward. He was sent back to the cell house after a few months when his mental condition was considered normal.

Unless Quigley dies, Tinti will not be presented in court for his act, prison officials said. He will, however, be subjected to prison discipline and will be examined tomorrow by Drs. Percy T. Battey, and Frederick T. Simpson to determine his mental condition. The life sentence bars charges other than first degree murder, it was said.

Quilgey's condition does not yet allow questioning and Tinti has refused to give the reason for his attack on his fellow prisoner, the officials say.

Quigley has been at the prison since 1921 when he was given a sentence of from eight to fourteen years in 1921, for burglary while armed.

An air bureau for the department of commerce was recommended by the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

WOULD WELCOME STUDY OF INDUSTRIAL SITUATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Members of a number of industrial associations and trade organizations meeting today in a conference on government industry, were told by Secretary Hoover that the government would welcome a sane study on the whole question.

The conference was called to consider plans for a permanent organization to oppose what was described in resolutions adopted today as the encroachment of municipal, county, state and federal government upon private enterprise.

Dr. Charles M. Wilson, 42, a practicing physician of Salem, Mass., since 1914, dropped dead in his office.

No Fuel Emergency Exists in This State

Gov. Trumbull States There Should Be No Cause For Alarm Because of Shortage of Hard Coal.

HARTFORD, Dec. 10—(AP)—Governor Trumbull finds that no fuel emergency or crisis exists in this state. In a statement issued today, he declared that the fuel problems should cause no alarm and that the shortage of hard coal caused by the existing strike should not bring about suffering.

His statement is as follows:

"The shortage of hard coal caused by the existing strike in the anthracite fields need bring about no suffering in the state of Connecticut. I do not believe that a fuel emergency or crisis exists in this state. Our fuel problems should cause no alarm.

"Indeed, if the present strike serves to teach the people of Connecticut how to use alternates for hard coal, it may be a blessing in disguise. Unfortunately, however, in many instances it may cause some inconvenience.

"There is an abundance of low volatile, semi-bituminous coal available. This comes in two forms. The first is known as 'run-of-mine', which means as it comes from the mines without screening. The other form is known as 'prepared sizes.' The run-of-mine is of equal quality and sells at a lower price, but does require somewhat more care in burning. The prepared sizes of semi-bituminous coal are more expensive and easier to burn. There is also available coke, with the use of which most people are familiar. It is easy to burn and is a satisfactory fuel, but costs about the same as anthracite coal.

"The coal merchants and consumers of Connecticut, however, are facing a special problem. Semi-bituminous coal is more difficult to handle and deliver than anthracite coal. The coal yards are equipped to handle hard coal. When the first cold snap arrives, it will be impossible for the coal merchants to deliver fuel as fast as it will be needed. Unless there is public co-operation, suffering may result.

"I therefore urge upon the people of Connecticut, with the strongest emphasis, to buy at once a sufficient supply of alternates for hard coal to meet such an emergency. Especially should this be done by those who can afford to buy now. This immediate purchase of fuel will relieve the congestion which might result in suffering to the needy who are compelled to buy from hand to mouth. In ordering semi-bituminous coal the buyer should exercise care to specify 'semi-bituminous, low volatile, smokeless coal.' The public is cautioned against purchasing 'high volatile, caseous coal' for domestic purposes.

"There is being installed in Connecticut through the agency of the coal merchants, the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut a series of demonstration stations, where anyone may go and learn how to burn alternates for hard coal. Local coal merchants will advise applicants where these stations are located. The various local chambers of commerce and manufacturers' associations, are also co-operating in the general plan of education.

"I shall also issue and have distributed through the coal merchants, chambers of commerce, manufacturers' associations, city officials and the schools, a large supply of folders giving detailed instructions as to the proper use of low volatile, semi-bituminous coal under varying conditions. This is a part of the campaign of public education that is called for by the present shortage of hard coal.

"In co-operation with a committee representing the larger and more responsible coal merchants, I have taken steps to prevent profiteering during the present shortage. Any instance of an exorbitant charge for fuel should be reported to me. I will at once cause an investigation to be made. If the charge is sustained, the name of the dealer thus profiteering, will be published throughout the state, and such other steps taken as are within my power to protect the public.

"It is not within my province as governor of the state to advocate or discriminate against the use of any satisfactory type of fuel, but I do deem it proper to state that the biennial recurrence of a coal shortage due to labor difficulties in the anthracite field is becoming unbearable. It is a condition from which Connecticut should be emancipated. This emancipation cannot be effective, however, except by the co-operation of the people themselves.

"If the public will co-operate, there need be no more hardship from the anthracite coal shortage in Connecticut during the coming winter than occurs in any ordinary year. It is merely a problem of using common sense, taking a little pains, readjusting to changed fuel conditions and carrying on."

61 Miners Were Killed by Explosion

Fifteen Men Escaped Injury —Five Are in Hospital Suffering From Serious Burns.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 10.—(By The A. P.)—Sixty-one coal miners lost their lives today when a gas explosion occurred in the workings of Overton Mine, No. 2, of the Alabama Fuel and Iron Company, in the Cahaba fields south of Birmingham. Fifteen men escaped injury and five are in a hospital suffering from serious burns.

The identified bodies recovered so far are: Noris, chief mechanic and two negroes.

The injured: James Hess, foreman, James Patton and three negroes. The exulosion took place a short time after the day shift had started work at 8 o'clock. According to the mine superintendent, 108 men checked in. At the etime of the explosion, of the 31 in the mine at the time of the blast, 15 came forth unscathed and five were injured. The remainder are either known to be dead in the improvised morgue in the bath house or are still on lower levels.

Most of the lives were lost on the seventh level. Most of the bodies recovered have been from the sixth level.

Rescue workers who have returned to the surface many of them exhausted and struggling for breath, declare they hold no hope for any man still in the workings.

Willord Powell and Charles Edith members of one of the rescue squads, returned to the mine mouth early tonight, toppling over upon reaching fresh air. Hot coffee and oxygen revived them and they pleaded for another chance to attempt rescue work.

Powell and Edith declared the explosion had played havoc with the mine interior and that their progress had been rendered slow by the noxious odors.

"We could see men as we knew there in the mine, some leaning against the walls, others prone on the level," said Powell as he related the scenes attendant on the rescue work.

"From now on we must proceed cautiously to the lower levels. The seventh ledge is about 2,800 feet below the mouth of the mine."

Although the ventilating equipment of the Overton mine has not been damaged by the explosion the mine still contains a great volume of gas.

JOHN T. KING TESTIFIES IN ALIEN PROPERTY CASE

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—John T. King, former republican national committeeman from Connecticut, appeared again before the federal grand jury today to give testimony in the alien property investigation which recently resulted in the indictment of Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian.

Hiram C. Todd, special assistant United States attorney, who presented evidence to the grand jury which resulted in the indictment of Col. Miller, was not present when the jury resumed its investigation. When questioned he said he was out of the Miller case.

The new jury deliberation, it was reported, resulted from dissatisfaction on the part of the department of justice with the present status fo the case.

446 AUTO ACCIDENTS IN CONNECTICUT LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Four people were killed in four accidents which are included in the 446 piled up by motorists of the state last week, according to reports made to the state motor vehicle deparement. Two of the fatalities occurred in this city and the others were at Stamford and New Haven. Fourteen cities reported 316 of the total of minor accidents.

Hartford led all cities with 97; Bridgeport was second, with 48, and New Haven, third, with 38. Other reports were:

Waterbury, 22; New Britain, 31; New London, 9; Norwich, 6; Norwalk, 4; Greenwich, 12; Stamford, 15; Middletown, 5; Meriden, 11; Danbury, 7; Winsted, 1.

MISSING PHILADELPHIA GIRL FOUND IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Margaret Wood, 19-year-old daughter of a wealthy Philadelphia lumberman, who has been missing for more than a month, was found today living under an assumed name at a hotel here, police said she told them she had left home to seek artistic fame.

Her father, Edwin D. Wood, took the girl home a few hours after she was found. Since she disappeared November 7, she had been in New York, Lewiston, Me., and Boston.

LITTLE CONSIDERATION TO BE SHOWN THE REP. INSURGENTS IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—House republican insurgents—with one exception—were swept from the more important standing committee today by the republican committee on committees.

Representative Cooper of Wisconsin, although removed from his ranking position on the foreign affairs committee, was retained on its roll at the bottom of the republican list of members. Despite that he had been the candidate for speaker of the insurgent group, the republican leaders showed leniency in his case, it was explained, because of his long service in the house, of which he is, in his respect, the "dean."

Representatives Lampert and Nelson, of Wisconsin, the only members of the insurgent group who held chairmanships, were ejected from these offices, Representative Vestal, of Indiana, being named to succeed Mr. Lampert as head of the patents committee and Representative Vincent, of Michigan, being given Mr. Nelson's place on the elections committee.

Other members of the group affected by the committee assignments made today included Representatives Browne, Wisconsin, removed from the foreign affairs committee; Voight, Wisconsin, and Sinclair, North Dakota, taken from agriculture committe; Peavey, removed from the rivers and harbors committee; and Schneider, from the post office committee.

Representatives Nelson and Frear, of Wisconsin, were elected from the rules and ways and means committees, respectively, when these were organized some time ago.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut the republican floor leader, said the committee on committees by its action today, was carrying out the mandate of the republican caucus of last spring to remove supporters of the presidential candidacy of the late Robert M. La Follette from republican places on committees charged with the responsibility of carrying out the party's program.

Little opposition developed in the committee on committees, it was said, to carrying out this plan. Representative Tilson, however, announced that all members elected as republicans would be given assignments to committees. Organization of the minor committees on which the insurgents will be placed was left in the hands of a sub-committee.

SELF-PRESERVATION MUST DRIVE THE WORLD TO DISARM

Conclusion Reached by Lord Cecil, Great Britain's Representative to the League of Nations' Disarmament Council—Defines as Obstacles to Disarmament International Suspicion and Internal Friction of the Various Governmental Machines.

GENEVA, Dec. 10—(AP)—Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, Great Britain's representative on the league of nations disarmament council, basing his conclusions on a knowledge of the subject surpassed by that of no other living statesman, gave an interview to the Associated Press tonight. Summarizing in striking fashion the pitfalls to be encountered on the road to a solution of the disarmament problem and of the forces which justify a hope that after all this great issue will be grappled with successfully.

To estimate the prospects of disarmament, Lord Cecil said, would be a rash attempt at prophecy. But he expressed the belief that some observations might be made concerning the forces which seem likely to retard or accelerate the movement.

"Undoubtedly the chief obstacle to disarmament," he said, "is the want of security, due to historic suspicions and jealousies of nations and the consequent Chauvinistic forms of nationalism. Perhaps the chief merit of our recent agreements had been the diminution they have brought among some of the most important of European nations of this attitude of suspicion.

"Again, the growing strength and prestige of the league of nations is an important element toward security. The smoothness and rapidity with which the Greco-Bulgarian dispute was adjusted, and still more, the emphatic declarations of members of the council at Paris that a resort to violence as a means of settling international disputes is no longer to be tolerated among members of the league, show a remarkable growth of international good will.

When asked to define the domestic difficulties in the way of disarmament, Lord Cecil declared that next to international suspicion as an obstacle to disarmament he would put internal friction of the various government machines. He said the idea of disarmament is necessarily strange and unattractive to military and civil functionaries who have traditions of their own older than international relations.

"They still think it more important to keep their powder dry than to trust to God," Lord Cecil said.

He then emphasized the immense practical difficulties in the way of land and air disarmament, and explained that the technical problems of naval disarmament were comparatively simple, those of army matters being much more complicated. Mere numbers, he said, furnished no criterion of the strength of land forces.

Great Britain's disarmament representative revealed that the new preparatory commission for a disarmament conference, on which the United States will be invited to sit, will be organized almost immediately. Explaining that it is to arrive at a solution of all the problems already outlined that the league of nations was appointing its international commission of investigation, and that "it is hoped that the commission will be at work in the course of a very few weeks.

To the question, "Is the disarmament problem assuming an aspect permitting of greater optimism?" Lord Cecil answered: "I do not want to give the impression that the difficulties in the way of disarmament are insurmountable. On the contrary the forces in its favor are stronger than those against it. As Lord Grey rightly said, the world must disarm or perish. It is mere foolish optimism to believe that unless some definite limitation of armaments can be achieved we have any right to count on a permanent peace.

"Self preservation, efficiency and treaty obligations are three compelling motives which must drive the world to disarmament."

REPORT OF THE HOUSE AIRCRAFT COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Drastic reorganization of the national defense administration and the expenditure of $250,000,000 annually for the next five years to build up aviation were recommended today in a report agreed upon by the special house aircraft committe.

This report, in recommending, among other things, creation of a bureau of civil aeronautics, advanced a proposal also placed before congress today from another source—the annual report of the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

President Coolidge, in a letter accompanying the advisory committee's report, declared a statement by the committee that "America is at least abreast of other progressive nations in the technical development of aircraft for military purposes" should "dispel the impression" that this country is lagging in this respect.

The house committee proposed creation of a department of national defense, which would supplant the present war and navy departments, but would not necessarily give aviation a co-equal status with land and sea armaments. Its recommendations were concurred in by all members, but Representative Reid, republican, Illinois, courtmartial counsel for Colonel William Mitchell, will file a supplemental brief advocating a unified air service.

Need for development of commercial aviation, urged by both the house committee and the national advisory committee, was further stressed during the day by the introduction of a bill by Chairman Parker of the house commerce committee, based on similar recommendations made by the president's special air board.

Other recommendations of the house committee called for a separate budget and one procurement agency for all aviation activities; increased air service representation on the army general staff and navy general board, destruction of unsafe airplanes now on hand, maintenance of an adequate air reserve, increased promotion opportunities and commensurate pay for air service officers, and government aid in establishing airways and air ports.

NO NEW ACTION TAKE IN THE RHINELANDER CASE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 10—(AP)—The grand jury which is investigating the alleged jury tampering in the Rhinelander annulment suit adjourned today without taking any action. District Attorney Rowland of Westchester county said, however, that he would summon additional witnesses and have more evidence when it reconvened next Tuesday. He declined to reveal whom he would call.

"Regardless of what happens," said District Attorney Rowland after the grand jury had adjourned, "the Rhinelander case will not be affected. There will be no mistrial and the verdict can not be set aside on this count."

Dr. J. C. Bennett, a Yonkers physician, and Frederick G. Sanford, Juror No. 4 in the Rhinelander suit, were each questioned for fifteen minutes today. An interview with Sanford in a newspaper in which he was quoted as saying that he had been approached during the trial by Dr. Bennett and other citizens led to the grand jury inquiry. Neither today could remember their conversation in detail, and Sanford said it caused no particular thought about the case.

TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY OF WOODROW WILSON

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Plans for a country wide celebration of Woodrow Wilson's birthday on December 28 were announced today by Norman H. Davis, president of the National Commemoration committee. The plans involve simultaneous dinners in approximately 500 cities including Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston and Portland, Me.

Many a man never fails because he never tries.

ARMY AIR SERVICE TROUBLES BARED IN MITCHELL TRIAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—More army air troubles were bared today before the Mitchell court martial and much blame for them laid at the doors of the war department and upon the administration's economy program.

At the same time, the court took steps to speed the trial to a conclusion. It placed a ban on the presentation of cumulative evidence and refused to hear the prosecution's proposed examination of Major General Charles T. Menoher, former army air service chief, who had been brought across the continent from San Francisco to tell about organization of the service.

At the court's direction, Colonel Sherman Moreland, trial judge advocate, cut short his questioning of General Menoher, and he was given permission to return to his post a few minutes after he had taken the stand. Before he was excused, however, Representative Frank R. Reid of Illinois chief of the defense counsel, turned the tables on the prosecution and made the general a witness for the defense.

Recalling the testimony given yesterday by Howard C. Rath, of Los Angeles, Calif., that bad weather seriously interfered with bombing raids during the St. Mihiel drive in the World War and caused the smashes of five or more airplanes, Mr. Reid asked General Menoher who commanded a brigade of infantry nearby, what the weather conditions had been at that time. The general replied that they had been "very wet," and the defense counsel asked if he had cited another squadron, stationed near the group in which Mr. Rath was serving, for "excellent work," receiving an affirmative answer.

Then General Menoher was excused.

MIDDLE HADDAM LANDMARK WAS DESTROYED BY FIRE

EAST HADDAM, Conn., Dec. 10—(AP)—A large farm house owned by George H. Gleason, and one of the land marks of the Middle Haddam section, together with its contents, and several smaller buildings nearby, were destroyed by fire today. The Gelston family was attending a meeting of the Pomona grange in Clinton, at the time. The origin of the fire is not known and the loss on estimated at $20,000.

A heavy wind was blowing but it was not in the direction of the large barns and these were not in danger. The barns contained many head of cattle, a large quantity of hay and farming tools.

The fire was discovered by Miss O'Toole, a school teacher, who boarded at the Gelston home. The school is about a mile away from the home and stopping a passing automobile, she rushed to the house, broke open the front door and saved a valuable seal skin coat hanging in the front hall. Everything else in the house was burned.

The house was built by Chalkey Ackley in 1731, and had been owned by the Ackley and Gelston families since then. The present owner is the great grandson of the builder.

ARE TO STUDY PROPOSAL TO HARNESS THE TIDES

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Dexter P. Cooper, Inc., civil engineers interested in the proposal to harness the tides of the Bay of Fundy, announced today that application had been made by them to the federal power commission for a three year license to study the project and make preliminary arrangements.

Mr. Cooper has spent many years working on this super-power plan and the Maine legislature has passed a bill giving authority for the project. Part of the plan calls for the damming of Passamaquoddy and Cobscook bays. The former would be flooded at every high tide and the latter emptied at ebb tide. The bays are connected.

Power would be furnished New England cities at a low rate, the proponents of the scheme believe.

CASE CONTINUED FOR WILLIMANTIC FIGHTERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 10.—Timothy McCruhan, of 80 Union street and Charles Buckingham, of 26 Oak street, former operatives of the American Thread company and Theodore Ogden, a present employe of the company, were arraigned in police court this morning, each charged with assault and breach of the peace. All entered pleas of not guilty and the cases were continued until Monday morning at the request of Prosecuting Attorney Gaucher who sought to secure further evidence, and summon additional witnesses. Bonds of $100 in each case were furnished.

The men figured in a fistic battle at Thread Mill square, about 5 o'clock Wednesday evening, as the thread plant was closing and the workers started homeward. William T. Turner, of 1343 Main street, the principal witness examined, said that he was waiting for a Mr. James who had an automobile in which he was to give him a ride. While waiting, he was standing in front of the Casey block, at Thread Mill square. McCruhan came along and pushed him with his shoulder with such force that he stumbled to the street. Turner stepped back on the sidewalk and asked his aggressor if he wanted the whole world. McCruhan's reply was in the form of two blows directed at Turner which the latter dodged and then in turn struck at McCruhan, knocking him down. Then Buckingham came along, according to Turner, and struck him in the face. Turner states that he then stepped into a nearby store and when he came out again Ogden and McCruhan were engaged in a pitched battle. On cross-examination Turner said that he had never spoken directly previously to McCruhan but that the latter had warned him when the plant reopened several months ago that he would get him. Turner said that he had known Buckingham for a number of years. Milton James said that he was sitting in his automobile some distance away and that he saw some of the fight but not the beginning of it. The case was then ordered continued. When Chief of Police McArthur and Officre Grant Bombria arrived at the scene of the fight they found McCruhan standing in the middle of a crowd and bleeding from lacerations over one eye and about the face. It was learned that the crowd had just witnessed a series of three bouts the preliminary being that of McCruhan versus Turner, the semi-finale Buckingham versus Turner and the grand finale between McCruhan and Ogden. Ogden claims that McCruhan attacked him and he beat the man off to protect himself and his wife, who was walking with him. Ogden says that McCruhan grabbed hold of his wife and then the fur began to fly, with McCruhan being bested.

RALPH COLLINS HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 10.—Ralph Collins of 290 Main street, employed as a painter at the American Thread Company mills was arrested about four o'clock this afternoon by Chief of Police Allan McArthur on a warrant made out by Prosecuting Attorney H. S. Gaucher and charging him with criminal assault. The case is expected to take on serious developments at a hearing which will be given Collins in police court Friday morning. Although the police were not in a position to give out the exact nature of the charges which Collins will face it is believed that the assault was a felonious one committed against a female child. Collins is not a new visitor at police headquarters. Some months ago he was arraigned on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and on another occasion his machine struck and killed a child in Willington.

CHRISTMAS CLUB MONEY AMOUNTED TO OVER $50,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 10.—Fifty-thousand dollars was distributed to 1,400 members of the local Chrisamas club this year, making just exactly that number of local people feel that they had just "found" whatever sum of money had been saved in the club during the year. This money will go into various sources. Considerable of it will be applied toward Christmas buying, some will be retained for a rainy day, including the straightened condition of pocketbooks immediately after the holidays. Still other parts of the money have already or will be transferred into a regular savings account, many members who had never held an account having learned, through the Christmas club, the wisdom of saving part of their weekly earnings.

FINE ENTERTAINMENT FOR SOCIAL CORNER CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 10—Club No 1, of the Bulleti Social Corner, met in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Dec. 9th., with an attendance of 130. Mrs. Cora Nye, of Willimantic, and Mrs. Ella Weaver, of Norwich Town with their helpers, Mrs. Arthur Fulton, of Norwich Town, Mrs. Mary Dimock, Miss Mabel Dimock; Mrs. Ida Williams, Mrs. Mary Russ, Mrs. Elnor Benner, Mrs. Olga Houselined, Miss Bertha Dunick, Miss Ellen Simpson and Miss Mary Webster, of Willimantic, served a dinner of clam chowder, salads, beans, rolls, squash, apple and mince pies, cake and coffee.

The program following the dinner with Mrs. Charles Lamb, leader, and Miss Hattie Coombs, of South Coventry, at the piano, consisted of a duet by Mrs Alice Bathom, of Mansfield Depot, and Mrs. Ella Nye Perkins and readings by Mrs Francis and Mrs Allen, of Scuthington. A vegetable orchestra by the dinner committee was very amusing as the instruments were mostly of vegetables with musical prices attached. Costumes were unique for this act. As they marched around the room playing and waving the banner of club No. 1, they lined up in the middle of the room and played several pieces, and all joined in singing America.

As each member was asked to bring something pleasing to a child, to be donated to the Welfare bureau, of which Miss Anderson is in charge, there was a fine collection of Christmas gifts. These were handed over to Miss Anderson, who expressed thanks to the members for their generosity.

Albert Benoit, 38, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Benoit of this city, died Thursday morning, in Hartford, where he had been ill for some time. He was born in this city and to many friends was known as "Count" Benoit. While a resident of this city he was city champion in pocket billiards and when he removed to Hartford several years ago perfected his playing ability. One year ago he was runner-up in the tournament for the state championship. Besides his wife he leaves two sisters, Mrs. Laura Chaing, of Hartford and Mrs. William J. Ryan, of West Virginia; and four brothers, Oliva of Hartford, Ernest and Leopold of Detroit, Mich., and Romeo Benoit of this city.

Charles Clark, of Montreal, Canada, a native of East Hampton, where he resided for many years, died in Vancouver, British Columbia, where he had gone on a business trip, recently. Burial is to be in East Hampton. The deceased was quite well known in this city and was a cousin of Mrs. P. S. Hillis, of The Ridges.

Colonel Orville A. Petty, of New Haven, addressed the members of the Brotherhood of the First Congregational church at the meeting and supper held in the church house Thursday evening.

Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, of the First Congregational church, was the speaker at the meeting of the Men's club, of the Methodist church, held Wednesday evening, with thirty covers laid for a turkey dinner. Rev. Wheelock's subject was, "Relation of the Church to Politics and the Government." Othre brief talks were given by W. C. Norris, Arthur E. Morrill, Channing H. Morrill, J. A. Rainville and the pastor, Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead. Favorite old songs were rendered by the group. Mrs. Walter H. Griggs was chairman of the supper committee and she was assisted by Mrs. E. F. Cross, Mrs. E. J. Hanson and the waitresses, the Misses Ethel Simonds, Irene Randall and Alice Hanson and Mrs. Raymond Herrick. Francis W. Perkins and Charles Goodrich were elected to membership in the club.

One case of scarlet fever and one case of measles were reported to the state department of health, from this city, in the weekly morbidity report for the week ending December 5. Announcement was made that a "well-child" conference will be held in the public library in South Coventry next Monday afternoon from two to four o'clock.

Edward F. Casey has brought civil action against Octave Mahue for the recovery of an alleged outstanding bill. The case will be heard before Justice of the Peace S. E. Harvey. Damages of $100 are claimed.

Miss Mary Magnell, a member of the Aeolin Harp Ensemble group, which will appear in South Manchester soon, is a niece of Rev. O. T. Magnell, formerly a curate of St. Joseph's parish here and the daughter of Alfred E. Magnell, also well known in this city.

The honor roll for the second marking period at Windham High school, which closed last Friday, contains the names of 163 pupils, approximately one-third of the total number being seniors, according to an announcement by Principal Egbert A. Mayor-elect John C. Tracy and A. Linn Weatherhead were guests at the regular weekly meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club, held Wednesday evening, with President Dr. C. E. Simonds in charge. As president of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Weatherhead spoke briefly on the program of that organization for the year and thanked the service club for its assistance in the work. Individual contributions were made to the Near East Relief fund.

Frank Rousseau was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace in police court Thursday morning, having been arrested Wednesday night, by Officer Orlando, on complaint of Mrs. Rousseau, that her husband had created a disturbance while visiting her apartment, in the Sadd block, on Main street. Rousseau denied that he was under the influence of liquor, stating that he went to visit his daughter in compliance with an agreement reached between himself and his wife when they separated. Admonishing him to be careful of his behavior in the future, Judge Foss suspended sentence and ordered the accused to pay the costs in the case.

The following roster of officers were elected at a meeting of the Sunday school board of the Methodist Episcopal church, held last Tuesday evening: Superintendent Walter H. Parkhurst; assistant superintendent, Mrs. Albert D. Spellman; secretary, Howard K. Mrs. John D Stoughton won first prize for the ladies and Merton Waterman, first men's prize at a whist held at the G. A. R. hall, Wednesday evening, by Francis S. Long Woman's Relief corps. Second prizes went to Mrs T. J. Connolly and Fred K. Manley and consolations to Mrs. James H. Aspinwall and Frank Anthony.

The circulation of books from the public library for November broke the record for all previous months in the history of the library, a total of 5,347 books having been circulated in 23 days according to Librarian Mrs Terry. Children's Book Week was from November 9 to 14 and during that time 1,024 books were circulated among children.

A sale of antiques collected from all parts of the state was well attended, brought forth much high bidding, when conducted here, Thursday, by W. E. Macfarlane.

Business was light Thursday for State Policeman Edward E. Burnes, who was in this city to meet applicants for a motor vehicle driver's license.

The election of officers took place at the regular meeting of the W. B. A. of the Maccabees, held at the Al-Pierre Taharin, Tuesday evening. The results: Commander, Mrs. Frank P. Lombardo lieutenant commander, Agnes Bocash; past commander, Ida W. Grady; record keeper, Mary Veglard; finance keper, Mary Mathieu; reporter, Agnes Veglard; collector, Margaret Moran; chaplain, Iva LaValles; lady at arms, Celia Benoit; sergeant, Flora Robarge; sentinel, Jnes Howlett; picket, Nora Dillon. The officers will be installed at the next meeting. Those winning prizes at a whist which followed were: Mrs. Agnes Bocash, first, Mrs. William L. Crane, second, and Mrs Arthur Small, consolation. Gentlemen's prizes, J. Bocash, first, Henry Mathieu, second, and Daniel McCarthy, consolation.

Jacob Seigiebaum, who resided on Winter street, up to six weeks ago, went to Florida, and took a flyer in Florida real estate. He made good, according to a despatch in the Times-Union, issued in Jacksonville, Fla. The local man sold his local property and going to Florida purchased 160 acres of land fronting on the Dixie highway, sixteen miles north of Jacksonville. Today a development program entailing the installation of $500,000 worth of improvements is mapped out and Mr. Seigiebaum plans to place the tract on sale for home sites within the near future.

A brief business session was held during which the following officers were elected: President, Egbert A. Case; secretary, Miss Madeline Holmes; treasurer, James L. Harroun. During the remainder of the evening, games, radio music and dancing made up a delightful program. The executive committee in charge of the affair consists of R. L. Hahn, chairman, Mrs. Herbert B. Pollard, Miss M. E. Sanderson, Mrs. A. J. Oates, Miss Lucy Reddish, Miss Catherine H. Wheeler and Miss E. F. Wulet.

PRIZED FADED ROSE MORE THAN JEWELS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—A faded rose, contained in an ivory cigaret case, was the most prized object sought by the police today in their search for $1,200 of jewelry and personal trinkets stolen yesterday from Mrs. Amel Bingham, once one of the most popular actresses in New York, and now retired to the seclusion of her Riverside Drive house.

More concerned over its loss than all of her jewels, the actress is looking forward to the return of the faded rose, a memento of her husband, Lloyd Bingham, an actor, who died on the Ford peace ship in 1918. While the robbers, two young, well-dressed men, were looting a safe containing the rose and other objects, Mrs. Bingham was sitting, bound hand and foot, on a purse containing $30,000 in jewels, which were not discovered.

Bruce says it is high time to elect a President of the Catholic faith to show that the Democrats are not swayed by intolerance and religious bigotry.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, O. N. Johnson, 642 N Broad St., Philadelphia, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

NO DEARTH OF NOVELTIES FOR CHRISTMAS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—"There is nothing new under the sun," say the antiques in the windows of Fifth Avenue shops elbowing to one side the Christmas novelties. The sturdy old pewterers offer their lonest weight ahead of the thistledown charm of blown glass. Old ship models cry "Anchor away" to decorative fruit and flower pieces. And edging the sophisticated pearl and crystal strings off the green velvet mat, the ingenious, heavyset jewelry that mothers' mother wore tells itself to modern gallants for six times the price that grandfather sighed over as he paid.

So reported one who "did" the stores of the famous thoroughfare for the Associated Press today, admitting, however, that there was no dearth of novelties with their irresistible appeal to a large proportion of the hundreds of thousands who took advantage of the first real bright and snappy day of the winter season to begin their Christmas shopping.

But broadly and professionally speaking. This is the year of the antique gift. It is said by those who claim to know. And the "something new" for which many Christmas shoppers cry must be "something old." The rise of the interior decorator and the effort toward self-expression in the home is said by the experts to account largely for the growing taste for beautiful things of other ages.

"Pewters, pewters, everything is pewters for Christmas," say Fifth Avenue salesmen, staggering under the successive loads of urn-shaped lamps, many of them converted candle-sticks, of mugs, and wassail bowls, of mortar and pestle sets stained by the formulae of forgotten chemists.

"Ships' models—we can't get enough of them," said one. "The Plymouth Cantennial five years ago started people on the craze. And it has just about reached its height this Christmas season. The models have come down into the range of more buyers' prices."

So Spanish "San'a Maria" and her high, square stern, or "H. M. S. Dolphin" mounting 30 bronze cannon, or the bonny China clipper "Tea Queen" may sail full-rigged from her gallery ways to make by Christmas the snug harbor of a den's chimney piece. Door knockers, book-ends and lamp shields follow the trend, carrying images of frigates or barquent' – rtinted or carved on their surfaces.

Christmas decorations more important than those that hang on the tree, are the heavy gold-linked necklaces and bangles. The cameo earrings and brooches. The black onyx bars twining green enamel vines and dropping pearl grapes that mirror the antique fashion in jewelry. The dark, rich colorings of neglected birthstones return in chased or wrought silver settings—crimson garnet, green olivine, milky moon-stone, cat's eye, agate, aqua-marine.

"There never were much fascinating Christmas windows," cry Fifth Avenue shoppers, and the antiques laugh in the keys of their distant first Christmasses.

THE ANNUAL REPORT OF SECY OF TREASURY MELLON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Early accomplishment of a complete world-wide economic stabilization is foreseen by Secretary Mellon.

Both at home and abroad, the secretary declared in his annual report submitted to congress today, developments of the last year have been so satisfactory that "the way is now clear for a more complete world recovery." Mr. Mellon believed the underlying factors of the business situation here were fundamentally sound and "warrant optimism for future."

Reviewing the events which had influenced conditions for the better, he mentioned, with respect to the United States, restoration of confidence, tax reduction and reform, removal of various factors of uncertainty and instability, steady employment in farm and factory, and a generally augmented purchasing power.

Across the seas, he saw the improvement reflected by 11 foreign debt settlements here and a number of inter-allied funding arrangements, the return of a dozen nations to the gold standard, revival of industrial activity with its consequent employment, the reorganization of the currency systems of nearly all of the smaller powers, and the promised benefits of the Locarno agreement. All of these, he said, "lend support to the optimistic view regarding the economic rehabilitation of Europe."

Mr. Mellon suggested that the revision of taxes promised at this session of congress was feeding new stimulus to business, but he entered a complaint against exemptions proposed by the house ways and means committee These narrowed the foundation of the taxing system, he thought, declaring it should be broader if the tax program were to be successful in times of depression as well as in days of prosperity.

While the secretary saw no approaching cloud on the economic sky, he warned against expansion and speculative tendencies. The program of public economy has had its effect, as has the public debt retirement program, he said, but "there is some tendency for the consuming public to buy every conceivable commodity 'on time' and mortgage future earnings." On the other hand, he found business men conducting their efforts with restraint and caution in order that the prosperity may not bring on careless-

"It is hoped, furthermore," he added, "that the speculative tendency in real estate in some communities may not proceed to the point of undermining the spirit of caution in business."

Although Mr. Mellon was convinced that the promised tax reduction had added impetus to business plans, he counselled against too great a cut, declaring that some of the reductions advocated were dangerous and would involve the treasury in new borrowings He asserts that it was unsound for any nation not to reduce its outstanding obligations as rapidly as possible, and he regarded the good effects of the treasury's program in this respect as having been fully demonstrated.

"The country is prosperous now and well able to liquidate its debt at a reasonable rate," he continued. "That will gradually reduce the tremendous interest charges. The perpetuation of a large public debt has never proved to be a sound policy. On the contrary it has often been a great handicap in an emergency."

Mr. Mellon reviewed the department's work in enforcement of prohibition and expressed the belief that progress had been made in reducing the supply of illicit liquor through the reorganization directed by Assistant Secretary Andrews. He suggested that expansion of the coast guard was necessary if it were to continue efficient work in its dual capacity as a conserver of life and property and a guard against rum smuggling, and reiterated that the department's policy was to attack sources of supply rather than to attempt local police work.

With reference to funding of the foreign debts, Mr. Mellon reported "gratifying progress" and pointed to the 11 arrangements under which $7,-424,894,000 will be paid back to the United States. That leaves $4,699,365,-000 on which no action has been taken, including the $4,210,000,000 marked up on the treasury books against France. Mr. Mellon hoped that other settlements would be concluded soon but did not name any of the powers thus referred to. The treasury, he said, was "mindful" of the condition of the government's debtors and had granted liberal terms for the earlier years The amounts were made up in later years in each instance, he added, because the obvious recuperative powers of the nations assured that they would be able to meet their commitments then.

Included in the secretary's report was one by the American debt commission, of which he is chairman That report made mention of frequent press comment respecting refusal of the administration to sanction foreign loans here when the powers seeking new money had not funded their debts to this government.

"Early in 1925, after much consideration," the commission report said, "it was decided that it was contrary to the best interests of the United States to permit foreign governments which refused to adjust or make a reasonable effort to adjust their debts to the United States to finance any portion of their requirements in this country. States, municipalities, and private enterprises within the country concerned were included in the prohibition. Bankers consulting the state department were notified that the government objected to such financing. While the United States was loath to exert pressure by this means on any foreign government to settle its indebtedness, and while this country has every desire to see its surplus resources at work in the economic reconstruction and development of countries abroad, national interest demands that our resources be not permitted to flow into countries which do not honor their obligations to the United States and through the United States to its citizens."

TURKS QUIT COUNCIL ON MOSUL PROBLEM

GENEVA, Dec. 10—(AP)—No solution of the Mosul problem acceptable to Turkey can be found at the present session of the League of Nations council, Tewfik Rushdi Bey, the Turkish foreign minister, declared tonight. The Turkish delegation would not only refuse to accept any decision the council may make as arbiter under the world court opinion, but could not participate in any further deliberations of the council on the Mosul question.

Thus the threat made by Munir Bey, the Turkish minister to Switzerland, immediately after the council had accepted the world court verdict that it was empowered to make a binding and final decision has virtually become a reality. Rushdi Bey however, said that he would not leave Geneva immediately but would remain to see whether "some reasonable proposal along the lines of real mediation may be made."

He emphasized that the Turks were content that they had presented their case fully and clearly before world public opinion. He explained that even any mediation proposition must necessarily be taken up in consultation with the Angora government, and this would require so long, that it would not be possible to discuss the proposition before the adjournment of the council.

The announcement of the withdrawal of the Turks was presaged earlier in the day. When Rushdi Bey sent a letter to the council that the Turkish delegation would refuse to attend the session to discuss the report on Mosul submitted by General Laidener, of Esthonia, special agent of the league. The Turks, however, did not allow to pass unanswered General Laidener's declaration that the Turkish authorities were carrying out wholesale deportation of Christians, accompanied by atrocious violence and even massacre.

While not denying the charge, The Turkish delegation explained that deportations with violence were carried out against armed Nestorian Christians, who "had always agitated against Turkey."

Counter-charges were made that Moslems had been driven out of the territory provisionally held by the British and that many villages in the Turkish district had been devastated by British aerial bombardment.

UNEXPECTED WEALTH FOR COLCHESTER BUTCHER

COLCHESTER, Dec. 10—(AP)—Unexpected wealth came from a cash register which Tony Rutka, butcher, had repaired today. For some time he could not easily open the register and when it was opened it would not easily close. He was about to send it to New London for repairs, when Norman Hicks, of that city, who was in the store, offered to look over the register. With a screw driver he took off the back and out fell eight checks of face value of $160 dating from February 19, 1922, a five dollar bill and $4.85 in small change.

OPPOSITION TO THE TAX REDUCTION BILL IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Opposition to provisions of the tax reduction bill developed again today during another five-hours of debate on the measure in the house, but its friends on both parties fought off the scattering attacks.

Members of the ways and means committee, which drafted the bill so as to slash federal taxes by $325,-000,000 next year, again steered it through the day's discussion with words of approval.

Pointing to the non-partisan manner in which it was framed, various committee members urged its approval, although disagreeing personally with some of its provisions.

The fifty per cent. reductions in the maximum surtax and inheritance tax rates were the targets of attack by Representatives Frear, republican, Wisconsni, and Laguardia, socialist, New York, both of whom appealed to the democrats for support to increase these schedules.

Mr. Laguardia declared he would vote against the measure unless it was amended along these lines. M. Frear, who has removed from the ways and means committee by the republicans last spring as an insurgent, confined his remarks to a review of the bill's provisions, some of which h eapproved.

Commenting on the non-partisan feature, Representative Bacharach, of New Jersey, a republican member of the committee, declard taxation "is a matter too vital to the welfare of the government and the people to be considered from a partisan standpoint rather than from a business standpoint."

Rep. Oldfield, of Arkansah, a democratic committeeman, endorsed the non-partisan spirit with which the bill was drawn and emphasized that it provided a saving of $95,000,000 next year for tax payers having small incomes and cut off more than $100,000,000 of "sales taxes."

Rep. Collier, of Mississippi, another democratic committee member, urged passage of the bill, although he thought the taxes on passenger automobiles, admissions and capital stock would be repealed rather than merely reduced.

Failure of the bill to provide repeal of the inheritance levy, as proposed by Secretary Mellon, was assailed by Rep-Watson, of Pennsylvania, a republican member of the committee.

HAD GIVEN NEARLY A MILLION TO CHARITY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The late Rev. Dr. Russell H. Conwell, who had earned millions of dollars on the lecture platform, left an estate valued at less than $14,000. This was revealed today when letter of administration were granted to his son, Leon Conwell, of Somerville, Mass.

Pactically all of the noted clergyman's earnings had been given to come to be known as the "penniless charity during his lifetime and he had millionaire."

ENRIGHT MAY BE CHARGED WITH MURDER OF LABORER

CORNING, N. Y., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Michael J. Enright, brother of Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright of New York, taken into custody today near Campbell in connection with the brutal murder of Timothy Shay, farm laborer will probably face a charge of first degree murder, District Attorney Guy W. Cheney of Corning said tonight.

The results of his investigations warranted that charge, Mr. Cheney said, and added that he would ask Sheriff W. O. Page to make such an information

The farm on which the murder was committed is owned by Commissioner Enright and is operated by his brother, William Enright. William, however, has not been at the farm for a month.

District Attorney Cheney's investigation developed that a drunken brawl had taken place which, the officials declare, resulted in the murder. Michael Enright, when questioned, declared that he and Shay were at the farmhouse last night drinking and that he retired at eight o'clock, leaving Shay alone. When he arose at 7 o'clock this morning he missed Shay and at 10 o'clock found the body, he said, in a ditch about 20 feet from the house. He denied any knowledge of how the murder occurred.

State troopers found Enright standing in the yard, his shirt and trousers covered with blood.

DAIL EIREANN APPROVES THE BOUNDARY SETTLEMENT

DUBLIN, Dec. 10.—(AP)—After four days' debate the Dail Eirann has approved the London agreement on the Irish boundary, 71 to 30.

In view of the previous indecisive discussions and adjournments, President Cosgave announced that the house must sit tonight until a decision was reached, and an all-night sitting was threatened but was averted.

OBITUARY.

David Strouse.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 10.—(AP)—David Strouse, a senior member of the New Haven bar, expert in equity law and whose practice in recent years has dealt with bankruptcy cases, died at his home today after a very short illness. He was 77 and leaves a wife and two sons.

Rt. Rev. Mgr. James S. M. Lynch

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 10—(AP)—Rt. Rev. Mgr. James Sylvester M. Lynch, S. S. D. pastor emeritus of St. John's church for years a leading figure in the diocese of Syracuse, died here tonight.

Petty Personalities

These petty personalities, we hear them all the time,
Did you know that Dick had gone abroad and left his wife behind?
And how can Mary dress so well—she never saves a dime?
Or, Sarah's out most of the day—her children never mind!

These petty, petty, petty things, they all make so much trouble.
Why tell your wife you know that she can never make a double?
Or do you have to kid Bill Jones about his love of food?
And are you sure that Nan saw Ruth—and never spoke?
How rude!

What good can come of telling all these little, little traits?
For, if they're told too often, someone will exaggerate.
These petty personalities—these things we'll never mind.
Let's criticise our own faults first, before we hit our friend?

OVERCOAT FOR WHICH PEAK NAMED BACK AFTER 28 YEARS

WENATCHEE, Wash., Dec. 10—(AP)—Washington State Forest Supervisor Sylvester has received the weather-worn remains of an overcoat which he left on the summit of Overcoat Peak, in the Cascade Mountain 28 years ago. The garment was forwarded to him in an envelope.

Sylvester said he left the coat buttoned around a rock for use as a signal when he completed surveying in that region in 1897. The peak was named from the coat.

THAMES RIVER IMPROVEMENT

Information contained in a Washington dispatch on another page gives Norwich and surrounding towns much cause for satisfaction for it marks the overruling of the decision of the district engineer concerning the widening and deepening of the Thames river channel south from this city to Allyn's Point by the board of army engineers.

While the recommendations of the board will not provide all that was sought by Norwich in the way of bettering the river channel and thereby increasing the water facilities, they will mean a decided improvement in the waterway and make it possible for larger vessels to be brought to Norwich and to points along the river where industrial plants are located.

With a narrow, crooked and constantly filling channel, water transportation on the Thames above Allyn's Point has been laboring under a serious handicap. Facilities which should be available have been seriously restricted. The importance to business and industry of getting the advantage of water transportation with its lower rates is of no little significance, for inasmuch as business and industry benefit is to be expected that the advantages will be passed along to the general public. For Norwich to be denied the water facilities which have stood out so prominently to its advantage in the past would be unjust.

For the purpose of bringing the larger vessels to Allyn's Point the river channel was widened and deepened years ago. For the very same reasons which prompted that improvement there was justice in the demands that were made by Norwich, and the board of engineers has shown its recognition of them.

This is one of the projects that was assiduously pressed by the Norwich Chember of Commerce and it is to be congratulated on results which its efforts have thus far obtained. It should mean that another year should see the improvement begun.

LAFOLLETTE AND NYE

The questions in the United States senate concerning Robert LaFollette of Wisconsin and Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota are decidedly different. There is no attempt being made to deny LaFollette his seat. He was elected by the voters of his state and is entitled to his seat. In fact he has been seated and sworn in. The question concerning him is as to whether he should be listed and accepted as a republican, in view of the family record and his own statements, or whether he should be refused admittance to the republican party and councils.

There is no reason to believe that he will prove to be much less of an insurgent than his father. We will be much surprised if he does not lend his support to working against rather than with the administration forces, and yet there is the disposition not to remove him from the sheepfold and place him with the goats until there is something definite on which to base such action. The desirability of keeping him within the party is being urged in the interest of harmony and as a matter of good politics.

With Nye the situation is entirely different. He has not been elected to the United States senate. He was appointed to fill the vacancy by Governor Sorlie of North Dakota. That would have been sufficient if the governor had been vested with the authority to make such an appointment, and it is on that question that his admission to the senate rests. The governor claims that he has the power to appoint and that it was not necessary to call a special election to name a successor to Senator Ladd. There are others from North Dakota who maintain that he has never been given such authority under present laws, and for that reason Mr. Nye is rightfully entitled to take his seat in the senate.

This is a matter which should be readily straightened out by a study of the laws of North Dakota, and the matter ought to give the committee to which it is referred little trouble in reaching its decision.

A NEW EFFORT

When Finance Minister Loucheur of France recently declared it was the purpose of that country, or at least his present government, to bring about an early settlement of the war debt it indicated a determination to overcome the Caillaux mistake as soon as possible. It showed a recognition of the handicap which that failure placed upon France and the need of hastening the adjustment in order to help the straightening out of the financial problems and the credit of France.

Thus the announcement to the effect that Senator Berenger has been named as ambassador to this country and that he will come next month for the expressed purpose of effecting a debt settlement is the logical development. Senator Berenger is fully in touch with the French situation. He understands its financial problems and he understands the mistakes that were made by Caillaux on his recent visit to this country. He was in fact a member of the commission which Caillaux headed.

Sending an ambassador, whose term of service will continue only so long as he needs to spend in accomplishing his mission, to deal with this matter is a new arrangement, but being an expert there is no reason to suppose but what it will work out to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Certainly France realises the unfortunate position in which it was placed by the Caillaux methods and failure. It can be safely predicted that Senator Berenger, who will continue to remain a member of the French senate during his stay in this country, will steer clear of them. For the best interests of France the debt settlement should be arranged just as soon as possible. The idea of stalling and delaying is simply embarrassing France in the adjustment of other problems. It has had a chance to note this in the experience of other countries. It is no more than wa urged before the Caillaux visit was made but it has been still more appreciated since that time.

EARLY SHOPPING AND MAILING

Christmas is just two weeks away. There has been considerable said in behalf of early shopping this year and in years past and most everyone has recognized its advantages. They are real and deserve to be improved. There should be a general participation both for the benefit of those who are doing the buying and those who are concerned in the selling. Much business can be distributed over a considerable period and avoid the rush and bustle of the last minute struggle.

Letting the Christmas shopping go until the last minute is not a good policy from any standpoint and the merchants are wise when they give encouragement to the early buying.

But this year there must be additional thought given to the early mailing of those packages which are to be delivered by Uncle Sam. Well wrapped and securely tied bundles have always been urged. Likewise it has been impressed upon senders that nothing insured delivery by Christmas day like early mailing. But this year there is to be no Christmas day delivery. Christmas presents which are not delivered by the night before must lay over until the day after the holiday.

There are those who will like this arrangement and there are those who will miss getting their mail Christmas morning. But it behooves those who depend upon the postal service to meet its reuirements. Do your shopping and your mailing early and there will be no failures as long as it must be done it is just as easy to do it a day or two earlier than it is to be a day or two late.

The effort to get away from the eleventh hour rush should get the generous cooperation which it deserves.

THE DISARMAMENT INVITATION

Whether this country is going to participate in disarmament conference promoted by the league of nations is a matter which will get some of the attention of congress. Disarmament is a matter in which we have been and are still interested. We are opposed to the throwing huge sums of money into the building of big navies and defenses and maintaining large forces if it isn't necessary. We started the ball rolling in regard to naval disarmament and have even indicated a desire for extending it.

There will be much interest in just what is proposed by the conference to which this as well as other countries have been, or will be, invited. It is possible to lay down such a programme that it would be impossible to get anywhere, while there could be such a plan that would show progress toward the goal with the intention of having it followed up after the good effects of what had been accomplished sank in.

The desire seems to be to include all the nations where disarmament would mean something and not leave out such as might be considered so menacing that others could not carry out what they would like to.

While congress is deciding what this country will do regarding the league invitation it will also probably take into consideration the manner in which it could escape entering into a conference with soviet Russia, which government has not been recognized by this country, though unofficial representation might accomplish that.

WANTED—A BLUSHER.

"In the newspaper," said Tessie of the bargain counter, "there is a place where a scientific professor offers big money to some one who will find for him a girl who can blush. He says blushing is about gone out now and he wants to get the facts and reasons for it, to write down and photograph before it is too late and there's no one to get them from. I wish I could find one. I want to get that money."

"My lan'! How much do they offer?" asked Gladys.

"A hundred dollars."

"Fer the lan's sake! Let's go in on this together and rustle up one. I need an all-tulle gold evenin' hat to wear to the excursion Sunday and that money would get it. Come on! Let's get speedy. That much money is worth schemin' and hustlin' for. Listen! While I don't think there is one in the store, we'll go lookin'. You get off the floor on 'sick excuse' and I'll get off on a 'broke garter' talk, so we can work together."

"We might begin at the men's neckwear."

"My sides! Of all the mutts and simps! Men's neckwear! Them fresh fakes of inhuman souls—painted, plump, performin' pretties—holdin' down their jobs on nothin' but pure come-on. You might as well be blind for all the good your eyes do you. You could incuse them in a glass dome without a stitch on 'em, and set it in the winder and not get a blush outa one o' them."

"Do you think the office force would be a good place?"

"Fer the love of Mike!"

"There's Mr. Goober in the shoes I've seen him blush. Often."

"Is that right? My sakes! We'll have the money in no time. Here comes the floorman. Let's lig and at it. But I thought it had to be a girl."

"Oh, you are right, it does."

"Well, here's to it! We'll start out, anyway."

Pinkish and blond young Mr. "Goober's" six feet and more of honest stature loomed over the "Sale end of fine shoes; 49 cents a pair," making one think of a Norse prince in hard luck.

Gladys whispered to Tessie: "Just say you're lookin'. Trivial like. G'wan."

"Lots o' good bargains today, Mr. Goober?"

"Grover, not Goober, Miss Tessie, if you please. Lots of fine ones today, es-

He was now the color of long-boiled corned beef with a dash of tomato catchup over it, his uneasy hands catching up a silver pump and crushing it out of all recognition.

"I have a pair here somewhere the exact match for that spiffy little surtout of yours." He rummaged in the muss of goods, redder every moment that passed, finally fishing out a pair of patent leather number ones.

"They are sweet, Mr. Groob—Groov—Grover, but I wear a three D." She lifted a foot toward him. Craning out to view it, Mr. Grover, turkey-red and absentmindedly, knuckled one hand in the other.

"It may be a three D," he managed to say, "but it looks to me like a one E Won, W. O.-N. My first name is Edgar."

Tessie stood unsmiling. It was as if she had not taken in a word of this. Gladys edged nearer to whisper in passing, her eyes on Tessie: "Come on! Ring off! The money is ours. I have found the girl. Say good-by to him and back out."

"Where? Where?"

"You come on, you big daffy-downdilly, you! I can see where facts and photos for scientific purposes can be had by the dozens. You and yer Cindereller feet! Them there shoes he's holding look more like a swell pair of infant's bootees there."

"I don't hear a word you say. Where's the girl? Show me!"

"I get half the money, do I?"

"Why, of course! Where is she?"

"Come on back to where we belong and I'll tell yuh. Was he the feller that took you to the show the t'other evenin'?"

"Yes."

Gladys glanced at her wrist watch. "My lan'! Let's hop back to our stations. We're out long over our time! Now it's a go. I get half the money!"

"I said you would. Where is she?"

But Gladys only grinned.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Praises the President

Mr. Editor: It is certainly refreshing to get back to the good old American way of a president of the United States sending his message to congress to be read, instead of the way introduced by late President Wilson of reading his "message from the throne."

Any genuine democrat must join with the republicans in saying Amen! to that. Another splendid feature that will make him millions of votes is what he says about the Negro. And another splendid part of the message is the guarantee of full protection to all alike.

His reference to foreign possession, to laws protecting motherhood and mothers' aid, concerning railroads, and veterans is good enough document for any American.

There is no democrat, no progressive, no republican, or even socialist who cannot agree with our president on all of those issues and many others. Best; standing out clear and plain, above all others is his plain, old fashioned, genuine Americanism, no aping aristocracy, no "I'm the ruler of this nation," no confusion in his ideas on paper and no compromise in any manner or form with anything that is not genuinely American.

I didn't vote for Calvin Coolidge, I voted for one I always did, and always consider one of the world's greatest statesmen, Hon. Robert M. LaFollette, but must acknowledge that owing to his great opposition, Senator LaFollette would have received from enemies of America, in America, it is probably a good thing that a simple old fashioned democratic republican was elected president.

Enemies of America, enemies of any race or religion, in America, have been given pretty strong assurance that they will get no help from the white house, while Calvin Coolidge is president.

C. B. MONTGOMERY

Oneco, Dec. 9, 1925.

P. S. I voted for 11 presidential candidates, but never for a republican.

Stories That Recall Others

Helen's Interpretation

That minds of most children at this time of the year dwell upon one subject more than others—Santa Claus. So it was with seven year old Helen. She was showing herself considerable of a contortionist as she sat in an arm chair at her home, diligently poring over the titles of an old song book. She interrupted her mother's reading soon with:

"Mother, does 'Le-o-l-a' mean Santa Claus, too?"

She was reading the title to the beautiful Santa Lucia.

He Reasoned Well

A fat, sassy, but withal, a friendly squirrel has provided amusements and entertainment for those whose only chance to study the tricks of denizens of the woods has been provided by this squirrel.

Several trees stand near enough to the three story building to permit him to reach the third story windows. He studied the inhabitants and if an outward friendliness was displayed his visit was not long delayed. He negotiated the distance easily but was constantly making sure that he could get back. The first day he made ten trips after nuts placed on the window sill. He was coaxed into the house by placing the nuts in a line which led to a bag of them. Return trips were made each day and each visit added to the food stored for the winter.

One day the housewife was away when the squirrel came, but the window was up. That evening it was found that the paper bag had been slit and the nuts scattered about the floor. How many trips he made in the absence only 'the squirrel can answer. The only member of the household who doesn't welcome the squirrel is the canary whose shrill cries of warning should frighten a less timid prowler.

From Small Beginnings

Isaac Hull, The Great Naval Commander

One of the sacred shrines of the United States is the old frigate Constitution, often called Old Ironsides, a 44-gun ship that now lies in Boston, where it is visited annually by thousands of people. That old frigate was built in 1797, and would have been sold for junk if it had not been for the stirring poem called "Old Ironsides," written by Oliver Wendell Holmes. That old frigate sailed far and wide upon the oceans and took part in some of the desperate fights that helped to establish the United States. The man who was commander of that vessel, and the one who had charge of it in its most celebrated fight, the fifth between the Constitution and the Guerriere, was Capt. Isaac Hull, who rose from the position of ship's boy to the proud place he holds in the annals of the United States.

Like so many other New England boys, Isaac Hull went to sea instead of going to school. He gained his education from the waves and storms, and from the rough experience of sailor life on small boats. When he came back occasionally to New England he told tales of various adventures on the high seas. Before he was 20, because he was active and enterprising and had the spirit of command, he was in charge of a boat of his own.

In those days the struggling United States had a hard time to maintain existence. On the seas United States vessels were often exposed to insult and capture. From the merchant service the young man found his way into the more adventurous work of the navy. When he was 30 he was with the fleet that taught the Barbary pirates to respect the Stars and Stripes.

In the War of 1812 the vigorous young officer was put in command of the great frigate Constitution and he not only saved it from capture by a whole squadron of British vessels but he took the offensive, attacked the British Guerriere and in 30 minutes left it a wreck.

Captain Hull was one of the many men who have served at various times in the United States navy who are men of daring and of action. His work as a boy in the little merchant vessels had taught him all that a sailor should know, and he knew every trick in managing a boat. His boyhood training made him a great naval commander.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Probably no queen in Europe has won so strong a place in the affections of her people as Elizabeth, queen of the Belgians, whose fiftieth birthday anniversary will be celebrated today. Throughout the great war she was as constant in her self-sacrificing efforts on behalf of her country as was King Albert himself. For days at a time she worked fearlessly under shell fire, suffering the same privations as the soldiers. Before her marriage, in 1900, the queen was the Duchess Elizabeth of Bavaria. Her talents are out of the ordinary. She is an accomplished violinist and an expert linguist, being also conversant with Latin and Greek; she has taken her degree of M. D., and has acted as doctor to her husband and children on many occasions. Her father was a renowned scientist and Elizabeth accompanied him on several of his expeditions.

Today's Birthdays

Elizabeth, the beloved queen of the Belgians, born in Munich, Bavaria, 50 years ago today.

Ada Louise Comstock, president of Radcliffe College, born at Moorhead, Minn., 49 years ago today.

Senator T. Coleman du Pont of Delaware, who is reported seriously ill, born in Louisville, Ky., 62 years ago today.

Simeon D. Fess, United States senator from Ohio, born in Allen county, O., 64 years ago today.

Le Baron R. Briggs, late dean of the Harvard Faculty of Arts and Sciences, born at Salem, Mass., 70 years ago today.

J. E. King, distribution engineer of the Connecticut Light and Power company, explained the economy and operating advantages of the company's distribution system at a meeting of the Connecticut section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in Waterbury.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

PERUGIA

With so many ancient landmarks tumbling before the pick and steam-shovel of modern progress the news that an ancient gateway in Perugia, one of Italy's famous 'hill towns,' has been saved from destruction through popular appeal is welcome to lovers of antiquity. Permission had been granted by the Commune of the town to run electric trams through this gateway, near the Palazzo del Popolo, famous palace, but public indignation brought about a rescinding of the permit.

"The city has known one of the stormiest and bloodiest of histories," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "Hitch on a hill commanding the River Tiber, Perugia has been safe from enemies from without, but it has been torn by internal quarrels. In the decline of Rome no barbarian mounted its walls, but the plots of its nobility and the quick tempers of its citizens resulted often in feanot tempests that went on until one side or the other was almost exterminated.

"Perugia is almost midway between Rome and Florence, although not on the mainline railroad connecting the two cities. Like Siena and Assisi its neighbors, it is built in antiquated style, partly on top of a group of hilltops and partly on the slopes, with fine views of the Apennines in every direction. It has a picturesqueness of accident, of irregularity, of rising and falling ground, and of striking combinations of light shade and color.

"Everywhere except on the short spinal ridge the streets are staircases and toboggan slides. Everywhere one climbs or burrows. The life of a Perugian is truly one of ups and downs.

"On the map, Perugia is spread out like a great stone-scaled dragon on its rock, crouching over the country and extending long paws down the valley side. Nature furnishes backgrounds of olive-covered hills and distant mountains, while nearly every vista on its staircase streets is broken and framed by the graceful stone arches that buttress the tall houses. The old towers and donjons have largely disappeared, but the atmosphere of the town is military and despotic. Many houses still show traces of the heavy chains that barred the streets after nightfall, when, if a man forgot his steel undershirt, he came home in a wooden one!

"Perugia is really four cities in one. There is the ancient Etruscan Perugia, with its walls and stone gateways; the Roman Perugia, whose masonry rests on what remained of the Etruscan city after the natives had set fire to it; the medieval Perugia of the Baglioni, built 'Kink' Pahlavis Reza Khan, has released all political prisoners and issued on the Roman foundations; and the Renaissance Perugia of the Popes, reared on the ashes of the Baglioni palaces.

"In the strict sense, however, there is no modern Perugia. The railroad station is, as in most European cities, far outside the ancient walls. Two street car lines a few automobiles, and some up-to-date shops, clustered around the tourist center, are the only inroads the present has been able to make. There has been no temptation to build since the 16th century. The patches added to its crumbling ramparts and houses in the last four hundred years have enhanced their natural attractiveness.

"The rich pastoral beauty and repose of Perugia's surroundings have left their mark on the art of the city. As the seat of the renowned Umbrian school of painting it earned a high place in the realms of Italian art during the 15th century, when Perugia was the most powerful city in this part of Italy. The neighborhood of Siena and the religious atmosphere of near-by Assisi and Loreto doubtless exercised an influence on the prevailing style, which has been described as lacking dramatic power but being rich in reverie. Raphael was once a student of the Perugian master, Pietro Vannucci. Today the walls of many of Perugia's churches and former palaces are alive with examples of the work of the school.

"In the main square by the side of the half-finished Gothic cathedral the life of the city once centered. Here the gentle Perugians played at one of the bloodiest and most dangerous games in the world—that of hurling stones at one another until often a dozen were killed and scores wounded. In times of peace this was the Perugian equivalent of a baseball game or the movies.

"According to some critics Perugia has, in the Porta Augusta, one of the finest gates in the world. It beetles in black magnificence above a whole quarter of the town. Its base early Roman, the middle sections Romanesque, and the airy top Renaissance. The whole is now blackened with dust, decay and fire, and while it is not imposing in the sunlight, its heavy stone bucklers, fluted pilasters and massive base are awe-inspiring in the damp and gloom, when mist is flying through the streets. 'There Umbrian cities seem so Roman,' says one writer, 'that the sight of Caesar's legions marching through them, with lances and bucklers flashing in the sun would be the most natural thing possible.'"

PARISIAN LEARNS WHY SOME GIRLS DSILIKE TO WASH DISHES

PARIS, Decebzer 10.—(AP)—Modern girls who fall a-trembling at the prospect of household chores do not, it would appear, merit the strictures heaped upon them by women of an older generation.

They are really suffering from latent alterations of the cervico-brachial nerve plexus, declared Dr. Gommes to the Paris Medical society. This condition can be diagnosed added the physician, and successfully treated. That is, of course, if the young woman would be willing to part with the ailment.

NORWEGIAN WILL ATTEMPT TO PROVE ERICSON DISCOVERER

OSLO, Dec. 10, (AP)—To prove that it was possible for Leif Ericson to have discovered America 500 years before Columbus, Captain Folxero intends to make an attempt next year to reach that country in a vessel the exact duplicate of the boats used by the old Vikings.

His boat will be 40 feet long and 12 feet wide and will follow a route by Dover, Finisterre, Madeira and then across the Atlantic in the hope of reaching Philadelphia.

The Norwegians still dispute Columbus' claims and insist Ericson was the discoverer of America.

Prohibition, outlawry of war and Japanese exclusion stirred the executive committee of the federal council of churches of Christ in America to heated debate at annual session in Detroit.

James D. McCarthy

With many relatives and friends present the funeral of James D. McCarthy was held from his home, on Scotland road, at 8:20 o'clock Thursday morning, with a requiem requiem mass in St. Joseph's church, Occum, at 9 o'clock. Rev. Frederick R. H. DesSureault, the pastor, was celebrant of the mass. Rev. U. O. Bellerose was deacon, and Rev. William A. Keefe, was the sub-deacon. Miss Irene Lavallee presided at the organ and at the offertory Arthur DesSureault sang O Salutaris. As a waiting hymn he sang Face to Face and at the recessional, Lead, Kindly Light.

The bearers were Patrick F. Sweeney, Lewis B. Brand, Felix Keenan, Joseph Keenan, John E. McManus and Michael Coffey and burial took place in St. Joseph's cemetery. Rev Frs. DesSureault and Keefe conducted the committal service. There were many beautiful floral tributes and the large attendance included relatives and friends from other cities. Hourigan Bros., had charge of the funeral arrangements.

There were a large number of floral tributes from the following friends: Mr. and Mrs. John C. Donovan, employes of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Scotland Road Social club, Mrs. Susie Lillibridge and boys, Felix Keenan and family, Arthur A. Shedd, Charles Burns, Irvin and Herbert Bushnell, Mr. and Mrs. John F. McCarthy, James Drew, deduidig family, Ernst family, Mrs. W. H. Wilcox, Eva Wilcox, A. E. Geer and children, Norwich Co-operative Exchange, Christian Hanson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Pierce, Mr. Theo. Maynard and family, Florence McCarthy, I. A. Schwartes, Susan Wilcox, Emily Wilcox, Annie Dexter, Clarence Amburn, Norwich Milk Producers association, Margaret McManus and family, Errol C. Lillibridge, Lawrence Dixon, Michael Sweeney and other friends.

EAST HAMPTON MILK WAS SPREADING SORE THROAT

Through an order issued by the state department of health Michael Daley must discontinue the delivery of milk for the present at East Hampton. An investigation by Dr. H. A. Lanpher led to this order and it will remain in force until a further inquiry discloses that it is no longer necessary.

Several cases of septic sore throat have come to the attention of Dr. Frederick T. Fitch, the East Hampton health officer. He could not account for them at first and reported the developments to the state health department. The investigation followed this week and it was discovered that the son of Mr. Daley had been ill with septic sore throat and had but recently recovered. Mrs. Daley was found to be ailing now. In view of this development the health authorities thought it wise to make the order as above.

There are about thirty cases of sore throat in the town of East Hampton and about two-thirds of them are traced to the Daley family. Authorities made it plain that the Daley dairy is clean and passed inspection, and Mr. Daley was told that he could continue his route if another outside the family handles the milk. So far he has made no arrangements. The developments are as much a surprise to Mr. Daley and to the rest of the town, as he had no idea he was spreading the contagion.

In the lull between the holidays, travel on trains, busses and trolley lines along the shore is very light at present. The taxi drivers cannot remember when it was so quiet.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

The social club of eight, which for eighteen years has observed the holiday in the same fashion, will dine on Christmas Day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Lang, on Central Avenue, coming to the Elmwood Avenue residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Crowell for Christmas supper.

When the Delphian Study Club, of which Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn is president, met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Gardiner Greene, the afternoon was in charge of Miss Margaret Buck, of Lincoln Terrace. Miss Buck gave a very interesting talk on Bach, as the club is studying Bach and Handel. Mrs. Henry C. Prentice played Handel's Largo and Mrs. William F. Bailey sang Ave Maria, the piano accompaniment being by Mrs. Albert J. Bailey. Mrs. George A. Ashley's informing talk was on Handel.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Nolan

(Contributed)

Mrs. Katherine Nolan, wife of Michael Nolan, passed away Dec. 4th at her home in Plainville, after an illness of six weeks' duration. During that time she was tenderly cared for by her sister Mrs. John Woods, and she bore her suffering with patience and resignation to the will of God. She was a model wife and neighbor. She was a valued member of our Lady of Mercy church and also the Altar society of which she had been treasurer a number of years. She also belonged to the Shepherds of Southington and the A. O. H. of Plainville. Mrs. Nolan was the daughter of the late John and Amor McCormick Murphy and was born in Taftville 46 years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband Michael Nolan, four brothers and three sisters, James Murphy of New Britain, John P. Murphy of Bridgeport, Valentine J. Murphy of Willimantic, Daniel J. Murphy, a letter carrier in the local post office; Mrs. John Woods of Baltic, Mrs. Willie O'Neil of Norwich, Mrs. W. T. Hartigan of Worcester, Mass., and a number of nieces and nephews besides many friends in Taftville who regretted to learn of her death.

The funeral took place from her late home in Plainville at 8:30 Monday morning with a solemn high mass at our Lady of Mercy church at 9 o'clock. Rev. John Fay being celebrant, the deacon and sub deacon being from La Sallette college, Hartford. The music was by the regular choir of the church. Burial took place in St. Mary's cemetery, Norwich, in the family plot. The committal service at the grave was conducted by Rev. Adelbert Jalbert of Baltic. A number of friends met the automobile cortege at the cemetery. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

Friends were present from Boston, Worcester, Bridgeport, New Britain, Southington, Plainville, Willimantic, Baltic and Taftville. The funeral arrangements here were in charge of George G. Grant of Taftville.

The bearers were four nephews, Anthony Woods of Willimantic, John H. Murphy of Taftville, Frank and James Nolan of Southington.

Michael J. Corcoran

The death of Michael Joseph Corcoran, 57, occurred Thursday afternoon, from heart failure, after an illness of five weeks at his home, 35 Blinman street, New London. Until he was obliged to give up employment by his illness he was in the employ of the New London Ship and Engine Co. He had been a resident of this city before he went to New London twenty years ago.

Mr. Corcoran was born in County Kerry, Parish Fillmore, Ireland, Sept. 21, 1868. Besides his wife, he is survived by four sons and one daughter, all residing in New London: Timothy J., Patrick H., Daniel F., William E., and Miss Catherine T. Corcoran.

POLISH CITIZENS CLUB URGES NATURALIZATION

A meeting of the Polish Citizens club at Pulaski hall Thursday evening had an attendance of 400 before whom the club president, Antoni Grzynowski, and others made addresses, urging all their hearers to take out citizenship papers so that the entire body of 5,000 Polish people in Norwich should become voters and loyal American citizens.

An entertainment was given and refreshments were served. The meeting closed with the singing of America.

Among those to speak were Joseph Puzyk, Stanley Zawislinski, John Kuwat, Joseph Romanowski, Joseph Golendiewski, Julian Wojtkowski and John Szczglewski.

PLAINTIFF NOT SATISFIED WITH $2,000 VERDICT

ARMY ENGINEERS REPORT FAVORABLY ON DEEPER CHANNEL TO NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—The board of army engineers has returned a favorable report on the survey of the Thames river from Norwich to Allyn's Point. In its letter of recommendations that the project of improvement be carried out in a modified form the board states that the importance of the city of Norwich as an industrial center and the amount of commerce it furnishes make it advisable, in the opinion of the board of engineers, that the project be carried out. The board recommended that the channel

ARTHUR M. BROWN
Who Presented Norwich Case

be 200 feet wide with additional width at bends; that it shall be 18 feet deep at low mean tide and recommends an appropriation of $350,000 for the improvements with an annual allowance of $120,000 for maintenance after completion.

The report adds that in spite of the fact the facilities are inadequate for transportation of coal and lumber the tonnage for 1923 exceeded the prewar tonnage of 1914.

The report above roughly summarized is very complimentary to the city of Norwich and its standing as an industrial and commercial center.

The engineers estimate an adequate channel would save 50 to 75 cents per ton on southern coal and $20,000 a year on lumber and pulp wood. Also an increase in annual package freight of 20,000 tons at a savings of $1.20 to $1.40 per ton. The district engineer had advised adversely as to the project but the army board believes the importance of Norwich as an industrial, commercial and distributing center fully warrants the project and thus provide adequate water facilities for Norwich.

One of the greatest factors for the development of Norwich in the history of the community has been obtained by the Norwich Chamber of Commerce through the above favorable report of the board of army engineers for the deepening of the Thames River channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich.

The engineers favor the project of an 18 foot channel and 200 feet wide which was what the chamber sought, and an appropriation of $350,000 to do the work. The present depth is 14 feet, low water.

In 1836 this section of the river was deepened from six feet to eleven feet. In 1866 the channel was deepened to its present depth of 14 feet. In 1879 the width was increased to 200 feet. The present channel limits its use to a very restricted number of boats that can navigate to Norwich.

The chamber saw the need, if Norwich was to continue as a seaport with its consequent favorable freight rates for the deepening of channel to 18 feet,

EX-CONGRESSMAN E. W. HIGGINS
Who Worked for Deeper Channel

low water. Accordingly in December 1920 a conference was held in Norwich with Congressman Richard P. Freeman and George H. Young, of Taftville, chairman of the transportation committee at that time, and President Charles F. Wells of the chamber. Through the active interest of Congressman Richard P. Freeman, and as a result of that conference, the board of army engineers ordered a preliminary survey of the river from Allyn's Point to Norwich.

Major V. L. Peterson, district engineer of Providence, held a public hearing in the council chamber at city hall on Nov. 24, 1922. On March 2nd, 1923 the chamber sent its representatives to Providence to confer with Major Peterson, to urge the deepening of the channel. Major Peterson's report was favorable, but Col. H. C. Newcomer, of New York, the divisional engineer was opposed. The chamber sent its representatives to New York to confer with Col. Newcomer, and answered every argument proposed by the colonel, who was a member of the board of army engineers.

The directors of the chamber decided to take the matter up before the full board in Washington and accordingly a hearing was held in Washington on May 8, 1923. The chamber's representatives had the encouragement and active support at this hearing of the late lamented Senator Frank B. Brandegee, who was present together with Ex-Congressman Edwin W. Higgins, H. M. Lerou, Lucius Briggs, L. M. Carpenter of Jewett City, H. E. Smith of Baltimore, representing the Uncas Paperboard Co., H. F. Dawley and John J. O'Rourke.

As the result of that hearing, the board ordered a detailed survey to determine the cost of the project. Major Peterson made the survey, estimating the cost at $238,000. Col. Newcomer continued his opposition, and again the directors of the chamber decided to take the matter up with the full board in Washington. A second hearing was granted on February 25th, of this year. This time Congressman Freeman was present and gave his earnest efforts to the committee. The chamber was represented by Hon. Arthur M. Brown, Lucius Briggs, L. M. Carpenter, C. J. Twist, secretary of the Norwich Manufacturers' association, H. F. Dawley, H. M. Frazier, representing the Thames River Line, and John J. O'Rourke. Strong arguments were presented to the board in favor of the development. The result shows a successful issue of the chamber's efforts.

The chamber feels that a great victory has been won, inasmuch as the engineers are demanding that every community seeking to develop its waterways must pay fifty per cent of the cost of the improvement itself. The chamber made it clear that the project was not only for Norwich, but for a large part of eastern Connecticut. Persistent efforts brought favorable results. Praise, in no small measure, is due to Ex-Congressman Higgins and Hon. Arthur M. Brown for the efficient and effective manner in which they conducted the hearings and presented the arguments to the army engineers.

The next step is to secure the approval of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors of Congress. Congressman Freeman is the second ranking member of this committee and will have much power and influence. There is no question of his support. After the approval of this committee is obtained the necessary appreciation will be included for action in the next rivers and harbors bill that goes before Congress. This cannot be done at this session as an appropriation bill is already before that body.

In speaking of the Thames river matter a few weeks ago, a prominent member of the chamber asked "What would Worcester give to have a navigable river." The same question might be put to numerous other large cities that realize the benefits of water transportation. A great victory for Norwich has been won and a most valuable asset retained. The residents of Norwich today are true to those of early days, who way back in 1805 organized a "Norwich Channel Lottery," the purpose of which was to develop the channel for water transportation.

WINDHAM CENTER CHURCH OBSERVES 225TH ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 10—The Windham Center church, the mother church of several others in this section of the state, observed its 225th birthday Thursday evening with service suitable to the occasion. The edifice, which is the fifth the church has occupied since its organization was filled to capacity with members, former members and their friends. Representatives were present from the offspring churches of Mansfield Center, Scotland, Hampton, Putnam, South Chaplin and Willimantic and the branch church at South Windham. Former pastors who were present with their wives and who added greatly to the splendid fellowship which assisted in making the evening a memorable one were: Rev. Harry Grimes, pastor from 1908-12, of Braintree, Mass., Rev. Arthur W. Clifford, pastor from 1913-24. Rev. Mr. Borchert, a recent pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, now of Edgewood, R. I., and Rev. F. C. Williams, present pastor of the local Episcopal church, were among the guests. Rev. Mr. Williams conducted the devotional services. During the evening Mrs. Vandalia Burgy, of Park church, Norwich, was heard in a series of beautiful vocal solos. A shower of letters of greetings was received from former pastors, including Rev. William Sylvester Kelsey, of Reading, Mass., pastor from 1885-90. Rev. Charles B. McDuffy, of Cliftondale, Mass., pastor from 1903-08, and Rev. M. Raymond Plumb, of Edgewood, R. I., pastor from 1912-13, and from the ministers of the offspring churches. Greetings were also received from the grandmother church of Old Saybrook, which was established in 1640 and from the mother church of Norwich Town established in 1660. The Windham church was organized in 1700 and its last offspring was the Willimantic church in 1828. In 1888 South Windham branch was established and has continued as a branch.

The highly interesting historical lecture, portrayed on the screen with colored slides and entitled The Line and Lineage of the Windham church, was delivered by Rev. Sherrod Soule, of Hartford. Rev. James J. Graham, the present pastor, read the original agreement of the establishment of the church and developed many of the historical incidents which transpired through the generations. He also read congratulatory letters received from Dean Brown, of Yale, Col. Axton, chaplain of the army and Capt. Scott, chaplain of the navy. Still another letter was read from Frank J. Hayward, of Appleton, Wis., moderator of the national council of Congregational churches. Among the distinguished members in attendance was Mrs. Julia M. Arnold, 92, oldest member of the church and the only person now living who attended the 150th anniversary of the church in 1850.

The anniversary of the church will further be observed at the Sunday services when Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey of Norwich Town, will deliver an address on the occasion and several ministers from various parts of the state will be in attendance. Mrs. John F. Woods of Windham Center, will be heard in solos.

DR. H. T. BRAY'S FUNERAL AT NEW BRITAIN THURSDAY

Thursday at 2:30, the funeral of Dr. Henry T. Bray was held from his home, 46 Court street, New Britain. At 10 o'clock, in St. Mary's Church in that city, Rev. Francis Murphy, of Newtown, Conn., brother of Mrs. Bray, was celebrant of the solemn requiem mass.

The doctors and nurses of the city marched in a body to the church, with city officials and members of the board of health, with which Dr. Bray had been connected for many years. Members of civic and fraternal organizations, relatives and acquaintances crowded the great church—the largest in New Britain.

Dr. Bray was a cottage owner for years on the board walk at Ocean Beach, later purchasing a cottage in Neptune Park.

Summer neighbors of Dr. Bray, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Connor and son, Joseph P. Connor, Jr., of Lincoln Avenue, Norwich, motored to New Britain Wednesday evening, to express sympathy to the sorrowing family.

EDDIE JOHN AGAIN IN TOILS OF POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 10. — Eddie John was arrested at 10 o'clock Thursday forenoon by Officer Edward Leahy on a charge of breach of the peace and he will be arraigned in police court this (Friday) morning. Mr. John is the young man who attempted suicide at his home a few weeks ago by stabbing himself in the stomach with a bread knife. He has figured in innumerable other escapades. He said Thursday that he will be examined to determine his sanity.

FIVE ARRESTS ON LIQUOR VIOLATION CHARGE

A group of state policemen, with the assistance of Norwich officers, made arrests here Thursday afternoon and evening that ranged from Occum to the West Side for violations of the liquor law, making five arrests in all. The state police squad, which consisted of Officers Kenerson, Sisson and Watson, began at Taftville, where Mrs. Barbara Wunderlich of 138 Norwich avenue was placed under arrest.

Sergeant Morgan, Officers Smith and Sharvan were added to the squad, when the force started out from police headquarters and arrested Charles Corvin, 24, at 6 North Thames street. He had a struggle with the state policemen over the possession of a jar which was broken in the struggle and he was charged with resisting an officer.

The next prisoner was Daniel Zieznik (Big Dan) who was taken at his place on Thames street near Thames square.

A trip to Occum between 5 and 6 o'clock by State Policemen Kenerson, Sisson, and Watson resulted in the arrest of Mrs. Eliza Fontaine, 41.

The last arrest was made in the early evening by State Policemen Watson with Sergeant Delaney and Officer Lamphere, who brought in Andrew Rizzi, 24, from his place at 37 Thames street.

All except Rizzi gave bonds for their appearance in court.

MANSFIELD PLAYERS FIND PUBLIC PATRONAGE SLACK

Public patronage for the Richard Mansfield Players has proved insufficient to support the organization and it is a question whether it will be continued. After playing in New London for the last three evenings of this week they will disband for the Christmas season and whether they will continue afterwards will depend upon circumstances.

It is understood there is a possibility that a subscription list may be started in the larger cities of the state to ensure the continuance of the company.

Hail in Florida

Mr. and Mrs. David Pierson, of Cromwell, who are spending the winter in Pierson, Fla., have written friends that a recent hail storm did great damage there to the crops and that Florida is not as rosy as painted; as for climate, they report it as changeable as that of Connecticut.

BERLIN MAYOR BOOSTS CITY AS ATTRACTION TO TOURISTS

BERLIN, Dec. 10— (AP) — Lord Mayor Gustav Boess has interested himself in the task of restoring Berlin to its pre-war status as a tourist center.

To this end, a municipal travel bureau, which not only interests people into coming to Berlin, but assists them in finding rooms, arranges visits and reserves theatre tickets.

It was he who conceived the idea of erecting a series of fair or exposition buildings on the west end of the city and who pushed the plan for a national sportforum.

The lord mayor also has been engaged in a struggle with the Prussian minister of the interior to permit restaurants, dance halls and other places of amusement to remain open all night.

REALISM INVADES RANKS OF FRISCO CHINATOWN THEATERS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10—(AP)—Realism has invaded San Francisco's Chinatown theaters.

In a stage play, called "The Golden Butterfly," a motion picture showing a river was introduced as part of the scenery. The actors stood back of the screen, appearing to be on the banks of the stream as they spoke their lines in Cantonese.

The hero, hard pressed by his enemies, feigns to have been killed, but when they approach his body, he suddenly hurls them into the river. The new version was so skillfully handled that the villains appeared to have disappeared under the swirling waters of the screen.

CLIMATE AND SURROUNDINGS A SUICIDE FACTOR IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Dec. 10—(AP)—Climatic conditions, and natural surroundings are predisposing factors in suicides, the Berlin Tageblatt has found.

In order to establish authentic suicide statistics in Germany, the newspaper analyzed the compilations of a number of government bureaus, resulting in several peculiar disclosures.

Regions with a pronounced change of seasons recorded the greatest number of suicides and this was given as one of the reasons why self destruction was more popular in Central Europe than in the extreme northern countries or in the tropics.

DROPPED FROM ROSTER OF REPUBLICAN PARTY

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 10—(AP)—Fifteen insurgent members of the second district republican club, who were alleged to have bolted the party on election day and worked against the republican administration, were dropped from the roster of the club at a meeting held in the club rooms tonight. The report of the committee appointed last month to investigate the charges of disloyalty showed that these members were in arrears on their dues and were therefore automatically dropped from the organization.

DEATH OF MONA LISA THIEF DRAWS CROWDS TO PICTURE

PARIS, Dec. 10—(AP)—Interest in Mona Lisa, the Leonardo da Vinci painting which was stolen years ago from the Louvre, has been intensified by the announcement that the thief died near Varese, Italy.

Curious crowds of visitors stand about the celebrated picture, which now is heavily framed under thick glass. It receives more attention from casual visitors than any other painting in the Louvre.

QUESTIONS REPUBLICANISM OF SENATOR BORAH

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 10.—(AP)—"Senator Borah is supposed to be a republican," James G. MacDonald, chairman of the foreign policy association of New York, said at the world court mass meeting held here tonight in the Central High school auditorium, and "while theoretically he should be the spokesman of the president's policies, he is working against them." Borah openly admitted Mr. MacDonald declared, that he was not obligated by the Cleveland convention nor the platform of the party.

FAVOR STRIKES IN WAIST AND DRESS INDUSTRIES

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Resolutions favoring general strikes in the waist and dress industries of Philadelphia and Boston, unless new working agreements are signed by the employers before the expiration of the present scales, were adopted today by the International Ladies Garmen Workers union, in convention here.

LITTLE LIMELIGHT IS LEFT MRS. FERGUSON'S LIEUTENANT

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 10—(AP)—Limelight during the feminine dynasty in Texas flickers but faintly on the lieutenant governor.

So concluded Barry Miller of Dallas, one of the two men in the United States to serve under a woman in such a capacity, after eleven months of the job.

With Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson as captain and her husband as first lieutenant, Miller can not hope to claim anything better than third rank in the army of politics. This position, however, has a great advantage, the lieutenant governor avers: No one pays any attention to him.

While Miller finds the office not greatly different from lieutenancy to a man governor, he nevertheless is undergoing strange reactions. In earlier years, he was a crusader against the woman movement. He never dreamed he would see a woman become governor. Yet, in the autumn of life he finds himself wholeheartedly supporting one.

In 1917, Miller voted for the impeachment articles against Mrs. Ferguson's husband, then governor. Later, he made a speech attacking Ferguson. When the Farm-Labor Union brought out Miller for lieutenant governor, however he found the Fergusons were fighting the same opponent, the Ku Klux Klan, and this situation brought them together.

The lieutenant governor believes his captain is making a good governor.

Incidentally, when Miller was a young lawyer, a New York street railroad company offered him a position. He declined on the ground that he always had lived where he could see 60 miles in every direction. He still lives in a country home near here.

BANK OF FRANCE CARRIES WORLD'S LARGEST OVERDRAFT

PARIS, Dec. 10—The biggest overdraft in the world is carried by the Bank of France—something like 26 billion francs against the French treasury.

The existence of an organization able to do this kind of financing is due to the foresight of Napoleon. When he founded the bank in 1800 he gave it the exclusive privilege of issuing paper money, with the proviso that the French treasury be permitted to draw upon the institution up to the amount of 140 million francs.

The arrangement proved to be a most convenient and flexible means of tiding over hard passages in the financial history of the country. The amount of the advances—or overdraft, allowed to the government was increased on the renewal of the bank's money issuing privilege until, after the war it approached the enormous sum of a score of billions.

Difficulties of restoration, disappointments on the question of reparations and the disinclination of political parties to take the responsibility of asking the French taxpayer to foot the war bill, swelled it further to 26 billions.

FASHION GOES TO ZOO FOR SEASON'S DECORATIVE IDEAS

LONDON, Dec. 10—Fashion again is going to the zoo for its decorative ideas of the season.

Almost every known skin has been taken up by the modern furrier, and in addition the animal motif in decoration has made its presence evident in unexpected directions.

Jewelled animal, fish, bird and insect pins are seen a great deal on hats. Stags, dogs, frogs and lizards are among the favorites. A tiny squirrel embroidered in the corner of a pocket handkerchief is novel and some women even have the particular species of pet dog they favor used in this way.

Another striking effect for ordinary wear is a snake embroidered in gold thread up the front of the stocking.

GRANGE INJURED AS HIS TEAM LOSES TO PITTSBURGH ALL STARS, 24 TO 0

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 10—(AP)—The Pittsburgh All-Stars added insult to injury here today in their game with the Chicago Bears, who were defeated 24 to 0, after their star Harold (Red) Grange, formerly of the Illini, had been from the game with a torn ligament and broken blood vessel in his right arm.

The "Galloping Ghost" was taken out at the end of the first period, in the course of which he received his injury.

But even while he was in the fray the Pittsburgh eleven was ahead 7 to 0, Gustafson, former University of Pittsburgh star, crashing over the line for a touchdown following a 30 yard punt by Jimmy Robertson, former Carnegie Tech luminary.

Gustafson, in addition to the touchdown, kicked three goals after touchdown and a field goal from the 40 yard line.

Grange was in ten plays during the contest. He gained three yards off tackle; threw five forward passes, one of which was intercepted, another completed for a loss and the others incomplete received one pass for a nine yard gain; held the ball for Britton's attempted place kick; tackled Gustafson when the ball carrier had only Grange between him and the goal posts; blocked a man for the receiver of a punt and was injured on the play.

Jess Brown, of the Pittsburgh team furnished the thrills for the 6,000 who attended the game. He received the kickoff at the opening of the second half and returned 68 yards before being forced out of bounds. Later he dashed 55 yards off tackle for a touchdown.

The Bears will leave Pittsburgh tomorrow for Detroit where they are scheduled to play Saturday. A Sunday game is carded for Chicago.

Grange Hopeful

Harold (Red) Grange was hopeful tonight that he would be able again to take the football field Saturday in the game at Detroit despite injuries he suffered in today's game.

While Grange was confined to his room in the Schenley Hotel under the care of a physician, George Halas, manager of the Bears, said he expected Grange to be able to resume playing in three or four days. Dr. Gustav Berg, physician of the Pittsburgh baseball club was not so optimistic, stating a belief that the star player would not be able to again get into the game for two weeks or a month.

Because of Grange's injury the other players on the team decided to remain overnight here for their first night's rest in more than a week. The Bears have played seven games in the last nine days and have been traveling most of the time when they were off the playing field.

The team will make a daylight trip to Detroit tomorrow and both Grange and Halas insisted there was every expectation that the red head would be in the party. Definite plans, however, awaited a physician's examination tomorrow morning.

EXPENSES OF YALE FOOTBALL TEAM WERE $141,600.78

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 10—(AP)—The Yale athletic association in an announcement tonight explaining the Yale athletic financial statement issued last week, states that of the $388,623.31 listed as gross expenses for the football season, $227,022.53 went for guarantee paid to visiting teams. The net expenses are placed at $141,600.78 in the announcement.

The football expenses included property maintenance, team equipment, out of town trips, coaching salaries, printing and distribution of tickets, extra clerical assistants, game attendants, bus transportation and other miscellaneous budget items. These expenses cover the second team, freshmen squad and class leaguers as well as the varsity team squad.

The item of gross revenue for football of $620,372.18 is also reducible by $227,022.53 because the gate receipts include amounts which are paid over to the visiting teams.

It is pointed out in the statement that the net income from football remaining, after paying the expenses of the football department itself is $321,348.87, which is the amount available for operation of other departments of sports and athletic administration.

FLOWERS WINS EASY VERDICT OVER MOODY

BOSTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Tiger Flowers of Atlanta, Ga., won a judges' decision over Frank Moody, of Wales, in their 10-round bout here tonight, outpointing his rival in every round and knocking him through the ropes in the second.

The Georgia negro outboxed his opponent throughout the match, employing his well known windmill attack and showering blows upon Moody from every point of the compass. Moody went down for the count of seven in the first round and for eight in the second. He regained his feet then, only to be sent through the ropes for a count of nine a few seconds later. Moody did better in the next three rounds, but Flowers was never in danger and every effort of the Welshman to get in close was a failure.

In the seventh round Flowers opened a cut over Moody's right eye and from then on had him at his mercy. Flowers earned cheers from the crowd for keeping away from Moody's head in account of the cut.

LOCAL BOY LOSES CLOSE DECISION TO ELLIOTT

Frankie Busch, local heavyweight lost a close decision at Boston last night in his bout with Jack Elliott, of England. The boys opened the card on which Tiger Flowers beat Frank Moody in the main bout. Both boys fought at top notch speed and there was very little to choose from at the end of the four rounds but the referee gave the Englishman the verdict. The decision was far from popular and a draw would have been a much better decision according to those at the ringside.

The local boy showed up so well however that he was matched immediately after the bout for another bout with Elliott. The next bout which will be put on in about two weeks will go eight rounds and will be one of the semi-final features.

YALE BASKETBALL TEAM BEATS SUB BASE, 26 TO 18

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 10—(AP)—In the second game of its season, the Yale basketball team defeated the New London Submarine Base quintet, 26 to 18 here tonight. Captain Lackey, the Blue forward, was the outstanding star for Yale while the honors on the navy side went to Captain Coulter.

In the preliminary game, the Yale junior varsity, defeated the Collegiate Prep school 15 to 13.

PRUETT HAS BEEN SOLD TO MINORS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Herl Pruett, southpaw pitcher who once gained some baseball fame for his ability to strike out Babe Ruth, has been sold by the St. Louis Browns to the Oakland, Calif., club of the Pacific Coast league, according to announcement today.

Another deal, announced by President Robertson of the Buffalo Internationals, involves the outright purchase of Outfielder Dye of that club by Toronto.

TO PLAY 200 HOLES OF GOLF IN A DAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 10—(AP)—The Florida sunshine is due for a severe test when Dr. William E. Cove, of Chicago, who left tonight arrives there and completes arrangements for an attempt to play 200 holes of golf in one day.

Three years ago Dr. Cove on a wager that he could not play 150 holes of golf in one day, won by playing 153 holes, with a fairly satisfactory score for each round. Dr. Cove expects the enlengthened hours of daylight in Florida will make it possible for him to set a new golf marathon record.

M'TIGUE AND FLOWERS MATCHED FOR GARDEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Mike McTigue, former light heavyweight boxing champion, and Tiger Flowers Atlanta negro, will meet in the feature 10-round contest of the Christmas fund bouts in Madison Square Garden, December 23.

This match was arranged after Jimmy Goodrich, of Buffalo, had lost his lightweight title to his fellow townsman, Rocky Kansas. Goodrich has been scheduled to meet Lucien Vines, of France.

George Godfrey, negro heavyweight, will meet Martin Burke, of New Orleans on the same card in a 10-round tilt.

WESLEYAN HAS TWENTY DATES ON BASEBALL SCHEDULE

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Dec. 10—(AP)—The Wesleyan university baseball team will play twenty games during the 1926 season, according to the schedule announced today by L. G. Thompson, of Greenwich, manager of the nine.

The schedule is as follows:

June 5, Princeton; 12, Providence; 15, New York A. C.; 19, Princeton at Princeton; 22, Harvard; 23, Harvard at Cambridge; 26, Harvard at Cambridge in case of tie; Princeton at New York in case of no tie with Harvard; 27, Princeton at New York in case of tie and a third game with Harvard.

LETTERS AWARDED TO 25 PRINCETON PLAYERS

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 10—(AP)—Athletic insignia were awarded to sixty-four Princeton participants in fall sports today, 25 of them being football men. Soccer, cross country, cane spree and fall polo awards were also made. A special dispensation was made in the case of Caleb Gates, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., who both this year and last was kept from the required number of soccer games because of his football duties. He was given the straight minor sports "P" for his soccer work.

The football men receiving the major "P" for participation in either the Yale or Harvard games were: J. W. Bachellor, Newark, N. J.; R. Baldwin, St. Louis; E. C. Bartell, Tarantum, Pa.; C. L. Beares, Jr., Pittsburgh; W. B. Booth, Owensboro, Ky.; J. R. Bridges, Norfolk, Va.; D. P. Caulkins, Detroit; J. S. Crago, Philadelphia; R. F. Darby, Westfield, N. J.; J. W. Davis, Brooklyn; T. F. WILL WESTERLY MASTER MINDS PICK ALL-INTERSCHOLASTIC?

It was noticed in the leading paper of the little town of Westerly that one or more of the master football minds of that thriving little community objected strongly to the choice of the All-Interscholastic team by one Tommy Winters. The one sponsoring the article in that mighty organ of the people declares the team unworthy of reproduction in the columns of Westerly's masterpiece of the newspaper art, hinly veiled sarcasm runs through the article but there is a decided lack of constructive criticism. The writer points out what his wonderful football mind considers errors yet neglects to tell where improvement could be made. He calls the choices "ludicrous" and says some of the outstanding stars have been neglected and still he very wisely refrains from naming his own choice. Norwich people anticipate his choice and if the writer would publish his selection we would gladly reprint it so that people of eastern Connecticut might be enlightened. It is too bad that the writer did not reprint the "ludicrous team" for perhaps the other people in Westerly would have liked to laugh with him. We hope the Westerly paper will come forth with an All-Interscholastic team.

RICKARD KNOWS NOTHING OF DEMPSEY-WILLS BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Tex Rickard, informed tonight that he might be sought as promoter of the Jack Dempsey-Harry Wills heavyweight championship match, said that it was all news to him but that he would look into the matter.

Rickard always has contended that the bout will prove a financial failure anywhere but in New York. He had an agreement with Jack Kearns, the champion's former manager, that Dempsey would fight for no other promoter, but when Kearns and Dempsey divided forces he "washed his hands" of the matter.

He said tonight that there are many things to be considered in connection with shifting promoters for this match and that no definite announcement would be forthcoming for some time.

SCOTT READY TO RETIRE FROM ACTIVE BASEBALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Everett Scott, Washington utility infielder, who created a major league record of playing in 1,307 consecutive games between 1916 and 1925 as a member of the Red Sox and Yankees, is ready to announce his voluntary retirement from baseball.

Stanley Harris, manager of the Washington Americans, revealed this today.

"Roger Peckinpaugh will be back at his old berth at shortstop next year but I expect to hear of the voluntary retirement of Scott at any time," he said.

BALTIC FIVE CLASHES WITH JEWETT CITY TEAM TONIGHT

At St. Jeans hall in Baltic this evening the Baltic basketball five will clash with the Jewett City quintet led by Joe Faber. Jewett City goes to Baltic fresh from a victory over the West Ends of Willimantic and expects to add the scalp of Baltic to their belts. Baltic won an easy victory over the Leather Pushers of New London last week and expect to find the Jewett City boys an easy prey.

MANCHESER CRESCENTS PLAY AT PLAINFIELD TONIGHT

The Crescents, Manchester's leading quintet, will oppose the Plainfield team at the Community house in Plainfield this evening. The visitors have never played on the Plainfield floor although they are known locally as a fast aggregation and many of the individual stars have played with and against Plainfield in past years. Plainfield will use the regular lineup of Normandin, Dissenger, Norris, Benson, Bissell and Thornton.

MLLE. LENGLEN VS. MISS WILLS IN FRANCE IN JANUARY

NICE, France, Dec. 10—(AP)—Suzanne Lenglen against Helen Wills is the tennis threat which will be offered to fans on the French riviera next January if the American champion carries out her intention to come to Europe this winter.

Mlle. Lenglen sent in her entry for the Hotel Metropole tournament at Cannes today.

MISS WILLS TO GO TO FRANCE IN JANUARY

BERKELEY, Calif., Dec. 10—(AP)—Helen Wills, national woman tennis champion, has obtained a six months leave of absence from the University of California, where she is a student, majoring in art, and will depart early in January for France, she plans to continue her art studies there and will play tennis as a side line.

Nutmegs Practice

This Friday evening at the Armory the Nutmegs will hold their final basketball practice of the season at 7.30. The players are: Segal, Kelly Murphy; Burnes, Couture, Burdick, Tombari, Healy and Fenton.

There will probably be a short practice game with the Battery B five so it is important that the foregoing are present.

There has been a shake-up in the Nutmeg A. C. governing board and with new officers the Nutmegs should be ready to start on a more successful path than heretofore.

McDonnell Elected at Wesleyan

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Dec. 10—(AP)—Curtis H. McDonnell of Washington, D. C., was elected assistant manager of football at Wesleyan university at the annual election today. George M. Jones of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., was elected assistant manager of intra-mural sports and cross country, and Keith M. Urmy of Bellevue, Pa., was chosen as assistant manager of soccer. All are sophomores.

Cambridge Beats Oxford

TWICKENHAM, England, Dec. 10—(AP)—In the fiftieth annual rugby football game between England's two great universities, Cambridge defeated Oxford today, 33 to 6.

Of the 49 previous contests Oxford had won 23, and Cambridge 17, while nine were draws.

MAJOR LEAGUES WILL CLOSE SEASON A WEEK EARLIER THAN EVER BEFORE

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Disagreement of the American and National leagues over abbreviation of the playing season was settled quickly and decisively this afternoon by the single ballot of High Commissioner K. M. Landis for the closing of both races on Sept. 26.

With that stroke organized baseball's dominant figure thus broke a tie in which magnates of the National league voted solidly against the new date.

Commissioner Landis was a conspicuously drenched spectator at the post-season struggle between the Senators and the Pirates but he shook off shower after shower with the ultimatum that baseball would be played in baseball weather in the future, provided he could make it so.

As the sixteen clubs went into the closing meeting of their three-day session today, the commissioner was faced with solid opposition from the National league, which indicated yesterday that there was little hope of finishing its race prior to Oct. 3, but he was backed by the complete line-up of American league clubs, which had voted yesterday for the Sept. 26 closing.

Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh, who had presented statistics showing that only three world series under October closing dates had been interrupted by rain, and who has been entrusted with the task of assisting President Heydler to draft the National league schedule, was not so cheerful. But the American league chieftain Ban Johnson, whose relations with the commissioner were once strained had a new victory to balance the $10,000 salary increase voted to him by the junior circuit yesterday.

Action on the closing date was the outstanding feature of what was characterized by the magnates themselves as a brief and peaceful meeting. Possibility of an outbreak of war with the minors over proposed extension of the present optional player limit from eight to fifteen was averted by failure of the magnates to act on the question discussion of playing problems. Including the use of resin by pitchers, likewise was hurdled by announcement of the commissioner that he would convene a meeting of the joint rules committee in February to consider recommendations of the National league.

Eligible players of the Chicago White Sox of 1920 were voted a sum of $4,800.83, representing second place money which was withheld from seven members of the club accused of "throwing" the series championship to Cincinnati the year before. The sum will be distributed pro-rata among the men who were not involved in the scandal.

Recommendation to the minor leagues that the period of player options be extended from two to three years completed the day's work of the magnates.

MORE ABOUT A BOUT BETWEEN DEMPSEY AND WILLS

CHICAGO, Dec. 10—(AP)—A fresh batch of reports on plans for a boxing match between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills next summer came tonight after a conference today of Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan City, Ind., promoter, who obtained Jack Dempsey's signature and Ray Cannon, Milwaukee attorney, Dempsey's legal adviser.

The two expect to meet Dempsey in Los Angeles next week, to discuss the probable withdrawal of the South Bend, Ind., syndicate from the match, and selection of a new set of financiers.

It was reported that there was a possibility of the selection of Boyle's Thirty Acres in New Jersey for the match, which would put it in the hands of Tex Rickard.

Reports from Los Angeles indicated that the withdrawal of the South Bend backers who secured the Dempsey and Wills signatures last fall might be announced at any moment. These reports were based on the alleged unwillingness of the South Benders to post substantial forfeits.

Cannon left tonight for Los Angeles and Fitzsimmons expects to leave tomorrow night.

In South Bend rumors are said to be based on reports of the apparent unwillingness of the Indianians to go to Los Angeles for the Dempsey conference and put up a further deposit of cash.

GEORGETOWN TEAM WILL NOT PLAY IN SOUTH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The athletic council of Georgetown university today declined invitations to have the institution's football team play post-season games at Jacksonville Fla., and San Francisco. Permission was also withheld for Anthony Plansky, the team's fullback, to play on all-star eastern team being organized to meet a Pacific coast eleven for the benefit of a children's hospital in San Francisco December 26.

Jacksonville's Chamber of Commerce offered to select an opponent for Georgetown and the California game was to have been arranged by the Olympic club of San Francisco.

The Georgetown authorities after careful consideration decided against the exploitation of their team for commercial purposes.

PICTURE EXHIBITORS TO INVESTIGATE GRANGE'S CHECK

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—The Motion Picture Owners of America today issued a statement through General Manager Joseph M. Seider saying that Red Grange would not be allowed to appear on the screens of the theaters of their organization if the exhibitors found his $300,000 contract check with an independent producer was "bunk publicity."

Seider declared the board of directors of the exhibitor's organization would investigate at its next meeting publicity concerning the $300,000 check.

SPORT BRIEFS

The grand circuit set a record for purses the past season, with $626,592 offered in eleven meetings.

The women's national swimming championships at St. Augustine, Fla., have been set for February 9 to 13.

Jack Roser, hard-hitting outfielder of the Baltimore Internationals, has been sold to Birmingham, of the Southern association.

Roland ("Bud") Coe, end, has been elected captain of next year's Iowa state football team. Coe is a junior veterinary medical student.

Charles Ross McHenry, veteran guard, has been selected captain of the new year's football squad at West Virginia university.

Joe McCarthy, who piloted Louisville to a pennant in the American association, has been named as Cubs' pilot for the coming season.

Bill Killifer, former manager of the Chicago Cubs, has signed as assistant to Manager Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals for the 1926 season.

Charley Hoff, Norway's great pole vaulter, is expected to leave for the United States December 30. He plans to train at Hanover, N. H., which produced some great athletes this fall.

Argentina, whence came Firpo, "the mauler," Luis Lacey and Jack Nelson, polo aces, and Tirabooschi and Lillian Harrison, swimmers, now is a thrill with a turf sensation, Macon, Don Adrian Paulen, of Germany, bespectacled dash man, may accompany Hoff. The foreign invaders will make their first American appearance at the Millrose games in New York, February 4. Hoff is said to have eyes on the Olympic decathlon championship in 1928.

Phil McGraw, "western tornado," has come under the management of Paddy Mullins, and the $2,500 forfeit for a championship bout with Rocky Kansas, lightweight king, will be posted immediately, Mullins says. McGraw will meet Charley Rosen, conqueror of Lucien Vinez of France, in New York Monday night.

AUTHOR, SAYS PROMOTERS ARE KILLING GRANGE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—A vindication of college football as against the professional brand was seen tonight by George Ade, author and sports patron, in Harold (Red) Grange's weakening under the strain of playing six football games in eight days.

"Grange's disappointing performances as a professional are turning the public variety of football rapidly," said Mr. Ade, who was here en-route to Florida.

The ernstwhile college gridiron star's "impatient promoters are killing the goose that lays their golden egg," by overworking him, the author declared. But he did not blame Grange for quitting school and going after it "when promised more money than he never had seen."

"You can't keep a star player up to concert pitch when he has to play a big game every day or two," he concluded, paying tribute to Grange as "a good football player, and a square modest, decent boy."

KAPLAN GETTING DOWN TO HARD TRAINING

MERIDEN, Dec. 10—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, featherweight champion, who is training for his coming championship bout with Babe Herman at the New Madison Square Garden, New York, traveled around the ring in two three-round bouts today with Tony Travers, of New Haven, and Eddie Lord, of Waterbury.

Travers is a brother of the well-known Mickey, also of the Elm City. He holds the state lightweight title and is considered a very valuable aid to the Kid. He boxes along the same style as Herman, and Kaplan spends considerable time with him.

The champion is below the 130-pound mark and is close to the proper weight, 126 pounds. He is in good condition eager for work and tears into it with a business-like manner.

It was mentioned today that Eddie Lord, of Waterbury, might be matched with Edouard Mascart, the European featherweight champion, for a bout in either New York or Boston. Lord is on Kaplan-Herman card, meeting Eddie Macklin.

BOSTON PAPERS SAYS BEARS ARE JEALOUS OF GRANGE

BOSTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—The Boston Herald tomorrow will say that the disappointing showing made by "Red" Grange and his Chicago Bears against the Providence Steamrollers was due to dissension among the Chicago players, apparently due to their jealousy over the fortune and popularity that Red Grange would not be allowed to appear on the screens of the theaters of their organization if the exhibitors found his $300,000 contract check with an independent producer was "bunk publicity."

Seider declared the board of directors of the exhibitor's organization would investigate at its next meeting publicity concerning the $300,000 check.

Phil McGraw, "western tornado," has come under the management of Paddy Mullins, and the $2,500 forfeit for a championship bout with Rocky Kansas, lightweight king, will be posted immediately, Mullins says. McGraw will meet Charley Rosen, conqueror of Lucien Vinez of France, in New York Monday night.

GRANGE IS SENDING MONEY TO HIS DAD

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Part of Red Granges first proceeds as the champion football money maker went to his family, "Red" pressed $1,000 on his father immediately after his first two appearances with the Bears as part payment of the debt incurred to send the son through college. Brother Garland received a $100 bill as a birthday present and still has it.

"Harold insists that he intends to buy a house for us to live in, but I really do not want it," said Grange Sr., a deputy sherriff in Wheaton.

HARVARD WITHDRAWS FROM COLLEGE SOCCER LEAGUE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 10—(AP)—Harvard has withdrawn from the intercollegiate soccer league, according to information obtained from athletic authorities at the university, tonight the principal reason for the withdrawal, it was reported, was because of the soccer management desires to arrange its own schedule, with the Yale game the final contest of the season. Under the present affiliation with the league, the schedule is arranged by the league officials. The feeling prevails at Harvard, according to the college authorities that Yale will also withdraw from the league.

BERLENBACH-DELANEY FIGHT WILL FEATURE TONIGHT'S SPORT EVENTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Paul Berlenbach, world's light-heavyweight champion, will step into the ring in a 15 round title match at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night against the only man who ever knocked him out, Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn.

Berlenbach, a former amateur wrestler and boxer and a member of the 1924 American Olympic team, entered the professional game with an impressive amateur record. From the start his professional career was a success. Mediocre middleweights were tossed into the ring against him and one by one all were lowered by the tremendous hand on "Punch-'em-Paul."

Then the opposition began to become more potent but still the knockout record rose. Twenty-three consecutive knockouts were registered before Berlenbach was stopped.

Delaney entered the ring at the old Madison Square Garden against Berlenbach, March 14, 1924 and scored one of the most stunning upsets of the indoor boxing season when he knocked out Berlenbach in the fourth round of a 15 round match.

Berlenbach rallied however, against the best in his division and reached the height of his form when he outpointed Mike McTigue, world's light-heavyweight champion in a listless exhibition at the Yankee stadium, June 30, 1925. Since winning the crown Berlenbach has protected it against Young Marullo Jimmy Slattery and King Solomon.

Various endeavors have been made to rematch Berlenbach with Delaney but an injured hand suffered by Berlenbach prevented a match which Tex Rickard had planned for the Yankee Stadium last summer.

Twenty thousand persons will pay $150,000 to see this return match between Berlenbach and Delaney at the new Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. Tex Rickard, reported today that every ticket had been sold before noon.

Berlenbach is expected to have a seven pound advantage over his challenger when they are scaled at the state athletic commission at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Delaney finished up his work yesterday weighing 166 pounds while Berlenbach completed his training at 173 pounds.

The champion is a 7 to 5 favorite to retain the title. Big odds being offered that Delaney will not stop the titleholder.

The 10-round semi-final bout will bring together George Cook, heavyweight champion of Australia, and King Solomon of Panama. The first preliminary is expected to start at 8:15 o'clock with the principals in the main go parting the ropes at 10 o'clock eastern standard time.

PEPPERMINT OIL PRICE SOARS OWING TO ACUTE SHORTAGE

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 10—(AP)—A pound of peppermint oil now is worth its weight in silver.

An acute shortage, resulting from unseasonable frost and heat in May in southern Michigan and northwest Indiana, where 60 per cent of the world's supply of peppermint is produced reduced the crop 70 per cent or to approximately 350,000 pounds.

Throughout the late summer and early fall peppermint oil has steadily increased in price until it exceeded $17 a pound. The maximum price last year was $4 and four years ago it was $1.25.

Gradually the growers are drifting toward a single "pool" through which they would market their oil when the demand price is highest. In several instances farmers have been known to store their oil in safety deposit boxes to await further market advances.

Manufacturers of tooth paste, candies, chewing gum, various toothache remedies and all other products which require peppermint flavoring are interested in the cooperative efforts of the growers. The normal yearly consumption of the oil is 400,000 poun

DANIELSON LEGION POST BACKS COMMUNITY TREE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 10—For the information of all—young and old—it may be stated this morning that the Community Christmas tree party under the auspices of Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion, will open on Davis park Christmas eve, at 6:30.

The Christmas tree is to be a real one, at least 30 feet in height, electrically lighted, surrounded by joyful people and laden with gifts. Everyone will be welcome there. It will be worth while to be present. Not that a grown person feels that a gift of candy or fruit is necessary to personal happiness such an occasion as this is going to be, but for the really enthusing privilege of being in the midst of those to whom Christmas remains all of the glamorous things it was in happy days to those who are now more or less burdened with the weight of years,—or think they are.

The legion post has obtained a great deal of cooperation in its Christmas tree effort. Churches have agreed to lend their aid to making it a real success. Choir singers have said they will be delighted to help in presenting the carols planned. The Dayville band will play for the delight of all. It promises to be a happy party that will gather around the Community Christmas tree. Fruit and candy will be distributed to the children who come. May there be a white Christmas with its crystal glitter and synchronization with all the tradition about how the world should look hereabouts when Kris Kringle comes to town on his annual visit.

The ceremonies at the park concluded, the carol singers, dispersing by groups, will go about town to bring Christmas cheer to those who are at home for the eveing. Particular attention will be paid to serenading shutins. Every effort will be made to lift them spiritually to the heights of Christmas happiness. Carols, as the program is now arranged, will be sung by different groups in about every section of the borough.

So much have been planned to be done by the legion, it is not unlikely that the people of Danielson, entering into the spirit of the occasion, will cooperate by lighting their homes and observing the old custom of placing candles in the windows on the eve of Yuletide.

There is to be a material reward for those who do the carol singing and otherwise contribute to making a real advent of Christmas in Danielson. Having gone about the borough singing carols, the singers will return to the vestry of the Congregational church, where refreshments will be served.

If Danielson as a whole emulates all the legion is doing to make this a happy and peaceful Christmas season, windows of homes will be ablaze with light on the eve of the great holiday and broadcast will be the spirit of Peace On Earth, Good Will To Men—and Women.

DR. SUSAN P. H. FISKE TO BE BURIED AT DAYVILLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 10—From Boston where she died during the current week, the body of Dr. Susan P. Hammond Fiske arrived here Thursday night for later burial in the Hammond family plot in the High street cemetery at Dayville.

Dr. Hammond Fiske was born in Dayville in 1841, a daughter of Dr. Justin and Susan (Peckham) Hammond. By heritage she seemed destined to enter medical practice. Her father was a physician, her mother's father was a physician, her uncle was a physician, in her own immediate family circle her brother, Dr. Henry Hammond, for many years a practioner in Dayville, and her sister, Dr. Ellen Gladwin, of Hartford, but at present in California, were members of the medical cult.

She had lived in Boston a great many years and is remembered here only by a small circle of older residents. Vine R. Franklin, of Danielson, and Hon. George A. Hammond, of Putnam, are cousins of the deceased.

An outstanding feature of the season's offerings in Danielson was the recital given Thursday evening, at the Orpheum theatre, by Prof. Plamandon and Prof. Paquin, both of the Paris Conservatory of Music. These artists made a return appearance here in the interest of St. James' parish. Having made a deep impression when they gave a recital at St. James' church a number of months ago, special effort was made to have them meet the many requests for their return, and this finally was achieved. Their program Thursday evening won them the highest praise and from music lovers from a number of congregations. They were assisted by a number of local artists.

If, during the late days of December, you should see a car from some other state equipped with 1926 registration plates—don't tell a policeman. He knows all about the reciprocal arrangements the Connecticut motor vehicle department has made with states, here and there, to let such cars run through this state without molestation.

For instance, Virginia is allowing its motorists who have paid registration for next year to run all through the month of December with 1926 markers on their cars. New York has arranged to let its car owners drive under 1926 numbers during the last five days of December, 1925, and other states are extending similar privileges. They have asked reciprocal privileges from Connecticut, and there is no indication in the letter sent out by the Connecticut motor vehicle department that the requests will be denied. In fact, circular letters, carefully worded to avoid conflict with any state statute, indicate more or less specifically that Connecticut is anxious to be reasonable and will recognize the agreement made by other states with its motor vehicle operators.

As a matter of fact, Connecticut itself has made a concession to its registrants of motor vehicles for 1926. It has said that one may put on any duly registered car registration plates for 1926, on December 31.

The reason for these advance use privileges of 1926 markers must be apparent to all. Thousands of motorists get away for trips—in some cases very long trips—just in advance of the new year. Permission to put their new plates on before they start saves them a great amount of inconvenience and puts an end to the more or less intolerable interference they have been subjected to in years gone by from officials who sought to argue with them if they were out 15 minutes after midnight of the first day of the year with registration plates of the year before on their cars. Some things are done better each year, even if some other things are not.

Chief John McFarland has one of the circular communications sent out to inform police officers about the registrations agreements between the states.

It was announced Thursday, following a meeting on the previous evening at the home of the president, Miss Marjorie I. Gaffney, that a ball is to be given by the Killingly High School Alumni association. The date is to be made known later. The proceeds from this are to be added to the Alumni gymnasium fund. It is of special interest to note that the Alumni association, having accumulated several thousand dollars for the gymnasium fund, is not going into somnolence because the town has voted to erect additions to the high school, these additions providing for a gymnasium. The Alumni gloriously continues right on the job, living up to its traditions on the job, living up to his traditions and its aspirations.

A new gilding of the statue of Joan of Arc on the grounds of St. James' parish, Franklin street, is particularly pleasing to all who pass that way. This statue was erected during the pastorate of Rev. M. J. Ginet, M. S. now of Holyoke, after the close of the World war, and in the minds of the parishioners is always associated with the victory of the allied arms in the great conflict. It is particularly reminiscent of the part that more than 100 young men of the parish played in the service of the United States during the turbulent years of 1917-18.

The dramatization of the story "Why the Chimes Ring" will be repeated this year by the Baptist Young People's organization on Sunday evening, December 20. On the occasion there will also be special music by a chorus choir. Mrs. John W. Gallup, Miss Grace Stanton and Miss Marjorie L. Gaffney are the committee in charge.

"I would rather be a lamp post on the Main street in Danielson than the mayor of this hectic town," writes another disillusioned one under a Miami date line. The writer of that does not live in Danielson, but has many friends here. He comes from Hartford and went south in early November attracted by a glamor of all the publicity the Wonder state has obtained. He is a man of wide experience and a keen observer of men and things. "I am on my way home by easy stages," he writes. Recuperating or convalescing, maybe.

Without doubt our lines of rayon silk underwear for women will surprise you as to quality, style and price, and the surprise will be delightful in every respect. One hundred pretty things for Christmas at the Alice-Eleanor Shop.—adv.

In connection with the installation planned for January 13, there is to be a big smoker and speakers will review the record of excellent work accomplished during 1925. Also an outline will be presented of what it is hoped to accomplish during 1926.

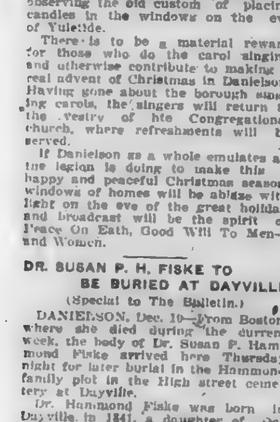
Thursday morning at the Sacred Heart church in Wauregan, Rev. J. C. Mathieu was celebrant of a high mass of requiem at the funeral services for Mrs. Mary Louise Larocque. Many relatives and friends, including a delegation from the Ste. Anne society attended the service. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery, Rev. Fr. Mathieu conducting the committal service. The bearers were William Pratte, Joseph Dubois, Clodier Messier, Emery Brodeur. Honorary bearers representing the Ste. Anne society were Mrs. William Brousseau, Mrs. Ludger Prairie, Mrs. Alphege Goyette and Mrs. Louise Brodeur. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

More circulars were picked up during Thursday that were thrown out of an aeroplane Tuesday afternoon and flitted down in various sections of the borough. It was a new method of getting advertising into Danielson, not that many of those who picked up a leaflet might be a prospective purchaser of an aviation engine, but that is novel and interesting to local people. Certain of the leaflets that have been recovered after flitting down from the skies bear the signatures of W. Irving Bullard, of Danielson and Boston, of W. F. Scullen and J. D. Brennan passengers in the plane. The plane circled over the borough, giving its passengers a special view of the proposed emergency landing field at the borough farm off lower Dyer street, then headed off again in the direction of Boston, whence it came.

Hair Beauty

Thick, Gleamy Hair

—Full of Life



The constant curling and waving demanded by modern style in hair dress, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, streaked with gray; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" will do wonders for any girl's hair. This vitalizing beauty-tonic acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

Try this for one week. While combing and dressing your hair, moisten your brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair—the effect is startling! Your hair immediately takes on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes incomparably soft, wavy and appears twice as thick and abundant.

WHEN YOU WANT to put your business before the public, there is no medium better than through The Bulletin.

PUTNAM

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. MONTIE IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 10—Mrs. Rosanna Montie of Glocester, Rhode Island, started for Putnam this morning in an automobile driven by her son, Conrade Montie. She complained of being sick before they reached here and her son drove directly to the office of Dr. J. J. Russell on Main street. She was unable to alight and Dr. Russell went out to her. After one glance he turned back to his office to get a restorative but she died before he could return to the car.

She was in her 54th year having been born in St. Bonaventure, Canada, in 1871, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paul.

Aside from its tragic suddenness an unusual feature of the case is the fact that she was coming to Putnam to see a moving picture film of the Armistice Day happenings here, when, as a Gold Star Mother, she was one of the guests of honor. She had a seat on the reviewing stand just a little way from Governor Trumbull and is easily recognizable in the picture which is being shown at the Bradley theater. A son, Joseph Montie, died at Camp Devens in the fall of 1918, a victim of the influenza epidemic. The body was brought here and he was given a military funeral.

She is survived by her husband Edmund Montie, and two children, Mrs. Edward Cutler and Conrade Montie, both of West Glocester, the latter living at his parents' home. There are also two brothers, Louis Paul and Henry Paul, and a sister, Mrs. Maria Bourgeois, all of this city.

At the funeral six of her nephews will act as bearers. They are Edward, Arthur, Dona and Atwood Bourgeois, and Henry J. and Fred J. Paul, all of Putnam.

SUPT. RALPH C. JENKINS RENDERS HIS REPORT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 10—At the regular meeting of the Putnam Town School committee, action was taken permitting the use of the high school auditorium and the gymnasium by local citizens and organizations, and a code of regulations adopted for the safe guarding of the building, fixing a scale of prices, etc. This change of policy was in compliance with requests from the Chamber of Commerce and other sources, and also reflects a change of sentiment on the part of some of the committee.

In the following report of Superintendent Ralph C. Jenkins the whole matter is explained and the regulations are drawn up in the thorough and systematic manner that is characteristic of Mr. Jenkins.

To the Putnam Town School Committee:

I hereby submit my report for the month of November:

Changes in Teachers, Substitutes, Etc.

Miss Grace Edick has returned to her place as teacher in grades 3, 4, 5 Smith Street school, relasing Mrs. Gladys L. Packard who has been substituting in that room since the beginning of the year. Mrs. Alice Cronin has been granted a leave of absence in the Sawyer school and Mrs. Packard is substituting for her. Mrs. George C. Ross has resigned as manager of the High School cafeteria and Mrs. Edwin Phillips has been appointed to take her place.

Use of High School Gymnasium and Assembly Hall.

Immediately after the last meeting of the committee I sent letters to twenty-five school officials in various parts of Connecticut asking for information regarding the use of their school halls and gymnasium. Replies to these letters show that different communities adopt entirely different practices regarding the uses of school buildings. One superintendent of schools writes: "If there are other halls in town it seems to me that the high school assembly hall should be held for high school purposes only." Several rent to outside parties only when there is no charge for admission.

On the other hand, other communities utilize their school buildings for many occasions. One school official writes: "We allow the public to use our school buildings for practically every purpose from religious exercises to card parties. If an admission fee is taken we charge ten dollars; if no admission is taken any group representing any matter that can be tagged educational uses the high school hall without expense." New Haven replies as follows: "The Board of Education exercises great liberality in opening its school houses to entertainment and programs of all sorts and kinds out of school hours."

In view to the request that has come to the committee from the Chamber of Commerce directors for a wider use of our high school plant and to cover three applications for the use of the assembly hall and gymnasium and other applications that I know to be forthcoming, I suggest the following regulations for the use of the Putnam High School gymnasium and assembly hall during the calendar year 1926.

Regulations for High School Halls.

1. Every applicant for the high school gymnasium or assembly hall shall fill out and sign a form, and if permission is granted agrees to comply strictly with the rules and regulations of the Putnam School committee governing the use of public buildings, to take the utmost care in the use of the school property, and to make good any damage arising from the occupany.

Permission to be granted by the school committee for the use of the assembly hall and gymnasium for the following purposes:

For all school activities and purposes allied with educational work.

For social, civic, and recreational meetings and entertainments.

For addresses on educational, legislative, economic, and scientific subjects of local and national importance.

Mrs. Lucie Pion, widow of Jean Baptiste Pion, died Wednesday evening at her home at North Grosvenordale, aged 75 years. She was born at St. Bernate, Canada, but had made her home in North Grosvenordale for many years. Her husband died three years ago.

Estelle Converse, 71, died in West Woodstock, Saturday, December 5. Funeral services were held Thursday, December 10. Burial was in the Chepachet cemetery.

Mrs. Marguerite Swanson of East Woodstock, wife of Andrew E. Swanson died at the home of her son, Carl G. Swanson on Walnut street, after an illness of several weeks. Mrs. Swanson, who was 53 years old, was born in Sweden and came to the United States in 1893. She has been a resident of East Woodstock for the past thirty years.

James H. Rafferty of this city, agent for the Metropolitan insurance company, is in New Haven, attending the Metropolitan Veterans association which is being held in the Hotel Taft today.

Mr. Rafferty has the distinction of being the oldest agent in the employ of the company in the number of successive years with them in Connecticut, and there are only five men in the United States who have been in the employ of this company longer than Mr. Rafferty.

At the city election held at Willimantic last Monday, Edward F. Whittemore of the city but formerly of Putnam, was elected auditor.

Putnam people have had an opportunity this week of seeing themselves and their visitors as they were seen on Armistice day. The "movies" of the big parade and the exercises connected with the dedication of the Memorial bridge have been on exhibition at the theatres this week. As people were anxious to see themselves as others see them, there were large crowds at each performance.

Horace Whitney and his wife were in Dorchester Mass., this week being called there by the sudden death of Mrs. Whitney's brother, George Iz Spencer. Mr. Spencer was a brother of Mrs. Hiram Barrett of this city who died just one year ago. Funeral services were held at Dorchester. Besides his sister, Mrs. Whitney, he is survived by two sons and six grandsons.

Mrs. Ruth Chandler, of Fremont St., has returned from Providence where for five weeks she has been under the care of a specialist and for sixteen days was a patient in the Rhode Island hospital. She is recovering from a long illness, the result of falling down stairs at her home.

The Grand officers of the Grand lodge of the State of Connecticut, I. O. O. F., will visit Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows on Tuesday evening December 22. The object of this visit is to instill interest in the Odd Fellows' home in Groton, and to try and raise funds for this institution.

The fire department was called out Thursday morning for a small chimney fire on Chaseey street in the house occupied by Mack Lewis. The fire was soon extinguished and the damage was slight.

The solicitors for the Red Cross of the western division of the town of Thompson have secured the following number of members: North Grosvenordale 20, Fabyan 13, West Thompson 7, Grosvenordale 6, Quinebaug 4, making a total number of 50.

The annual meeting of the Putnam chapter of the American Red Cross is to be held in the Red Cross room, Front street, next Monday evening.

The Rev. Dr. Russell H. Conwell, who has been heard in Putnam as a speaker on the Chautauqua platform, died Sunday at his home in Philadelphia. He was 82 years of age.

Miss Edict has given up her duties, temporarily, as one of the teachers at the Smith street school, because of the death of her mother, Mrs. Zenon Robillard is substituting for Miss Edict.

The Israel Putnam Lodge of Odd Fellows were the guests of Quinebaug lodge, at Danielson, Tuesday evening, taking with them nine candidates, these being joined by two candidates from Danielson lodge. All were received into the mysterius of the second degree by the Danielson degree team. It is expected that the third degree will be worked at Central Village later in the month.

Mrs. A. B. Ballou and Mrs. Joseph Keegan, of Woonsocket, were guests several days this week, of Mrs. Charles Rawley of Grove street.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Monroe, of Mechanic street will leave on Saturday morning for Wichita, Kansas where they will spend the winter with relatives of Mr. Monroe.

Mrs. John A. Dady of Sunnyside Heights, underwent an operation at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester last week. She is recuperating and will soon be able to return to her home.

George H. Gilpatric has returned from St. Vincent's hospital, Worcester, where he has been a patient for seven weeks, following an operation for appendicitis. He was very seriously ill at first but is now steadily regaining his health.

Miss Katherine Byrne made a business trip to Boston on Wednesday.

Mrs. J. Addison Porter of Pomfret and Mrs. Mary B. Bishop, of Putnam, have returned from a visit of several days at Boston.

W. E. Davison has been home from Hartford for several days and while here served as a clerk at the city election.

Soothing Oils Quickly Banish Asthma Torture

MAKE BREATHING EASY

After years of study and experience, Dr. Howard, a Worcester, Mass., Physician, discovered a simple combination of soothing essential oils to quickly banish Bronchial Asthma torture, Bad Cougha Obstinate Colds and Throat Irritations.

PLAINFIELD

The Lawton Fire brigate was the sponsor of a dramatic play, given at the Community house on Tuesday evening to an audience of nearly 400. The title of the play was, The Storm, and it was thoroughly enjoyed. The proceeds of the evening are to go to the fund for new uniforms for the firemen.

Mr. and Mrs. James Royle and family were recent visitors at the home of Mr. Royle's son, Arthur Royle, of Fishers Island.

Mrs. Charles Phillips, who has been suffering from pheumatism, is slowly improving.

Miss Elizabeth O'Neil, who was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, Providence, a few weeks ago, is reported in a serious condition.

Elmer Phillips has been a constant visitor, in Hartford, of late, to visit his father, who is in the Hartford hospital. Mr. Phillips underwent his second operation, and is reported doing nicely and resting comfortably.

There was a large attendance at the Christmas sale and supper given by the Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church. Supper was served to 100 people, and the entertainment consisted of a piano recital by Miss Irene Generous, and a monologue by Mrs. Lotta Dodge, which were well received. Cake and ice cream were sold by Walter Lathrop and V. S. Veillette. There was an unusually fine display of fancy articles and a substantial amount was realized for the treasury of the society.

Miss Lena Piper played the piano at the sale at Canterbury Grange hall, Tuesday, as the accompanist for the cornet soloist, Miss Hubert.

Walter Lathrop, and Mr. and Mrs Jason Lathrop recently motored to Providence to meet Mrs. Walter Lathrop, who was returning from a visit with her mother, in New Hampshire.

OCCUM & VERSAILLES

The Ladies' Aid society of the Versailles M. E. church, under the direction of Mrs. C. W. Perkins, held their annual supper and sale in the vestry of the church on Wednesday evening. A large attendance did justice to an excellent supper, the quality and quantity of which has been a feature of the annual gatherings for a number of years.

The supper committee comprised: Mrs. G. W. Cole, Mrs. John Hargreaves, Mrs. Frederick Babbit. They were assisted in serving by Mrs. Henry Benker, Mrs. W. G. Frohmader, Mrs. Frederick Irons, Mrs. Louis Eriebeck, Mrs. George Roblah, Mrs. V. A. Perkins, Mrs. Thomas Coffee, Mrs. Frederick Jones, Misses Lillian Hargreaves, Ruth Allen, Alma Boutilier, Ethel Richards and Mildred Phillips.

Mrs. C. H. Boyens, Mrs. A. R. Boutilier presided at the fancy booth; Mrs. F. H. Topliff, Mrs. Irving Gregory, Mrs. William Walmsley at the cake and ice cream booth; Mrs. Frederick Laycock at the mystery booth and Mrs. H. H. Conklin acted as cashier.

The vestry was tastefully decorated under the direction of Miss Boutilier. The society will be able to add $200 to its treasury from the proceeds of the sale.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

SOLD WINE TO YOUTHS WHO BROKE INTO STORES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Dec. 10—A sequel to the apprehension of the two boys for breaking and entering Main street stores was the arrest by Sergeant Harmon, Thursday, of Vincenzo Scotta, who was brought into the borough court charged with selling wine to the boys. The boys said that each of them had bought a glass of the wine for which they each paid 20 cents. They then bought a quart which they took away with them and for this paid 80 cents. Sergeant Harmon had samples of the wine in court which he said had a good kick to it. On the charge of selling Scotta was fined $100 and for keeping with intent to sell $80 and costs of $10.36 making a total of $190.36 which he paid. He promised the court it would be his last offense of this nature.

At the annual meeting of Ionic lodge, A. F. and A. M., Tuesday evening, reports of officers were read and accepted. The lodge is in a flourishing condition and has a membership of 164. The officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows:

ERECT SMALL CHURCH AFTER VOW MADE IN NAPOLEON'S DAY

CRESCO, Iowa, Dec. 10—(AP)—A vow, given at the time Napoleon was conducting his Russian campaign, eventually resulted in the erection here of one of the smallest churches in the world.

The mother of John Gaertner, a French explorer, who was with Napoleon's forces at the burning of Moscow vowed that if God would safely return her son she would build a church. The son returned but his mother was unable to carry out her vow. Her granddaughter, Mrs. Mary Anna Huber, however, took up the work, and the result was the building in 1886 of St. Anthony's Catholic chapel.

The church is of native lime rock. It is 11 feet wide and 17 feet long. It has four stained-glass windows, a tall belfry, a cross, four pews, a center aisle, a main altar and two side altars. It seats eight persons.

The tiny edifice, dedicated to the memory of John Gaertner, was maintained by the Huber family until 1924 when St. Anthony's Chapel association formed by 65 grandchildren of Mary Ann Huber, took over its care.

Gaertner first came to this vicinity in 1848, receiving his inspiration from a priest in Cincinnati who urged him to explore in ecountry. He came with several others and reported the country desirable. Four families from Odenburg, Ind., followed in 1849 and they built a log church on the present site of St. Anthony's. Services were held in the log church until 1855 when it was destroyed by fire.

TOWN SUNDAY HOUSES SOLVE FARMERS' WEEK END PROBLEMS

FREDERICKSBURG, Texas, Dec. 10—(A. P.)—"Sunday Houses," tiny dwellings, clustered mostly around the churches of this little German town in the hills of this little German town solved for many ranchmen and farmers the problem of week end trips to town for shopping, trading and attending church.

The first of them was erected about 30 years ago and the idea was so well received that there now are about 100 in use. Usually the "Sunday House" consists of one or two small rooms on the ground floor and the same number on a second floor.

Although furnished comfortably, few of them contain cooking utensils. The owners bring enough food to last them from Saturday until Monday morning, thus giving the women freedom from cooking and saving the expense of stocking two kitchens.

Fredericksburg, with a population of 4,000 is unincorporated and the owners of Sunday Houses have only to pay county and state tax rates on their establishments.

These homes have had a marked influence for good on the social and community life of the county, according to George D. Barber, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

There is no vacation in the school of experience.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Paddy Takes Command

Who works the way the Beavers work
Will never, never be a shirk.
—Old Mother Nature.

The two young Beavers, following their mother and father up the Laughing Brook, were inclined to grumble a bit at first. It seemed to them that they hardly had closed their eyes when Paddy waked them and ordered them to follow him at once. They didn't know what it was all about. They knew that he was greatly upset about something, and they guessed that it probably had something to do with the new dam, but they couldn't believe that it could be anything important enough to get them out in the night after a hard day's work. So they grumbled a little between themselves, but took care not to be overheard by their mother or father.

Straight up the Laughing Brook faster than they ever had traveled before Paddy led the way. Never had they known him to hurry like this before. At last they began to suspect that something serious must have happened after all. And when at last they were in the swamp they knew. They had left a big pond. They found little more than a puddle. It was no surprising that they rubbed their eyes.

But Paddy didn't stop to rub his eyes. He swam straight to a great hole in the middle of the dam. One glance was enough for him. "Buster Bear!" he snapped. "I guessed as much."

He climbed out on the dam and carefully looked over the hole and the condition of the dam on both sides and above and below. Then he turned to the two young Beavers. "You youngsters get busy at once cutting and bringing sticks and the brushy tops of young trees as fast as you can," he commanded. "You," he continued to Mrs. Paddy, "dig mud and sods if you can find them. I'll attend to the placing of the material. Now, everybody work! It ought not to take a great while to stop this water from running off. We must save what little is left so as to make it reasonably safe for us to work. I suspect that good-for-nothing Yowler the Bob Cat will be sneaking about here soon if he isn't hiding close at hand already. Keep a sharp watch, youngsters, and keep close to deep water while you are cutting."

Paddy's guess that owler the Bob Cat might be somewhere near was a good one. Yowler was right where he could see all that went on. There was no place for him to hide within jumping distance of those busy workers, but he hoped that as the work went on without disturbance one of them might become careless and get far enough away from the water for him to have at least a chance for a Beaver dinner.

But Paddy seemed to have eyes everywhere at once. The instant one of the others began to stray the least bit away from the water Paddy's flat tail would thump a reminder and warning. And how those Beavers did work!

"You youngsters get busy at once cutting and bringing sticks"

They didn't waste a minute. Before it seemed possible the amount of water flowing out through that hole in the middle of the dam began to grow less. It grew less and less faster than it takes to tell it. You see, Paddy was working with might and main, and he seemed to know just where to put each stick and each brushy top and the sods and mud Mrs. Paddy brought. Even as Yowler looked at it the puddle above the dam began to grow bigger. It grew slowly at first, but soon it grew rapidly. That hole was being filled up.

When the young Beavers saw this, one of them suggested that they go over to the other hole Buster Bear had torn in the dam. But Paddy wouldn't allow this. You see there was no water running through this hole, for the pond was now too small for there to be any water behind the dam there. To have fixed that hole the Beavers would have had to work out of water altogether. It was this very thing that Yowler had been hoping and hoping they would do. But Paddy put his foot down against this. Perhaps it would be more correct to say he put his tail down. Anyway, he slapped the ground with it whenever one of those young Beavers started toward that other hole, and that was all there was to that. It wasn't until the pond had grown big enough for the water to reach and begin to run through that other hole that Paddy gave it any attention. Then he swam over to it and began work on that.

So, about the time that jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun began his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky the work was finished, and Mrs. Paddy led two tired young Beavers back down the Laughing Brook to their home. Paddy said he would remain a while. As for Yowler the Bob Cat, he slipped away unseen, muttering to himself in disappointment.

FARMERS AND THEIR VIEWS OF FARMING.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

I sometimes wonder what farmers really think about themselves and about their vocation.

It isn't easy to induce them to talk open-heartedly and unaffectedly about the subject.

They are often out-spoken. But what they say in such moments isn't apt to ring quite true. It sounds blunt enough and frank enough to satisfy the casual listener. But there are over-tones or undertones in almost every note which impresses the intent ear with a sense of doubt. One hearing them is apt to be more perplexed by what they imply than by what they express; more puzzled by what they suggest than by what they say.

A good many seem to think they have answered the question by parroting phrases they have caught at farm institutes or grange meetings or political ballyhoos or similar gatherings.

Others just re-hash the opinions vigorously and idiomatically set forth in country-store back-rooms or around the blacksmith's forge.

A vast majority tincture their expression with the acidity of temper developed in the day's drudgery of sweating combat with weeds and bugs and blights and predaceous beasts or birds.

Very, very rarely does one of them think the thing through, letting his reason reach beyond the day's irks and across the furrowed ridges of seasons and years and, indeed, a full lifetime.

It is not meant that farmers are different from other workers engaged in useful production. The tendency of all men is to magnify the vexations and disappointments of the passing moment. Few in any calling seem able to look out or up. Their range of vision is limited to "in" or "down". To put it in homely phrase, a cent close to their eyes is bigger than a dollar just out of arm's reach. Or, as "Uncle Ike" used to say of one whom he disapproved; "A pimple on his nose is more important than a volcano across the bay."

Still fewer discriminate what they want and what they need; between what they desire and what they deserve. They "want" silk stockings and chocolate eclairs and Rolls-Royces, and are disposed to think themselves unfairly used if deprived of them.

Fewest of all those who can comprehend the eminent supremacy of "doing" and "being" over mere "getting" and "having;" who can clearly contrast the glory of achieved accomplishment with the glitter of so-called "success,' and who can deliberately choose the fine gold instead of the tinsel counterfeit.

All this is quite as true of farmers as of others. It is equally true that the few in any vocation who can and do see clearly and think logically are apt to be tongue-tied when it comes to expression. "The shallows murmur where the deens are dumb." It is easy to scoop up a cunful of spume from the slobbered margin of a gust-whipped bay. But it needs patient and laborious dredging to secure any of its treasures from the deep sea bottom.

After more than three-score years' close association with farmers, much of that time passed in their company as one of them, in summer and winter, in fair weather and foul, in seasons of failure and in harvests of attainment, I frankly own that I can't feel sure of what a single one actually thinks of farming and his fellow-farmers.

Oh, yes, I know what "Uncle Ike" thinks of his neighbor, Peter Tumbledown. And I know what "Hank," the hired man, thinks of his last employer. And I know what most of his neighbors think of Ezra Pinchpenny who is too stingy to let his sick wife have a boiled egg, if eggs are selling at over 50 cents a dozen. I know a varied lot of opinions which aggrieved or disapproving critics are not slow to express, but always of individuals; never of themselves or their calling.

This seems to me unfortunate, to put it mildly. For I have, myself, very decided opinions about farming and about farmers. Those opinions can be stated in a few words. They are, First:

That farming is the most fitting, the most inspiring, the worthiest, and the highest form of productive activity open to man. And

Second:

That farmers, as a whole, seldom realize their true rank in Time's great "peerage," and rarely appreciate the possibilities lying dormant in their opportunities.

Consider, first, that opinion about the relative rank of farming as a vocation. It is to be admitted, without demur, that for uncounted generations and untold centuries farming has been classed by the self-appointed "elite" as an occupation for serfs and oafs and clowns. In the former days kings came first and soldiers second, and farmers crawled at the very tail of the procession. In times within your and my remembrance, the bright boys were groomed for the law or the pulpit and "the fool of the family" reserved for a farmer. Also, in those same days they thought that the earth was the center of the universe and that sun and stars revolved about it. They were as wrong about one thing as the other. It may have been that "the times of this ignorance God winked at," i. e. excused. That action affords us no pretext for imitating or even honoring it.

There is a difference between the farming which used to be done with crooked sticks for plows and sharpened stakes for spades and that of today.

There is a difference between the farming which was done with superstitutions regard for the aspects of the stars or the phases of the moon, in utter ignorance of all natural law, and the farming which calls to its aid and makes use of all the knowledge which any one brain is capable of containing.

Modern farming, to attain its highest, must draw freely upon such sciences as chemistry and mineralogy and geology and botany and entomology and biology, to say nothing of applied logic and psychology. The modern farmer, to achieve best results, must be an all-round scientist. He must be able to meet over the specialists on their own ground and at least follow them intelligently and expertantly through their most recondite labyrinths of experimentation and exploitation. He needs to know more of chemistry than the biologist does, and more of biology than the geologist does, and more of geology than the entomologist does. And so on through the entire list. I do not say that the average farmer is all this. God knows he isn't! — which is one amply sufficient reason for four-fifths of his failures. What I mean is that the ideal farmer should be and can be all this, and more. And that his eminence in his work depends very largely upon the extent to which he approximates it.

Add to these demands which his calling makes upon his mental faculties the equally strenuous and compelling demands which it makes upon his physical powers, and you will appreciate the blessed balance between brain and brawn which results or ought to result. "Mens sana in corpore sano:" a sound mind in a sound body: the nearest approach to manly perfection which we can hope for.

The old contempt for manual labor is fast dying, as humanity cuts its wisdom teeth. Holders of "white collar jobs" are learning, under the stern tutelage of the law of supply and demand, that "salaries" are no more honorable than "wages,"—and often not so pocket-filling. The world is coming to see that, no matter how highly trained the engineer, he is efficient only in so far as he can command an adequate and responsive engine. The mind is no more necessary to direct than the muscles are to execute. The combination of a powerful mind in a puny body is no nearer the ideal of manly perfection than that of the athlete's brawn with the moron's brain.

To an extent equalled by no other occupation known to man, farming demands both mental sweep and physical vigor. To rise to his possibilities the farmer must think,—think deeply and widely and exactly. He must plan as a general plans campaigns, with all the knowledge of his own resources and his enemy's which he can beg, borrow or buy. But he cannot stop when he has planned the battle; he must also fight it, in person, without substitute, from the firing line to the last ditch. He must be at once planner and performer, inventor and user, designer and executant,—his own "boss" and his own "hired man."

The whole trend and tendency of his work is towards an equalsided and fully rounded development in which mind and body grow up together, neither over-topping nor stunting the other. Further, his hand-to-hand dealings with nature, such as are shared by no others of the world's workers, almost inevitably lead him to an insight into her methods far deeper and truer than can be gained in any laboratory.

Now, having such a vocation with such opportunities, why is it that so few farmers hold themselves at a true valuation?

They are self-assertive enough, Heaven knows. They are apt to be obstinately dogmatic. They are frequently opinionated almost beyond bearing. Sometimes they are actually "pompitous." But there are very few who, in unassuming and, therefore, impregnable dignity, exemplify and maintain the honor of their most ancient and exalted calling.

To turn your thoughts in that direction and suggest the value of the unsearing self-examination which is an important element in the cultivation of the mental soil for any desirable crop is the primary if not the sole purpose of this Talk.

THE FARMER.

MYSTIC

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Mystic Industrial Company was held this week. The following officers were elected: President Clinton Allyn; vice president, John Rossi; secretary and treasurer, Charles H. Latham. The board of directors were re-elected, except John W. MacDonald, who resigned. Herbert Chapman was elected in his place.

The meeting of the local W C T U was held in G A R hall Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Charles E. Newbury, vice president, presided in the absence of the president. The meeting opened with the singing of the White Ribbon Rally song. For the devotional service, Mrs. Newbury read the 32nd chapter of Duet. This was followed by prayer and all repeating the Lord's prayer and the roll call. Several communications were read and in reply to two of them it was voted to contribute some money for Christmas cheer at the Submarine base and to aid one other worthy cause. An interesting letter was read from Mrs. A. E. Cutler, who is in New York for the winter, giving an account of meetings she had attended. Mrs. Newbury read an article from the W. C. T. U. weekly paper, entitled, Wets Make Ready for a Final Campaign to Modify the Dry Law. It was voted to omit the next meeting as it would come just before Christmas.

Fourteen members of A. C. Latham Camp, Sons of Veterans, went to Clinton Wednesday evening for the fourth district meeting. It is planned to have the fifth district meeting here on Jan 9th.

About 60 members of the Mystic Chamber of Commerce met in Odd Fellows hall Tuesday evening and Mystic Rebekah lodge served a roast beef supper. President Charles T. Crandall was toast master and introduced Rev J. Romeyn Danforth, of New London, who was ordained and installed pastor of the Mystic Bridge Congregational church Oct. 25th, 1892 and married Miss Prudence Langworthy here. As on former occasions his address was full of wit, also practical suggestions that can be put into practice and benefit the town. The second speaker, George B. Chandler, of Rocky Hill, secretary of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce and the International Chamber. Mr. Chandler gave many helpful suggestions to attract manufacturers and new industries to visit Mystic and see the advantages it has to offer as a place to live in and establish a business.

The annual meeting of Charity Chapter No. 61, O. E. S. was held Tuesday evening in Masonic Temple. The reports of all officers and committees were read and accepted. The election of officers was as follows: Worthy matron, Mrs. Viola Chapman; worthy patron, Horace Van Artsdalen; associate matron, Mrs. Ada Sweet; secretary, Mrs. Emily Smart; treasurer, Miss Ethel Johnson; conductress, Mrs. Florence Van Artsdalen; associate conductress, Miss Ernestine Brown; trustee for three years, Miss Doris Raynor.

Helen Starker chapter met in the parish house yesterday for an all day session and tied quilts that are ordered for Christmas.

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers association is to be held in Mystic Academy this (Friday) evening. Mrs. John B. Gray, president, has secured Robert C. Rice, head of the physical work of New London schools, for the speaker. Children will sing and refreshments will be served by the committee, Mrs. Laura Tift, chairman, Mrs. Panceira, Mrs. Cinquanta, Mrs. Hammond and Mrs. Ralph Wheeler.

Capt. John Spafford, of the Choctaw steamer, was in New London port over Tuesday and Wednesday nights. He came to Mystic to visit his aunts, Miss Callie Chapman and Mrs. C. F. Congdon.

A. C. Latham Camp, No. 19, Sons of Veterans, met in G. A. R. hall Tuesday evening for their annual meeting. Officers elected were: Commander, Royce Wolfe; senior vice commander Arthur S. Rathbun; junior vice commander, Walter C. Morgan; first, second and third members of camp council Fred M. Williams, A. W. Butler, A. O. Neff; secretary and treasurer, A. O. Neff.

At the last meeting of the Chamber of Commerce a committee on transportation and railroads was elected as follows: Norton C. Wheeler, George D. Johnson, Louis F. Allyn, Mason Manning, Frank E. Hobart. Retail merchants committee, Edward Gaskell, Manual Sylvia, Max Bendett, N. E. Haas and Harold Main.

Col. Percy H. Morgan and Charles H. Latham motored to Princeton, N. J., Tuesday, returning home Wednesday evening with Mr. Morgan's son, Evans, who has been ill with malaria. Mr. Morgan will recuperate at his home here and return to his studies when the university opens in January.

Michael Kenney, of Providence, R. I., is employed in the Mystic Woolen company mill.

Mrs. Frank Buckley is visiting relatives in New York city.

Mrs. Elwood Lathrop and Miss Jennie Denison were visitors in New London Thursday.

Mrs. C. F. Congdon has had her annual sale of fancy work at her home on Willow street the past three days.

Daniel Whipple, of Ledyard, was a business caller here Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Stoddard motored to Newburgh, N. Y., Wednesday, to carry home the two children of Mr. and Mrs. Snyder Gage, who have been here several weeks with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lamb, on Library street.

Several friends have called on Miss Louise Chamberlin, who is a patient at Home Memorial hospital, New London.

ANDOVER

There was a dance in the town hall Saturday night.

The grange held a meeting Monday evening in the hall with visitors present from Wapping grange. The third and fourth degrees were conferred on a large class. A supper followed the meeting.

A call has been extended to Rev. Elmer Cook, of the Hartford Theological Seminary, to become pastor of the Andover Congregational church.

Miss Marion Dahin, of the Connecticut Agricultural college, will be at the home of Mrs. Emily Cobb, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, a new town director will be chosen. Miss Gertrude White is in Chicago attending a meeting of the Farm bureau.

The Mens' club of Andover, will entertain at their Ladies' night meeting, Monday evening, Dec. 14th., at the town hall.

GALES FERRY

The chicken pie supper and annual Christmas sale, given by the Ladies' Aid society, of the M. E. church, in the vestry Tuesday evening, was largely attended by summer residents and friends from Norwich, with others present from Preston, New London, Groton and Uncasville. The affair proved pleasing, the receipts for the evening being $115.00.

Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, who is chairman of the auxiliaries of the Norwich Red Cross chapter, reports these additional names to the list of membership at Gales Ferry: Mrs. Andrew P. Miller, R. Irving Hurlbutt, Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt, Mrs. Henry W. Hurlbutt, Mrs. Charles A. Catterlee, Miss Alice Satterlee, Mrs. Joseph DeRuaha, Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt and Mrs. Billings F. S. Crandall a total of 48 in membership to date.

School Supervisor S. Hussey Reed, of Norwich, met with the teachers from the towns of Bozrah, Preston and Ledyard, at the Gales Ferry school building, Monday afternoon. The subject under discussion was, History and the School Journal.

Miss Rose Norcross, who so ably represented the Girls' Cooking club, from Gales Ferry, at the annual meeting of the New London County Farm bureau, at Buckingham, Memorial, Norwich, attended, with other members of the club, the junior short course, at Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, last summer. Miss Norcross and the other members of the club of ten, having instruction under the direction of their leader, Mrs. Walter T. Clark, are planning to compete in the bread-making contest of the County Farm bureau, Dec. 14, when the loaves to be entered are to be sent to Miss Gladys E. Stratton, Home Demonstration agent, to be judged, for a prize.

Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham gave a luncheon at her home here Tuesday for Mrs. William H. Oat, Mrs. Harvey M. Briggs, Mrs. Everett Dawley, Mrs. Avery C. Smith, Mrs. George R. Fellows and Miss Susan L. Gallup all of Norwich, with Mrs. Everett Noyes of Gales Ferry.

The Community Christmas tree, will be held on the evening of the 21st of December, Monday, at the Country club, as announced by the chairman of the entertainment department, of the Village Improvement Association, Miss Grace E. Povey.

Mr. and Mrs. Avery Main and Miss Mabel Smith were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Norcross, motoring to Danielson Monday evening. Alfred Erickson and sister Miss Ida Erickson with Warren Norcross went in Mr. Erickson's car, all being local members of Ledyard Grange, going to attend a meeting of the Killingly Grange in I. O. O. F. hall.

Miss Alice Satterlee attended a recent meeting of the school board of the town at Ledyard Center.

Lightning rods were added to the M. E. church here Monday, by men from Norwich.

COPY OF WEBER'S LOST GRAND MASS FOUND IN SALZBURG

VIENNA, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The voluminous score of a mass, bearing the name of Carle Maria di Weber, found in Salzburg by a young Vienna scientist, Dr. Konstantin Schneider, has turned out to be a fair copy of the "Grand Mass," which Weber himself had regarded as lost.

This work, as it appears from a dedicatory letter attached to the manuscript, was written in Munich in 1792, and was dedicated by the youthful composer to the Prince Archbishop of Salzburg, on May 3rd, 1802.

The mass, which is the principal work of the composer's youth and was called by Weber "Missa Solemne," is written for four voices, with great orchestra and organ. It gives the impression that the youthful master desired to demonstrate his talent in every direction. Each phrase has a special theme, which was not Weber's custom in later years.

LONGEVITY OF DOLLS DRIVES OUT HOSPITALS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Modernism has brought increased longevity to the dolls that Santa Claus will bring this Christmas.

So evident is the doll's health that a once flourishing business devoted to its ills virtually has disappeared. Fifteen years ago, there were 250 doll hospitals in New York, while today there are only three. Even the latter have lucrative sidelines.

Most of the twenty million dolls made in America this year have unbreakable heads and bodies plumply stuffed with cotton.

"SEAT GUARDERS" OF ROME RIVAL AMERICAN "LIZARDS"

ROME, December 11.—(AP)—"Seat Guarders," somewhat like the "Lounge Lizards" of America, have originated here as a result of the growing predilection for afternoon tea in the English fashion.

Rome's number of tea rooms is restricted, so each afternoon young men averse to strenuous work take seats and hold them until the tea-seekers arrive. Then, instead of relinquishing the chairs, the guarders merely offer to make room for the arrivals, slipping back as soon a stea is over.

To date, the new occupation merely is used as a means for social advancement, but there are indications of commercialization.

LONDON OPERA SEASON IS LOSING MONEY FOR BACKERS

LONDON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—In contrast to the American opera season, accounts of the London Opera Syndicate for 1925 make a poor showing.

An eight-week season at Covent Garden is being conducted at considerable loss, there being only an average booking of 73 per cent. of the theatre capacity against the necessary 94 per cent.

Gauged by the average bookings for each performance the order of popularity is Tosca, Rosenkavalier, Meistersinger, Fedora, Tristan, Aida, Rigoletto, Lucia, Lohengrin, Barbiere, Walkure and Madam Butterfly.

WITH COAL SHORTAGE LIKELY MORE CULM BANKS UTILIZED

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Old culm banks, once regarded as waste materials of mining processes are being more generally utilized with the increased demand for fuel as a result of the suspension of hard coal operations.

A culm pile, near Honesdale, which is estimated to contain at least 1,000,000 tons, is to be removed by a Scranton firm under permission granted by the state sanitary water board. The firm plans to remove the culm and ship it to tidewater without any further treatment.

Through the early years of anthracite mining in the Pennsylvania fields no attempt was made to salvage the fuel dumped out in the waste piles. Huge banks of culm accumulated in many places.

From these came the river coal which has been marketed by dredgers on streams flowing from the coal region. In recent years, many of the coal companies have washed out the good coal from the culm banks and sold it.

RUSSIAN BOOT DOOMED IN LONDON, MODISTES CLAIM

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The Russian boot for young women, which came in here with a rush along with the fall rain and mud, is doomed, modistes claim, because there is not a chance of the idea ever being taken up by royalty and the "best people" generally.

The makers of fashion declare, incidentally, that the best people seldom set the styles but follow them after the second best have trodden the path way of the nouveaux.

But, it is pointed out, it is quite different with the Moscow boot, because to keep a foot going royalty must give up its ermine, and royalty will never do that because no member of the King's household ever walks in damp, muddy streets which have made the Russian footwear popular—for the time being, at least.

Japan to Tax Baseball

TOKYO, Dec. 10.—All professional baseball games in Japan will be taxed in the future, according to a decision of the taxation authorities.

An American girls' baseball team recently played a number of games in Tokyo and the gate receipts were large. Plans are reported under way for the organization of a Japanese National League. So the government intends to get its percentage of the receipts of professional games hereafter.

WESTERLY

PAWCATUCK MASONS ELECT T. EDWARD PEABODY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 10—T. Edward Peabody of Pawcatuck was elected worshipful master of Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, F. and A. M., at the 93rd annual and 710th stated communication held on Thursday evening in the Masonic rooms on High street. Other officers elected and appointive were as follows:

Senior warden, George A. Stillman; junior warden, Russell Hemphill; treasurer, Elbert W. Clarke; secretary, W. Frank Friend; senior deacon, Robert D. Vennard; junior deacon, Raymond E. Pendleton; senior steward, Thomas Sutcliffe; junior steward, Daniel N. Ashworth; chaplain, W. Samuel Girven; marshal, W. William R. Chapman; organist, J. C. Thomas; tyler, Charles L. Westcott; trustees, W. William A. Hilliard (3 years); finance committee, M. W. Thomas McKenzie, R. W. Arthur N. Nash and W. William R. Chapman; tellers, A. L. Leon, Quinebaug lodge, Southbridge, Mass; and Clarence A. Vars, Franklin, No. 20, Westerly, R. I.

Presiding at the election and installation were M. W. Thomas McKenzie assisted by R. W. Arthur N. Nash, deputy grand master of the grand lodge of Connecticut as grand master of ceremonies, both members of Pawcatuck lodge.

Retiring Master Bourdon A. Babcock was presented a past master's jewel and a past master's apron by Worshipful William A. Hilliard.

Previous to the election the reports of various officers and committees showed the lodge to be in flourishing condition, the number of members being 220.

Adjournment was taken to the asylum armory banquet hall where refreshments were served.

The annual election and installation was largely attended, the members of Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., of Westerly, being the specially invited guests.

ANNUAL VISITATION AT WESTERLY LODGE OF ELKS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 10—Nearly one hundred Elks gathered in their rooms on High street on Wednesday evening, the occasion being the annual visitation and inspection of Westerly lodge, No. 678, B. P. O. E., of Westerly. James McCormick, exalted ruler when District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler James N. Stover, of Providence, and suite of twenty grand officers paid an official visit.

Degree work was followed by speeches and a program of boxing bouts of local fighters and a buffet luncheon were enjoyed by those attending.

Filed for record in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears:

Dec. 10.—Albert H. Langworthy, agent, to Westerly band by agents William A. Burk, Lewis Solomon and C. O. Gavitt, a five-year lease of the southeast corner room or hall on the second floor of the building at 7 High street, from Dec. 1st.

James A. Saunders to James Henry Scott and wife, Mary Elizabeth Scott, a certain lot or parcel of land near Weekapaug.

The Washington Trust company to Annie E., and Margaret Barney, a certain lot or parcel of land at Watch Hill on the west side of Misquamicut road and extending to the Pawcatuck river.

Frederick P. Babcock to Arthur E. Fraser, a certain lot or parcel of land lots Nos. 17 and 18, of plat of building sites of Fred P. Babcock.

F. EDWARD PEABODY

LORRAINE MFG. CO. TO INSTALL SILK LOOMS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Dec. 10—The Westerly branch of the Lorraine Manufacturing company of Pawcatuck, was indefinitely closed today with the exception of the departments below the spinning department. This action was taken on account of the slow demand for cotton at the present time, but, it is learned, a supply of silk looms is on the way and they will be installed in the departments, where silk has taken the place of cotton.

PAWCATUCK STRIKERS IN CONFERENCE WITH MILL MEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Dec. 10—Donald Battey, of New York, connected with the management of the Pawcatuck Woolen company of Pawcatuck, was in Westerly today in conference with the strikers. His mission was to try and make some settlement with the strikers, who have been out for the past eight weeks. Information to the outcome of the conference could not be obtained.

The strike effects practically every department of the company. A meeting of the strikers will be held Friday night.

The death of Thomas F. Howard occurred Thursday evening at his home, 33 Grove street, following an illness of about four weeks. Mr. Howard was a retired business man, for many years conducting a newsstand on the Pawcatuck river bridge. He was born in Rhode Island and for many years made his home in Westerly, where he was well and favorably known, having obtained a large circle of friends through his business transactions and his personality.

LEFFINGWELL

Friday evening, at eight o'clock the Leffingwell School Improvement league held its December meeting in the schoolhouse. About sixty-five were present. The president opened the meeting, all singing "The Star Spangled Banner." The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and accepted, then the meeting was turned over to G. Thomas Leffingwell, chairman of the entertainment committee. "America" was sung by all, and was followed by a piano duet, "Harlequin and Columbine" by Miss Carolyn L. Beebe and Miss Mildred F. Leffingwell. Miss Amelia Erwin sang two songs, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Charles Erwin. A violin solo was given by Jared Gallup, accompanied by Miss Alice A. Bishop, and was given an encore.

Mr. Leffingwell introduced Dr. Frank S. Bunnell of the Academy faculty, who gave a very interesting talk. Miss Erwin sang "Come and Greet the Glorious Dawn." The president announced these committees for the January meeting: Entertainment, Mrs. S. Hussey Reed, Rusell Taylor and Miss Effie Murphy. Refreshments, Mrs. Stanley Spicer, Mrs. Ira Wheeler and Mrs. Edward Caroline.

Later fancy cookies and coffee were served in charge of Mrs. Forrest C. Leffingwell.

Mrs. Albert Ross is spending a few days in New Britain with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chappell and Mr. and Mrs. Pearl W. Ross.

The B. Y. P. U. president, Miss Ruth J. Ellis, recently appointed a nominating committee, Miss Elsie Beard, Miss Linda Mowrey and Mrs. C. Emile Geoffrey. They nominated the following officers for the B. Y. P. U. to serve from Jan 1926 to July 1926: President, Sherman L. Rogers; vice president, Miss Ruth J. Ellis, secretary and treasurer, Miss Zelda Mowrey. Devotional committee, Mrs. C. E. Ellis, Miss Mildred F. Leffingwell and Miss Elsie Beard. Lookout committee, Miss Carolyn L. Beebe, C. E. Ellis and C. Thomas Leffingwell. Social committee, Mrs. Henry Durr, Miss Linda Mowrey and Rev. William B. Oakley. Two new members. Mrs. Roy L. Beard and S. Eugene Rogers were voted in to the B. Y. P. U. membership.

Mrs. Justice Bedat and Miss Patrick Sullivan of Maple street, Norwich were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Bedat.

The West Plain cemetery has been undergoing many improvements. The association has purchased more land of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse E. Rogers. Grading has been done, shrubs planted, lots raised, a new fence erected, but the most noticeable change is the cutting down of the evergreen trees beside the road. A hedge of shrubs has been planted in place of the trees.

Guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Ross were Mr. and Mrs. A. Frank Gardner and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Griffith of East Great Plain.

Tuesday evening the Ladies' Aid society held a supper in the church vestry in charge of Mrs. A. H. Beebe and Mrs. S. Clinton Rogers. The menu consisted of escalloped potato, cold sliced ham, baked beans, rolls, coffee, pickles, cake and ice-cream. The fifteen children who took part in the Thanksgiving pageant were given their supper. Each one had a little verse to recite concerning the cost of the pageant during the supper hour.

Several articles were also sold at the fancy work sale.

The bridge in front of Ira Wheeler's home is being repaired and replanked.

NOANK.

At Webster Eldright Boat shop, a 36-foot fishing boat is going to be launched for Capt. Lawrence Ashcraft. The boat is to be used for fishing around Block Island.

Nick Nelson, of Nantucket, L. S., is visiting in town.

Thomas McGowan has gone to Montauk, L. I., for a few days.

Earl Bogue has returned from Boston, after a brief visit.

Miss Ida Thompson, of New Haven, was home on Wednesday.

Roswell Lamb has hauled out his boat for the winter.

Capt. Fred Buddington is having a fish market built on his property on Bay Side avenue.

Frank Davis, of Nantucket, Mass., formerly of Noank, who has been away for 20 years, has been in the village looking up relatives and old friends. Mr. Davis found many changes in the village, most of them in the business section.

Capt. Walter Rathbun has been visiting his son, Harry, in Waterbury, for a few days.

Steve Austin was a visitor in Danbury Thursday.

Mrs. Charles Rogers was a New London caller Thursday.

Raymond Jones has gone to Brooklyn for a few days.

Harry Edie has returned to his duties at Cornfield Lightship.

Raymond Listare is in New York on business.

Charles Rogers is visiting relatives in New Jersey.

Rollin Robert has gone to Holyoke Mass., where he will visit for about a week.

Miss Nora McKenna, of Springfield, was a recent caller at Groton Long Point.

At the all-day session of the Ladies' Aid society, held in the Baptist church vestry on Tuesday, 40 members were present. During the business meeting the nomination of officers for the coming year took place, resulting as follows: President, Mrs. Augusta Potter; vice president, Mrs. Edna Thompson; second vice president, Mrs. Eunice Carpenter; secretary, Mrs. Jennie Ashcraft; treasurer, Mrs Mabel Spicer. It was voted to continue to hold all-day sessions at intervals during the coming year. After the business meeting a delicious dinner was served. The committee comprised Mrs. Edna Thompson, Mrs. Minnie Cox, Mrs. May Oles, Mrs. E. Carpenter. The work in the afternoon was tying three quilts and sewing patchwork.

George Andrews is visiting relatives in Center Groton.

NORTH STONINGTON

The Congregational church gave a reception Thursday evening for the new pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Inor Partington.

Alfred M. Crofts has been appointed rural mail carrier on route number one, and took up the work a few days ago.

Edward H. Thompson gave an illustrated lecture in Wheeler library, Monday evening.

Mrs. Inor Partington has been visiting her son Hollis Partington, in Newark, N. J.

The grange gave a meat pie supper last week. Owing to unpleasant weather, the attendance was not as large as was anticipated. The gross receipts were reported as about $50.

The Third Baptist Sunday school is to have a Christmas tree on the evening of Dec. 24th.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Sweetser and son, of Jewett City, and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Davidson and granddaughter, of New London, were visitors in town Suday.

UNION

Last Friday was a rainy day, of a rainy week and Friday evening was no exception, but there was an attendance of 70 at the Christmas social and sale held at the town hall on that evening. The different sale tables and the refreshment tables were all well patronized, and the L. B. A. was well pleased with the result. An interesting and enjoyable entertainment was given. Miss Millard's pupils from Mashapaug school, gave some very pretty songs, drills and a play. Miss Hand's pupils, from Red school, gave their Thanksgiving play, which was well acted. The farce by Mrs. David Gaudette, Mrs. Nelson Horton and Miss Della Heck was well carried out and much enjoyed.

At the last regular meeting of Mashapaug Lake Grange, held on Dec. 2, officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

Master, Arthur Proulx; overseer, Paul Rizner; lecturer, H. R. Howard; steward, Raiza Horton, assistant steward, Thomas Smith; chaplain, Mary L. Horton; treasurer, L. Morgan Reed; secretary, Della Heck; gate keeper, Edwin Heck; Ceres, Mabel Horton; Pomona, Ruth Bradway Flora, Lizzie A. Richards; L. A. steward, Gladys Smith.

H. R. Howard was in Worcester, last Wednesday, attending the meeting of the Worcester Extension Service. He gave an address on "The Practical Value of Forest Planting."

Union people who have been over the road from Mashapaug to Southbridge this week, have been interested in a survey that the Massachusetts State Highway commission is conducting. A force of men have been diging holes 3 feet dep every 300 feet in the roadway. Is the trunkline to continue from Union to Sturbridge or from Union to Southbridge? This question is of interest here.

Paul Rizner is on a trip to Nanticoke, Penn., the home of the Rizner family, before coming to Union to live.

Miss Julia Heck was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Coolidge in Somers. The three were guests of Rev. and Mrs. H. A. Coolidge, at the Parsonage, on Sunday evening.

Oscar Willis was the recipient of a radio for his birthday. The radio was a gift from his brother, Gilbert E. Willis, of Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Coutu and her mother, Mrs Edson of Palmer, Mass., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sallou on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Rizner and little daughter, Phyllis, of Middletown, were guests of Mr. Rizner's mother, Mrs Mary Rizner, last Sunday.

Mrs. Sarah Sallou recently spent a few days at the home of her brother, G. W. Miller, in Staffordville.

Leroy Eaton and a party of men from Watertown, Mass., were at the Eaton home at Mashapaug last Sunday. Monday, they spent the day over the line, in Massachusetts, enjoying the open season for hunting deer. It has not been reported to your correspondent how many "kills" they made.

Mrs. H. R. Howard was the guest of her aunt, in Fiskdale, Mass., on Wednesday of this week.

The group of men who are to have charge of the next social to be held at the town hall are already getting their plans laid for a good time.

Rev. H. A. Coolidge and Dea. L. M. Reed attended the afternoon service, held in connection with the Ordination of Rev. Edwin T. Jones, at the Congregational church, in Somers, on Dec. 2nd.

GOSHEN

Miss Laura McCall is a guest of friends in Norwich.

The Sunday school is planning to have a Christmas pageant.

Philip A. Lathrop, who has been a patient at the Backus hospital, has returned home improved in health.

December 9th a flock of eight bluebirds again put in their appearance and it was pleasant to hear their clear music again.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McCall and son, Robert, of Colchester, were with friends here Sunday.

Miss Dorothy McCall of New Britain, was home over the week end.

LIBERTY HILL

The Liberty Hill Sunday school has voted to have a Christmas entertainment and Christmas tree, Christmas Eve, Dec. 24th. Money has been raised to buy candy and presents.

Leslie P. Clarke was busy Tuesday doing late ploughing for J. George Clark and spreading manure for F. W. Loomis, with his manure spreader. It is seldom one can have this kind of work done so late in the season.

The Christian Endeavor society voted to purchase 50 singing books for the use of the society. The title of the books is Worship and Song.

The mercury, Thursday morning, was at 18 above zero. It was cold during the day and there were snow squalls.

James A. Choquette was in Middletown Wednesday on business.

Abraham Lerner was busy Tuesday sawing wood for the church and J. George Clark.

Granny—Yes, of course they do.

Jimmy—Won't you take them off when you cut me another piece of cake?—Toronto Globe.

"What's his number?" asked Bilkins, as he picked up the receiver.

"Main 5044," answered his friend.

"Operator," said Bilkins into the mouthpiece, "don't give me Main 5044." —American Legion Weekly.

Little Lucy—Mother, can I have those apples on the sideboard?

Mother—Yes, dear!

Little Lucy—Oh, I'm so glad you said yes!

Mother—Why? Are you so hungry?

Little Lucy—No. But I have eaten them already.—Answers, London.

Policeman—"When you brought the would-be suicide from the water what did he do?"

Rescuer—"As soon as I turned my back he hung himself from a tree."

"But why didn't you cut him down?"

"I thought he had hung himself up to dry." Exchange.

A Man Who Knows Russia Speaks

Count Wlademar Kobovtseff was Finance Minister of Russia from 1904-1914 and Prime Minister from 1911-1914. No man has watched more closely the working out of the Bolshevist regime. In a recent review he makes these statements: "When the war broke out Russia was in full economic growth... Eight years of Bolshevism have severely shaken the bases of Russian industry. Her army of specialists has been decimated. The extreme impoverishment of the population, the development of primitive domestic industry among the peasants, who could no longer obtain objects of first necessities in the towns; the rise of prices, the total absence of administrative and judicial stability and personal security have restricted market outlets. Industrial stocks are exhausted and machinery, left unrepaired and unrenewed, has been to a great extent annihilated."

PUTNAM TELEPHONE MANAGER SUCCEEDING WEYMOUTH AT NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 10—Henry F. Lyon, who has been manager of the Putnam district of the S. N. E. Telephone company for the past four years is to be transferred January 1 to the Norwich district, succeeding J. Nelson Weymouth. His place here will be filled by Mr. Booth, now manager of the Waterbury Exchange. Mr. Weymouth is to go to the general offices at New Haven with an executive position, although just what that will be has not been announced.

The telephone company has never had a more efficient or more competent manager than Mr. Lyon. He came here in October, 1921. In addition to handling the rapid growth of the local exchange he has taken an active part in all civic affairs. For two years he was secretary of the Putnam Rotary club, a member of the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations. He is married and has two children.

DAWES NOT DISTURBED BY HARRISON'S SATIRE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Vice President Dawes sat on the dais of the senate today and for a half hour listened to Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, poke fun at his campaign for amendment of the senate rules.

During the performance, the vice president sat calmly at his desk with his arms and legs crossed and smiled down broadly on the Mississippian. After the speech was over he issued a statement in which he said:

"I enjoyed Senator Harrison's speech very much. His address was in good humor and, so far as I know, in good taste."

As the Mississippi senator dragged the presiding officer over a series of similies ranging from Don Quixote to a "misguided mule," other members and the galleries broke through the sedate senate rules by giving expression to their amusement with chuckles and loud laughs. Mr. Dawes, however, did not use his gavel once to rap for order.

Senator Butler, of Massachusetts, chairman of the republican national committee, also came in for a share of Mr. Harrison's attention, being charged with favoring reform of the senate rules because he objected to committee assignments and to his seat on the back row of the chamber, the usual place for new senators.

Senator Harrison accused the vice president of being unfamiliar with the history of senate procedure when he referred to his proposal as "my new rule." The senate, Mr. Harrison said, had a cloture rule for seventeen years and abandoned it, and when Henry Clay proposed modified cloture, he dropped it in the face of opposition by John C. Calhoun. Many other senators also had proposed cloture, he added, so the Dawes proposal was nothing new.

The speech ended with a warning to Mr. Dawes not to "mistake the great crowds and invitations to rise at banquets as the sentiments of the American people, as a vice president is going to get attention no matter where he goes."

CAUSE OF GIRL'S SUICIDE REMAINS A MYSTERY

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 10.—(AP) — The body of Miss Ora Marcel, twenty-six, employe of the Harvey Hubbell factory, who committed suicide Tuesday by inhaling illuminating gas at the home of C. J. Wheeler, 300 Colorado avenue, where she roomed, was taken to Leominster, Mass., this afternoon by her sister, Miss Lena Marcel, who came to this city Wednesday night. The funeral will be held in Leominster, Saturday morning. James Lynch, 76 Fourth street, fiancee of Miss Marcel, will leave for that city tomorrow where he will attend the funeral.

No motive which might have led Miss Marcel to take her life has yet been uncovered. Coroner John J. Phelan will not inquire into the death of the girl any further, nor are the police expected to investigate the suicide.

Miss Marcel had about $400 deposited in a city bank. Her clothing and jewelry were packed into suit cases today and shipped to her home.

Ralph Berkensen, 17, who occupied the room next to Miss Marcel's room, and who was overcome by the gas fumes, is recovering at St. Vincent's hospital. His condition was reported at the hospital tonight as being satisfactory.

CLAIMS U. S. LEADS ALL NATIONS IN AVIATION

PARIS, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Marcel Cachin, communist leader in the French chamber of deputies, took issue today with Eddie Rickenbacker, war ace of the United States, concerning the strength of the air forces of the world. M. Cachin, from the speaker's rostrum in the chamber of deputies, contended that America was spending freely, and added: "The United States so far as aviation is concerned leaves far behind all the European nations."

Rickenbacker, testifying at the Mitchell trial, placed America eighth on the list of the world's ranking aviation powers, after France, Great Britain, Italy and others. The statement came up during the discussion of an interpellation on the American war debt settlement, which M. Cachin characterized as "heinous."

American war contracts were drawn up in such a manner, taking advantage of France's precarious position, he said, as revolted every honest man.

M. Briand obtained a postponement of the discussion until M. Loucheur's financial plans have been disposed of.

INCREASE OF $4,000 FOR EXPENSES OF GOVERNOR

HARTFORD, Dec. 10—(AP)—An increase of $4,000 in the appropriation for the extraordinary expenses of the governor was allowed today by the state board of control to meet the costs of the state's proposed educational campaign on the use of substitutes for anthracite and other expenses which may be incurred because of the coal situation.

The board approved the plans for the new dormitory at the Connecticut Agricultural college and also the contract for erection of the building which has been awarded to the H. Wales Lines company, of Meriden, on a bid of $146,437. The appropriation for the building was granted by the 1925 general assembly.

An item of $5.04 in connection with the presentation of a sword to Lieutenant Leslie P. Arnold, around-the-world flier, was ordered paid. The sword was presented by the general assembly, $200 being appropriated for the purpose.

MISS CAROLINE BROOKS TO WED GEORGE M. METCALF, 84

HARTFORD, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Miss Caroline Brooks, 49, former executive secretary of the Hartford Travelers' Aid society, and George M. Metcalf, 84, retired business man, of Boston, Mass., are to be married Saturday by Rev. Harry Van Cleaf at his home in Eatontown, N. J., it was learned today.

Their marriage will culminate a three years courtship by Mr. Metcalf. The couple have been engaged but a short time and the suddenness of their decision to marry has caused surprise among Miss Brooks' friends in Hartford.

PROHIBITION TOPIC OF COUNCIL OF CHURCHES

DETROIT, Dec. 10.—(AP)—A "bootleg aristocracy" which the Rev. Dr. Charles Stelzle of New York city said "will have a large part in governing us in the next generation," was pictured today for the annual session of the executive committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

Dr. Stelzle's frank appraisal of the prohibition situation met a divided reception, with Bishop James Cannon of Washington, D. C., a national dry worker, and Howard Russell, founder of the Anti-Saloon League, objecting to some of Dr. Stelzle's conclusions.

"There can be no question about the large amount of drunkenness throughout our country today," said Sr. Stelzle. "It may be seen upon the streets and in all public places. Liquor may be had in hotels. Indeed, one is solicited by bell boys, and the bootlegging industry has become so disgraceful that in some parts of the country it is practically bringing about the nullification of the eighteenth amendment.

"Prohibition, like Christianity, is not a failure, however, because it has not been fully tried. The partial trial shows blessings that would follow real prohibition."

Dr. Stelzle said what is needed now is a campaign of education. A programme looking toward "destruction of the liquor traffic" would have for its objective:

"Suppression of the manufacture, transportation and importation of liquor for beverage purposes: destruction of the system of graft which has crept into the ranks of enforcement officers of the federal government; inspection of local communities to help enforce the prohibition law; destruction of saloons which still are unlawfully operating in many of our cities; demonstration of why the old liquor regime with its attendant evils should not be returned in this country; education of the public regarding the far reaching influence of the bootlegging industry upon the entire life of nation, and education of the public regarding the effects of the use of liquor."

DEMONSTRATION IN USE OF BITUMINOUS COAL

HARTFORD, Dec. 10—(AP)—Hartford's first demonstration in the use of low volatile bituminous coal was given this afternoon at the portable demonstration station at number 100 Sheldon street, under the direction of Charles L. Wright, of Andover, formerly of the United States bureau of mines at Washington, and now in charge of the Connecticut district for the smokeless coal service bureau.

Two points concerning the combustion of the soft coal, radically different than the accepted rules for the burning of anthracite coal, were stressed by Richard H. Leber and Emile L. Bresson, who gave the demonstrations. The first is that an open space of fire must be left when fresh coal is added to allow the flame to ignite the gases. The second is that air must be allowed to enter the fire box above the fire so that the gases may burn.

To do these things, a study of each individual furnace and stove must be made by the owner or by one of the experts. For this reason, Mr. Wright said today that he will be glad to detail one of the men to go to the home of anyone who asks for assistance in regulating his heater, whether he is using hard or soft coal.

The Sheldon street service station, in which a furnace and a kitchen range have been erected, will be open in the afternoons and evenings until 9 o'clock, except Saturdays and Sundays, and will continue as long as the present fuel emergency exists.

"Because the people in this section understand that there is but one grade of soft coal, and that the kind that has been used by factories and large office buildings, they are of the opinion that it is not possible to burn bituminous coal without a great deal of smoke resulting from the combustion," Mr. Wright said today.

"The fallacy in this belief lies in the fact that there are two grades of soft coal. That which has been used by industrial plants is a Pennsylvania high volatile coal with from 30 to 35 per cent. of ash, while the smokeless coal that we are demonstrating, is a low volatile coal with from 15 to 22 per cent. of ash."

LIBEL SUIT AGAINST DENVER POST IN HANDS OF JURY

DENVER, COLO., Dec. 10.—(AP)—The libel suit brought by Frank C. Beedsted, circulation manager of the Kansas City Star, against the Post Printing & Publishing company, asking $600,000 damages for an editorial published in the Denver Post accusing him of contributing money to the German government during the world war, was given to a jury in district court here early tonight.

The jury was instructed by Federal Judge J. Foster Symes that "the jury, it should determine to what extent of damage the plaintiff is entitled."

CAST-OUT SON-IN-LAW AIDS FATHER-IN-LAW'S BANK

KNOXVILLE, Iowa, Dec. 10—(AP)—How Waite Phillips, a bookkeeper, married the daughter of A. B. Elliott, millionaire banker of Knoxville, and under the frown of her family was cast adrift upon his own resources, made millions and 18 years later came back to aid of his fatherin-law's bank, is the story that is stirring the town of Knoxville today. Finding himself not in the best graces of his father-in-law Phillips moved to Oklahoma where he made one of the most phenomenal "killings" in oil history. Four months ago he sold his interests in the Phillips company of Tulso to Blair & Company, bankers of New York for $25,000,000 and retired from business.

Returning to Knoxville about a month ago, Mr. Phillips, now worth about $40,000,000, stabilized Mr. Elliott's bank at Knoxville and saved the fortune of the Elliott family.

"When Waite left Knoxville I know he had not saved more than $2,000," Mr. Elliott said today, commenting upon the remarkable career of the "young upstart," as he called Phillips. "But I always knew he had it in him."

Talked of Dawes Plan

BERLIN, Dec. 10—(AP)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, speaking tonight before the Berlin chamber of commerce on his American impressions, declared that the profound significance of the Dawes plan was more completely understood in America than Germany.

He denied that Americans took only a materialistic interest in Europe; they were, he averred, keenly desirous of insuring the prosperity of all nations.

HEDJAZ ARMY DEFEATED AFTER A LONG SIEGE

LONDON, Dec. 10—(AP)—The capture of Medina, the "prophet city" of Hedjaz, by the Wahabi tribesmen under the leadership of Ibn Saud, sultan of Nejd, is reported in a Jerusalem despatch to the Daily Express. The Hedjaz army under King Ali was defeated after a long siege.

Ibn Saud now is master of central Araby and is said to be in a position to capture Jeddah, King Ali's base, unless the British intervene.

STAMFORD, Conn.—Clarence Goodman, who has just left the ministry of the Church of the Nazarenes to be an excavation contractor, eats dynamite. He says it is good medicine "if eaten" putting out a blaze in his house found eight sticks of it and called him to court for not having a storage permit, then he told why he kept it in the house. He was fined $15.

NEW YORK—Southerners love New York. There are more southerners in New York than in any place outside the south. Main street thanks God it is not like New York, and then does its level best to be as like New York as it can. These remarks were by Robert Adamson, president of the New York Southern Society, in welcoming Jimmie Walker to a dinner as one who had captured the hearts of the south.

PHILADELPHIA—Mrs. Catherine Sherman Fess, 14, must go to school two years more and her husband must see that she does it. The juvenile court has so ruled. The board of education complained that many girls under 16 are marrying to escape school.

LONDON—Electric lights have tricked iguanas in the zoo into ending a week's hunger strike, they would not eat because it was cold. Still artificial sunshine made them wiggle fast to the feed troughs.

PARIS—Beaucoup francs being garnered by a wealthy and socially prominent young American iceman, whose home was the subject of curiosity by President Coolidge, are first page stuff here. Le Matin pictures him and remarks that he has surpassed the bambino.

Rome—The Fascisti are pressing female religious teachers to join teachers' unions and the organ of the Vatican is protesting.

NEW YORK—The Reverend Francis P. LeBuffe of Fordham University would either stop arresting our young folk for doing the very things to which we allow them to be provoked, or clean up the stage, our movies and our literature.

HAVRE—Early Christmas shopping in Paris delayed the sailing of the steamer Rochambeau for New York 12 hours. Several hundred carloads of presents are on board the steamer.

NEW YORK—Lee Garnett Day, back from Europe with his Reirea bride, the former Nancy Sayles, who broke her engagement to Lieutenant Ernesto Becci of Italy, thinks any girl has a right to change her mind. As for the lieutenant, he is a thorough gentleman and a mighty fine fellow.

NEW YORK—Miss Susan Brandeis, lawyer and daughter of the supreme court justice, is to marry Jacob H. Gilbert, also a lawyer.

BALTIMORE—Girls are nearly 100 per cent. wrong and men only 46 per cent. in estimating how long it will take them to dress or do anything. Tests have been conducted at seven colleges by Johns Hopkins psychologists.

CONCENTRATION OF LARGE INCOMES IN NEW YORK STATE

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Greater concentration of large incomes in the hands of a few exists in New York than in any state, while North Dakota approaches more nearly a financial democracy, according to a report issued today by the National Bureau of Economic Research, Inc.

In the middle Atlantic states a larger proportion of income is held by the wealthy than in any other group, with New England, Arizona, Utah and Nevada last.

The report compiled after two years of research by Maurice Leven and Dr. Willford I. King of the bureau's scientific staff, shows that in the country as a whole there is not a great concentration of large incomes among a relatively few persons in 1921; the report states, 0.5 per cent. of the population with incomes of $10,000 or more received about 7.3 per cent. of the total income.

In the New England division, consisting of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, the share of those with incomes above $10,000 was greater, being 0.7 per cent. of the population receiving 9.1 per cent., of the income.

The middle Atlantic states, consisting of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, present in advance to 10.7 per cent., of the income being received by 0.9 per cent., of the population.

Current income as used in the report represents roughly the amount that the people have to spend or to save currently, not "net taxable income," as defined by law.

North Dakota shows the minimum "spread" between the percentages of income and the population at the point of incomes of $10,000 each. In 1921 only 1.1 per cent. of the total income in that state went to the 0.1 per cent. of the population receiving $10,000 or above, while in New York 1.2 per cent. received 12.2 per cent. of the total income.

The report shows that there was a tendency in 1920 toward a more even distribution of income and that the tendency was continued in the 1921 figures, the disparities being greatest in 1919 of any of the three years studied.

Use the hammer of truth when you have occasion to nail lies.

NEW LONDON AUTHORITIES UNABLE TO LOCATE RELATIVES OF BURNS, SUICIDE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 10—James Burns, the suicide victim and former resident of Mystic and Niantic, who ended his life by hanging himself in a dilapidated shack at Black Point and whose lifeless body was found by two sailors, did not possess any relatives so far as the authorities of East Lyme have been able to ascertain and as a result of no kin being located, and every effort was made to do so by Selectman Fred A. Beckwith, Niantic, Burns' body was interred in the town plot in Niantic this afternoon. Burns had been employed several years ago during the summer season at Niantic, always departing for other climes in the winter, only to return the following summer. One of the last persons to give Burns employment was Mrs. Mary Davis, mother of Attorney Marion R. Davis, a resident of Pennsylvania avenue, Niantic.

Winder E. Reed, deputy jailer at the New London county jail, Franklin street, and Mrs. M. Jane Morgan, Irvington, N. Y., and a summer resident at Lyme, were joined in wedlock this afternoon, the nuptial ceremony being performed by Rev. George H. Strouse, pastor of the Jordan Baptist church, at the residence of the clergyman, Waterford. Following the nuptial event, Mr. and Mrs. Reed departed upon a week's wedding tour and upon their return, they will reside at the Franklin street institution. Mr. Reed is well and favorably known, having been deputy jailer many years. He is also past chancellor of Trumbull lodge, Knights of Pythias. Mr. Reed is a republican in politics and is chairman of the republican third ward committee and is a member of the town committee.

Miss Mary McCarthy, Franklin street, is spending a fortnight in Florida.

Miss Elizabeth Roath, Montauk avenue, is entertaining Miss Alice Chapman, Montville.

Mrs. Fred Smith, Montauk avenue, and Mrs. Oscar Long, Bristol street, are spending a few days in New York.

Mrs. George M. Jennings has returned to her home, Culver Heights, after having spent several weeks with relatives in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roath, Montauk avenue, are spending a week in New York and Newark, N. J.

An automobile, owned and operated by a chief petty officer stationed at the submarine base, was extensively damaged last midnight when the car, alleged to have been driven at a reckless rate of speed overturned at the Groton approach of the Thames river highway bridge.

The machine had been observed passing through Thames street, Groton, a few minutes before the accident occurred and witnesses of the passage of the car declared that it was travelling at a rate of 60 miles an hour. When the car reached a point where the main thoroughfare diverts its course towards the submarine base, the driver apparently lost control of the steering wheel with the result that the car overturned. The driver managed to extricate himself and when the state police were notified of the accident, Officer Henry Albrigant made an investigation and was of the opinion that the operator had been indulging in strong drink. That the officer was correct in his opinion was substantiated by the driver, for when Officer Albright, caused the latter to go before a physician for the purpose of obtaining professional opinion as to the driver's condition, the examining physician declared that he would not venture to declare the operator being in a condition of intoxication.

A young woman under the name of Anna Karp, claiming New Bedford as her home, was before the police court this morning for alleged conduct that is not recognized anywhere as proper. She pleaded guilty and was ordered to leave the city or take the consequences of her plea of guilty to a complaint charging lascivious carriage. The woman will also was 22 but she did not look the appearance of being a person more than 19. Sergeant Smith caused her arrest and then he put her through an examination that disclosed the evidence on which the prosecution was brought.

Hugh Waldrop, a member of the crew of the United States ship McCulloch was prosecuted for intoxication. He pleaded guilty as alleged, saying he had too much liquor yesterday and admitted that he went into a restaurant and his conduct led to the calling of Officer Dorsey to eject him. Judge Comstock did not impose a penalty as Waldrop had never been before the court for drinking. He was advised to refrain from the use of intoxicants and was then allowed to return to the ship.

The funeral of Mrs. Adeline S. Beckwith, widow of Avern A. Beckwith, a former resident of New London, whose death occurred at West Haven Tuesday, was held at the Beckwith Memorial Cedar Grove cemetery, this city, this afternoon at 1 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles G. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in the family plot there.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Hamlin B. Steeckel today caused the operator's license of George Sullivan, 44 Warren street, to be suspended, the suspension resulting from Sullivan operating an automobile not belonging to him recently and while under the influence of liquor with the result the car collided with a tree on Ocean avenue, near Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital and was wrecked. Commissioner Steeckel also caused the license of Nickador Postolski, 30 Woodbridge street, recently suspended, to be returned to the owner.

Ernest Silvio, 13, an inmate at the Connecticut School for Boys, Cranston, R. I., escaped from the institution this forenoon and the local police were requested to maintain a watch for the youth.

The condition of Captain Andrew F. McCarthy, of the Groton police department, indisposed at his home, Meridian street, is reported this afternoon as being considerably improved and it is believed that Capt. McCarthy will be able to resume the duties of his office within a few days.

Clarence N. Mitchell, Belleville, Kansas, and Miss Lauretta Lake, this city, were married this afternoon at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth.

Lee B. Santangelo, Middletown, district deputy grand exalted ruler, will pay an official visit to New London lodge of Elks on the night of January 7th. Officers of the lodge are already formulating plans for entertaining the distinguished visitor. A class initiation will take place and an elaborate dinner will be served at the close of the meeting. The program will close with a vaudeville entertainment by either New York or Boston talent.

Annie Drew returned to her abode, 79 Ashcraft road today after having been under treatment two weeks at Lawrence hospital.

Mrs. Clarence A. Carr (Blanche Lanman, of Norwich) entertained the 75 members of her sewing class at a Christmas party in the rooms of the diocesan bureau in Jay street Thursday afternoon. Prizes were awarded and there was a delightful entertainment for the children. Refreshments were served. Those who assisted Mrs. Carr in entertaining were: Miss Catherine Moran, Mrs. George H. Dolan, Mrs. William J. McPartland, Mrs. William Clark, Miss Ellen O'Keefe, Mrs. Thomas K. Foran, Mrs. Francis J. O'Hara, Mrs. Julius Koch and Miss Mary English.

The adjourned case of the state against William Lyman will come before the police court Saturday, the defendant being charged with the embezzlement of $500 from Nicholas Danz, the proprietor of a lunch cart on Church street. Lyman was a clerk for Danz and thus had the opportunity to take the money. He left the city, but has since been located. There is report that he has made restitution to Danz.

The banks are distributing money to the depositors in the Christmas clubs this week. A great deal of the money will go into Christmas gifts but some of it will be redeposited in the banks and will represent the only savings the depositors ever had that was put at interest. It is claimed that the Christmas clubs inspire the spirit of saving and that those benefitted by them are the least frugal among the people of the city.

It is understood that the members of the city council have abandoned the idea of widening Bank street by cutting some two feet from the sidewalks on either side. That undertaking would be most expensive, and one that would probably not meet with endorsement by people in general, for it would be no small undertaking to cut two feet from the already permanent walks, some of which are of granite. Possibly the weather has something to do with effecting a change in the ideas of the councilors, for the traffic is not now ten per cent., of what it is during the hot weather. The members of the council can view the situation with calmer and uninfluenced vision and they can recognize that there are other ways of relieving traffic on Bank and State streets than by incurring the expense that the cutting of the sidewalks would entail.

This morning was the coldest of the winter thus far, as the temperature dropped to 14 above zero before the sun rose.

There has been a big falling off in the number of arrests during the month. The big month of the year was August.

The holiday season has developed a new business for this section, for the gathering of laurel and pine and the become a business with some people. The wreaths are shipped from town as well as sold within the city. Maine continued to hold first place for supplying the Christmas trees, but that state is said to be losing its trade hereabouts.

It is noticeable that Bank street is the only thoroughfare in the city where bankrupt sales are in progress. Neither Main nor State streets lay claim to bankruptcy sales, while on Bank street there are several such sales.

Nazarino Faccini departed by boat this evening for New York, whence he will leave for Naples, Saturday, to visit his mother, whom he has not seen in twenty years. Mrs. Faccini is about 80 years old and in poor health so her son decided that he would visit her and perhaps bring her to the United States on his return.

Many investors in securities are anxious to bind on to their possessions till after the first of January with the certainty that they will be compelled to pay less income tax on their profits after the new revenue act has been passed by congress and when it shall be made retroactive to the first of the coming year. Nearly all investments made during the past year have been profitable to those who made them. The income tax for 1925 is a considerable amount and those who can do so desire to escape the higher tax which will come to profit made during the last twelve months.

NO ANTHRACITE COAL LEFT IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 10—The coal situation is most acute in New London for it has become known that only substitutes may be obtained at any of the coal yards, excepting soft coal, which is in most cases only adaptable for factory consumption. With freezing weather prevailing the past 48 hours the various coal offices have been besieged with requests for fuel, but only the so-called Virginia coal can be obtained and that at the exorbitant price of $15.50.

SIGNERS OF PETITION LOOKING FOR ACTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 10.—Many signers of the petition, which it was to be presented to the city council, for the purpose of determining by vote of the taxpayers, at a special city election, whether New London should be operated in the future under the present city manager form of government, or revert to the former municipal government, are beginning to wonder when the circulators of the petitions are going to present the document to the council, that a date for the special election may be selected.

Matthew Keenan, Main street merchant and Pledro Loiscano, Connecticut avenue businessman, were the circulators of the petition and although they have had the instruments in their possession about five months, nothing definite can be obtained from them as to when the petitions will be handed to the council.

Both Messrs. Keenan and Loiscano have repeatedly declared that the petitions were practically ready for presentation to the council and that it only remained for the completion of the task of checking up the signatures, to ascertain if the 2,100 signers were bonafide voters, before the instrument would be delivered to City Clerk Julian D. Moran. These statements were made several weeks ago and the signers are intimating that a demand will shortly be made upon the circulators of the petitions in order that the special election may be held. Particularly is the case with many members of the fire department, who are becoming insistent that the petition be taken from the hands of the circulators and handed to the council.

WILSON TRAIL LEADS POLICE TO NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 10.—The police this afternoon requested the New York authorities to visit the Hotel Cumberland, 54th street, and Broadway, and institute a search for Fred A. Wilson, chief petty officer attached to patrol boat, 250, United States Coast Guard sectional base, state pier, who is wanted here for the fraudulent passage of several worthless checks, including among the worthless paper issued by Wilson, one represented that he had an account at the New London City National bank, was a check for $400, which he tendered Charles Maiuoi, proprietor of the Star garage, Bank street, as part payment for an Overland sedan. After obtaining the car it is now revealed that James Coleman and John Beck, the latter attached to the same craft as Wilson, accompanied the chief petty officer to New York. Early this morning the automobile was driven to the garage by Coleman and stated that he had been requested to do so by Wilson, who was in New York. A night employee of the garage immediately notified the police of the return of the automobile and Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman George Laboue located Coleman and Beck in bed at a local hotel. The two men were escorted to the police station, where Coleman declared that he had acted in good faith in his having had charge of the automobile. Coleman declared that the day Wilson obtained possession of the automobile the latter requested Coleman to drive him to New York, stating that the driver would be paid for his sevices.

Arriving in New York, Coleman, declares, Wilson alighted at 146th street and informed Coleman that he was going to the Hotel Cumberland. Wilson then instructed Coleman to drive the car back to this city and to store it at the garage. Coleman also stated that Wilson requested him to go to the state pier and ask the master of the patrol boat to turn over money, alleged to be in his possession and belonging to Wilson, if the request was granted, Coleman was to call Wilson by telephone at the New York hotel, at which time Coleman would be instructed what to do with the money. The police, however, do not believe that Wilson will remain in New York, at least at the hotel where he represents he will be a guest.

Breed Theater

Sun Up, the Metro-Goldwyn production which is coming to the Breed theater today and Saturday is a gripping story of the North Carolina mountain folk and was written by Lulu Vollmer.

She spent much time among the hardly denizens of those hills and acquired an intimate knowledge of their language and habits and eccentricities.

This froms only a background against which there stands out in clear-cut carving, a pathetic story of material love of high is misguided purpose and a yielding to influence which comes to many when a crisis appears, to guide us along the right path.

The author went in to the hill country and there found the strong characters such as Mother Cagle, Rufe, Sheriff Weeks and Pap Todd which makes the picture breathe realism.

Edmund Goulding directed the production and the cast includes Lucille La Verne, Pauline Starke, Conrad Nagel, Sam De Grasse, George K. Arthur, Arthur Rankin, Edward Connelly and Brainard Beckwith.

Broadway Theater

Ned Nestor's Darling's which started a three day's engagement at the popular Broadway theater, was one of the outstanding stage offerings of the year. Seven distinct types of feminine loveliness compose this attraction, each an able artist versed in music, song and dance. The music is of the snappy, jazzy kind and made an instant hit. The songs and dances fit in to this clever entertainment, making it all in all a real special feature.

Lew Keene the versatile chap offered a variety that spelled immediate success.

In The Life-Saver Martin and Courtney have a vehicle that is good for many hearty laughs, dealing with a doctor's office and his patience.

Dania and Mack also click with their funny gags and cross-fire comedy patter. A few songs helped them along to a good finish.

Bell and Eva At the Soda Fountain offered an unusual trampoline bouncing novelty with comic effects.

The feature picture with Ruth Roland in Dollar Down and the new Kinograms completed this fine program.

Palace Theater

The bill today is the greatest vaudeville bill ever offered in Norwich. It the Kookoos Komedy Karnival with the greatest aggregation of artists ever assembled on one bill, headed by the Great Alexander and His Band six comedians who will make you laugh every bone loose in your body. You will come back for more.

Convey Twins Revue. They are not hard to look at and they are entertainers par excellence, they just finished at Earl Carrols theater in New York last Sunday night.

Bevans & Dyer, another hysterical fifteen minutes; Warren Ramsey, acrobatically funny; Edith Rose & May Carroll, the two song birds that have been the sensation of New York. Its the greatest vaudeville bill ever seen in town.

Alexander has promised the best cabaret night yet. Don't miss it tonight.

Monte Blue and Marie Prevost recently deserted the Warner Bros. studio to be married—but not to each other.

Now they are back at work after their respective honeymoons, and were assigned to play the two leading roles in Recompense, the screen adaptation of the "best seller" of the same name, a sequel to Simon Called Peter.

This is the story of what followed after the madcap week-adventure in Paris. The stirring adventure in Paris, of Armistice Day, to Africa of the desolate veldts, and thence jumps to London, when the drama comes to its climax.

The adaptation is by Dorothy Farnub and the direction by Harry Beaumont. Both are known for brilliant work in their respective fields.

The supporting cast comprises, in addition to Blue and Prevost, John Roche, George Siegman, Charles Stevens, Virginia Brown Faire, William C. Davidson and Etta Lee.

BELIEVE CIGARETTE BUTTS CAUSED FIRE

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Cigarette butts found in the boys' coatroom of the second avenue primary school are believed to have caused afire which drove 240 pupils into the street today and damaged the building to the extent of $1,000. The pupils marched out in good order and later were able to return for their hats and coats. The fire started in the basement and worked into the partitions of the wooden building before being discovered.

FLASHY WINTER SPORT CARD GREETS FLORIDA RESORTERS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. Dec. 10.—(AP)—Florida, paradise of real estate traders and resort of the Southland, will have one of its greatest sporting seasons this winter and next spring.

Every hamlet and city from Key West on the extreme south and Fort Myers on the southwest, to Jacksonville on the north and Pensacola on the extreme northwest, have arranged to participate in the program.

The feature event will be the Miami running horse race meeting. The Miami Jockey club, with more than $400,000 in purse prizes offered, gets underway January 21 and closes March 13. Indications are that again this year the track will attract America's foremost turfmen.

Three winter baseball circuits are planned, one to be a fast major and high minor league player loop on the east coast; another to be a six club circuit and the third an exclusive Lake County affair.

Football claims a leading role in the early winter sport drama. Two major college games have been scheduled, one between Washington and Lee and the University of Florida to be played in Jacksonville on Thanksgiving Day, and the other a dedicatory affair for the Coral Gables Stadium at Miami on December 5, between Rollins College of Winter Park, Fla., and Oglethorpe University, Atlanta.

Golf tournaments of national interest will be played, the events probably following the usual cycle as to sites—St. Petersburg, to Bellaire (Clearwater,) to Tampa to Miami, to Palm Beach, to Daytona, to St. Augustine.

A feature of features is the possibility of a match between Walter Hagen and Bobby Jones.

Jones, with Tommie Armour, another amateur, will play two picked professionals on the Coral Gables course near Miami in January.

The professional golf league, formed last year, may have another schedule of games. Last season Leo Diegel and Gene Sarazen playing for the Hollywood club, won the title.

Already under way is the Central Florida Amateur Golf league in which teams representing Daytona, Eustis, DeLand and Sanford are playing.

The Miami Riviera trophy has been offered by George E. Merrick in an amateur golf championship tournament of Florida, to be played on the coral Gables course. Invitational professional tourneys $5,000 are planned.

The attraction for professional golf stars is the "winter championships of America," to be played in St. Augustine on March 18-20. The Winter Golf championship of Florida will be played there on March 23-27, while the East Coast Women's Golf Championships will be an "Ancient City" event, March 9-13. Prior to those tournaments will be the select St. Augustine championships, January 19-23 and the tenth annual golf tournament on February 15-20.

Tennis will be featured at Miami Palm Beach and Jacksonville. An invitation has been extended by the Coral Gables Club to William Tilden, II, to make his headquarters at Miami this winter. The French flash, La Coste, also has been asked to come.

"Squared circle" contests that will likely attract boxers of national prominence have been booked at Jacksonville, Orlando, Palm Beach, Miama, and Tampa, particularly at the latter two places. Boxing, however, is officially banned in this state, a statute being in effect against such contests.

Entering the lists comes the National Open Winter Lawn Bowling tournament, which gets under way at St. Petersburg on January 25. Like meetings will be held at Orlando and other cities.

The winter horse-shoe pitching center, which has been gradually shifting from the east to the west coast, is at St. Petersburg this winter, where the national tourney will take place. Lake Worth, Tampa, Lakeland, Orlando and Daytona, also have these contests scheduled.

At St. Petersburg, the National Roque Championships are scheduled for either February or March.

The swimming and diving competition will center in the West Palm Beach-Miami sector and in the St. Peterburg-Tampa area.

At Coral Gables, state championships for both men and women will be run off in the Venetian Pool. A bid has been made for the men's and women's national swimming championships there.

St. Augustine offers a meet on February 8-13, which will attract the women swimmers of America.

Speed boat races are slated off Miami and Palm Beach, at Hollywood and in Tampa Bay off St. Petersburg and Tampa. Inland speed boat races will be held on Lake Dora.

The horse show will be sponsored again by the Coral Gables Riding Academy at Miami during February. Greyhound racings are featured at St. Petersburg, Miami and Sarasota. Polo and jai alai (Spanish quash) are Miami Beach feature offerings. The polo season gets under way early in January.

Early spring will see the major portion of the Big League squads and a number of higher major league clubs trekking to the "Land of Flowers" for their annual training season. Clubs will train at Orlando, Sanford Lakeland, Tampa, St. Petersburg, Tarpon Springs, Sarasota, Bradentown, Ft. Myers, Clearwater and possibly at Arcadia, Bartow, Lake Wales, Ocala and Deland.

STEAMERS TO REPLACE OLD SALMON-PACKING SAIL FLEET

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10—(AP)—The historic windjammer salmon packing flotilla, which yearly invades the icy waters of Alaska, is being steered into the Sargasso Sea of Oblivion by the Giant Steam.

Displacement of the sailing fleet was begun by the use of two small steamers by one company this year. Next spring, there will be more of them, and local marine officials doubt whether there will be a sail left on the Alaska run within two or three years.

Departure and return of the packing fleet have been picturesque incidents on San Francisco's water front many years.

Most of the vessels go to far-north Bristol Bay, and they begin to leave the middle of March, sailing every day or two until all are on the way. The northward sail usually takes 30 days and often longer. The return from Bristol Bay, made in September as a rule, often requires no more than 15 days. Favorable winds prevail, and there are currents that speed the vessels southward.

The crew and canners form a motley and colorful crowd. Nearly every nationality is represented and many a swashbuckling tale could be written around the voyages. Fights galore have been recorded, and weary skippers have thanked their stars when they sighted the Golden Gate again.

It is a bleak, hard life for the men during the five or six months they are away, but there is nothing to spend money for, and generally they return with their wages in their pockets.

The Massachusetts State Grange in convention at Pittsfield, Mass., elected these officers: President, W. N. Howard of North Easton; overseer, Henry Jenks of Cheshire; lecturer, Angier Goodwin of Melrose; steward; Samuel Brightman of New Bedford.

Roumanian Prince To Wed Heiress

Latest study of Prince Nicolas of Roumania, son of Queen Marie, whom it is known is to be married in the near future to the 18-year-old Countess of Seafield, youngest and wealthiest heiress known. She inherits over $30,000,000 from a New Zealand relative, and has in hand the vast estates of her late father and his immense wealth. Prince Nicolas is an upright young man, English trained, as he studied at Eton, adopting all British ways, and is now a sublieutenant of a British warship in the Mediterranean.

ASSOCIATION FINDS HORSE STEALING IS DECREASING

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Dec. 10—(AP)—While horse stealing has shown a steady decrease with the passing of years, the Anti-Horse Thief Association still bustles.

A fraternal protective and detective organization, composed of men banded together for the mutual protection of their property, it has more than 50,000 members in eight middlewestern states.

Just when the first lodge bearing the name was organized is not certain, but the first of which there is any record was organized in Clark County, Missouri, in 1854. A. C. Reid, who resides near here, has been president of the organization 32 years.

The association does not limit its activities to capturing horse thieves. During the last year, some of the 600 members of the Jacksonville sub-order had property, including chickens and hogs, stolen to the value of $1,300. Approximately $700 worth of this was recovered.

TENNESSEE BOATMAN GATHERS MANY ARCHAEOLOGICAL RELICS

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 10—(AP)—H. L. Johnson, retired steamboat captain, thinks Tennessee "can not be beat" by any other state in the production of valuable archaeological relics.

As archaeologist and historian during 60 years, he has assembled a vast collection of specimens from the Indian mounds and former abodes of the forgotten stone grave race.

While "on the river" Captain Johnson constructed a boat 74 feet long in which he traveled and installed a museum which aroused interest of the natives and enabled him to

MARKET WAS NARROW.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(By The A. P.)—With speculative interest diminishing, stock prices today fluctuated within a narrow trading area, but continued to follow upward tendencies. Constructive trade news failed to bring much response from industrial issues until short covering in the final hour set several brisk rallies in motion. The volume of trading was sharply curtailed, total sales falling well below one and one-half million shares.

All business developments of the day were uniformly favorable. They included announcement of an increase of morethan 470,000 tons in unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation for November and a long series of extra and increased dividend declarations, foremost of which was the raising of Southern Railway's annual dividend rate from $5 to $7 a share.

Engineering steel shares was promoted by the tonnage statement which showed the largest gain in bookings of any month this year. United States steel was slow in responding to the news but it gradually moved up to 135 7-8, a gain of 1 5-8 points for the day. Bloss Sheffield spurted up 4 1-4 points and Ludlum Steel 3 1-2, while more moderate gains were renovered by Bethlehem, Republic, Gulf States and Crucible.

The placement of large orders for railway rolling stock started brisk bidding for the equipment issues later in the day. American Car and Foundry, American Locomotive, Baldwin Locomotive and Pullman, most of which participated in the new business, were run up 2 to 3 points.

Interest in the railroad group was revived by the increase in the Southern Railway dividend, although this action had fully discounted by the roads own shares. Baltimore and Ohio moved up fractionally before only the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share was declared after the close of the market. The outstanding feature of the carrier group was St. Louis Southwestern involved in the new consolidation in the Southwest, which reached new high ground at 64 1-2 and closed more than 3 points net higher at 63 1-2. New York Central, New Haven, Chesapeake and Ohio and Erie scored moderate gains.

The widest price movements of the day took place in the specialties, much were taken in hand by professional operators who became dissatisfied with their efforts to force up prices of leading industrials. Foundation Company shot up more than 9 points and Barnet Leather, International Shoe, General Asphalt, General Electric, Mathieson Alkali, International Paper, American Chicle and United Stores Realty.

An orderly advance took place in the rubber shares under the leadership of Goodyear which rose more than five points to 115 3-8. Hudson and General Motors also resumed their upward movement, the latter accompanied by a sensational rise in DuPont.

Reaction of the day's hesitation was ascribed to the disposition of traders to await the outcome of the weekly federal reserve directors' meeting, which however brought the familiar announcement of no change in the 3 1-2 per cent. discount rate. Call money was quoted at 5 per cent. all day and time loans and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were firm in early trading. Demand sterling advanced fractionally to around $4.84 3-4 and French francs were slightly higher at 3.73 cents.

Norwich Bulletin

1796 1925

NORWICH, CONN., FRIDAY, DEC. 11, 1925

FULL ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCHES

The Bulletin.

Norwich, Friday, Dec. 11, 1925

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The temperature has fallen in Northern New England.

The northwestern disturbance will move eastward during the next two days and it will be attended by light precipitation Friday night or Saturday in the lower lake region, the extreme upper Ohio valley and portions of the North Atlantic states. Otherwise, mostly fair weather will prevail Friday and Saturday east of the Mississippi river, although there will be considerable cloudiness. The temperature will rise Friday in Southern New England and on Friday and Saturday in Northern New England.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Fresh possibly strong northwest and west and weather fair today.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate to fresh northwest becoming variable and fair weather Friday.

Forecast

For Southern New England: Fair with slowly rising temperature Friday; Saturday cloudy warmer on the east coast.

TAFTVILLE

A meeting of the Thursday Evening Basketry class was held in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

To celebrate the founding of the round table, Castle Perilous, K. O. K. A. entertained the members' fathers, the ranking officers of Castle Devonshire of Groton, and Hon. Arthur F. Libby, at a ceremonial conclave Wednesday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church. The speakers were Judge Libby and Rev. Henry Hulbert of Groton, and Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis offered prayer. Miss Flossie M. Meyer played the organ for the processional, and after the conclave, coffee and sandwiches were served by Gustave Hedler, George Moore and Allan Bogle.

Miss Grace Shutt entertained the members of the N. S. C. at her home at 1 Terrace avenue, Wednesday evening. Lunch was served by Mrs. Charles Shutt.

For Fire In Bath Room

Shortly after 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon the fire department answered a telephone call for a small fire at the residence, No. 224 Prospect street, owned and occupied by Edward Loomis. The fire was in the bathroom and was evidently caused in the opinion of the firemen, by a cigarette or cigar which set fire to toilet paper in the room. The fire ate its way into the studding of the room but was quickly extinguished with water from a faucet. The damage was about $100.

Sphinx Temple Band Broadcasting

Music by the Sphinx Temple band of Hartford will be broadcast by WTIC, at Hartford, at 5:30 this (Friday) evening.

This program will be followed by a fifteen minute broadcast by the Sphinx Temple chanters and another program by the Sphinx Temple drum corps.

The broadcast will be from the Bond hotel where a banquet will be held preceding the winter ceremonial of Sphinx temple.

A butcher and a professor are both retailors of tongues.

EXPECT CITY TO GET THROUGH SEASON WITHOUT USING PUMPING STATION

The probability that Norwich will need to tide over its water supply for the winter by pumping from the station on Trading Cove brook, as was done last winter from the last week in December till the spring, seems to have been passed, in the opinion of members of the board of water commissioners.

The ten days of December that have gone by have been fairly liberal with rain as the last fall was .52 of an inch, which was added to two previous counts of a quarter of an inch of the first of December and 1.35 inches on the fourth, the whole making 2.12 inches.

With the previous rainfall of over three inches for the month of November, the December rains have enabled both the city reservoirs to make a gain from the low points they had reached. It is the experience of the water department that when the reservoirs have once reached their low point at this season of the year and have shown a gain from the low, they will not slip back again as the normal precipitation in rain and snow through the winter is enough to forestall any dangerous drop in the water levels in the two reservoirs. At a recent measurement taken at Stony Brook reservoir, the mark showed 13 feet 7 inches down from full pond, which was a gain of between three and four feet from the previous low point, while Fairview reservoir was down about 5 feet 9 inches from full pond, which was a gain of between 3 and 3 feet from a previous measurement.

Another shipment of the 24 inch pipe for the line to the new Deep River brook reservoir has arrived here from Boston and is being carted to point where it will be available when it is to be laid. Some of the pipe is being placed along the side of the road at Yantic, northerly from the Central Vermont railroad crossing.

EXTENSION FOR FILING INCOME TAX RETURNS

Authority to grant extensions of time for the filing of income tax returns is included in an order just received by Col Robert O. Eaton, state collector of internal revenue, from the treasury department at Washington. The ruling says:

"To expedite the granting of applications for extensions of time in which to file income tax returns, Commissioner of Internal Revenue David H. Blair has delegated to collectors of internal revenue authority to grant such extensions. Heretofore, under the revenue act of 1924, applications for extensions have been addressed to the commissioner.

"Extensions are granted in cases of absence, sickness or inability to obtain data to make a correct return with certain provisions. No extension will be granted unless application is made therefor on or before the date prescribed by law for filing the return. The applicant must state specifically the reason for such request, which will be granted only if the explanation is satisfactory to the collector. Illness or absence of a particular officer of a corporation or a member of a partnership does not constitute, in itself, a sufficient reason for granting the corporation or partnership such extension.

"In no case will a particular extension be granted for more than 90 days. The usual time is from 30 to 60 days. Where a taxpayer requests an extension of more than 90 days, the extension may be granted only for 90 days and the collector will advise the taxpayer that if he is unable to file the completed return prior to the expiration of the 90-day period a new application should be made before that period expires. In this way, extensions may be granted, in meritorious cases, for a period of not to exceed six months, except in the case of American citizens residing or traveling abroad, non-resident alien individuals and foreign corporations having no office or place of business within the United States."

NO NEED FOR ALARM ABOUT YOUTHFUL MORALS

Declaring that the business girl of today is decidedly moral, Dr. Valeria Hopkins Parker, of New York, formerly of Hartford, recently assumed the chairmanship of the National Council of women of the United States. The national council represents parent-teacher and kindred associations throughout the country.

Dr. Parker is well known in this city where she has been a speaker. She is a graduate physician and last present director of the department of protective measures of the American Social Hygiene association. She is also director of the department of social Christian Temperance union.

Dr. Parker's defense of the working girl is as follows:

"I see no real cause for alarm in the greater freedom accorded young men and women today. Nor do I see any real danger manifesting itself in the present generation.

"Our business girls are decidedly moral. They are working hard for self-respecting independence. They dress a useful and practical.

"Short skirts are all right. They are far more sensible than the unnaturally cramped waists of several generations ago.

"A healthful fatherhood is just as important as a virtuous motherhood. This fact is being appreciated more and more every day.

"The youth needs and is entitled to the guidance of his elders. It is a community responsibility as well. In order to battle with their problems and become good fathers and mothers, our boys and girls must be prepared."

INVITED TO BROADCAST FOR BELLEVUE PATIENTS

Norwich friends of Mrs. Leila Troland Gardner, who are owners of radios, will want to listen in, Dec. 23rd, when Mrs. Gardner has been requested by WGBS, New York, to give a special program for the patients of Bellevue hospital. The request included an urgent invitation to sing her famous negro spirituals, including "Ol' Man Trubble," but she plans also to give "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," singing this from an autograph copy of the composer, James A. Butterfield.

Mr. Butterfield taught Mrs. Gardner singing when he was teacher of music in the Central district schools, Norwich, and it was he who accompanied the youthful singer when she made her first appearance on any stage, singing at Broadway school graduation.

Mrs. Gardner is sailing for a tour abroad Jan. 13th.

OAKUM BALES ON FIRE WITH SMALL DAMAGE

Thursday morning at 8:14 o'clock the fire department was called out by an alarm from box 16, Main and Market streets, for a small fire in the store of the Eaton-Chase Co., on Main street. Several bales of oakum in a narrow passageway had caught fire, probably coming in contact with a lighted cigar or cigarette. Two small tanks of chemical were used on the blaze by the firemen and employes of the Eaton-Chase company used a tank of chemical. The damage was slight.

On $75,000 Breakwater Contract

The Merritt, Chapman & Scott Co. of New London, has despatched a fleet of various craft to Pine Orchard, where the company has contracted to erect a breakwater to cost approximately $75,000. It will begin at Hume's Point and will extend 1,500 feet to Giant Ledge and 370 feet southwards Stony Creek.

Dredging will be done to provide five feet of water at low tide. The result will be a safe harbor for all kinds of sailing craft.

NEW HAVEN'S PASSENGERS DECREASED BY 9,240,948

The annual report of the public utilities commission for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1925, was presented Thursday to Governor Trumbull by the commission.

The number of privately owned public utilities in the state is 182, divided as follows: Electric, thirty; gas, nine; gas and electric, thirteen; express, one; railroads, eight; street railways, eighteen; telegraph, four; telephone, nine; water, nine. In addition to these there are four electric, one gas and electric and twenty-five water utilities operated by municipalities.

There were 5,720 accidents reported by public service corporations. In these accidents 130 persons were killed and 5,609 were injured. In 409 accidents on steam railroads and street railways, forty-three persons were fatally injured and 275 sustained other injuries.

There were twenty-six killed and forty-nine injured at grade crossings on steam railroads, and seventeen killed and 226 injured on street railways. Ninety-seven accidents occurred in which busses, engaged in the transportation of passengers, were involved.

The total investment of road and equipment of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company was $287,629,288, an increase of $3,225,507 for the year. The receipts amounted to $127,213,698, and the expenses to $97,480,323. The bonded indebtedness of the road is $305,428,766. The interest on this bonded indebtedness was $15,576,806. At the end of the year, the road had a deficit of $47,241,763. There was a decrease in the number of passengers carried of 9,240,948.

The Connecticut company has an investment in road and equipment, which it owns, of $51,942,631; and, in leased property of $5,585,636. There were 193,825,255 passengers carried during the year. The fares of these passengers amounts to $13,897,056.

There is invested in companies carrying on electric light operations solely, $42,688,681. These companies have outstanding to the amount of $30,339,550. Their combined revenue was $12,395,849, and the expenses $7,741,954.

The receipts of the gas companies were $7,922,393 and the expenses were $5,151,337.

ADVISE INSTRUCTIONS ON SUBSTITUTES FOR HARD COAL

Industries in all parts of the state have been asked by the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut, to instruct their employes in the use of anthracite substitutes in an effort to prevent a serious fuel shortage. The state association has asked each of its members to designate one of its executives to act as fuel advisor to the firm's employes, each such executive to be assisted in his work by from five to ten men, dependent upon the size of the plant, who will learn the proper use of substitutes and instruct other employes.

The association, through its own coal committee, is a member of Governor Trumbull's joint coal committee which, after thorough investigation has recommended low volatile semi-bituminous navy standard or supplemental list as the most suitable substitutes that can be used. Governor Trumbull has already been promised the assistance of organizations outside of the state which are familiar with the burning of low volatile coal and these interests have agreed to set up demonstration centers in the principal centers of the state and to have available a corps of instructors to teach the use of such coal and to cooperate with manufacturers in teaching employes.

Orchestra Played At Sanatorium

GROTTO CIRCUS FREAKS ENTERTAIN FOR LIONS

The Lions club held its weekly business meeting and luncheon Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel, with President William A. Anderson in the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of America and grace was said by C. Edward Carpenter. The guests included several of the performers who appeared at the Grotto circus at the armory. Lion Tom Savard was the song leader and Harry Walker, of the Palace theatre orchestra, presided at the piano. There were the usual number of group and community song numbers.

George Madden, chairman of the show committee, announced that the show, That's That, to be staged by the Lions, under the direction of a producing company will take place January 26, and 27th. The play was the prize play of the University of Pennsylvania this year.

This week's attendance contest prize, a handsome leather billfold, donated by J. B. Caron, was awarded to George Fullerton. The latter part of the meeting was turned over to the entertainment committee, George Madden, chairman. Mr. Madden introduced Mr. Graves, manager of the circus performers at the Grotto circus, and Mr. Graves introduced several members of his troupe who entertained the club with a splendid programme of vaudeville. Their first number was a dance number by four expert girl dancers, attractively costumed in black and white. Col. Gulliver, the American giant, was then introduced, who measures nearly eight feet tall and weighs 263 pounds. The next performer was Niles, the reversible man, who exhibited a variety of stunts, manipulating the muscles of his arms, shoulders and joints in all sorts of twisted positions, which were a marvel to all. The closing number on the entertainment programme was another pleasing dance by the four girls who made a tremendous hit. The entertainers and Mr. Graves, their manager, were given a rising vote of thanks by the club and shortly after wards the meeting closed in the usual manner with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner." Dr. C. W. Solomon was announced as song leader for next week and Frank Eggleton as the five minute speaker.

SOUTH COVENTRY HENS WON HOME LAYING CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, Dec. 10.—A heavy laying flock of White Leghorns owned by Charles Schroeder of South Coventry won the sixth Connecticut home egg laying contest, setting up a remarkable record of 218 eggs per bird for the year, in a competition that involved over 70,000 hens scattered on 273 farms throughout Connecticut.

Mrs. Florence Kissam of Stratford entered six White Leghorn pullets in the backyard class, which placed second of all pens entered with an average of 217 eggs for the year. It was the high pen in its class.

John F. Merrill of Suffield entered seventy-nine Rhode Island Red pullets in the farm class, which placed third of all pens entered with an average of 216 eggs for the year. This was the high pen in its class.

In the commercial flock classification, honorable mention is given to Arthur O Morecroft of Hanover, Mrs. George Lowry of East Hampton, and Paul Zwirner, also of East Hampton, all of whom have been among the leading flocks for the past three years. This same recognition is given Clarence E. Ward of Riverton, whose birds have been among the leaders in the backyard class for the same length of time.

An average of 143 eggs per bird for the year was obtained in the sixth home egg laying contest. This is a slight increase over the production obtained last year.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CLUB HAS SUCCESSFUL SALE

A highly successful holiday sale was held Thursday by the Catholic Women's club, at 49 Broadway. The rooms were effectively decorated in Christmas scarlet and green, the tea-tables and other appointments being very dainty. By early afternoon, nearly every department had been sold out, the committee feeling gratified over the success of the day.

Mrs. Thomas J. O'Rourke, president of the club, had general supervision the chairman of the sale being Mrs. Nelson C. Disco, aided by the following committees: Domestic table, Mrs Thomas J. O'Rourke, chairman; Mrs. John J. O'Rourke, Mrs. Charles F Lee, Mrs. Daniel J. McGillicuddy, Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh, Mrs. Chester E. Wright, Mrs. Frederick LaFontaine, Miss McManus and Mrs. John H Cleary.

Grab bag, Mrs. John B. Gallivan chairman; Mrs. John R. Tarrant, Mrs. Thomas F. Burns.

Tea-table, Mrs. James J. Dutton, chairman; Mrs. John C. Kennedy.

Cake and candy, Mrs. Maurice F. Kelly, Mrs. Frank A. Sisk, Mrs James J. Casey, Mrs. Mary McCarthy Mrs. Dennis J. Hayes.

A beautiful dressed doll was in charge of Mrs. James T. Woods and Mrs. William J. Farrell, while Mrs. George P. Madden had charge of the prize football.

The patronage of the tea-tables during the late afternoon was one of the successful features of the sale.

The Catholic Women's club works for the needy families of St. Patrick's parish.

At the sale, the decorative basket went to Mrs. James J. Casey, the football to Leonard Desmond and the doll to Edith Adams, of Connell street.

On successful competition of this course, Private Palmer will be eligible for appointment as staff sergeant and assignment to important duties.

WRITER CITES WREN SPIRE AT LYME CONG. CHURCH

Replying to a criticism regarding the barenessa and plainness of typical New England churches of a past era, a writer in a New York paper Thursday said:

Has this writer, I wonder, seen any of the really old Yankee churches? Some of the modern ones, we must confess, are almost as grim and barnlike as the village churches of New York and New Jersey. But the Puritan fathers had a habit of copying Sir Christopher Wren's designs. As near as as Lyme, Conn., is a Wren spire—a reproduction, to be sure, because the old church was burned some years ago. It is a thing of beauty.

Brings Suit For Divorce

Suit for divorce from Ida Walden of Norwich has been brought in the superior court by George Walden of Lebanon, who married her in July, 1897. The maiden name of the defendant was Ida Fiatt. The ground for divorce alleged is adultery at Norwich since Jan. 1, 1925. The suit is returnable before the court in January.

Alma Gluck Entertains

Noted summer cottagers on Fishers Island, Mr. and Mrs. Efrem Zimbalist (Alma Gluck) have gone to New York for the winter and a New York paper of Thursday mentioned that Mrs. Zimbalist gave a luncheon Wednesday at the Mayfair House and later took her guests to the Cavendish club for bridge.

NEWSPAPER THIEVES ACTIVE IN MORNING

Such appreciation of the Bulletin is shown on one of the Bulletin's paper boy's routes that he reports 28 papers stolen in the past week by those whose sense of honor prompts them to lift the papers from their neighbors' lawns or front steps where the papers are thrown for delivery in the early morning. Similar complaints have been received from various parts of the city, now that the darkness of the early morning gives the mean thieves better chance to get away with a paper without being seen.

TROUBLES MULTIPLYING FOR FRENCH FINANCE MINISTER

M. Loucheur's Financial Bills Are Meeting With Growing Opposition in Paliamentary Quarters—Few Deputies Feel Disposed to Vote For the Heavy Taxation Burdens Called For—M. Loucheur Contends That the American Debt Settlement Dominates the Problem of Stabilization of the French Currency.

PARIS, Dec. 11—(AP)—M. Loucheur's prophecy when he assumed charge of the ministry of finance that his fiscal measures would make him the most unpopular man in France already is being realized, for his financial bills are meeting with growing opposition in parliamentary quarters.

He spent virtually the entire afternoon explaining his measures to the finance comm[illegible] of the chamber of deputies, but apparently failed to convince the majority of the committee, and expert parliamentarians say that the political fate of the finance minister may be greatly compromised when the bills reach the oratorical and voting stage in the open chamber.

The piecemeal introduction to the chamber of M. Loucheur's seven financial bills, five of them having been deposited with M. Herriot, president of the chamber, since Monday and the remaining two still being revised—has caused with much criticism in the chamber, where the measures themselves are unpopular.

The bill introduced today deals with a method of security conversion that will be offered to holders of government bonds. By the terms of the bill holders of the present 4.5 and 6 per cent French internal bonds would be permitted to convert them into a single 5 per cent security which would be accepted by the government instead of cash in the payment of inheritance taxes.

In addition to the opposition shown by the finance committee, the attitude of several important political groups does not augur well for the future of the legislation which the finance minister has prepared. He has made it known that his projects are subject to amendments, and this concession has been seized upon avidly by the socialists. They have prepared counter-projects which, if accepted, would make M. Loucheur's original measures completely inoperative.

A few deputies seem anxious to vote for the new heavy taxation burdens called for by the finance minister, but many are asking whether it would not be possible to institute recovery proceedings against war profiteers. This phase of the discussion by the finance committee brought on a personal attack against M. Loucheur, one member accusing him of having failed to declare all his war benefits to the state. Such accusation has appeared often in the press, but this was the first time it was made openly in the presence of M. Loucheur. It upset the equanimity of the finance minister, who had been treating the question from a purely technical viewpoint. He challenged the accuser to prove that he had not turned over all his wartime profits to the state and called upon his political opponent—M. Francois-Marsal, who is mentioned as a probable success to M. Loucheur to prove that a check was not sent to the treasury in full settlement.

M. Loucheur has decided to fight the accusation to the bitter end, and the matter is likely to come up in the chamber.

When asked by the finance committee where he intended to stop depreciation of the franc, the finance minister declared that the American debt settlement dominated the problem of stabilization of the French currency.

"We must persuade the British government," he said, "to make the question of settlement of its debt subordinate to an agreement with the United States it is for the purpose of resuming the negotiations at Washington begun by M. Caillaux that M. Berenger is leaving for the United States. As soon as French ambassador, and we hope that when an accord is reached the French franc will follow the upward course of the Belgian franc and Italian lire."

"The increased uncertainty as to when the country's finances are to become stable has a repercussion in the Paris bourse today when the dollar and sterling passed 27 and 131, respectively. Another great rush to buy foreign securities at any price was a feature of the day's trading, and the lead in the depreciation of the franc now has devolved upon Paris, as the dollar opened higher here than it closed on the New York exchange yesterday.

Meanwhile parliamentary circles, openly discussing the possible fall of M. Loucheur, are asking: "Who and what next?"

ROME, Dec. 11—(AP)—Premier Mussolini, closing the debate in the chamber of deputies on the government's labor bill today, declared that the bill might be considered a war measure, "because I consider the Italian nation in a permanent state of war."

MICHAEL ENRIGHT IS CHARGED WITH MURDER

CORNING, N. Y., Dec. 11—(AP)—Michael Enright was today charged with murder, first degree, for the killing of Timothy Shay of Addison, near Campbell yesterday. The information for the warrant was signed by Coroner W. S. Cobb late this afternoon. Enright is a brother of Richard E. Enright, New York police commissioner.

Attorney Thomas F. Rogers, who represents Michael Enright, has demanded an examination and the prisoner will be brought before Peace Justice Leslie W. Wellington at Gibson tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Doctors H. E. Battin and E. H. Hutton examined Shay's body this evening for Attorney Rogers to check up on the autopsy held last night by the coroner. It was brought out at the autopsy that Shay was struck on the head at least twice and possibly a third time with an axe. Any one of the blows would have caused death, the doctors believe.

After being felled, the evidence in possession of the authorities indicates the body of Shay was rolled from the front porch of the Enright home to the ditch on the highway where it was found.

One theory advanced by friends of Enright was that Shay had been hit by an automobile. The authorities, however, refuse to consider this theory, pointing to the bloody axe found leaning against the outside of the Enright home, the bloodstains on the porch and in the yard to support the allegation that murder was committed there.

THREE INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT IN WALLINGFORD

MERIDEN, Dec. 11—(AP)—Three persons were injured this afternoon, in Wallingford when two automobiles crashed on the North Colony road south of the culvert.

Mrs. Helen Orr, of 382 Whitney avenue, New Haven, operator of one of the machines, suffered two fractured ribs. She was treated by a local doctor and taken to her home.

Mrs. William Blackburn, of 37 Oscola street, Pittsfield, Mass., sustained numerous cuts and bruises about the face and is confined to the hospital in Meriden. She is the wife of the operator of the other car. Alfred Wilkes, also of Pittsfield, suffered several broken bones in his left hand, but was discharged from the Meriden hospital tonight.

The machines were so badly damaged that tow cars were necessary to clear the highway.

SOVIET COMMISSAR IS TO CONFER WITH BRIAND

PARIS, Dec. 11—(AP)—George Tchitcherin, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, returned to Paris today from southern France and is expected to confer with Premier Briand in the course of the several days he will spend here.

When asked today whether negotiations toward the settlement of Russia's debt to France formed a part of the program he and M. Briand would discuss, Tchitcherin evaded the issue but said, "I greatly enjoyed southern France, especially the fine food and excellent wine."

Tchitcherin will return to Moscow by way of Berlin.

An executive committee, instructed to establish headquarters here was named.

Eight Men Buried When Roof Collapsed

One Man Killed—Two Men Remain Trapped—Accident on 48th Street, N. Y.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—Two injured but conscious workmen clamped by fallen timbers against the body of a dead companion were fed through tubes tonight while police and fire rescue squads worked tirelessly through the hours to extricate them from the wreckage which buried them when the rear walls of a Brownstone residence in 48th street, near Fifth avenue collapsed this afternoon.

Five painfully injured workmen were taken from the debris. Another workman and a fireman were hurt in the rescue work.

After five hours of frenzied labor, the two living men and their dead companion had not been released, although the debris had been cleared from about their heads. Despite the constant danger of a further collapse of tottering walls, relatives of one of the injured men was allowed to pray by his side while the rescue squads sought to remove the mass of timbers [illegible] buried.

The entombed men were Italians, and could speak to their rescuers only in broken English. After a time some of their fellow countrymen who were on the scene were allowed to enter the building to console them, and to act as interpreters for the police and firemen trying to get them out.

Police were not certain that only three men still were in the wrecked building. The five who were saved said only eight men should have been at work on the floor on which they were trapped, but others were about the building, which was being remodelled.

The eight were at work on the second floor. The five first taken out were carried down firemen's ladders and rushed to hospitals. Groans still could be heard within the building. But it was almost four hours before the firemen located the three men, all of them trapped in an upright position.

Meanwhile other workmen were adding supports to the remaining walls of the structure to prevent a collapse which would have buried injured and firemen alike.

Police reserves were called to hold back the crowd of Fifth avenue shoppers which rushed to the scene.

The rescue workers late tonight had not determined the exact cause of the collapse. It was believed the easterly wall of the building from the third floor down had given way, bringing with it a part of the adjoining walls.

HOW PRIESTS ADMINSTERED THE LAST SACRAMENT

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Walking literally into the "valley of the shadow," dauntless in the face of duty, five Catholic priests braved imminent death with firemen and doctors tonight to administer the last sacrament and give aid to eight workmen buried in the collapse of a brownstone residence under repair in 47th street just off Fifth avenue.

Once they were called on to close the eyes of a dead man, and for hours they stood by the side of two others, alive, but hysterical, and with only their heads above the mass of fallen timbers, plaster and bricks.

Although five of the eight were rescued almost immediately, some of them with the aid of a priest, who was first to enter the wreckage—three others were pinned, one dead and two alive, within the building for more than six hours. Two more men were believed to be entombed in the cellar.

After six hours of frenzied labor, Joseph Bianco, was rescued and an hour later Salvador Biundo, was released. They were taken to a hospital in a critical condition.

A priest described only as "Father Caldwell," rushed into the building a few moments after it collapsed and firemen found him picking away bits of debris as he prayed by one of the workmen. Within a few moments he had been joined by Father Joseph McKenna, of St. Malachy's church, the actors' chapel, and the Rev. Bernard McQuade, of St. Patrick's.

They aided in the rescue of the first five. Tonight two others, the Rev. Edward Dargan, of St. Patrick's, and Father James Carey, who chanced to be a guest at his home, donned firemen's helmets and went into the wreckage.

They were in imminent danger, firemen were afraid to remove the debris until the remaining walls of the building which tottered as each beam was lifted, had been braced. For hours they scooped away bits of brick and mortar with their hands, unable in any other way to free the men imprisoned.

Oblivious to the tottering walls, the two priests crawled into the building and administered the last rites. As they reappeared, crowds which had thronged the street since the collapse cheered them.

Would Combat the Hard Coal Monopoly

New Englanders Advised to Use Other Fuel in Their Households This Winter.

BOSTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—New Englanders in 1924 paid more for heating their homes with anthracite coal than manufacturers paid for about twice the amount of bituminous coal, Eugene C. Hultman, chairman of the Massachusetts special commission on the necessities of life, told the affiliated technical societies of Boston tonight.

Urging the use in the homes of low volatile bituminous fuel instead of anthracite as a means of ending the problem caused by the suspension of work in the anthracite fields, Mr. Hultman said the householder had but two courses open. The first was to plead for anthracite at any price.

"If we do so, anthracite production will probably begin shortly, and we will pay the cost of the present suspension of production."

"On the other hand, he declared, "we can declare our independence from the special taxation method employed by the [illegible] of Pennsylvania [illegible] by using other fuel in our households this winter.

The meeting at which Mr. Hultman spoke tonight closed a two days' meeting of the societies devoted to fuel and power problem.

Various speakers today expressed optimism concerning New England's industrial outlook but warned that engineering developments, particularly in furnishing power, must keep pace with the speeding up which probably will be demanded in the future.

ELECTRICAL EXHIBITION AT SHEF. SCIENTIFIC SCHOOL

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 11—(AP)—The fifth electrical exhibition under the auspices of the Yale branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers opened tonight in the Dunham laboratory of the Sheffield Scientific school. The exhibits includes for the first time an exhibition of high voltage work, the voltage being more than 100,000 volts in every case.

In commenting on the electrical exhibit, Dean Charles H. Warren, of the Sheffield Scientific school said, "I feel sure that the members of the staff and the student body and all who attend will find both profit and entertainment in a visit to the exhibit. They will have an opportunity to see the facilities which the university offers to the Dunham laboratory for study and research in this field."

Miniature power plants, the actual demonstration of the process of electric arc welding, an automatic telephone exchange that never makes a mistake, and a great many amazing tricks are features of the show. Eggs are proached on a cake of ice, a trick gold course is bewildering, a ring toss recalls the horseshoe days, and a talking arc reports what is said although a person may be in another room. Tin cans and tops spin around everywhere with no visible force to keep them in motion, and colored lights give laughable effects. There are also several illumination tricks, among the most interesting of which is the projection of an image out into space.

PRENTICE WINS SCHOLARSHIP AT YALE

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—John Rockefeller Prentice, who today won the James J. Hogan scholarship at Yale university, has been supporting himself since 1920, refusing to take any assistance from his relatives, it was learned here today.

His father, E. Parmalee Prentice, a lawyer, refused tonight to discuss the award won by his son.

Young Prentice was enrolled in Yale five years ago, but dropped out of college, to "go on his own." At that time his name was omitted from the social register, in which it had appeared previously with those of his parents.

He earns $10 a week at the New Haven hospital.

PRESIDENT OF AUSTRIA CHALLENGES FOR A DUEL

VIENNA, Dec. 11—(AP)—Friends of Dr. Michael Hainisch, president of the Austrian republic, are doubtful whether they can persuade him to refrain from engaging in a duel with Alfred Guertler, former minister of finance, who is reported to have characterized the president as "an old fool."

It came to the ears of the president that Dr. Guertler made this remark in the presence of a number of prominent persons on the occasion of a celebration on the seventy-fifth anniversary of the foundation of the Gratz Chamber of Commerce, and the president immediately sent representatives to Guertler demanding satisfaction.

Two Hundred and Seventy-three Years Ago.

The first printed advertisement appeared in an English newspaper 273 years ago. It told people about a new book and where to get it. The immediate sales on that book showed that a lot of people were glad to have this information.

CONTEST OVER INHERITANCE TAX PROVISION IN THE HOUSE

Representatives Ramseyer of Iowa and Simmons of Nebraska, Republican's Attached the 50 Per Cent. Cut in the Maximum Inheritance Tax—The Attack Provoked Support For the Measure From Spokesmen of Both Parties—General Debate on the Revenue Bill Will Terminate Today.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—The inheritance tax provision of the revenue reduction bill came under fire in the house again today, but the five hours of debate, as on previous days, brought considerable support for the measure from spokesmen of both parties.

Representatives Ramseyer, of Iowa, and Simmons, of Nebraska, republicans, carried on the attack opened yesterday by Representative Frear, republican, Wisconsin, against the 50 per cent. cut in the maximum inheritance rate, and also opposed the provision to give an 80 per cent. credit in settlement of the federal inheritance levy on account of the amount paid on a similar state tax.

Chairman Green of the ways and means committee which framed the $235,000,000 tax reduction measure, replied that the committee had concluded that the states needed revenue from this tax, but with several not imposing any such levy, it was felt that the federal government should retain control over it and allow the 80 per cent. credit.

"For every dollar the tax payers of Nebraska will benefit by this," Mr. Simons said, "those in New York benefit $5. We men who represent the agriculture states can't support this provision of the bill."

Mr. Ramseyer, who sponsored the increased inheritance rates carried in the 1924 revenue act, declared the same reasons prevailed today for extension of these rates as existed then for an increase.

Representative Browne, republican, Wisconsin, opposed repeal of the provision permitting publicity of income returns, but this proposal was strongly defended by Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, who also urged greater reductions in the inheritance rates.

Discussing the publicity feature, Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking democrat on the ways and means committee, declared no instance of harm caused by the publicity had been called to the attention of the committee, but that also no good resulting from it had been noticeable. Therefore, he saw no reason for continuing it.

Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, a republican member of the committee, emphasized the non-partisan aspect of the bill, saying the committee's chief concern had been "Mr. Average Man, his wife and dependents," and that there were its principal beneficiaries.

The agreement under which the bill was taken up early in the week calls for termination tomorrow night of general debate, with consideration of amendments in order Monday. Leaders of both parties in charge of the measure were confident tonight that it would go through the house without major change before the end of next week.

MARITAL DIFFICULTIES OF A NEWSPAPER MAN

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 11—(AP)—The complicated marital difficulties of Ira S. French, a newspaper man variously employed in Bridgeport, Norwalk and New York, are again the subject of attention in superior court.

French and Gertrude Kingsley, now of Stamford and formerly a telephone operator residing in Norwalk, were married on February 22, 1917. French brought an action for a divorce on the ground of desertion. For two months he was a man "unmarried and single" under a decree handed down by Judge William M. Maltbie on April 17, 1923.

Then Mrs. French sought a private audience with Judge Maltbie. She said that she did not know of the proceedings brought against her until she had read a newspaper story on the court trial, although she was available for service of papers in the suit. Mrs. French claimed further that her husband wrote her a letter in which he told her that he intended to testify they separated in March of 1920, which date was not accurate, and his wife was requested "to participate in this imposition" on superior court. Judge Maltbie set aside the judgment of divorce and French was again a married man.

He recently brought a second action for a divorce, also setting forth the complaint of desertion. Mrs. French filed an answer, denying she deserted him, and brought a counter suit in which she asked for a decree because she was abandoned.

CONFIDENT MITCHELL TRIAL WILL END NEXT WEEK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Both the prosecution and defense counsel in the Mitchell court martial were confident tonight that the trial would end next week and the court's verdict would be in the hands of the war department reviewing officers in time for the judges to spend the Christmas holidays at home.

Representative Frank R. Reid, of Illinois, in charge of the defense, made known today his decision to make no reply to the voluminous evidence being offered on rebuttal by the prosecution. This means that when the last of the prosecution witnesses is heard, with Tuesday fixed for that event, only two more formal steps remain to be taken before the court closes for finding.

The court has a right itself to call additional witnesses when the prosecution stops presentation of evidence but it is not expected, after almost seven weeks' hearings, that this will be done.

CHARGED WITH FORGING CHATTEL MORTGAGES

STAMFORD, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Henry I. Rubin, a former automobile dealer here, who was bound over to the superior court Wednesday under $3,000 bonds on a charge of forging chattel mortgages, and who is also wanted in Bridgeport and New Haven on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, was surrendered to the local police by one of his two bondsmen late today.

Peter St. Charles, of this city who joined in giving bail for Rubin, Wednesday morning, withdrew the bond and Rubin is now in custody. St. Charles first brought Rubin to the Bridgeport county jail, but as no papers in the case had been received there, they would not accept him and so St. Charles brought him back to this city and turned him over to the police.

MACHADO ELECTED AS PRESIDENT OF PORTUGAL

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Bernardino Machado has been elected president of Portugal to succeed Teixeira Gomes, who resigned yesterday because of ill health, Machado was ousted from the presidency of the Portuguese republic in December 1917 and exiled, but was recalled in 1921 to take the post of premier.

KIPLING IS MAKING SASISFACTORY PROGRESS

BURWASH, England, Dec. 11—(AP)—Low but satisfactory progress is being made by Rudyard Kipling in his fight against broncho-pneumonia. It is nearly two weeks since the author was stricken with the disease, and the reports from the bedside have indicated that his physicians believe total recovery is only a matter of time.

"GRANDPA" DUNHAM FIDDLED OLD-TIME DANCES FOR FORD

DETROIT, Dec. 11.—(AP)—"Grandpa Mellie" Dunham, Maine's premier fiddler, bearing in his memory the tunes of many sweet old songs, the delight of dancers of other days, brought to friends of Henry Ford tonight the spirit of "neighborliness and friendship."

"Grandpa" Dunham occupied the center of the stage, assisted by the Ford orchestra, at the old time dancing party at the honor guest and entertainer. The picturesque, white-haired old character, unaccustomed to all this sudden interest taken up a nation in his ability to fiddle a tune, played, as mechanics in Ford's great factories, executives and friends tripped through the Virginia reel or the heel and toe polka.

There was no formal dress at this party.

Mr. Ford believes this country should return to friendliness and neighborliness and believes the return to old-time dancing will do it.

"I am trying in a small way to help America take a step, even if it be a little one," he said tonight, "toward the saner and sweeter idea of life that prevailed in pre-war days.

"What do the old-fashioned dances give us? First there is poise, next there is the mingling of boys and girls in a sane, pleasant decent happy fashion.

"The old fashioned dances promote a friendly relationship. You cannot dance a single square without coming in contact with seven human beings. If you dance a circle two step you will come in contact with perhaps fifth. You will clasp hands with them, you will get the human touch, the neighborliness that you have almost lost.

"America, the world, needs friendship, understanding of each other, the spirit of play."

MOURNING FOR FAMILIES OF 57 MINERS KILLED

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 11—(AP)—Pitiless suspense turned to mourning today for the families of 53 miners killed in a gas explosion in Overton minte No. 2 near Birmingham.

Rescue workers tonight were still trying to remove three bodies, two white men and one negro, from the pit which was partly wrecked by the blast yesterday.

Officials of the Alabama Fuel and Iron company, owners, said fifty bodies recovered included 43 negroes and 7 white miners. Rehabilitation work for the families of the dead will be materially assisted by the Birmingham chapter of the American Red Cross.

Today Charles de Bardeleben, president of the Alabama Fuel & Iron company, emerged from the pit after having devoted many continuous hours directing the rescue work. Coffee and food had been taken to Mr. Debardeleben and others in the workings at intervals to sustain them.

The five injured men who were brought out soon after the explosion are recovering in a hospital. All were severely burned by flames which swept the mine.

Officials of the mine have not yet determined the cause of the blast, three theories being advanced. Defective wiring, a lighted match or a "windy shot" may have been the cause.

Exploration of the mine tonight showed two rooms filled with debris although damage to the property will not be great. The flames did not reach the tipple and the machinery has not been damaged.

Charles Debardeleben said the mine will be in operation again within four days.

ESCAPE OF SAILOR BEING TAKEN TO STRONGER JAIL

BOSTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—Handcuffs and leg irons held so little terror for Spencer Waden, a sailor, that navy yard officers decided today he had better be transferred to a stronger jail than any available in their jurisdiction. Tonight police and marines were looking for Waden and a companion Nick Ferno, who jumped out of an automobile in which they were being taken to the Charles Street jail after the handcuff manipulator had slipped the irons off his wrists and then helped his companion to escape.

The records of the pair, including their points of enlistment were not made public. They were being held for general court martial on charges of desertion.

AVERAGE MAN IS THE TAX REDUCTION BENEFICIARY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—Representative Treadway, republican, of Massachusetts, a member of the house ways and means committee, said in the tax debate in the house today:

"We are hearing again the shout that the chief help accruing from this tax reduction is in favor of the rich. I assert that the greatest beneficiaries of the 1926 tax revision will be Mr. Average Man, his wife and their dependents. They make up the largest class in our country, and the one most deserving of the careful consideration of payers.

"The principal concern of the ways and means committee has been Mr. Average Man, and I, for one, am willing that he should be the judge whether or not we have dealt liberally by him."

Referring to the non-partisanship of the bill, Representative Treadway said the republican party "will continue to accept the credit of the actual revision whereby taxes are lowered and reforms inaugurated."

CROWD WITNESSED THE DESTRUCTION OF LIQUOR

BOSTON, DEC. 11—(AP)— Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson threw down a paper in disgust today, muttered something about a deafening racket, and poked his head out of the window of his office. He saw Michael H. Crowley, energetic superintendent of the Boston police, put a four inch hole in an 800 gallon still with a sledge hammer and then tackle the rest of a pile number 59 stills of all sizes and descriptions.

Before he was through the superintendent, assisted by the liquor squad, had put out of commission illegal liquor making apparatus worth $20,000 to its erstwhile owners. A crowd of 300 persons, including women, watched the work of destruction, occasionally offering facetious remarks, and motion picture photographers ground out feet of film.

NEW RECORD IN SPEED FOR HANDLING FREIGHT CARS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—With an average daily movement of 52.2 miles, the bureau railway economics, maintained here by the railroads, announced tonight that "a new high record for all time is the speed with which freight cars are handled" was set in October. This figure, the bureau said, exceeded by one and one half miles the previous recor dfo 50.7 made in the two preceding Octobers and again in September, 1925.

ITALIAN STEAMER WAS IN COLLISION WITH BRITISH

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 11—(AP)—The Italian steamer Campania, beached at Point No Point, 75 miles down the bay, after a collision with the British steamer Mombassa last Saturday, was towed to her dock here tonight. Emergency repairs released the ships from Point No Point early today. She carried a cargo of potash from Antwerp.

17 MORO OUTLAWS WERE KILLED BY CONSTABULARY

MANILA, Dec. 11—(AP)—Despatch to the Tribune from Iligan, Lano Province Island of Mindanao, says 17 Moro outlaws were killed and five constabulary soldiers wounded in a fight resulting from an attempt by the constabulary to capture the murderers of a Filipino school teacher two weeks ago.

It costs more to average our wrongs than it does to protect our rights.

CONVICTED BANDITS ARE TO APPEAL THEIR CASE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 11—(AP)—Three men convicted of the murder of James H. Ferneau, aged Waltham carbarn watchman, during a hold-up last the first step in their fight to escape the electric chair today when Judge Frederick Fosdick, in superior court denied motions for a new trial.

The men, John J. Devereaux, Edward J. Heinlein, and John J. McLaughlin, will carry their case to the state supreme court, and District Attorney Arthur K. Reading announced today that he would ask that the case be put on the calendar for next month. Both sides have agreed to the transcript of evidence.

At the same time Reading stated that the trial of Joseph H. Bennett, a fourth defendant, who was acquitted of murder by a directed verdict, probably would start next Monday. Bennet is charged with being an accessory before and after a robbery while armed. The murder charge against a fifth man, Joseph V. King, was not pressed when he turned state's evidence in trial of the three convicted men. He is awaiting trial on the charge of being an accessory before the fact of robbery.

The murder occurred at the barns of the Middlesex and Boston Street Railway company on the morning of October 4, during a robbery in which $1,320 was taken. At the trial Devereaux admitted shooting Ferneau but claimed it was in self defense.

Motion for a new trial was made on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence and the law and it was contended that no evidence had been introduced to show that the men went to the scene of crime with intent to kill if resisted. The defense held that each of the accused should have been given separate trials, that District Attorney Readings had made improper remarks to the jury by referring to crimes committed while the trial was in progress and that the court erred in its charge to the jury.

The state maintained that the fact that the men had loaded revolvers is their possession was proof of intent to kill if resisted.

CLIFFORD H. WILSON ARRESTED FOR FORGERY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 11—Clifford H. Wilson, 25, of South Manchester, was placed under arrest in that place this afternoon by Chief of Police Allen MacArthur and returned to this city to face a charge of forgery. He will appear in the police court Saturday morning. In November 1924, Wilson was employed at a ski-board establishment at 826 Main street here conducted by L. H. Maples of Norwich. Wilson, who is to become a father in a few weeks, claims that he received no definite pay and on Nov. 20, 1924, Maples made out a check to him for services. Wilson is alleged to have raised the amount to a total of $40 and cashed it at Prag Bros. store here conducted by Herman and Benjamin Prag. Later the check was returned to the Willimantic Trust company and the forgery noticed. In the meantime Maples had removed his ski-Board and closed his place due to the lack of business and Wilson had left for parts unknown. A warrant for his arrest has been held since that time.

WILLIMANTIC TAX COLLECTOR ARRESTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 11—Alfred J. Lariviere, city tax collector in 1924, was placed under arrest at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon by County Detective William E. Jackson, who served a warrant on the ex-collector, charging him with embezzlement. It is alleged that Lariviere appropriated $2,610.61 of the taxes which he collected on the city's grand list of 1923. His arrest followed an investigation of discrepancies in the returns of the collector to the treasurer, which was authorized at the final meeting of the outgoing common council held recently. Lariviere was scheduled to appear in police court this Saturday morning and was released under bonds of $3,000 furnished by Thomas H. Killourey. The shortage in the collector's account was discovered some months ago and since that time the Hartford Indemnity company, with which Lariviere was bonded, has reimbursed the city in the amount of $2,-$2,610.61 which was the sum definitely ascertained as having been misappropriated. An investigation of a further shortage said to involve an approximate total of about $6,000 is being continued.

UNCASVILLE

During the past week Ezra Fitzlund Dart celebrated his 95th birthday. Friends called to congratulate him on being so well and active even though he has lived nearly a century.

Mr. Dart takes a great interest in things going on today and loves to compare things as they were when he was young with things of the present day. He is somewhat deaf but can read without glasses. He plants his garden early in the year and is the first to have his plowing done and often has vegetables up while some of the younger men are planning what to plant. During the past summer his garden was equal to any cared for by younger men. He took care of it himself, even to digging the potatoes.
